Empire Theatre Program. The Empire Theatre has recently produced some of the greatest pictures known to screenland, and on May 14 and 15 this record will be maintained when "Everywoman" will be presented for the entertainment of the patrons of the theatre.

"Everywoman" is unique in many ways, but its principal claim to distinction is its perfection of production. It is as trim and beautiful and well groomed in its presentation as the people in it. It is lavish and beautiful in scene and setting. There are camera effects that make it hard to believe that the camera itself is a comparatively new toy and that a few men with the tires of the machine they get only as far as Grantsville and were compelled to return to town.

Banner Schools for the Month of March, 1920.

The following schools have made the highest percentage of attendance in their respective election districts and are therefore considered the banner school for their district.

Those repeating this month are followed by a parenthesis () containing numbers showing how often that particular school has held the banner this school year; those not having reports in the office of the County Board of Education by the tenth of the month forfeit their rights as contestants for the banner.

Mortgagee's Sale

Real Estate

Under a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Thomas L. Ashby and Ella F. Ashby, his wife, to Virginia T. Johnson et al., bearing date March 10th, 1909, and recorded in Liber No. 57, folio 289, one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett county, and said mortgage having been assigned to Charles B. Graham and by him assigned to the undersigned for foreclosure, I hereby give notice that default having been made in the payment of the debt secured by said mortgage, I will, on

SATURDAY, THE 29th DAY OF MAY, 1920,

At 1:30 P. M., in front of the Court House in Oakland, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, all that piece or parcel of land lying and being in Garrett county and State of Maryland, containing 33 1/2 ACRES, the same being a part of a tract of land called "ASHBY'S THREE HUNDRED ACRE SURVEY," and which said part is fully described in a deed from one E. W. Ashby and wife to the said Thomas L. Ashby, dated July 17th, 1905, and recorded in Liber No. 50, folio 21, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, and to which said deed reference is made for a full description of the same, or anyone interested can get said information by calling on the undersigned. Said land is about four miles Southward of Oakland on the road leading from Underwood to Brookside and would be suitable for a small farm.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash; conveying at cost of purchaser.

FRED. A. THAYER, Assignee of Mortgage.

The Trained Nurse

Trained Nurses are needed every day—in times of disaster or pestilence they are a God-send to the community. They are respected and honored. Theirs is a service that all may envy.

And the trained nurse through this service is assured of independence and comfort. Her profession furnishes her income.

The characteristic of the best type of nurses are those which our American heritage has given us—loyalty, devotion, health, interest and self-sacrifice where necessity demands.

Perhaps nursing appeals to you. Communicate with the superintendent either in person or by mail and your questions will be answered. It is a three years' course of study and hospital work, with quarters and board furnished by the hospital, and pay for your time while you are learning.

The Superintendent, Women's Hospital,

Lafayette Ave. & John St., Baltimore, Md.

Notice to Girls Wanting Work.

Any girls between the ages of 18 and 25 desiring permanent employment in the contemplated Interwoven Woolen Mills, factory in Oakland, will kindly either call in person or send their application by letter to Bernard I. Gonder, P. O. Box 517, Oakland, Md. Wages, $2.00 per day and up.

MORE THAN ONE-HALF OF ADULTS IN U. S. LACK CHURCH INFLUENCE

Older Communities Are Better Supplied With Churches Than the Newer Districts of the West and Southwest.

Striking figures revealing the number of adults in the United States who are without church affiliation are shown on a chart which has just been issued by the Interchurch World Movement. This chart brings out a comparison of unchurched inhabitants by states, indicating that the older communities of New England are relatively habitants is 33.2, while little Rhode Island is next with only 38.7 per cent of its population not in church memberships. New York stands third with a percentage of 39.4 unchurched. The other states where less than half the population are not affiliated with any church, as revealed by the Interchurch World Movement chart, ly better supplied with churches than those of the newer states of the west and southwest.

Conditions such as these, brought to light by the home and foreign surveys, form the basis for the great appeal of thirty co-operating denominations, through the Interchurch World Movement, for $336,777,572 in the United Financial Campaign which begins April 25 and ends May 2.

More than one-half of the adults of the United States are without any church connection whatever, the statistical chart shows. The exact figures are 50.1 per cent.

Possibly many persons will be surprised to learn that Nevada leads with the greatest number of unchurched persons, including children—87.8 per cent of her population. Oklahoma is second, the statistics revealing that 82.2 per cent of that state's inhabitants have no church connections. Wyoming is third with 77.2, Arizona fourth with 73.9, Washington fifth with 73.3, Oregon sixth with 72.7 and West Virginia seventh with 71.2 per cent of the population unchurched.

On the credit side the chart discloses that Connecticut leads with the lowest percentage of unchurched and, consequently, the best showing in church attendance for its population. Connecticut's percentage of unchurched inwith their percentage of unchurched are as follows: Massachusetts, 41.9 per cent; Utah, 43.7 per cent; Louisiana, 46.5 per cent; Pennsylvania, 49.9 per cent; and South Carolina, 49.9 per cent.

The percentages of unchurched in the remaining states in order of which more than half the population is not affiliated with any church are as follows:

Alabama 78.3, Arkansas 70.8, California 62.8, Colorado 70, Delaware 55.8, District of Columbia 67.1, Florida 62.3, Georgia 57.3, Idaho 68, Illinois 71.2, Indiana 61.2, Iowa 61.1, Kansas 60.7, Kentucky 62.1, Maine 65.5, Maryland 53.7, Michigan 58.7, Minnesota 55.2, Mississippi 62.2, Missouri 57.7, Montana 69.9, Nebraska 66.1, New Hampshire 53.3, New Jersey 51.3, New Mexico 70.9, North Carolina 70.7, North Dakota 61.9, Ohio 53.7, South Dakota 65.6, Tennessee 67.1, Texas 61.7, Vermont 56, Virginia 58.9, and Wisconsin 53.5.

The Interchurch World Movement survey for the United States reported that the 15,300,343 Americans in church memberships accounted for were distributed as follows: Catholic 17,591,074, Jewish 3,877,238, Protestants 24,352,316, children of Protestant parentage 7,413,210; all other faiths 739,715.

WHY THIRTY DENOMINATIONS PLAN TO RAISE $336,777,572 IN THIS UNITED CAMPAIGN

What are the purposes to which the churches plan to put the large sum of money represented by the united budget of the thirty denominations co-operating through the Interchurch World Movement? What are the needs which American Christianity feels itself called upon to meet?

The sum for which the churches are appealing is $336,777,572, to be collected by means of an intensive campaign during the week of April 25 to May 2.

The money will be spent on home and foreign missions, education, Sunday schools, ministerial salaries and pensions, and hospitals and homes.

Here are some of the reasons for the appeal. There are 54,000,000 people in the United States who are connected with no church. If these people wanted to attend church, they would be unable to do so, for not more than one-third of the population of the United States has an opportunity to attend church regularly Sunday by Sunday.

Pastors are paid on an average throughout the country $987 per year. This is the explanation of the dearth of young men willing to enter the ministry, and hence the explanation of the fact that thousands of churches can only hold service once a month,

Twenty-seven million young people in the United States are connected with no Sunday school, get no regular religious training. If they wanted the training there are not buildings or teachers enough to give it to one-half of them.

Yet Roger W. Babson, the statistician, speaking recently on business principles, declared that "the greatest factor in business life today is religion" and that "your real security is the integrity, the righteousness of the people of the community."

All over the world the non-Christians outnumber the nominal Christians by two to one. The enlightened races are Christian, the backward races are non-Christian. The backward races, so long as they remain backward, constitute a standing menace to the ideals and institutions of the more enlightened peoples. A simple illustration shows this. From time immemorial plagues have originated among the backward peoples and spread from them to the more civilized. Today a medical missionary in India or China may be the means of saving thousands of lives in America and Europe by checking a disease at its source.

SELBYSPORT

Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, of Frostburg, and Mr. and Mrs. William Green, of Lonaconing, spent Sunday here at the home of Mr. W. S. Friend. Miss Elizabeth Humbert and little brother Van Dyke, of Confluence, Pa., were guests of Miss Bessie Welch over Sunday.

Mrs. Thad Glatfelter and daughter, Mrs. Clyde Kaul, and little son Robert, of Indian Head, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. William Kaufman, of Mount Pleasant, motored here Saturday to visit the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret Welch.

Mr. James B. Frantz visited his uncle, Mr. George Dunham, at our neighboring town of Friendsville, on Sunday.

Mrs. J. J. Knapp and daughter spent Saturday evening at the home of C. C. Fike.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pritt and son Wade spent Saturday and Sunday at Sand Spring.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Selby, one day last week, a daughter.

Miss Vespie Fike closed her school on Friday, the 30th of April.

There will be preaching services on Sunday morning, May 16th. Everybody come.

BITTINGER

There is a town called the town of Don't Worry.

On the banks of the broad river Smile. Where kickers are "canned" in a hurry.

And "grouches" are never in style.

The folks in this hamlet have reluctantly put away their sugar vessels and are patiently waiting for the rain to cease that they may begin their spring sowing.

Noah Stark and family, of Blaine, West Va., are visiting Mrs. Stark's parents here at this writing.

Mrs. Cornelius Howser is critically ill at her home near this village, having suffered an attack of apoplexy on Saturday afternoon last.

Mr. Blaine Glessman, of Oakland, purchased a truck load of maple syrup in this section last week, paying $2.75 per gallon for the product.

District Game Warden Richard Browning, of Oakland, was a very pleasant caller here one day last week.

Mr. Charles H. Wiley and family motored to Oakland last Friday where they spent the day shopping.

Mr. Grover Wiley and family, of Beachley, Pa., visited relatives here recently.

Mr. John D. Miller, cashier of the Citizens' State Bank of Salisbury, Pa., visited this section last week on business.

BLOOMINGTON

A strike is on at the Ross mine at the mouth of Savage. Disaffection amongst the employees over the industrial status of the boss, we understand, is the cause.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Avery, of Beryl, was taken to the Hoffman Hospital for treatment of measles and is suffering from convulsions. She is reported as doing nicely and is expected home in a few weeks.

Mr. Jacob Stump has developed into a real farmer and recently purchased a 300-acre plantation in Preston county, West Va., near the Pennsylvania state line. He left last week with a team of mules and will begin his tenant this spring in the spring plowing and in getting the farm ready for this season's crops.

Mr. William Mullen, of Fredericksburg, Va., who was called to Cumberland last week to attend the funeral services of Mr. George Goeke, husband of his niece, came up to Bloomington on the evening train last Thursday and spent the night in his native town, the guest of his friends, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Kemp.

Three red-hot enthusiasts for Johnson came back from Cumberland on last Monday night. These three gentlemen braved the unfavorable natural environments of the evening and attended the reception and debut of Brother Hiram, of California. Fascinated by his bewitching eloquence, they climbed into the Johnson land-wagon and are beating the tomtoms at the head of the parade in this community. For further particulars of the big show to be held in the State on Monday, consult Messrs. Harry Coffman, John Tibbets and Clifton Clark.

At the recent meeting of the annual conference of the M. E. church held in Baltimore city, the Bloomington appointment was to be supplied some time in the future, the time of supply depending entirely upon the availability of a minister suitable for this service, and it looked to the little flock of the faithful in this community that their chances for regular services from a regular preacher were exceedingly slim. We understand from Mr. James Coffman, one of the trustees, that the district superintendent has placed the Bloomington appointment for the time being under the pastorate of the Methodist minister of our sister town, Piedmont. This assurance has met with the approval of the entire community and it is predicted that with first-class service this rundown appointment will be revived to such an extent that it will be self-sustaining and a minister will be located in our midst.

ACCIDENT

Mr. John Gies and family motored to Oakland Sunday evening.

Mr. John A. Wray, of Uniontown, was guest at the home of Mr. John Gies Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Glatfelter and family, of Melleney, visited at Mr. E. H. Lee's home Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Speicher and son Ray were the guests of relatives in Accident Sunday.

Miss Marie Rush spent a few days

"Your overalls fit easy—why don't mine?"

"THERE we are, Bill, doing the same kind of work—and my overalls pull and bind—make me want to take 'em off—throw 'em away!

"And when I look at you, you're always comfortable. Your overalls fit just as easy as the day you bought 'em.

"Believe me—next time I'll take your advice and buy Blue Buckles."

Hard work—kneeling, bending, stretching—is what Blue Buckles are built for. They are so big and roomy they always fit easy—make you forget you have on overalls.

"I've tried a lot of overalls, but of all I've worn I'll choose Blue Buckles every time. They always give long wear."

President of the Lane Coal and Small Coal Company Association

They are made of the toughest, longest-wearing denim, with broad, double-stitched seams that don't rip. First class workmanship has made Blue Buckles the biggest selling overall in the world. Big reinforced pockets; placed so you won't sit on them—a solid back-band that holds its shape—extra wide suspenders—heavy brass buttons and best quality loops and buckles—these are the points that make Blue Buckles right in every detail.

Ask your dealer for Blue Buckles.

in Connellsville as the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. E. Frazer.

Misses Lillian Catter and Edna Ault spent Saturday last in Cumberland where they attended the play "Twin Beds" at the Maryland Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alexander and Earle Alexander, of Westernport, Md., visited their parents here on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Frank Spoerlein, accompanied by his sisters, Misses Sadie, Clara and Nellie, motored to Cumberland Wednesday to visit their brother Harry, who is a patient in the Western Maryland Hospital of that city.

Mr. Joseph Helbig, of Oakland, was employed at the home of Mr. H. M. Speicher one day last week hanging paper.

Mr. Ward Beachy, of Grantsville, is doing some interior decorating at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hetrick in this town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hetrick and family were the guest of their son, Mr. Harvey Hetrick, of near Bittering, recently.

Miss Edna Marshall, grade supervisor for the county, paid our school a visit on Monday and gave a demonstration in the use of the Curtis tests in arithmetic.

Mrs. Newton Gies and daughter Verna motored to Cumberland Sunday to visit Mr. Newton Gies, who is a patient in one of the hospitals in that city.

Mr. Gilmor Turney, of near Oakland, visited friends in Accident Sunday.

Misses Mildred and Olive Berkeley, who had been visiting friends and relatives here, returned to Meyersdale Sunday morning. They were accompanied by Coit Speicher and Howard Englehart, who returned to their homes here Sunday evening.

"The Victory Savings Society" of the Accident High School held its monthly meeting on Friday afternoon. This society since its organization in January, bought thrift and war savings stamps to the extent of $97.29.

Early in March the congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran church of this place decided to hold a picnic at Accident on July 3rd. Arrangements for the occasion, as far as possible, have been made, and if plans count for anything, then this picnic will be a record-breaker. We advise everyone who wishes to celebrate Uncle Sam's birthday to attend this picnic, for there will be plenty of good things to eat and lots of clean, wholesome fun. Besides, Accident is an ideal place to spend such a day.

MUTTON HOLLOW

Mrs. Ernest Wright and daughter Bertha spent last Thursday in Oakland on business.

Mr. Jacob Lee, of near here, was a business visitor at the home of Mr. J. A. Wright Thursday evening.

Mr. John Howell, of this section, made a business trip to the county seat one day the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Weimer and Misses Edith and Lena Wright visited at the home of Mr. John Howell Friday evening.

A few of the young people of this community attended the entertainment at Steiding school house on Saturday evening.

Mr. Robert Weimer, who spent the past week at Morgantown, has returned to his home in this community.

Messrs. Grant and Lennel Friend and Leonard Sweetzer, of Swanton, spent Sunday with their uncle, Mr. A. H. Friend, at this place.

Mr. Hoye Rodeheaver visited the home of J. A. Wright Sunday.

Every
is built of special steels

There are few "stock" steels in a Maxwell. Nearly all the steels are special, made to Maxwell's own formulae, and developed in the Maxwell laboratories.

All the experience gained from the building of nearly 400,000 Maxwells, and the study of their use in nearly every country of the world, has been put into these special steels.

They made it possible to build the Maxwell lighter in weight and to increase its strength.

Superfluous pounds thus eliminated from the chassis have resulted in increased ability in performance.

At the same time more endurance has been developed.

Thus it becomes obvious why Maxwell has climbed very rapidly into favor the world over.

Nearly 400,000 are now in use; and 100,000 more are being built this year.

HUTTON

Mr. Lefroy Hutton, manager of the Tingo Tanning Company of Hutton, is visiting in New York this week. Rev. James E. Connell was visiting his parishioners here Thursday and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Pendergast at luncheon.

Dr. Henry W. McConas, an Oakland physician, was a professional visitor to this village on the afternoon of Tuesday last.

The home of Mrs. Sarah Uphold, at Edgewood, was the scene of a very painful and distressing accident on the afternoon of Friday last, when the youngest grandson, a child of four summers, happened, unfortunately, to fall into a large vessel of boiling water which was placed on the floor a few minutes previous by the aged grandmother. It seems at the time of the occurrence, both mother and grandmother were busily engaged in assorting various articles of soiled clothing and inadvertently failed to observe the child's entrance until aroused by the noise of a commotion, they beheld the little one precipitating into the tub of boiling water, whereupon they immediately rescued him, and exerted every effort to alleviate his intense suffering by applications of home remedies, until an Oakland physician having been dispatched for arrived a few hours later rendered the child as comfortable as is possible for human aid under such trying circumstances. On the afternoon of the following day the angel of death appeared, bearing away the spirit of the little child to the happy abode of the blessed. The obsequies having occurred Monday the child's body now rests beside that of its father, who preceded it to the grave some what over two years ago, as it is remembered that the late Charles Uphold was among the first victims in this section to succumb to the dreadful "flu" epidemic that swept the country with so great a violence as never to be forgotten by this or the coming generations, for truly it is recorded as the worst pestilence that ever had occasion to visit our shores.

Mr. Ted Baker, of Edgewood, Pa., is here on a visit to his brother, Mr. F. P. Baker.

Miss Loretta Carney, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Bergman, recently. Miss Margaret Feeney, of Edgewood, was a visitor to Oakland, one day last week.

WOMAN LEADER TO AID SALVATIONISTS

Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, Wife of Maryland Congressman, Heads Women's Branch.

Mrs. J. C. Linthicum

Of extreme interest to the women of Maryland is the announcement that Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, wife of the Maryland Congressman, has accepted the Women's State Chairmanship of the Home Service Fund of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Linthicum is prominent in women's work in the State and recently presented the dreadnaught Maryland with its flag.

She is Maryland State Chaplain of the Daughters of America, and during the war was a member of the Women's Branch of the National Defense League and chairman of several other organizations having in hand war work.

She has always been deeply interested in the Salvation Army, and has accepted the Maryland State Chairmanship with the belief that no work is more important at this time than the raising of funds to carry out the plans of this organization in the purchase of a Girls' Home, and other enterprises of equal importance.

Mrs. Linthicum will ask that every woman in Maryland who realizes the wonderful performance of the Salvation Army before, during and after the war, put her hands to the wheel and help raise the $200,000 which is necessary for this most laudable enterprise.

The drive will be made from the 10th to the 20th of May, and everyone in the State will be expected to lend a helping hand.

Under date of April 13, writing to Brigadier William Escott, head of the Salvation Army in Maryland, Mrs. Linthicum paid a high tribute to the Salvationists, saying:

"In response to your request that I accept the State Chairmanship of this work in Maryland, I beg to say that realizing the wonderful work which the Salvation Army performed while in France, and their great follow-up system since their return at home, it would be difficult indeed for me to refuse to accept any work laid down by the great organization for my performance."

"Wonderful opportunities were afforded and grasped by the many organizations in war work in the camps and cantonments in this country, and during hostilities abroad, and I may say since the return of the boys to America. There is no organization, however, which stands more prominently before the public, and whose work is more generally approved than is that of the Salvation Army."

"It is therefore incumbent upon all of us to do everything we can to further its work, and to make more helpful its every effort. It is very laudable indeed that this organization has determined to establish a home in Baltimore for the working girls, and to procure money for other purposes just as essential."

"I take pleasure, therefore, in accepting the State Chairmanship for the work in hand, and assure you it will give me great pleasure at all times to do my utmost for its success."

Sheep Shearing Demonstrations. Mr. Beale, sheep specialist from the United States Department of Agriculture, and Mr. Bomberger, of the Maryland Extension Service, will be with County Agent J. A. Towler on May 11th, 12th and 13th, to give demonstrations in sheep shearing, tying of the fleeces, docking lambs and talk on the care of the flock, diseases of sheep and other subjects of interest and importance to those engaged in the sheep industry. Meetings will be held at the following named places on the dates set out:

Tuesday, May 11th, at Shook Shop, school house, Ryan's Glade, afternoon school hours, 5:30 to 8 o'clock.

Wednesday, May 12th, at the farm of Ernest Ridder, near Mason school house, afternoon meeting at 2 o'clock. Thursday, May 13th, at Bittinger, afternoon and evening meeting, 2 and 8 o'clock.

All who can possibly do so are requested to be present at one of these meetings at least. J. A. TOWLER, County Agent.

WHY LEONARD WOOD FOR PRESIDENT

By his appearance in South Dakota General Leonard Wood formally consents to the use of his name as a Presidential candidate.

The question may thus now be asked, "Why Wood?" What reasons justify his candidacy? What claims has he on the consideration of the American people?

In the way of giving honoring testimony where it seems richly due these things may be said: He has earned a place as a great national figure; he has shown the rare quality called vision; he has been a doer throughout a crowded life, and his reputation rests not on words. He has a character whose soundness and beauty have endured many searching tests.

General Wood belongs to no state or section. It happens he was born amid the Cape Cod folks of Massachusetts, but is at home anywhere in America—in New Mexico as much as in New York, in South Carolina as much as in Illinois. He is big enough to be seen across the continent, and is not called on to ask for support as a favorite son.

General Wood has vision—that instinctive quality by which some men sense the future and its problems. In 1902 he attended the maneuvers of the German Army. The Kaiser thought his quiet, unobtrusive visitor was dull—was not aware that his keen mind had clearly pierced the Kaiser's secret. A danger threatened America and the world, and General Wood saw it. He refused the Order of the Black Eagle, but subsequently accepted a decoration from France. Other men were blind. Let us rejoice he was not.

The vision guided him. Two unforgettable things he contributed to winning the war. He laid the foundations of the public opinion that brought conscription promptly, and he was the father of the Plattsburg idea. He endured the reproach of being a militarist to secure the one, and pushed the other despite the frantic threats of the Administration. Except for conscription and the Plattsburg idea, preparation of officers the 2,000,000 Americans would scarcely have arrived in time. Princeton University paid a merited tribute when it conferred a degree and said:

"In our defenseless state he has sounded the reveille to awaken a slumbering nation from its dream of security, bidding us rise and take our place like men to save our freedom and help to save the freedom of the world."

As a doer General Wood revealed himself when he was administrator of Cuba, and later of the Philippines. His reputation is international. His achievements are compared to those of Cromer and Milner. Tact, foresight, patience, business judgment, imagination and sympathy—these elements were mixed in him and won him the confidence of proud but backward peoples.

Touching the character of the man only one incident need be mentioned. In July, 1918, his division, the 89th reached the port of debarkation. The general's baggage was aboard when an order came from Washington relieving him of command. There was almost a mutiny. He called his officers together and said to them: "I am going back to Camp Funston tomorrow, where I shall give the best that is in me to the training of the new troops. Do not concern yourselves with my case, but get your mind on the war. If you would please me play your part cheerfully, and well—that means when in action never fail to take your objective and never be late on your objective."

It's the way, as Kipling has told us, a man takes a "facer" that proves his stuff. Should General Wood reach the White House we may be sure there will be a man there with ruggedness of character equalling that of the most illustrious of his predecessors.—Ed N. Y. Tribune.

LEONARD WOOD HEADQUARTERS OPENED. State Headquarters of the Leonard Wood League, Maryland Branch, have been opened at 1204 Fidelity Building, Corner Charles and Lexington streets, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Blanchard Randall, who is well-known throughout the State as a Republican and business man, has been chosen as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the League. Mr. J. Craig McLanahan, a lawyer of high standing, former assistant United States District Attorney, and well known in Republican circles, has been elected Secretary. A temporary Executive Committee has been named, and within the next few days, county chairmen of the League will be selected throughout the State.

Everyone who is interested in the candidacy of General Wood for President is requested to send their name and address to the State Headquarters. They will be enrolled as members of the League, no dues, and will be supplied with Leonard Wood buttons, literature, membership cards, etc. W. Lester Baldwin, Executive Secretary and Treasurer of the League, states that upward of a thousand members have already been enrolled throughout the State, and that many more members are coming in every day.

50c. Talking With 50c. The Dead 50c.

A handsome booklet of 150 pages. The latest and most up-to-date work dealing with the mysterious communications from the Spirit World.

Increasing interest in this subject has been manifested for some years past, but particularly since the World War. A great desire on the part of bereaved parents and friends of the boys who died in camp and "Over There" to know something about their present state is to a large extent responsible for the universal interest in this subject today.

Talking With The Dead

touches every phase of these phenomena. It is both Scientific and Scriptural. Price post paid 50 cents.

Special offer, "Talking With the Dead" will for a limited time be given free with one year's subscription to the Golden Age. Subscription price $1.00 per year. Published every other Wednesday. Deals with all important subjects of the day and their application to the good times coming.

PRESENT-HOUR CONDITIONS.

The Interchurch Movement, advertised as "The Modern Passion Play" and "The Greatest Pageant-Drama ever staged."

There are thirty actors and actresses of fame, with thousands of others acting and singing in the play. Among them are Godless people. The greatest event that ever occurred on earth, when the Son of God died on the cross to save sinners, is being dragged down and prostituted to a theatrical show with the price of admission from 50 cents to two dollars per head.

This show is to make the round of the great cities. It is said that it is to be staged in Japan and other heathen countries. True Christians, who love the Lord and His appearing, should stay away from these places and especially should they keep their children away. It will only prove to be a bridge over which ungodly people shall rush to see wicked plays.

Surely judgment is being delayed. This may be called a straw, but it shows the direction of the wind.

The Vatican is to be approved as a member of the "League of Nations." It will be a controlling power. Europe is in a turn of mind. Many daily papers seem to be afraid to let the light in on that cancerous spot. They have plenty of space for Sin Fein propaganda, but very little to say for this cause represented by the few worthy men of Northern Ireland, who lately toured our country in the interests of truth, fair play, a square deal and righteousness.

What is abroad in the world? The woman in scarlet as portrayed in Revelations, is getting ready to ride the Beast. However, she will not ride and length of time. She will be thrown off and trampled by the very system she used as the tools to accomplish her ends.

A Mohammedan uprising is feared; it is threatened. Constantinople for five hundred years has been the capital of Islam and has been associated with the most glorious period in Moslem history.

Its loss would be a great humiliation for Mohammedans. It would arouse anger throughout all Islam and might lead to a holy war. The Turk should not be allowed to bear rule over Christian populations.

Armenian atrocities should be brought to an end for all time. Lord George's plan is doubtless the best solution of the problem. It is "to leave the Turk out of Europe entirely and fix his seat of Government at Brusa or some other city in Asia." It may seem severe, but it is wise and just.

"Let the Turkish possessions in Europe, together with the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus be under the control of an international commission and belong henceforth to all the world."

Our Sabbath day is in great danger. On the levees of the Mississippi, above New Orleans, a man may be seen digging out the little crawfish. That is apparently a trifling job for a man, but it is a necessary precaution for those little holes waiting to drop by drop, let in the river and the levee would soon be swept away and a great city destroyed.

The infringements of the custom and laws of our American Sunday may seem trifling, but unless the habits and customs of the hour are checked, they will let in the destroying flood, which will sweep away our day of rest. Once it is lost, it will not be regained easily, if ever. It is now abused completely, by amusements, inconsistencies and companionships. The world calls for an open season. We need a day for rest for its physical, moral and spiritual blessings. The Sabbath is essential to our National greatness. People are going wild over pleasure and profits, graft and greed, and these, with voluptuousness and injustice, wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, false teaching persecutions, apostasy, abounding in iniquity and spiritual declension are the order of the present hour.

The prophecy of Luke 21:16 is being fulfilled. "Men's hearts shall faint (or fainting as if dead) for fear and looking for (expecting) the things that are coming on the world."

It applies to the consumption of all things. These things will come upon the earth—the habitable world. It presents a fearful picture. The times are out of joint now, with no immediate prospects of betterment. But brighter days will come, though darker ones must precede the brighter ones. That event will be attended by things that will alarm the senses and heart of man. If giving the law at Sinai was so terrible that Moses said I exceedingly fear and quake, the return of Christ, the great and glorious day, will be even more terrible.

When angels rolled away the stone from the grave of Jesus and He rose again, Roman soldiers became as dead men, but when Christ comes to judge the world, how much greater the terror to the un saved.

Believers will be with Him. No wonder Paul said "knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men." What will the impatient do when graves are opening and the trumpet is summoning men to judgment?

We should mark public events of the times in which we live. Mark the political events; study the signs of the times. Some of the signs are the dying of the Turkish Empire, the awakened desire to preach the gospel to the ends of the earth—to evangelize the world—the renewed interest in the state of the Jews, the shaking of governments and established institutions and the rise and progress of the subtlest forms of infidelity. But not yet have we all the signs predicted as preceding the coming of the Son of Man. Not yet have the sun and moon fulfilled their part, but we have distress of nations, with perplexity.

The sea—nations—in a state of unrest. The times of the Gentiles have not yet been fulfilled, but may be soon.

All this is a call to the church to awake, arise and address herself to the work of evangelization. It is a call to individuals to heed the voice of Providence; to hear the Divine Word; obey His commands and get right with God at once. Then you will be safe for time and eternity.

SEES FARMER AS AID TO PEACE

INCREASING PRODUCTION WILL MAKE UNNECESSARY LARGE ARMAMENT SAYS PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Agricultural Interests Played The Game And Fed This Country As Well As Our Allies.

In an address recently in Chicago, Leonard Wood, candidate for president of the United States, said that if proper encouragement is given to farmers and to the advancement of agriculture, America will not need a large army or navy.

"The farmer is the steady class about which unstable masses move," said the candidate. "He is a land owner, consequently, he is a conservative man and believes in this government."

"During the war the American farmer played the game. He did not try to hold up the public by striking and shoving up the price of food, but he fed not only our country but our allies in a very large part. He is a patriotic, loyal, non-striking, steady American citizen."

Leonard Wood's address in part follows:

Only Original Producers.

"The farmers today are the only producers of original wealth. But they are getting off of the farms. The farms are falling into the hands of large land owners. We want to stop that if we can. The moment we cease to be a self-sustaining nation, our whole foreign policy must change. We are producers now of food in quantities sufficient for ourselves and for considerable export, but supposing our agriculture declines and we become dependent on outside countries for food and supplies, what does that mean? It means at once an enormous navy; it means a stronger military establishment; it means the control of lines of supply beyond peradventure, as during this war Germany expected to beat England by cutting off her food supply.

England, however, realized that danger and has always had a navy equal to any other two navies. She has had to have a navy that was in excess of the needs of maintaining her commerce, in order that she might have a navy strong enough to also insure the free entrance of food in time of war.

Farmers Do Not Get Enough.

"You know there is a great deal of unrest today in the farming element. They feel that enough of the producer's dollar does not come back to them, and there is a good deal of truth in it. During the Omaha riots I was knocking about the city one night and ran into an old farmer coming in with a load of milk. I said to him, 'What do you get for your milk?' He replied, 'From 5 1/2 to 6 cents a quart.' I said, 'It is selling for a great deal more than that here.' He said, 'Oh, yes. On those days when I feel a bit flush I go down to the Pontonelle and get a good breakfast, and I meet my milk there at about fifteen cents a quart. Now I raised that cow, fed her, milked her and brought that milk in here about 25 miles and got 6 cents a quart for it, and I want to find this other fellow that is getting 9 cents in about two hours.

"You know that there is a lot in that, and that is only one illustration, but that is one of the big movements on the part of the farmers today, to get closer to the consumer and to get a larger share of the ultimate selling price of his product.

"So the farmer's problem is an interesting one and a very important one, and to sum it up briefly, we must try to make his living conditions and the conditions surrounding him the way of education, and transportation and the delivery of his supplies and all that sort of thing the best possible, otherwise your farmers are going to have a constant falling off in the development and production of the sources of original wealth.

Made Mighty Good Soldiers.

"During the war the farmer sent his sons to war and they made mighty good soldiers. The divisions I had to train in the Middle West were practically all farmer boys, and there were no better divisions went overseas in discipline, in character, in fighting qualities, in cleanliness and patriotism.

WHAT THEODORE ROOSEVELT THOUGHT OF LEONARD WOOD.

Leonard Wood combines in a very high degree the qualities of entire manliness with entire uprightness and cleanliness of character. He is a man of high ideals who scorns everything mean and base and who possesses those robust and hardy qualities of body and mind for the lack of which no merely negative virtue can atone.

REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES.

Bespeaking the attitude of Republicans in Congress, Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, sums up some of the principles his party will continue in the coming election, as follows:

"We demand that there shall be a clear and definite acceptance and reaffirmation of a faith in the principles of the Republic, as established by the fathers, with its three separate, independent and coordinate branches, legislative, executive and judicial, the form of government which preserves liberty by a division of authority, preventing that consolidation of powers in one office which constitutes true despotism.

"We condemn, as tending to subvert our government, the vicious practice by which legislation has been drafted in the executive departments and then forced by means of threats, intimidation, or other methods of coercion by the executive upon the legislative branch of the government, which should represent the people. We hold that in a free government legislation must originate with and arise from the people rather than with a powerful and perhaps autocratic executive, to be imposed, through the power of patronage or by force, upon the people.

"We contemplate, with a deep concern for the safety of our country and a high determination and resolve to resist it to the uttermost, the recent enormous growth of executive power, tending toward tyranny. We pledge ourselves to oppose the election to high office of any man, of whatever party, who would advocate measures the tendency of which would be to enhance or buttress executive authority.

"We demand the careful study and revision or repeal of all statutes which have lapsed with executive officials by the executive upon the legislative branch, and we demand the immediate termination of personal and arbitrary government, government by commissions issuing edicts, and government by regulations, as distinguished from government by clear and definite statutes enacted by Congress under powers clearly granted by our Constitution; statutes in harmony with the letter and spirit of our institutions, to be enforced impartially against all offenders rich and poor alike.

We demand the fair and equal enforcement of the law without respect to social circumstances, section, race, or color, and hold that it would be intolerable to have Federal spies, agents and officers hounding men for mere words spoken, or for violating statutes to carry out the eighteenth amendment in some States, while acts of violence, lynching, murder, resistance of officers of the law and violations of the fifteenth amendment are permitted with impunity in other States. We demand a constructive policy with reference to the race question, believing it to be both immoral and inexpedient to continue a system which is designed to keep the colored people in a condition of ignorance, poverty, and degradation, we hold that to extend to these people, to whom we are under heavy obligations and for whom we have assumed the responsibility, larger opportunities for industrial, vocational, and general education, would be most advantageous.

"We demand an end to the taxing of the people for the payment of swarms of Federal spies, agents, and special officers, who may become parasites, blackmailers, sappers of political morality, and a menace to liberty.

"Believing that the high cost of government is a most important factor in causing the high cost of living, we demand economy and efficiency in all governmental departments as a step in the direction of a rehabilitation of our national finances. But we hold that economy and efficiency can not be secured without a thorough, drastic reorganization of the executive departments, with such a re-trenchment in expenditures as is not now contemplated."

No. 228 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, the property of Elias Arnold, late of Garrett County deceased.

The Bill states: That Elias Arnold, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of a tract of land in Garrett County known as a tract of land called "Walnut Hill," containing 45 acres, more or less, situated in deeds therefor from Christopher Garlitz and Alida Garlitz, dated September 16, 1900, and recorded in Liber H. R. No. 28, folio 586, one of the Land Records of Allegany County, and from Mary Garlitz to the said Elias Arnold dated April 1, 1891, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 16, folio 625, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the original of which said deeds are filed in this proceeding.

That while so seized and possessed of said real estate, the said Elias Arnold departed this life, intestate, on March 6, 1920, leaving the following children and heirs at law, to-wit: William Arnold, Sarah A. now the wife of Urras Bittner, Eliza, now the wife of Milton Wiley, Lloyd Arnold and Susan Arnold, his wife, Urras Bittner and Milton Wiley, all of Garrett County; John H. Arnold and Lula Arnold, his wife, whose present residence is unknown; Eliza Arnold, of Akron, Ohio, deceased daughter of the said Elias Arnold; to-wit: Elmer, Martha, Sheridan and William Pringle, Jr., all of Garrett County, surviving husband of the said Lueria Pringle, all of Vanderhill, Pa.

That the said property is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein, and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

That said property is not now occupied and will rapidly depreciate in value, and it is necessary that the same be disposed of at the earliest possible date.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of said real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among those entitled and for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 3rd day of April, 1920, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of May, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 24th day of May, 1920, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BENEATH CAR EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

Prominent Actor of "See Saw" Company Killed Near Grantsville.

While rounding the sharp and perilous curve known as "Snake Hollow," at the foot of the mountain which marks the western approach on the National Pike to Grantsville, a seven-passenger Packard touring car was overturned Sunday morning at 5:30 o'clock, and Frank Carter, owner and pilot of the automobile, was instantly killed, and Charles Esdale, who sat immediately in the rear of Carter was seriously injured, the other two occupants of the car, Guy Robertson and C. J. Risdale, escaping with minor bruises and abrasions.

The four men were members of the Henry W. Savage musical comedy company "See Saw," which closed a season of some duration at Wheeling on Saturday night. Carter had purchased the car at Chicago during the Chicago automobile show some three weeks ago, it being one of the finest examples of Packard construction and complete in every detail and was sold for the sum of $10,200 at the close of the show. He had planned to present the car to his wife, Marilyn Miller, now starring with Ziegfeld's Folies, which company appeared in Philadelphia all of last week.

With the disbanding of the "See Saw" company in Wheeling on Saturday evening Carter, Esdale, Robertson and Risdale, set out for Cumberland shortly after midnight. The night being clear together with a full moon, the party was enabled to proceed within a mile of Grantsville when the accident occurred. According to Robertson, Carter did not perceive the dangerous curve until he was right on it. He applied the emergency brake, completely locking the rear wheels and the momentum of the car caused it to catapult over the bank, turning over twice. Carter's head was caught between a boulder and the back of the seat, the weight of the tonneau crushing his skull as if it had been an egg-shell. Carter's death was instantaneous, while Esdale was lying beneath the machine and was only released after the car had been raised by Robertson and Risdale, who miraculously escaped serious injury and to which house Esdale was carried. Almost immediately thereafter Dr. John D. Darby, who had left Oakland at an early hour Sunday morning for Folesville to visit his parents there for the day, motored up to the place of the accident and noting conditions went into the Beachy home where he gave first aid to Esdale, who was later removed to a Cumberland hospital and to which city the remains of Carter were also taken.

Carter was 28 years old and was prominent in his profession. His wife was apprised by long distance telephone of the accident and arrived in Cumberland Sunday afternoon.

PROFIT ON SUGAR MUST NOT EXCEED TWO CENTS

Department of Justice to Prosecute Dealers Who Go Over This Set Sum

Washington, May 12.—Telegrams were sent by the Department of Justice today to all United States attorneys reiterating the department's policy of holding the margin of profit on sugar sales at 1 cent for wholesalers and 2 cents for retailers.

This margin of profit was fixed by the sugar equalization board more than a year ago, but Assistant Attorney General Garson said misunderstanding had arisen among fair price committees as to its application at the present time. To clear up the tangle district attorneys were instructed to rigidly enforce the ruling with respect to the margin of profit and to prosecute firms or individuals taking more than that amount per pound.

YOUTHFUL GUNMAN CAUGHT

Earle Gank, Near Hutton, Charged With Hold-Up, Now in Jail.

Earle Gank, aged twenty years, of near Hutton, was brought to Oakland Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff William D. Casteel, the officer having made the arrest upon the warrant charging Gank with having robbed a man named Johnson, of Corinth, of a sum of money aggregating $19.

Johnson, in his information before Justice West stated that Gank had held him up on Saturday night at the point of a revolver and relieved him of his cash coupled with the threat that if he did not "come across" he would kill him. Johnson "came across" as any sensible man would do under like circumstances, and then came on to Oakland where a warrant was issued for Gank's arrest. He was given a preliminary hearing before Justice West Monday and in default of bond was sent to jail to await the action of the grand jury when it convenes next month.

ATTENTION! The members of the Procter Kildow Post, American Legion, wish to take this means of thanking all the good citizens of the town and county who so generously aided in making the Legion dance a financial success.

Several donations were received, for which the givers will accept thanks from the Post as a whole. Your assistance was appreciated to the fullest extent, and the men feel very grateful toward you for your kindness and your help toward the building of a home where the men can meet at leisure hours.

Miss Madge Enlow, of near town, who has been quite ill for two or three weeks, is now convalescent.

FATHER KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILE STRIKES FAMILY

Child of William B. Hurst, Near Oakland, Hurlled With Baby Carriage, Is Uninjured

William B. Hurst was almost instantly killed at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night by an automobile driven by Mr. William Weber, president and general manager of the H. Weber & Sons Co., florists, Oakland. Mr. Hurst was walking on the road between Mr. Lake Park and Oakland and was accompanied by his wife and baby. Mr. Weber was moving to the right at the foot of Oak Hill hill to let an approaching car pass and was unable to see Mr. Hurst, owing to the glare of the lights. All three were struck, the baby carriage being thrown several feet. The infant was uninjured, while Mrs. Hurst sustained slight injury to her arm.

The funeral of Mr. Hurst took place at the Weber home near Oakland Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with interment in the family burying ground on the Weber farm adjoining Oakland. Mr. Hurst was a member of the International Bible Students' Association, founded by the late Pastor Russell and Pastor W. H. Pickering came on to Oakland from New York to conduct the funeral service.

The occurrence was most unfortunate but no blame is attached to Mr. Weber as it is known that he is an exceedingly careful driver. The accident was one of those unavoidable circumstances over which no one had control.

GOT A YEAR IN HOUSE OF CORRECTION FOR CRIME

"Hooked" Automobile at Crellin and Drove It Into the River

At Crellin Saturday afternoon Oscar Flanagan, of Elkins, West Va., employed at the Kildow Coal Company's mine near Crellin for the past several months as a miner, climbed into O. M. Bittinger's Ford car and started the motor. Flanagan evidently did not know the quit or the frivolities of the Ford when attem was once raised, for instead of keeping on the highway in the town the car gave a leap and with one bound had run through a fence and in the next instant Ford and driver were at the bottom of the river beneath ten feet of water. Flanagan, fortunately, knew how to swim and had not become entangled in the paraphernalia of the car, and was soon upon dry land. The car was hauled from the river by the men employed at the Crellin mill and after making an inspection and appraising the damages sustained a collection was taken up among the men with which to make the repairs, the owner of the car being unfortunate in having but one hand.

Flanagan was placed under arrest and brought to Oakland where it was stated he had brewed a quantity of "old hen" and with which he had soaked himself pretty generously before trying to make the Ford swim. He was kept in jail until Monday when he was given a trial before Justice West upon the charge of stealing the automobile, carrying concealed weapons and disturbing the peace. He was sentenced by the Court to serve one year in the Maryland House of Correction, to which institution he was taken yesterday by Sheriff Roy Winters.

Wrecks on State Road. The past week was an unfortunate one for many motorists in this county, especially those who were traveling the State roads.

Last Friday night a Ford car having as its occupants two young men from Grafton and their companions, two young women from Rowlesburg, failed to negotiate the sharp curve at the junction of the State road and the Hoyes road at the Callis farm, and turned turtle, three of the occupants of the car being pinned beneath the body of the machine. The fourth, one of the young women, was thrown clear of the wreck, and succeeded in raising the car sufficiently high to afford one of the men to crawl out when the two, exerting their combined strength, succeeded in releasing the remaining passengers of the machine. The man was practically uninjured but the woman who was held fast remained unconscious until after ten o'clock that night, when she came to her senses after having been attended by Dr. Ravenscroft, of Accident. The party came to Oakland Saturday and from here took a train for their respective homes. The names of none of the parties could be learned.

Sunday afternoon as a Ford car was passing over Bear Creek bridge, south of Accident, it got beyond the control of the driver, and smashed through the guardrail skirting the structure and plunged over the side. The car was occupied by four persons and carried a Pennsylvania state license tag. With the exception of a slight injury sustained by the driver of the car, no one was injured, but the front portion of the machine was badly damaged.

Tuesday afternoon as Robert Slizer was returning from a business trip to points east of Deer Park the steering gear of his Ford went bad and it was piled up in the ditch after striking the bank alongside the roadway near Altamont. Fortunately the occupant of the car escaped injury and was able to reach home after securing sufficient help to right the car.

On last Friday evening at a point midway of the block on Crook street between Second and Third streets in Oakland the Ford car of Messrs. S. F. Bowman, of Crellin, and Harry Porter, of near town, had a collision, each of the cars losing a front wheel and otherwise damaged. The drivers of the cars claimed that the headlights of the other blinded them and for that reason they came together. The cars were occupied by the wives and children of the respective owners and that no one was injured is miraculous.

SUNDAY, MAY 16.
Victory Under Samuel. I Samuel 7: 2-17. Read chapters 5 and 6.
Direct your hearts unto Jehovah, and serve Him only. I Sam. 7:3.

POWERLESS.
"Why does God permit it?" was often asked during the war when hearts were sick with the pain of its brutal passions. Some settled the whole thing for themselves by denying that there was or is any power that shapes the moving lines of this world's history. Others were and are in sore perplexity. Turn back to this picture of Israel's day of darkness and the same questioning attitude emerges for the conditions were tragic. They were God's chosen yet the symbol of Jehovah was lost in battle and the restored was kept in a private home because the old shrine was held by their enemies. Everywhere the Philistine flaunted the fruits of his mastery and there was a moral slump thru all the tribes. "What is the use of worshipping a helpless God?" was the mental attitude. The real tragedy was and is that God is helpless. He must wait the action of that child of His choosing before one jot of misery may be abated. His patience is punctuated with pain. Calvary is God's eternal heart-ache caught in the web of a hush of horror at what sin had wrought. The roaring centuries are man's work not His. Freedom carries with it a terrible price for its giver. The father of the prodigal could have refused the means for the boy's trip but the heart would have had its fling in the father's house and have traveled just as far as the carried by those folly-winged feet. But pain was the price the parent laid down in daily toll for that same boy's liberty. The power to choose the right instead of the wrong can come only with opportunity to choose and God seeks power in every child or nation. We need more the realization of our suffering God waiting on our willingness that we may unbind His strength and wash with our tears the wounds made by folly. Yes Israel plunged on cursing Jehovah for desertion and mistaking shrines to foreign deities. Sin rusted the sword, dulled the spear and unsteady the hand that welded them. Nation or man turning away from God has lost its power.

PREPARATION.
But there were homes like that of Hannah and Samuel was not the only saint. While there is no record of his activities thru these years of distress the event proves his work unceasing.

"Der Tag" was no unplanned upheaval. Samuel walked those hills and valleys thru all the years carrying the splendor of his lighted life into home and hamlet until there grew the hunger for what was seen in him to be the possession of all. When God gets a chance with one man He can make a new age. Life is at the dawn when a saint appears. Sin's clock never passes midnight. "Repent" was the message that came back from their inquiry of the year. "Smash the work as witness of your sincerity" was the stern order for there can never be compromise with any form of evil. You can't fill a room with dirt and expect decency to dwell there. "Clean up or shut up." Samuel by implication. "Turn from sin" is God's everlasting order, then "direct your hearts unto Jehovah."

For he is as hungry as the Prophet's Father for the heart of His boy only it must be that and not any geographic quibble or verbal logic-ex.

POWER.
Private regeneration means public reform. Individual righteousness spells national honor. The opinion of the public is the law of the Republic. A national revival is the revival of the nation. "Come to Mizpah" said Samuel and from Dan to Judah they gathered for a great act of penitence and prayer, confession and consecration. The gatherings in Israel, China and Korea where great groups of folk have been swept by the Spirit that fell with flaming force across their lives are a parallel to what must have occurred in that far-off day. It was a wonderful religious mass meeting of the men of Israel. Days passed and the fervor grew while continuous streams of distant folk trickled thru the passes to the hills increasing the numbers and swelling the sense of Jehovah's presence. And as always true the spirit of nationalism grew with the cleared spiritual sense and patriotism flamed into new heat. Korea and India are witness to the same quickening in these last days. Life is no closed corner and when the heart is warmed every worthy feeling glows also. Small wonder that the Philistines began to feel that there might be a challenge to their own overlordship if no notice was taken of the happenings among the hills and presently their forces were marching across the slopes and their banners could be seen against the sky. Israel had a case of nerves but they called for the only power that can be marshalled against their oppressors. Samuel was urged to pay for their deliverance. There was no cry for a symbol this time for the work of the Seer had been to well done. With the people where He can answer them God's winds sweep across the cliffs and hurled hail and rain into the faces of their foes. Confusion reigned among the fighting men. Israel with new spirit took advantage of the hour and chased them down thru all the passes and reaped a victory temporary but real.

PRAISE.
A monument must be set up to mark the advent. Where defeat had overtaken them in other days success had come. The bitter failure may be changed to splendid achievement. Dr. Trudeau made his misfortune his means of ministry as did blinded Moon who gave raised letters to the sightless. On every battle field there are the columns that tell the story of the fray. And every soul has the same. There is a spot of holy ground where is written, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

It may be an old altar, it may be a cemetery slab, it may be Mother's Bible whose yellowed, thinned pages are wrinkled with tears, it may be Father's prayer place, but somewhere each of us has that monument of victory when God conquered us and for us. Set up the stone with shouting and gladness that all the world may know what God has done. Only the memory must be an inspiration and not a limit. It preaches progress or it is an worthless as a mushroom cracked to a thirsty man. Long years of struggling life were ahead but Israel was never quite so hopeless as she had been and moved surely toward the fulfillment of her dreams.

HANNAH'S PRAYER.

By Rev. D. A. Friend.
In God's divine, majestic ways
A thousand mysteries abound,
Mid fiercest storms He hides His face
As if no God were to be found.
The earth's quakes, the thunders roar
Lightnings may flash and rains may pour,
And gathering tempests sweep the skies
Till streams and rivers fiercely rise;
Men's hearts may fail and courage wane,
And faithless souls may writhe in pain
Because in trouble's darkest hour
It seems that God has lost His power.

But faith beholds a fairer sight—
Mid darkest hour it sees the light
And through the break in storm cloud riven
Beholds the God that reigns in heaven
Who bids with mercy reaches down
Our prayers to hear, our joys to crown,
And speaks in richest tones of love
To those who lift their hearts above,
And drives the heaviest cloud away
And brings again a glorious day;
His word is sure for those who trust,
For He is holy, pure and just.

In ancient days, a woman fair
Lifted her heart to God in prayer
That heaven's favor might be won
And grant to her an infant son.
Her lips she moved in voiceless word
There in communion with her Lord
Elkanah's Hannah, sorely tried,
Could in God's loving power confide
And little Samuel's pleasing charms
Were early placed within her arms,
And as an offering pure and good
She early gave him back to God.

God called him in his early day
As on his couch he resting lay:
Three times he heard Jehovah's word
Before he recognized the Lord—
Jehovah stood beside his bed,
And Ely's doom he quickly read,
And Ely's sons who grieved the Lord,
Their judgments fierce, young Samuel heard.

The message filled their hearts with fears
For it had given them tingling ears,
And in one dread and fearful day
Those three in death's embrace did lay.

But brave and nobly Samuel stood
Serving his country and his God—
For forty years he Israel served
And never from his duty swerved.
He walked in wisdom's lofty ways:
In all his works his Maker praised;
He soared on faith's mysterious wings,
He poured anointing oil on kings—
On Saul and David, men of God,
While nobly for the right they stood,
But when Saul turned against the Lord
The wrath of God was on him poured—
On Mount Gilboa, there he died,
With Jonathan, his heart's fond pride,
And David, God's well-favored son,
Was soon established on the throne.

Summer Reasons For This Sedan

Triplex Springs Insure Riding Comfort on All Roads.
Overland Four-Door Sedan Insures Comfort in All Weather

THE SUPERIORITY of the Sedan for autumn, winter and spring is even more emphasized in the wide range of summer motoring. It's thick permanent top is a cooler shield from boiling sun. Breezes are freely admitted or entirely excluded at will. Rain, dust and sudden cold, are shut out at your command by heavy plate glass which never cuts off your vision or leaves you feeling "Shut in." Now the Overland Sedan adds to all this convertible convenience, the riding comfort of Triplex Springs, and extraordinary light weight economy.

GRANTSVILLE

The Grantsville Community Fair Association was reorganized at the school building in this town on Tuesday evening, County Agent J. A. Towler and a number of other enthusiastic supporters of the fair being present. Several addresses were made and the following officers were elected: U. O. Blaker, president; D. W. Dorsey, secretary; William T. Stanton, treasurer. Executive committee, G. F. Shaw, H. P. Miller, J. V. Stanton, J. A. Beachy, W. T. Stanton and W. C. Loebel. Soliciting committee, Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Mrs. J. A. Beachy, Mrs. C. C. Durst, Mrs. William Baker, Mrs. H. P. Stanton, Mrs. Fred Otto and Mrs. Charles Layman. Misses Christine Winterbore and Almira Boucher. It was decided that each member should pay an initiation fee of 25 cents, or more, to be held as a contingent fund. Already the membership has assumed encouraging proportions, and there is no doubt that the fair of 1920 will be the best ever.

A very delightful social was held in the Broadwater hall by the Christian Endeavor Society on Thursday night, the use of the hall having been donated for the purpose by Mr. Broadwater. The social committee consisting of Miss Viola Broadwater, Mrs. James Yunkin and Allen J. Bender, deserve great credit for the efforts put forth to make the affair a success. The musical program, which added much to the success of the evening, was rendered by the Bender Boys' Orchestra, with Mrs. Bender as accompanist on the piano. There were recitations by Miss Edith Swan and her brother David and an old-fashioned school conducted by Mrs. James Yunkin, with a class in botany and geography; also a spelling bee in which both the youngsters and grown-ups took part. Mrs. Mark T. Bender sang several charming solos. At about ten o'clock refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, coffee and cocoa, were served by the social committee and several willing assistants, after which the members went home feeling all the better for the evening's diversion. Thanks are due Mrs. Eva Bevans for the use of her kitchen during the evening.

The C. E. meeting was led on Sunday evening by Miss Mary Miller, with discussions on the topic by J. H. Miller, Miss Hazel Yunkin and others, and a delightfully rendered duet by Mrs. J. J. Bender and Mrs. M. T. Bender. The monthly business meeting was held on Monday night at the home of Miss Beulah Bender.

Miss Frances Bevans and Mr. Harold M. Boucher, both of Akron, O., were married at that place during Easter week, immediately after a visit with their parents here. Mr. Boucher is a son of Mr. Phineas C. Boucher of Grantsville, and the bride is the pretty little daughter of Mrs. Eva Bevans, also of Grantsville. The two young people have been employed at Akron for the past year and their marriage is the happy culmination of a boy and girl courtship of four or five years. They have begun housekeeping at Akron.

Miss Ruth Keller returned home on Sunday morning after undergoing an operation at a Cumberland hospital for the removal of her tonsils.

Mrs. C. H. Bill, who was undergoing treatment at a Cumberland hospital, returned to her home on Saturday.

Misses Ethel Stanton and Myrtle Glatfelter are visiting friends in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Durst spent Sunday with Mrs. Durst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warnick, Mrs. Durst and little son remaining here for a week's visit.

SELBYSPOUT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazee, of Pittsburgh, Pa., were visiting friends here last week.
Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lowdermilk and son Homer, of Cumberland, motored here on last Saturday to visit relatives and friends for a short time.
Miss Edna Frazee entertained the "Gleaners" on last Thursday evening.
Misses Ida and Kathryn Liston, Cecelia and Agnes Frazee spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Jasper Fike at Guard.
Miss Beattie Griffith, of Guard, was the guest of Miss Edna Frazee on Thursday of last week.

Misses Lettie and Mary Selby spent the week-end with their parents here. Mrs. Julia Bullard, of Friendsville, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. L. Dunham, on Sunday.

Mr. Wade Schlossnagel, of Friendsville, was the guest of friends here on Sunday.

Mr. Foster Welch, who has been employed at Cumberland, arrived at his home here on Saturday.

Mrs. F. L. Frazee was visiting her sister over in West Virginia last week.

Messrs. E. M. Liston, W. W. Schlossnagel and William Frazee were in Oakland last Tuesday on business.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Friday and Saturday May 14th and 15th
MATINEE SATURDAY 2:30 P. M.

GREATEST WOMAN PICTURE EVER FILMED!

The loves, temptations, yearnings of a modern woman's life—in drama that aways the senses with its beauty, stirs every emotion with its power. See the battle of Wealth and Passion—Amazing New Year's Eve cafe carousals in New York's "Midnight Joy Belt"—Intimate glimpses of the stage and its hangers on behind the scenes—The great gambling palace, thronged with Fashion—Humor, pathos, gorgeous spectacles—The most distinguished cast of principals yet assembled in a screen production.

DON'T MISS THE REVELS AT THE BANQUET OF WEALTH!

It's a cinch to figure why Camels sell!

You should know why Camels are so unusual, so refreshing, so satisfying. First, quality—second, Camels expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos which you'll certainly prefer to either kind smoked straight!

Camels blend makes possible that wonderful mellow mildness—yet all the desirable body is there! And, Camels never tire your taste!

You'll appreciate Camels freedom from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or unpleasant cigarette odor!

For your own satisfaction compare Camels puff by puff with any cigarette in the world at any price!

Camels are sold everywhere in individually sealed packages of 25 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a distinctive outer wrapper. We strongly recommend this outer for the home or office supply or when you travel.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1920.

THE SPRING DRIVE.

The whistle will blow on May 17. On that day 9,000 batteries will open up simultaneously on the extended front between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. On that day the 5,000 posts of The American Legion will go into action on a common zero hour.

The drive will start May 17 and end May 22. National Headquarters has designated this period as Membership Week. Everyone of the 9,000 posts is expected to line up for the jumpoff, to keep going in spite of difficulties of the terrain and not to stop until the day designated for consolidating the gain.

Forty-nine Departments will go over the top together. In each department the state organization will be responsible for the drive within its jurisdiction. Generalship and staff work will have full play, but it will be the driving power of the regiments and companies on the city and county lines which will directly produce the new members.

The campaign will show the comparative power of accomplishment of The American Legion in each of the forty-nine departments. Each state will be judged by the showing it makes. The pride of the post and State should be the same sort of fighting pride which made every American division—every regiment—defend and uphold its reputation always. Each post, each state will be relied upon to hold its own in the totals of the new members obtained between May 17 and May 22.

The Procter Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, of Oakland, extends an invitation to all the ex-service men of Garrett county to become members of this organization. If it is your desire to become a member immediately you will please fill out the blank card below and mail it to Mr. R. E. McIntire, Finance Officer, Oakland, and he will be glad to make you a member in good standing. For any information desired write to D. R. Sinecel, Post Adjutant, Oakland.

DEER PARK

Miss Dora Steiding was shopping in Oakland Wednesday.

Mr. R. L. Sebald made a business trip to Oakland Wednesday last.

Mr. Moon was a business visitor to Hutton one day last week.

Mr. Russell Walter, of Altamont, was in town on business Thursday.

Merchant C. H. Browning was in the county seat on business Thursday last.

Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. L. D. Thrasher were shopping in Oakland Friday.

Mr. C. H. Browning has several men at work applying fresh paint to the exterior of his property here, which is a marked improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hardisty and family, of Swanton, spent Sunday with the former's parents here.

Mr. Roy Wright, of near Altamont, spent Sunday with his family and Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Ries, at this place.

The Epworth League rendered a very pleasing program at the M. E. church on its thirty-first anniversary Sunday evening.

Misses Thelma Laughlin and Ellen Smouse spent last Wednesday evening with friends in Oakland.

Mr. J. S. Hardisty made a business trip to Oakland Monday.

Junior Haulenbeck, of Baltimore, arrived here on Friday to remain during the summer.

Miss Winifred Weimer, of Washington, returned to her home after an extended visit to friends in Deer Park on Sunday evening.

Misses Melva Ries and Thelma Laughlin left here Tuesday evening for Westport where they will be the guests of the former's cousin, Mrs. Charles Clarke.

Mrs. May Wagner, nee Hanes, died on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Frank McCamie, of Corinth, West Va., delivered the funeral oration Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock and interment was made in the Deer Park cemetery.

Mrs. C. R. Savedge was taken to Cumberland Sunday evening to undergo a surgical operation.

The young people of this place are preparing for the 30th.

Mrs. Olive Bush and son Charles arrived home from Toronto, Canada, Sunday evening.

THE DEATH RECORD.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Edna May, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holtschneider, departed this life on May 11, aged three weeks.

HOYES

The past two weeks of fine weather was taken advantage of by all of our community, those owning farms by sowing oats, planting corn and potatoes, making garden and house cleaning. Of course much of this latter part of the work fell to the lot of the renter sex.

Our new merchant, Webb DeWitt, will be ready shortly to transact business as his new store building is nearing completion.

Mr. Thomas E. Bischoff, of Oakland, formerly of this place, spent Monday at the old home.

Mr. D. R. Smith, of Burlington, W. Va., was here visiting the brother, W. A. Smith, and family Saturday evening and Sunday. He expressed himself as being delighted with the trip, it having been a number of years since he visited the old home at Hoyes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeWitt and son Whitfield motored to Gortner last Sunday and spent the day with Mrs. Freda Spoerlein who recently underwent an operation at the W. M. Hospital in Cumberland. We are glad to know she is rapidly recovering.

Miss Geraldine Maffett, of Oakland, was a guest of Miss Olla Mattingly over Sunday.

Miss Mary Kelley, of White Rock, is spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Taylor Savage, who has been suffering with a felon on her hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Wittig, of Pittsburgh, are guests at the Mattingly lodge. They are en route to Nova Scotia, where they will occupy their bungalow during the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Garrett and sons Robert and William, and Miss Griffin and brother, all of Deer Park, and Miss Margaret Browning, of Oakland, attended church services here Sunday morning, after which they were calling upon friends for a few hours before returning to their respective homes.

Our wide-awake teacher, Miss Mary Callis, an angel, will give a free play entitled, "A Scheme that Failed," followed by a social, next Saturday evening, May 15th. This social will be given for the benefit of the school, the funds arising therefrom to apply on the payment for a Victor Victrola, recently purchased, and also to secure records for the same. Come and enjoy an evening of real entertainment and sociability.

MARRIED.

Frazee-Browning—Married, Wednesday, April 28th, at Hollidayshur, Pa., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Mountain, Mr. R. E. Frazee, of Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly of Solbyport, and Miss Rose Browning, of Oakland. The groom is employed by the Smith & Loughlin Steel Works, of Pittsburgh, and the couple will make their home in that city.

NOTICE TO BRIDGE BUILDERS.

Scaled proposals will be received at the office of the Board of County Commissioners, in Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, until 12 o'clock noon, May 24, 1920, for the construction of four (4) reinforced concrete arch bridges as follows:

Bridge over Savage River about one mile from Bond.

Bridge over Deep Creek near the residence of Lewis DeWitt about 6 miles from Deer Park.

Bridge over Buffalo Run on new road about three miles from Friendsville.

Bridge over Mill Run, known as Pig's Ear Bridge, about seven miles from Somerset Station, Penna.

All of said bridges to be built according to the plans and specifications on file in the Commissioners' Office.

Each bidder is required to deposit with his bid a certified check made payable to the Board of County Commissioners in the sum of $500 as evidence of good faith, the same to be forfeited as liquidated damages if the bidder shall fail to comply with his proposal.

Said Board of County Commissioners reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the Board,
W. G. MEYERS, Clerk.

Mortgagee's Sale

Real Estate

Under a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Thomas L. Ashby and Ella F. Ashby, his wife to Virginia C. Johnson et al., bearing date March 10th, 1909, and recorded in Liber No. 57, folio 289, one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett County, and said mortgage having been assigned to Charles B. Graham and by him assigned to the undersigned for foreclosure, I hereby give notice, that default having been made in the payment of the debt secured by said mortgage, I will, on SATURDAY, THE 29th DAY OF MAY, 1920.

At 1:30 P. M., in front of the Court House in Oakland, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, all that piece or parcel of land lying and being in Garrett county and State of Maryland, containing 33 1/2 ACRES, the same being a part of a tract of land called "ASHBY'S THREE HUNDRED ACRE SURVEY," and which said part is fully described in a deed from one E. W. Ashby and wife to the said Thomas L. Ashby, dated July 17th, 1905, and recorded in Liber No. 50, folio 21, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, and to which said deed reference is made for a full description of the same; or anyone interested can get said information by calling on the undersigned. Said land is about four miles Southwest of Oakland on the road leading from Underwood to Brookside and would be suitable for a small farm.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash; conveying at cost of purchaser.

DO YOU

Value Your Eyes?

A $5,000.00 Accident Policy pays its face value (the same as for death) for the loss of both eyes. How much do you value yours?

IF YOU REQUIRE GLASSES

Why do you put it off? Do it now! Often a slight defect of vision or eye strain, if neglected, will assume more serious proportions later.

Consult your physician or ask your glass wearing friends when you are thinking of glasses, and you will save time, money and sorry experiences.

I have examined over 2000 people in Garrett county, so am sure of being advertised by my work and friends. May I add you to my family of satisfied patrons?

SAVING—AND MORE

There is more to saving than the mere accumulation of money. Saving commands respect, respect commands attention, and attention leads to advancement!

Saving makes a better community, a thrifty community attracts industry, and industry leads to wealth!

Do your part—open a Savings Account here and make regular deposits. You will never regret it.

Ravenscroft, of Accident, had the pleasure recently of meeting one of the members of the flying squadron of which he was a member while doing overseas duty during the late World War and spent some hours with his former comrade in arms. These two men are now arranging for a reunion of the entire squadron, but thus far no details as to when or at what place the proposed reunion will occur.

Modern mine near Morgantown wants a few more leaders after machine. Good wages, steady work, houses available; mine easily reached from the city. Write Superintendent, Box 188, Morgantown, West Va.—Ad.

County tax rates are steadily increasing. The rate in Harford county is the highest ever known to the county. Says the Harford Leader: "The rate is startling, no doubt, to many taxpayers, but it is necessary in order that the business of the county may be carried on satisfactorily. When it is considered that the total amount of expenses this year is estimated at $402,000, as against $280,000 last year, it will be seen that the high rate was inevitable. The demands for new roads, public school buildings and improvements and increased teachers' salaries helped to increase the measure to make the increase. The levy for public schools alone is $145,120, an increase of $51,000 for this year."

Garrett County School News. The list of the series of teachers' conferences will begin on Friday, May 14th, at ten o'clock at the Oakland Grammar School. The schedule for these conferences is as follows:

Friday, May 14, Oakland Grammar School.
Wednesday, May 19th, Grantsville.
Thursday, May 20, Accident.
Friday, May 21, Friendsville.
Friday, May 28, Kitzmiller.

It is hoped that all teachers still teaching in the county, all who taught at all during the year, and all who are planning to take uniform teachers' examinations on Thursday, Friday, June 3 and 4, preparing to teach in the year 1920-1921, will be present at one of the conferences.

Teachers' Reviews—In order that teachers now holding provisional certificates and those who are planning to teach another year may be better prepared for the examinations given on Thursday and Friday, June 3 and 4, systematic reviews are being planned. These reviews are to be given at five places, namely: Friendsville, Grantsville, Accident, Kitzmiller and the Garrett County High School, and are to begin at two o'clock. The plan is as follows:

Saturday, May 15—Arithmetic, history and geography.
May 22—History of the United States and Maryland, Civics.
May 29—English, geography.

Teachers who are planning to take these reviews should use the textbooks in use in the elementary schools for study during the preceding week. Some subjects will have to be reviewed alone. It is hoped that this opportunity will be taken advantage of and those doing the work will come with questions they should like to have discussed.

Patrons' Club Meeting—The last regular meeting of the Patrons' Club of the Garrett County High School and the Oakland Grammar School for the school year 1919-1920, will be held at the Grammar School building on Tuesday, May 18, at eight o'clock. It is hoped there will be a good attendance. The teachers of the Grammar School have something they want to bring before the patrons. Questions written by both patrons and teachers and placed in a question box will be drawn and discussed. Surely there is some phase of school and home work concerning which you would like to ask many questions. These questions may be placed in the box without the names of the questioners. All come! Let's have an interesting meeting on Tuesday night, May 18th, at 8 o'clock at the Oakland Grammar School.

An Honorable Livelihood For The American Girl

For the girl or woman who must earn her own income, how much more satisfactory it is to have a profession—and a profession that carries with it the honorable distinction of service.

A trained nurse is not made over night. Her profession is acquired through study and training. But once earned, it is ever her own, which no whim of an employer or change of a system can ever take from her.

And—while the nurse is training she is being paid. It is a three years' course at the hospital, not book study alone, but actual helpful service that brings the student to her diploma and her profession.

We will gladly answer any and all questions in person or by mail, for the country needs nurses and we are prepared to train them.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS
STATE SCHOLARSHIPS IN ENGINEERING COURSES.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Civil Engineering Building, Homewood, Monday-Saturday, June 21-26, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering established under the provisions of the laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 17, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Cecil, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1920-1921, in addition to those which have already been awarded. In the five counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the county and city scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in engineering unless free tuition be granted them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each county and in each legislative district of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expenses of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College.

One scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address The Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28, 1920.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

This is to notify the taxpayers of Garrett county that the annual levy for 1920 has been made and published, and to call their attention to the following abstract of Section 45, Chapter 5th, Acts of 1900, relating to the discount to be allowed and the interest to be charged on all tax bills: "All county taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of September next succeeding the date of the levy thereof, and on all county taxes paid on or before the 1st day of September a discount of 3 per cent. will be allowed, and after the 1st day of January all county taxes shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum until paid. The Treasurer shall take the discount from and charge the interest on the tax bills for county purposes regularly in the manner aforesaid, and shall note the same upon the books and upon the receipt given up on the tax so paid. But the discount shall not be allowed unless the whole amount of State and County taxes are paid when the same is made."

on and after the first day of July in the year in which the same are levied and if not paid on or before the first day of September of said year, shall bear interest from said date at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. No discount is allowed on State tax.

HUTTON

Mr. Charles Morris Sincell, of Oakland, was here on business last Monday.

Dr. John D. Darby, of Oakland, was called here upon professional business recently.

Mrs. Jesse Poole Walsh, of Terra Alta, spent Monday in this village.

Mr. Thomas Pendergast, of Cumberland, was a pleasant visitor to Hutton friends and relatives, Sunday.

The community should indeed be glad to learn that the Hutton public school is soon to rank second in standard schools in Maryland. Every effort is being made on the part of both instructors and pupils to effect an accomplishment of this cherished project in the next few days at which time Mr. Holloway, a member of the State Board of Education, and Miss Marshall, of Oakland, grade supervisor for Garrett county, are expected to be present to inspect the building and its modern equipment, which is quite essential for a school of the present century. The school grounds have recently been relieved of an accumulation of rubbish and very laboriously "swept" and "garnished" by the obliging as well as congenial men of the village. The whole aspect presents a very pleasing view to all who chance to be passing along the main thoroughfare of the village, and in truth it may be said that "love's labor has not been in vain."

Mrs. John A. Connell intends to conduct a rooming house in the near future at Mountain Lake Park in the hostelry well and favorably known as "The Washington Inn." We trust success will attend the endeavors of the proprietress.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Baker motored to Oakland Saturday evening, where they visited friends for a few hours.

Mr. Charles Carr, master mechanic of the Tioga Tanning Company, returned recently from a visit of two weeks to his family in Wellsboro, Pa. Mr. Jerry J. Pendergast spent a few hours in Oakland on the evening of Saturday last. ST. ELMO.

The Great Results that come from the Special Steels in a MAXWELL

There is a double advantage in the use of these special steels in a Maxwell.

1.—They eliminate superfluous pounds, lighten the task of the engine, ease the burden on tires, make possible quicker acceleration.

2.—They add strength which insures endurance, dependability, uninterrupted performance, and infrequent repairs.

These special steels make possible the Maxwell construction of great strength combined with light weight.

The light weight decreases the burden on the engine and their strength provides endurance.

They have been important factors in the success of Maxwell the world over, in its ever-increasing friendships, in its great growth.

Nearly 400,000 Maxwells are now in use. You cannot motor even in a foreign land, without meeting them.

FLATTERY.

It is quite common to indulge in flattery. If we want to make a good impression on another, or if we feel we need to make amends for some unjust or untruthful saying, we are apt to meet with smiles and ply them with flattery. And most people succumb to it, thought it is a mean and contemptible practice, a positive sin. It is quite prominent in the Bible. It is the resort of a corrupt and deceitful heart. The "wicked flatter with their lips." It is a form of lying. "They flatter him with their mouth and they lied unto him with their tongues." Solomon has a good deal to say about it, and doubtless he knew from experience what it meant. But flattery fools the flatterer as well as the flattered.

Good Mr. Elvel used to say to Christians: "Thou carriest the gunpowder of pride about thee. Desire those who cury the fire of flattery to keep their distance. It is a dangerous crisis when a proud heart meets with flattering lips."

It is the weapon of an enemy and in fact it is cowardly to use it. An old adage which says, "He who flattereth, bespattereth." We are really disgraced by flattery, rather than honored by it, for it is simply false praise. Judicious persons think all the less of us because of the ill-judged praises of the silly friends. The world always takes a discount from the friendly opinions, and sometimes this reduces a man below his real value.

Enemies flatter with the tongue; they make sooth their speech. This is the testimony of the Psalmist. "Tis an old maxim of the schools. 'That flattery is the food of fools; And who so likes such airy meat Will soon have nothing else to eat.'"

Solomon said, "A man that flattereth his neighbor spreadeth a net for his feet." This is so, for flattery feeds our pride and generally produces that pride and self-exaltation which insures the dealings of God in His children.

It defeats itself, for its vile character will sooner or later appear in its true light.

"He that rebuketh a man afterwards shall find more favor than he that flattereth with his tongue." The warning of the wise man was "meddle not with him that flattereth with his lips."

Because we flatter ourselves in our own eyes, we try to flatter God. But the flatterer shall be cut off, because a flattering mouth worketh ruin, for

"he who is your flatterer cannot be your friend."

It is one of the leading sins of the last days, and a prominent characteristic of the apostates. The coming man of sin will use flattery and by it he will obtain the kingdom. We may indulge in it to our heart's content now, but the Lord will deal with it by and by, for "He shall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh proud things." It is positively forbidden by the bible. It is Satan's most subtle poison. The "Poison Pen" is a phrase that is heard today in the world. By it is meant the pen which spreads false reports.

The flattering pen is worse by far. The world which lies in the wicked one loves flattery, seeks it and enjoys it. But he who walks in the Spirit, hates and despises all flatterers and turns from them with disgust. It is unworthy a Christian to use flattery. Did you ever know of a flatterer who falling from the lips of the Master or His apostles? Paul would not use them, but if occasion required, he would speak the truth in love, no matter how deep it cut. That is the part of a true friend. If you want to do harm to a true friend, flatter him, praise him to his face, but if commendation or word of approval, or some encouragement will do good, but flattery is despicable. It will destroy his usefulness, for his success depends on his humility, but flattery fosters pride and "pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall." Make him feel he is a great man and he is soon puffed up, then the spirit is grieved, and the man's power is gone. Some men with a bright future before them have gone down before the lips of flattery.

But the spirit of boasting in men is in the air. It is one of the features of the last days. Think of this, my friend, and if you have fallen into the habit, break it at once. Cease to use flattering words. Walk in the way of Him who alone can save us from pride and self-exaltation.

"He who is your flatterer is not your friend." He is an enemy—a wolf in sheep's clothing. "If we did not flatter ourselves, no body else would." Flatterers, like flies about fruit in summer, pester the prosperous, but adversity drives them away. That shows his character. JOANNES

HOW WILSON KEPT WOOD OUT OF WAR

Transferred From Pillar to Post Away From Front—Steel and Coal Strikes.

By JOHN G. HOLME,
Author of "The Life of Leonard Wood," VIII.

The attitude taken by the administration in Washington toward Leonard Wood's preparedness campaign is a familiar subject to all Americans today. The administration did not approve of Wood, nor of his work. No one knew this better than the General himself, and he pursued his course with open eyes, knowing full well that the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, President Wilson, frowned on his efforts. Wood deliberately jeopardized his own career, his chances for whatever glory they might be gained in the great war toward which the nation was heading. Therefore, no motive could have been ascribed for his noble efforts except the one of intense patriotism.

In August, 1915, Lindley M. Garrison, then Secretary of War, savagely rebuked Wood for having the late Theodore Roosevelt to speak before the Plattsburgh officers' camp. Roosevelt said nothing in his address before the officers in criticism of the administration, but later in the day he issued a statement criticising Wilson's note writing. This he did at the Plattsburgh railway station way outside the camp. The whole press of the country came to General Wood's aid, denouncing Garrison for his action.

Immediately after the war was declared, Wood wrote and personally delivered two letters, one to the Adjutant General of the Army and the other to the Chief of Staff, asking for service abroad. He never received a reply from either official, but a few days later, the Department of the East, which he commanded, was divided into three small departments. Wood was relieved of his office and transferred to Charleston, S. C., headquarters of the new Southeastern Department.

While in Charleston, Wood laid out plans for eleven large National Army Camps, and three officers' training camps. He was then transferred to Camp Funston, Kansas, where he trained the Eighty-ninth and the Tenth Divisions.

This kicking of Wood from pillar to post had a double effect; it brought on the administration an avalanche of criticism and it enhanced Wood's popularity. The State of Kansas made him an honorary citizen through a proclamation by Governor Capper.

In November, 1917, General Wood was sent to France to observe military operations at the front as were all general officers in charge of training camps. While watching French artillery at work on January 27, 1918, he was severely wounded by a shell which burst inside a French gun, the whole gun crew being killed. General Wood recovered rapidly and returned to the United States, where he passed the severe physical examination for army officers destined for overseas service.

General Wood accompanied the Eighty-ninth Division, which he had trained, to New York for embarkation, and he was in command of it in France. On arriving in New York, May 25, 1918, he received a telegram from Secretary of War Baker, relieving him of his command. The press unsparingly flayed the administration for this display of meanness of spirit. However, Wood was sent back to Funston. No one has ever heard him speak one word of protest against this shameful treatment. He continued to work night and day for victory, training troops, adding the country in every way he could. In his campaign speeches of late, he has time and again stated his refusal to criticize the Democratic administration. Let the Republicans do better than the Democrats is his slogan. He had the Tenth Division ready for overseas service when the armistice was signed.

After the armistice, Wood was assigned to the command of the Central Department with headquarters in Chicago where he still is. Of late several notable events have taken place illustrating his strong capability for public service.

About a year ago he organized the Chicago bureau for finding employment for returning soldiers. This organization became the model for the Federal bureau.

He was called upon to quell the race riot in Omaha, and to restore and maintain law and order in Gary, Indiana, and in the West Virginia coal fields during the steel and coal strikes. This Wood did without firing a shot. Moreover, his attitude toward the strikers in Gary and in the coal fields was so fair and impartial as to win the commendation of the labor leaders. The strikers were allowed to strike and picket in orderly fashion, and the workers were allowed to work. Wood took no sides. He merely kept order. He said he found nearly one hundred per cent of the strikers loyal Americans, who earnestly believed they were fighting for their rights. He did not compromise with the "Reds" at Gary. He arrested them.

There are few men in this land who can point to a life of more distinguished public service than Leonard Wood, a doctor, soldier, administrator and business executive. A man of few words and big deeds, he typifies the best this nation has to offer. Roosevelt once said of him: "His rise has been astounding, and it has been due purely to his own striking qualifications and striking achievements."

Everybody is invited to attend the church services by the Brethren here next Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester DeWitt and children, of Bayard, were callers at Mr. W. H. Smouse's Wednesday.

Knights of Pythias Notes.

Grand Chancellor Commander Julius C. Reninger returned to Oakland on last Friday morning from a week's visit to the Pythian Grand Officers in Baltimore where he was engaged on business connected with the administration of his high office.

The rank of Esquire and also the rank of Knight was conferred at the last session of the lodge.

The committee on Decoration Day has been appointed and you will be advised later upon what day the lodge will turn out and what the program will be.

The banquet committee has been recalled and instructed to get busy on some refreshments with which to treat the membership at a future meeting of the lodge.

Recently the lodge has reinstated three of its former members, which in itself shows that there is interest being manifested along this line.

On next Friday evening the rank of Knight will be conferred by the degree team on four Esquires. Make your arrangements to be present at this meeting.

Nominations for officers are now in order and are being made. It is hoped that sufficient interest in this matter will be manifest to give to the lodge the best set of officers that ever graced the several stations in the history of the lodge, which has been one of accomplishment and good to our fellow-men.

A good attendance is always desired, and it is hoped that the members who have not availed themselves of the opportunity to attend recently will come to lodge on next Friday night. The session begins at eight o'clock.

CITIZENS-COUNCIL MEETING

Was Held Monday Evening When The Lighting Situation Was Discussed Monday evening upon invitation extended by Mayor Thomas A. Gonder to a number of the citizens and tax-paying residents of Oakland, a joint meeting of the people and the Mayor and Town Council was held in the city hall for the purpose of discussing the electric lighting situation as it now stands.

Mr. Fred A. Thayer was chosen as chairman of the meeting and upon assuming charge of the gathering he stated briefly the condition of affairs with reference to the street and house lighting condition now and what one may expect when the cold weather comes and the gas pressure becomes so low that it will be impossible to secure sufficient quantity for domestic use without considering the commercial use of the supply, pointing to the fact that during the past winter the town was in darkness most of the time.

At the recent session of the General Assembly a bonding bill carrying an appropriation of $50,000 for the erection of a municipal electric lighting system, and with a referendum attached, was passed and signed by the Governor. This measure was deemed necessary on account of conditions now confronting the town and its citizens, as the present electric light company will not guarantee service, except during the spring and summer months because of the shortage of gas with which to operate the power plant. The situation is made all the more acute by the Northern Natural Gas Company's letter to Mayor Gonder under date of May 10th, in which Mr. Thomas, general manager of the company took occasion to say: "There is little or no likelihood of our being able to give you an adequate supply after November 1st. The Public Service Commission of West Virginia has already passed an order prohibiting the use of natural gas for industrial purposes after that date, and under the circumstances we would hardly be in a position to sell it in Maryland points unless our supply was very greatly increased for which there is very little prospect at this time. We shall know more definitely what the situation is about July 1st, but if the matter has to be decided at present, would recommend that you make arrangements for other fuel after the date mentioned."

Mayor Gonder spoke briefly saying that the Oakland Electric Company would dispose of its plant and all appurtenant thereto for the sum of $12,000, but this plant would be of no use to the town should it be unable to secure the gas with which to operate, hence it would be out of the question to consider its purchase.

Several others spoke favoring an increased rate for electric service so that the local established plant would be in position to equip the plant for fuel other than gas.

Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill suggested that the chair appoint an advisory committee with full power to investigate various methods of securing a supply of electricity for the town and to make its report to Council on June 4th, at eight o'clock P. M. As this committee Mr. Thayer appointed the following: Messrs. D. M. Dixon, J. W. Hart, C. N. McIntire, Dr. Fleming Howell and Edward H. Sincell.

These gentlemen will meet a water engineer between now and the day they are to report back to Council and investigate the possibilities of obtaining sufficient power for the operation of a plant driven by water in the Big Youghiogheny River west of town. A preliminary survey of the horse power that can be developed at a point between the two bridges west of town would indicate that such is feasible and it may be that the water engineer to be consulted will agree.

Every resident of the town who is at all interested in the future as well as in the present conditions that surround Oakland, are urged to be present at the meeting to be held on the 4th inst., when the committee will bring its report into Council.

SCHOOL BOARD ORGANIZES.

Mr. Thomas J. Browning Elected President of the Body.

The Board of School Commissioners, of Garrett county, assembled in the School Board office in the Court House on last Thursday and elected Mr. Thomas J. Johnson president of the body, and Mr. John O. Thayer vice-president. All of the members of the Board were present and listened very attentively to the several delegations which appeared before them in the interest of the school communities represented by them.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER QUILTS

Mr. Joseph T. Glatfely Tendered His Resignation to the Governor Friday. Mr. Joseph T. Glatfely, of near Oakland, who has been a member of the Board of Education for upwards of ten years, mailed his resignation as a member of that body to Governor Ritchie last Friday evening, the resignation to become effective at once.

Mr. Glatfely has not made public any statement concerning his resignation. Since he became a member of the Board he has performed the duties of his office conscientiously and with satisfaction to all concerned. The friends of education in all parts of the county will regret to learn of the step Mr. Glatfely has taken. Thus far his successor has not been named by the State Executive.

A YOUNG DRAMATIST

Irving Baumgartner, High School Student, Wins Honors.

On Friday, May 14th, Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," was rendered by the first year boys and girls under the supervision of the Wilsonian Literary Society of the Garrett County High School.

The poem had been covered thoroughly in class and several of the pupils had been asked to dramatize it. Irving Baumgartner's version was considered the most practical, and it was from his work that the play was taken.

There were three acts (with nine scenes) and although it was not a costume affair, those who participated did very well considering the time spent in preparation.

The following were the principal characters: Audrey Trickett, Priscilla George Littman, John Alden, Glenn VanSickle, Capt. Miles Standish. Others who took part were Getty Thayer, Swann Weber, Russell Brown, David Bowman, Henry Hamill and Elwood Groves.

Knights of Pythias Notes.

At the regular session of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, held on last Friday evening, the rank of Knight was conferred on a class of three by the new degree team, the members of the team performing their parts like veterans.

On next Friday evening the rank of Esquire will be conferred on a class of candidates.

It has been decided to hold the Decoration Day services on Monday, May 31st, at which time we will cooperate with the American Legion and the veterans of the Civil War. The program for the day will be an interesting one as it has been arranged by the Legion.

Grand Chancellor Renninger will be present at the session of the lodge on Friday evening and will make an address. Please arrange to be present. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Boys' Agricultural Clubs Being Organized in Garrett County.

Boys' Agricultural Clubs have already been organized at Oakland, in Loch Lynn, McHenry and Grantsville. These boys have their projects well under way and are doing good work. Additional clubs will be organized as follows:

Bittinger, Thursday evening, May 20th, at 7:50 P. M., in the school building.

Accident, Tuesday evening, May 25th, at 7:30 P. M. at the school building.

North Glade School House on Wednesday evening, May 20th, at 7:30 P. M.

Mason School House, Thursday evening, May 27th, at 7:30 P. M.

Boys in any of the above communities over ten and under nineteen years of age are urged to be present and help form these organizations. The main projects this year are corn, potatoes, and pigs. Any boy who can find one acre to grow corn, one-eighth of an acre to grow potatoes, or raise a pig, is urged to enter the contest. The pig should be eight weeks old not later than May 31st, at which age its weight should be recorded. The feeding period is 168 days when the pig is again weighed and the net gain determined. A complete record is kept in all the projects of the feed, labor, etc.

Additional clubs will be organized in communities where the boys express a desire for one. In case a boy is in a community where there is no club, he should write to county agent, J. A. Towler, Oakland, Md., and ask for information as to how he can get in the contest.

State and County prizes will be given the boy doing the best work in each project.

Jury Drawn Today.

This morning Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd came to Oakland from Cumberland and at the hour of going to press the Court and attorneys of the Garrett county bar are engaged in drawing the grand and petit jurors for vice at the June term of the Circuit Court, which convenes the first Monday in that month and which promises to be of slight duration insofar as the civil docket is concerned, but the grand jury's findings may and probably will, lengthen the term somewhat.

Card of Thanks.

SETTING UP A GOVERNMENT.

These last days have demonstrated that it is no small task to get a form of government going smoothly. Germany adopted democratic forms but the outcome has not been all that a believer in a label could wish. Poland, Russia, Jugo-Slavia and Checho-Slavia are all revealing the difficulty of setting up governmental households. Our own history under the Articles of Confederation makes an interesting parallel. Yet government is absolutely fundamental to any real progress and our understanding of present difficulties should make us sympathetic toward Israel in their day of very real crisis. The old forms had failed to meet their growing needs in a most perilous situation and their elders did precisely what our own forebears did in seeking to counsel together in order that a more secure condition might be reached and they were as honest and patriotic as were Washington and the rest who formed the body that gave us our Constitution. The Judgeship had broken down as a uniting force. Big as Samuel was he had created public opinion but had not been able to build a state. Aging, his sons were weaker than himself and unprincipled which their father never was. There was growing menace from both east and west and these patriots saw that there must be some permanent personal center instead of the local, temporary Judgeship aiming to meet a temporary emergency. They were familiar with the fact of monarchy for Moses, Joshua and others had wielded its power and Gileon's son had born the title. It was the familiar form among the nations the Philistia had builded an organization something akin to Israel in which the basis was cities instead of tribes. Apparently there never was a King of Philistia. But with their own confederacy seriously near the rocks, with tribal jealousies to be considered their decision was for the monarchy. They submitted their conclusion Samuel with their reasons leaving him to pass upon their desire and work out details. There seems to be full recognition of the perils involved but the possible gain was too clear to long delay action upon their leader's part.

HOLDING THE PRIMARIES.

Samuel was a liver of his religion first of all but there was rare shrewdness in his day. There are clearly two parties in the life of Israel, the religious and the political, whose differences become clearer as the history proceeds. It is significant that the religious element is foremost in making the change. The church may be conservative but the prophets are born of her influence and we have never had a constructive statesman who was not a religious man. "No man can ever sit here," said Mc Kinkley pointing to his chair in his White House office, "who does not believe this," and he laid his hand upon his own Bible. Benjamin lying between the animosities of the strong tribes north and south was too small to excite jealousy and the location was central. Samuel knew far more about Saul than he did about the Seer. Yet trilled light as air mark the passage to popular choice. Runaway mules blazed the path to a palace for this young fellow was not so eager to serve Israel as to refuse an humble task. A servant's word sent him to the throne, changed ox-goad for sceptre and lifted his feet from furrow to palace floor for he was democratic enough to listen to the word of the most common man among the Hebrews. There are no trifles in the plan of God. Garfield owed his career to a pair of blue yarn socks and Grant credited a pound of butter with his presidency. When a trifle points toward God's man and public service it is safe to follow. Convinced of his worth and of God's wish Samuel arranged the selection and the sacred lot declared Jehovah's will and set the Son of Kish in the way of empire.

THE UNCROWNED KING.

Saul had to win his crown before wearing it. There is so much condemnation of that early monarch that the circumstances under which he strove must be kept in mind in order that there be any fairness in the making of an estimate of the man. Magnetic David sat upon the lid of revolution during most of his reign; even Judah, his home precinct, turning against him. With all the disadvantage of settled melancholia and the break with the religious party and the outlawing of popular David Saul kept his grip upon the mass of people until the day of his tragic death with never an attempt at overthrow. This must have been a strangely winsome giant of a man who could carry such devotion thru all his administration. He could have been no mean organizer for chaos reigned when he rushed to the rescue of Jabesh Gilead and he had the same task as that which Kerenky attempted, the building of an organization in the face of hostile armies, only he succeeded where the Russian failed. Modest, daring, capable of kindling into flaming passion, democratic enough to set his servant beside him at Samuel's feast, lover of country of his children, he deserved his crown. The disasters of his reign will come in later lessons.

THE FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY.

What a man this was who set up two dynasties and steered the ship of state from anarchy to empire. No shrewder statesman nor better man walks across the pages of the past. His sons were unworthy but this was no Eli for he ousted them from office with his own hands. The nation asked another to step above him and there is not only no white but the active seeking of the best man to occupy his own old position. It was nothing to the life-long and passionately devoted religionist that the choice was outside his own party—he was first to advocate his election and to give him the kiss of homage. He gave him the welcome of a prince, the counsel of a statesman, the endorsement of his influence, the blessing of the priest and the support of the prophet. When he resigned the helm he did not desert the ship nor rock the boat in the rapids of political uncertainty. He stepped as common sayer, Great, good, loyal statesman, seer: Samuel was too big for the patch of Palestine, he belongs to the ages, to the world and God.

ACCIDENT

Senator H. J. Speicher and Merchant F. C. Diehl left here on Sunday morning for Pittsburgh where they spent a few days on business.

Mrs. William Miller was the guest of Miss Matilda Englehart Monday. Sheriff Roy O. Winters, of Oakland, was a visitor to Accident Sunday afternoon.

Why a Majority of the Smaller Cars Come on Goodyear Tires

Last year more cars using 30x3-, 30x3½, or 31x4-inch tires were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

This is plainly a result of the high relative value produced in these tires for the smaller cars by Goodyear's enormous resources and scrupulous care.

They represent the same intense endeavor to supply utmost satisfaction in tires that has laid the basis for the marked preference which exists everywhere for Goodyear Tires in the larger sizes.

This real Goodyear value in tires is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car using one of these sizes, at our nearest Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread..... $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water-proof bag..... $4.50

The Highest Developed Tractor

THIS Case 10-18 Kerosene Tractor is noted for its Simplicity, Accessibility, Flexibility and Durability. Almost anyone can operate and care for this improved tractor.

Every part is easily accessible. You need not waste your time in getting at the parts. Transmission housing, differential gear housing, clutch, crank case, every working part, can be reached for inspecting or adjusting without trouble or loss of time.

This Case 10-18 is small and compact. It can be taken almost everywhere. Its turning radius is about 11 feet.

It has a one-piece main frame. So there is no rocking nor vibration—none of the twisting which is so destructive. The motor is set crosswise; this permits use of all spur gears. All gears are cut steel, enclosed, and run in oil.

This tractor easily handles two plows 7 or 8 inches deep. It has plenty of reserve power. For all kinds of field work it is unequalled.

It also is a wonder for belt work. It will readily drive a Case 20x28 thresher, fully equipped, a No. 12 Case silo filler, or other machines requiring similar power. Before you buy, investigate this better tractor. Note all its superiorities. Make comparisons.

THE S O S.

By CRAWFORD LUTTRELL.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Army men on a post welcome visiting girls as the glad old earth welcomes spring, but it was quite different after the first week of her sojourn in the house of Captain Anstruthers, that his sister Helen was going to have a sorry time of it. She was pretty enough in her way, but that elusive something that makes or mars a girl's success with men held no promise for the captain's uneasy wife, Anne. What was she going to do with her sister-in-law for a whole month?

Men came, perfumingly, at her bidding. They ate her dinners, nibbled her cakes and drank her tea, but they returned the courtesies with the air of men paying just and honest debts when they could make far happier use of the money. None of them leaving lingered a little to grasp her hand and whisper, "She's some little peach, your visitor! Say a good word for me! How about dinner with me tomorrow night, and could you squeeze in a horseback ride for the next afternoon?"

Something had to be done and done quickly.

Anne thought over the list of possibilities. Her heart gave a little convulsive gasp at thought of sending in S. O. S. to the colonel, and yet she looked forward happily to the opportunities that it would offer to exhibit herself in all her mature loveliness to the man whom she had refused to marry Tom Anstruthers. There was always a little glow of feminine satisfaction when she reflected that he was a bachelor because of her. His eyes were inscrutable, unfathomable. They looked at her as if they were still seeing the pretty, innocent young girl she had been when visiting the post years before, she had chosen a husband because he was the best-looking officer there, the best dancer and the most adept at making love. Well, she had paid for her failure to discriminate, but nobody knew how much she had paid. Outwardly she was the toast of the officers' mess, beautiful as a star and just as cold, men found who ventured to make up for Anstruthers' obvious lack of attention.

She had never asked a favor of Colonel Kent, but the time had come when she felt that the end justified the means. She could not have Tom's quiet little sister go back home with a tale of unhappiness to tell. The girl had looked forward to the visit for years, Anne knew. She remembered how it had been when she was young.

So Anne wrote a little perfumed note and asked the colonel to call at ten time the next day. She planned to have a few others in so that she could take the colonel aside and explain just what was wanted without having Helen suspect anything.

She longed to wear a blue georgette frock elaborately embroidered in steel beads, but the colonel had often mentioned his fondness for her in that color in the never-to-be-forgotten days of youth, so she resolutely pushed aside the alluring little garment and selected a drab gray to which only her supple gait color.

Of course they had met almost every day in the year, but he never went to Anne's house unless he was invited there, and Anne only asked him when there were many other guests. Lately she had seen little of him. He was beginning to plead that middle-aged officers ought to turn over social affairs to the younger fellows and let them have their fling.

When the few people whom she had asked had all been served, Anne left the gay little tea table and casually moved over to sit beside the colonel.

"I'm so glad that you came," she said, "I want to ask a big favor of you."

"Granted," he answered, smiling inscrutably, "before you ask, as you must have known it would be."

"Captain Anstruthers' little sister is visiting me for a month. For some reason, not known to me, she is not proving very popular. My sixth sense tells me that."

"Woman's intuition,"

"She is young, as you can see, so young that her heart and her eyes are still filled with dreams. I want her to be gay and happy while she is here. Already she is beginning to feel that the men are not rushing her as she had hoped they would. Can you help me? Will you help me to make her visit here all that I want it to be?"

A little wistful smile played about his full lips and etched with a bold stroke the fine lines that were already showing at the corners of his brown eyes. "It's a big task to put up to a man whose own dreams have never come true, but I'll do my best. Whatever you say goes, you know. I told you that same thing, fifteen years ago."

Only that once did she let the mask fall. Her face went white as a snow drop and her hand, plying fingering the bag of sapphires on her breast, trembled visibly. There was the agony of confession in the eyes she lifted to his for one brief moment. "If it hadn't been for the memory of your kindness, I couldn't have endured it all these years."

"I know." His clasp on her hand was warm, reassuring. "I'll do everything that I can for the girl."

If a miracle can happen, then one happened at the post. The end of Helen's visit came, and Anne knew that no girl who had ever been entertained there had enjoyed greater popularity. There had been rides, luncheons, teas, dinners and theater parties to the nearby city, all of them sponsored by the able, quiet-looking colonel. Anne was gratified beyond the power of words to express, but the visit had been a trying one for her. She was conscious every time that she saw the commanding officer at the post that all he did was for her. She had worn her blue dresses because she had heard him say so many times in the old days that blue was his favorite color, and she wanted to please him because he was doing so much for her.

He came to call, alone, the night before Helen was to leave. The girl seemed strangely excited, as if she were just bubbling over with happiness. Anne said good-night to them early and went to her room, thinking over her own care-free days and her unwise choice of a partner. She would try to save Helen from the same fate. She wondered if the girl had come really to care for any of the men who had danced attendance on her. None of them probably cared a straw for the girl herself. Of course, they rushed her to please the colonel. There was a little lieutenant who had seemed sincere in his attentions. Could it be that he—Anne was startled from her reverie by Helen tiptoeing into the room, with her finger on her lips. The little visitor was in a dainty, colored nightgown with wide-sleeved ruffles that served to round out her slim, girlish figure. A high Spanish comb held her yellow curls on top of her head. She was eager, vivid, keenly alive. Her eyes were sparkling.

"I have a secret, a wonderful one," she confided rapturously.

"Yes?" questioned Anne; but already that strange sixth sense was at work, prophesying the astounding news.

"I'm coming back—to be leading lady at the post—think of it! The colonel's wife! Maybe I'll snub you and Tom," she laughed, rocking herself back and forth on the low stool by Anne's dainty dressing table. "You know I was wild about him before I came here. Tom had told us so much about him. I cared even before I saw him. So you see your quiet, demure little sister-in-law has something that all the lovely, schilling visitors who came here before me have lacked. I met him two or three days before you asked him to tea. He said then that if you didn't soon ask him to call he would have to hint to you."

"I think that I will have a brown gown-away dress, Anne. I thought of blue, but he hates it. Isn't that queer? Most men adore it. Why don't you say something?"

"Aren't you perfectly thrilled to have a sister who is the colonel's lady?"

Anne was staring at her, eyes dark as shadowy pools, as if she were seeing her for the first time. "Why, of course, I am delighted," she answered.

"I wanted him to tell you, but he said it would be better for me to break the news. Wasn't that thoughtful of him? Women do love startling secrets, don't they? And just think, Anne, he says that he has never loved a girl before, and he is nearly forty years old!"

THE STORM

By ELEANOR R. JOHNSON.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

It had been a hot, sultry day, almost unbearable to even the most devout lover of summer weather, and the late afternoon had approached without even a breath of wind.

Barbara Savoy, a pretty, fair-haired girl, moved restlessly about on the porch of one of the north shore's most famous hotels. Her father was seated in a shaded corner, eagerly devouring the headlines and columns of the daily paper. Barbara approached him.

"Father, I guess this is the 43rd time I have asked, but won't you please come out rowing for just a little while? It's so much cooler in the bay!"

So for the 43rd time Mr. Savoy tried to refuse, but it was impossible. Barbara had really been rather patient, therefore it was only just that she should be rewarded.

"Well, for only a little while, but mind you, don't bring that young fellow along that you were talking with this morning. He doesn't seem to have any gumption, whatsoever."

Barbara was too happy to have this testy little remark spoil her fun, and snatching up a pair of oars from the landing, she ran down to one of the boats.

While they were bounding merrily over the waves the clouds in the sky were keeping up. Heavy black clouds covered the heavens like a blanket. It was unmistakable that a storm was coming up.

"Now, Barb! Perhaps we can get to the shore before the storm breaks," and Mr. Savoy pulled fiercely on the oars, while Barbara, feeling how dangerous their position was, added her strength to the oars.

Suddenly the storm broke, and the wind seemed to vent his wrath on the light craft. The two mere human beings fought bravely, but without avail. The boat began to fill with the downpour of rain, and the waves which washed over the sides.

Laying down the useless oars, Mr. Savoy dropped on his knees in the bottom of the boat, and baled; baled as fast as he could fill his straw hat and dump its contents over the edge of the boat.

"Father, it's almost hopeless," Barbara shouted between the deafening claps of thunder. "Let's just beat it as long as we can, and then do the next best thing—try to swim."

It seemed as if nature heard her words. The boat gave a lurch and then sank beneath the surface with a sickening groan. Barbara heard her father shout and then the water bubbled unpleasantly in her ears.

When Barbara became conscious several hours later she found herself lying on her bed at the hotel. Footsteps sounded in the hallway and Mr. Savoy entered. He looked pale and worn, but his face lighted up as Barbara turned toward him.

"A little adventure, Barb! How do you feel?"

"Fine, daddy, but tell me, how did we come out so safely?"

"Wonderful luck is all I can say, Barb. But at any rate that fellow, Robert Garrick, that you were talking with this morning, is all right! He was running along the shore and I saw him and shouted and while I held on to you with one hand and kept up with the other, he rushed in and helped us."

A week passed before either Barbara or her father saw Robert Garrick again. Then it all happened when Barbara was the post office for mail. As she was looking over the pile of envelopes, Garrick stepped up.

"Would you like to ride back to the hotel with me?" he inquired. "I am going past there."

Barbara looked up and, greatly pleased, she exclaimed, "Oh, it is you! I do so want to thank you for what you did for me!"

"Never mind that now," he interposed genially. "Jump into the car and maybe we can talk about that later."

They did stop at the hotel, but it was only while Barbara left her father's mail. After that she took the first of many enjoyable rides that summer, and when she returned home in the fall Robert Garrick felt that next summer and Barbara were the only things to live for.

Honor Due Magellan.

Although Magellan did not live to complete his particular voyage, he did circumnavigate the globe, and was the first man to do so. Previously on his longest voyage eastward from Portugal he had reached Banda Island at longitude 130 degrees east of Greenwich, and when he fell at Martin Island he had sailed westward to longitude 124 degrees east of Greenwich, thereby six degrees more than completing the circumnavigation. This feat has never been recognized at its full value, which it is held, would place it among the four leading achievements in discovery and exploration.

Enormous Lead-Pencil Output.

Some idea of the tremendous magnitude of the pencil industry of America can be obtained when it is realized that the largest factory alone turns out more than 50,000,000 pencils every year. They are of more than 700 kinds, grades, shapes and colors. If the pencils from the factory were placed in a row end to end they would reach from Washington to San Francisco and back to New York.

Advantages in Knowing Chinese.

As part of an elaborate program in spoken languages Columbia university is to teach Dutch, Japanese, Arabic, Armenian, Chinese, French, Danish, Norwegian, Icelandic, Russian, Serbo-Croatian, Spanish and Turkish. The importance of Chinese was recently emphasized at Columbia by Julian Arnold, American commercial attaché at Peking, who told an audience that from 500 to 1,000 Americans should be trained in the essentials of Chinese civilization in the next ten years. Tremendous trade potentialities lie in China, said Mr. Arnold.

Chinese Newspaper in France.

A Chinese weekly newspaper has been started in Paris by Daniel Fu for the benefit of the thousands of Chinese sent there to act as laborers during the war and who are now employed in reconstruction work, according to the far eastern information bureau. The paper is produced by a photographic process, the sheets having been hand-written, since it is impossible to get Chinese type in France. The paper sells at 2 cents a copy, and is said to be the first Chinese newspaper produced in France.

Bible Quotations.

Two brothers, Francis, four years old, and Fred, Jr., two years old, have been taught Bible sayings by their aunt. The other day while both babies were playing their mother heard Francis say: "Jesus said, 'I am the way, the truth and the life.'" Fred, Jr., said: "And Jesus said, 'All little children come to supper.'" "No, Fred," Francis said: "Suffer little children to come unto me."

Fred, Jr., declared: "No, come to supper," and insisted he was right.

Useful Kerosene.

Housewives, with but few exceptions, do not properly value kerosene. As a lubricant a drop or two will set things going which refused to go before. As a cleanser it can often be used with great advantage in place of soap and water. Floors can be more quickly and more thoroughly cleaned with a well-oiled mop than with soap and water, leaving a bright, shining surface.

Sore Eyes, Blood Shot Eyes, Watery Eyes, Sticky Eyes, all healed promptly with nightly applications of Roman Eye Balm.—Adv.

GRIDDLE CAKES and WAFFLES

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

THERE is an art in making flapjack pancakes, griddle cakes or waffles, but it is an art you will. But it is an art very easily and quickly acquired if you follow the right recipes.

Here are some recipes for a variety of breakfast cakes that will make grandmother envious. The secret, of course, is Royal Baking Powder.

Royal Hot Griddle Cakes

2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons shortening
Mix and sift dry ingredients; add milk and melted shortening; beat well. Bake on slightly greased hot griddle.

Griddle Cakes with Eggs

1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon shortening
Mix and sift dry ingredients; add beaten eggs, milk and melted shortening; mix well. Bake immediately on hot griddle.

Buckwheat Cakes

2 cups buckwheat flour
1 cup flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 1/2 cups milk
2 cups milk of milk and water
1 tablespoon molasses
1 tablespoon shortening
Sift together flours, baking powder and salt; add liquid, molasses and melted shortening; beat three minutes. Bake on hot greased griddle.

Waffles

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
2 eggs
1 tablespoon melted shortening
Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add milk to yolks of eggs; mix thoroughly and add to dry ingredients; add melted shortening and mix in beaten whites of eggs. Bake in well greased hot waffle iron until brown. Serve hot with maple syrup. It should take about 1 1/2 minutes to bake each waffle.

THE DEMOCRAT "DUCKS."

The following item appeared in the editorial column of The Republican last week:

"The Republican has been requested to propound this question to the Democrat: Do you endorse the appointment of the new member of the Board of Education?"

Why anyone should ask The Republican to propound the above question to the Democrat is a mystery. The editor of the Democrat is in his office every day and frequently on the streets of Oakland. He is not dangerous nor unapproachable. It seems to us that the enquirer went a round about way to find out what he wanted to know.

The above from the Democrat of last week is very illuminating. The Democrat's position is plain. It is evidently frightened at a shadow for it neither endorses nor does it disapprove of the appointment. Where do you stand, Mr. Democrat?

"Uncle Joe" Cannon's recipe, "plain hard work," is admirable, but unfortunately it is too hard for a lot of folks to follow.

The budget bill will soon be passed by both houses and up to the President for signature. It ranks with the most important legislative achievements of this generation.

New York Democratic delegates to the national convention, in conference at Albany, turned down suggestions that the Wilson administration be endorsed or the league of nations favored. This seems to show that the administration and its policies are just about as popular with New York Democrats as with other folks.

Bryan gets on the delegation in Nebraska in spite of administration efforts to knock him into a cocked hat. Down in Georgia, Attorney General Palmer, backed by the administration, the postmasters and the federal office holders, gets only about a third of the counties against Smith and Watson, both opposed to the administration's league of nations plan. In other words, the calm cool, cruel fact is that Mr. Wilson and his coterie of politicians about him have lost their grip on the rank and file of the Democratic party who insist on being Americans before they are internationalists.

"Cut expenses," says the Republican Congress. "Give us more money to spend," demand the members of President Wilson's Cabinet. And the cabinet is composed of men whose minds run along with the President's. It is up to the American people to choose which of the two elements they will support. It would naturally seem that the thoughtful, prudent man or woman would sooner or later arrive at the conclusion that the era of federal extravagance and waste must soon come to an end. This is an unavoidable issue before the people and they must pass upon it as the polls in November. It is well to think it over before you go into the voting booth, and then there act honestly and conscientiously with yourself and upon your best judgment.

THE OREGON LETTER.

The Oregon letter deepens the mystery of the President's mental reactions. The most obvious development of the last six months has been the popular swing away from sympathy with his treaty policy. A Republican candidacy for the Presidency who has made speeches in many states said the other day that not more than 2 per cent of his auditors seemed to favor ratification of the treaty without sweeping reservations. Only twenty-one of the forty-seven Democratic Senators followed the President's advice to reject the treaty because of the reservations which the Senate attached to it. The Democrats of Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island have refused to support unconditional ratification. The Democratic party, at least in the North, is extremely reluctant to go into "a great and solemn referendum" next fall on the issue of the President's draft of the treaty against all substitutes.

Yet the President closes his eyes obstinately to all these signs of the times. Has he completely lost contact with the outside world—all sensitiveness of the ferment of public opinion? The letter to Chairman Hammer reads as if it were written in the exuberant period of self-confidence and complacent consciousness of mastery—when Mr. Wilson was first planning to go to Paris—before the experience of disillusionment had begun.

"Let us prove to our late associates in the war," the President writes, "that at any rate the great majority party of the nation, the party which expresses the true hopes and purposes of the people of the country, intends to keep faith with them in peace as well as in war." Strike out the word "late" and this passage could well be taken for a transcription from some piece of rhetoric antedating the armistice and the election of 1918. Leaving in the word "late," it might be mistaken for an excerpt from a speech made while the peace conference was assembling and the spokesmen of the powers at Paris shared the President's mistaken notion that he, as first American peace commissioner, spoke with unconditional authority for the government and people of the United States.

That old delusion survives in the Oregon missive, Mr. Wilson reiterates that the Allied powers are entitled to our unqualified support of the peace draft which he signed simply because he signed it and because it embodies what he considers the essentials of a sound peace settlement. "We cannot in honor," he says, "weaken it or whittle it down."

The President thus flatly denies the Senate, the coordinate branch of the treaty making power, and the people any right to determine what they may honorably do. Isn't the treaty treaty as well as his? He wouldn't admit that in 1918. He refuses to admit it today. The only true Americanism is his kind of Americanism. The Republican party, the real majority party in the country, dissents with practical unanimity from his fanciful theory that the Lodge reservations are "utterly inconsistent with the nation's honor." Very powerful elements in the Democratic party also dissent from it. Yet the President is as categorical and self-centered as ever, in any way or way. If my suggestion is rejected America will be disgraced before the world. The skies of our repute and moral integrity will fall.

It is a pathetic demonstration of self-will and immutability of opinion Mr. Wilson has thundered excommunications against the Senate, the House of Representatives and the Republican party—but without avail. Now he threatens the backsliding Democracy. Is it facile enough to undertake at San Francisco to vindicate "American honor" by opposing reservations to the covenant which public opinion insists on as necessary safeguards of American interests and rights?

THE DEATH RECORD.

ELIAS AND LYDIA ORENDORF.

Elias Orendorf, for many years a resident of Garrett county, where he was loved and respected by a host of friends, died at Greenwood, Del., on May 7, 1920, after a brief illness following a succession of paralytic strokes, the fatal one having taken place the day of his death. Mr. Orendorf was born at Berlin, Pa., Sept. 25, 1844.

Lydia Beachy Orendorf, wife of Elias Orendorf, was born on June 8, 1846, and died at Greenwood, Del., on May 9, 1920. She was the daughter of the late Christian P. Beachy, of this county and was born near Grantsville. The deceased was ill for a number of weeks as a result of heart disease and complications. The death of her husband two days prior no doubt hastened her end. She was the mother of eleven children, four of whom, Lewis and Jonas, of Greenwood, Del., Mrs. David Miller, of Mountain Lake Park, and Mr. D. E. Orendorf, of near Oakland, survive.

The funeral of the couple took place from their home at Greenwood on Monday, May 10th, with interment in the Amish cemetery there after services conducted by Rev. Nevin Bender, formerly of Garrett county, and Rev. Jonas Yoder, of Millington, Pa.

This couple was for nearly half a century residents of Bittinger, moving from that place to Greenwood September 25, 1917. They were members from childhood of the Amish church, consistent in their daily lives and their love of family and friends. The announcement of their death will be received with sadness by their many friends in Garrett county.

Why should our tears in sorrow flow,
When God recalls His own,
And bids them leave a world of woe
For an immortal crown?

Is not e'en death a gain to those Whose life to God was given?
Gladly to earth their eyes they close,
To open them in heav'n.

Their toil is past, their work is done,
And they are fully blest:
They fought the fight, the victory won,
And entered into rest.

Then let our sorrows cease to flow—
God has recalled His own;
And let our hearts, in every woe,
Still say—"Thy will be done."

Rayner and Mary E. Rayner by deed from Ulysses S. Jackson and Susan L. Jackson, his wife, dated September 23rd, 1914, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 68, folio 22, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lots of ground, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919, as is charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of the said Thomas J. Rayner.

No. 10. All of that lot, piece or parcel of ground situate, lying and being in Election District No. 9 of Garrett County, Maryland, the same being Military Lot No. 529, containing the quantity of 50 acres, all minerals reserved, and being the same lot of ground which was conveyed unto David A. Benson by deed from Catherine Schombert and George Schombert, her husband, dated March 22, 1916, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 70, folio 224, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919, as is charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of David Benson.

No. 11. All of that lot or parcel of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 5 of Garrett County, Maryland, the same being Military Lot No. 3243, containing the quantity of fifty acres, and being the same lot of ground which was conveyed unto William C. Vanmeter by deed from James C. Thomas, Trustee, dated the 16th day of January, 1898, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 18, folio 215, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett County in the name of William C. Vanmeter Estate.

No. 13. All of that lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 11 of Garrett County, Maryland, the same being a part of a tract of land called "Lochiel," and containing the quantity of 64 1/2 acres, being the same tract of land which was conveyed unto Samuel F. Warnick by Fred. A. Thayer, Trustee, by deed dated January 5, 1914, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 66, folio 260, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said parcel of land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919, as is charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett County in the name of Samuel F. Warnick.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS
STATE SCHOLARSHIPS IN ENGINEERING COURSES.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Civil Engineering Building, Homewood, Monday-Saturday, June 21-26, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering established under the provisions of the law of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 17, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Cecil, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1920-1921, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the five counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the county and city scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in engineering unless free tuition be granted them. The scholars are entitled to the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees.

One of the scholarships in each county and in each legislative district of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expenses of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College.

One scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address The Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, awards of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28, 1920.

INDUSTRY COMING AT ONCE

Interwoven Woollen Company Has Already Shipped Part of Equipment

The Interwoven Mills Company, of Martinsburg, West Va., where the concern has an established mill for the production of knit hose and other garments, employing several hundred girls and women, has notified those interested in having a branch plant opened in Oakland that the machinery with which to develop power to drive the machinery, consisting of a gas engine and electric motors, have already been shipped from Pittsburgh and are expected here any day.

Upon the arrival of the machinery the company will send its mechanics to Oakland to fit up the building preparatory to the installation of the power plant and the knitting machinery, and within a very short time thereafter the company expects to be manufacturing and shipping their product in large quantities.

With the establishing of this little industry, which will afford pleasant and clean work for many of the young girls and women in Oakland, a pay roll of considerable proportions will be the result and every one in the community will share in its benefits.

A little team work on the part of our business men and citizens generally may result in eventually making Oakland a manufacturing centre of proportions. It costs but little to try it, hence why not have a get-together meeting and work for the good of the community along this line.

ATTENTION EX-SERVICE MEN.

There will be a meeting of the Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion, next Wednesday, May 26, at 7:30 o'clock, in the City Hall to make final arrangements for the Memorial Day celebration which will be held Monday, May 31st. Although you are not a member of the post, if you are an ex-service man you are cordially invited, and urged to be present at this meeting. The American Legion will be in command on the 31st and every ex-service man is expected to be in uniform, if possible, and to do his share in making the celebration a success.

In another column of this issue of The Republican will be found the program for the Demobilization of the Service Flaz in the Methodist church. It will be well for you to keep this in mind and attend this service if at all possible.

Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Shultz left in their automobile Tuesday afternoon for Wheeling, West Va., where the former is attending the Knights Templar Conclave and the latter is the guest of friends.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun left Oakland yesterday morning for Washington, D. C., where he will attend the National Educational convention, which is now in session and will be there the remaining days of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maffett, of near Clarksburg, came to Oakland on Tuesday, the former returning to his home yesterday, while Mrs. Maffett will remain in Oakland for a week or two visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shaffer.

Mr. S. H. Jackson, resident manager of the Northern Natural Gas Co., left Oakland last Sunday morning for Buffalo, N. Y., where he is attending a meeting of the executives of natural gas corporations and allied companies. He expects to return to Oakland some time this week.

Mr. Samuel Glogofeltz, of McHenry, who recently returned to his home from a Cumberland hospital where he received treatment and underwent a serious surgical operation, was in Oakland yesterday on business. Mr. Glogofeltz has almost entirely recovered his usual health.

Mrs. John H. Stark, one among the old residents of this community, died at her home on Wednesday, the 12th inst., after an illness of upwards of a year, much of which time she was confined to her bed. Her funeral occurred on Friday morning from the Lutheran church where the services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. L. Marvin.

Messrs. R. E. Sliger, J. M. Stanton, Edward A. Shaffer and Dr. B. F. Selby left Oakland this morning for Baltimore to attend the Democratic State convention, which assemblies at noon. The gentlemen above named are all delegates to the assemblage and with the exception of Mr. Sliger they went to the city in Dr. Selby's car, leaving here at four o'clock.

Dr. Henry W. McComas had a very narrow escape with his life Monday afternoon at the Mountain Lake Park crossing when his automobile just cleared the tracks as a fast freight rushed by. Eyewitnesses to the occurrence were of the opinion that the car had been struck and demolished until they beheld the owner on the opposite side of the track unhurt but badly frightened.

Cemetery Notice.

The late, cold spring has retarded the annual cleaning of the Oakland cemetery. The Cemetery Committee will begin work there this week, only doing work that is not done by others. We wish the early cooperation of lot owners, so that all work, if possible, may be completed by Friday, May 25. We understand that Memorial Day will be observed on Monday, the 31st, by the organized bodies of the town and will be under the direction of the local Post American Legion.

Let every lot owner make an unusual effort this year to beautify this sacred spot.

Held for Theft.

On Monday a young man named Reams, residing near Crellin, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing before Justice West upon the charge of stealing an automobile tire and tube from a car at Crellin.

The young man was held under bond for his appearance at the June term.

Empire Theatre Program.

At the Empire Theatre beginning tonight and for the following several evenings of this and next week, some of the masterpieces of the moving picture art will be shown.

This evening, May 20, "Mothers of Liberty," featuring Barbara Castleton.

Friday and Saturday evenings, a Paramount feature, "Market of the Souls," with Dorothy Dutton the leading lady. Matinee on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Monday the Vitaphone feature, entitled "The Climbers," taken from the story written by Clyde Fitch and with Corinne Griffith leading.

The next notable feature will be "Daddy Longlegs," May 28 and 29, featuring Mary Pickford.

Mr. J. W. Whorton, who has been engaged for some time past laying cement walks in various parts of the town and county, has recently completed a very substantial pavement fronting the Martin Garage on Liberty street. Entrance to the building may now be had without having to operate one's car up over a platform, as the walk has been formed so that the ascent is slight and very easy to negotiate.

A Woman's Profession

There is a profession for women—and a most honored one it is. It is not acquired in a day or week, but once gained is always an asset for livelihood and honorable service, and once acquired is never lost.

Do you know that throughout this country many of our greatest hospitals have schools for nurses? Tuition, board and lodging are not only free, but you are paid for your time while learning. The opening is there for rich or poor—for the woman who has learned that serving brings happiness, and that a profession means independence.

It is a three years' course for women between the ages of 18 and 35 who are healthy, conscientious, loyal and who understand the happiness that comes from service.

And, your training completed, you have a profession that insures independence and comfort always.

Any and all questions will gladly be answered and complete information given if you will communicate either in person or by letter with

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

This is to notify the taxpayers of Garrett county that the annual levy for 1920 has been made and published, and to call their attention to the following abstract of Section 45, Chapter 558, Acts of 1890, relating to the discount to be allowed and the interest to be charged on all tax bills:

"All county taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of September next succeeding the date of the levy thereof, and on all county taxes paid on or before the 1st day of September a discount of 3 per cent. will be allowed, and after the 1st day of January all county taxes shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum until paid. The Treasurer shall take the discount from and charge the interest on the tax bills for county purposes regularly in the manner aforesaid, and shall note the same upon the books and upon the receipt given upon the tax so paid. But the discount shall not be allowed unless the whole amount of State and County taxes are paid when the same is made."

Under the provision of Section 48 of Chapter 630, of the Acts of 1916, all state taxes shall be due and payable on and after the first day of July in the year in which the same are levied and if not paid on or before the first day of September of said year, shall bear interest from said date at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

No discount is allowed on State tax.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Oakland, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. I surely did wonder for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. CATCH UP ON WAR WORK

Period of Congestion and Vexatious Delays Is Virtually at an End.

ANSWER WITH REAL LETTERS

Strides of Great Importance Made in Bringing Insurance Business of Bureau to an Absolutely Current Basis

Washington.—Announcement is made by Director R. G. Cholmeley-Jones of the bureau of war risk insurance that the insurance division of the bureau is virtually at the end of its period of congestion and vexatious delays, resulting from the great volume of work suddenly thrown upon it by the demobilization of the armed forces during the past year.

Former service men are assured that they will be answered promptly from now on with real letters, instead of with form paragraphs or unsatisfactory form letters, in all cases which require detailed and specific answers. This is the first time that the bureau has been in a position to give this assurance.

Strides of great importance to the millions of former service men and their relatives and beneficiaries, have been made toward bringing the insurance business of the bureau to an absolutely current basis in the prompt answering of mail and acknowledgment of premiums paid. The records of accumulated work disposed of show conclusively such an enormous and distinctive improvement in the expediting of the business that it is confidently believed that within the next month the insurance division will be giving as rapid and accurate service as do any efficiently managed organizations in commercial life.

Catch Up on Mail.
For example, the number of unopened premiums, which last October was approximately $8,000, has just been reduced to an average of 10,000 or less than one day's work. With other necessary operations in the handling of remittances, a receipt will be sent out in a few days from the date of the original receipt of the remittance.

Transferred mail in the insurance division shows reduction of approximately 60 per cent from the daily balance of five months ago. Probably it will be two or three weeks before it will be possible to answer all the letters as quickly as it is now possible to mail out receipts for premiums. It is a matter of only a few weeks, however, before the answering of all letters in reference to insurance within four days of their receipt in the bureau will be the regular practice.

In the meantime, it is inevitable that there will be some impatience on the part of those service men who in the past have experienced difficulty in adjusting their insurance matters with the bureau, as a result of delay or unsatisfactory information, but the progress now being made indicates conclusively that these vexatious cases will be cleared up speedily, and that thereafter, although there will always be a matter of only a few weeks, however, before the answering of all letters in reference to insurance within four days of their receipt in the bureau will be the regular practice.

In the meantime, it is inevitable that there will be some impatience on the part of those service men who in the past have experienced difficulty in adjusting their insurance matters with the bureau, as a result of delay or unsatisfactory information, but the progress now being made indicates conclusively that these vexatious cases will be cleared up speedily, and that thereafter, although there will always be a matter of only a few weeks, however, before the answering of all letters in reference to insurance within four days of their receipt in the bureau will be the regular practice.

Many Letters Returned.
In a large proportion of the cases, the service men themselves, being unfamiliar with the necessity of giving full information about their cases, certificate numbers, full names, dates of discharge, etc., rendered it impossible to answer properly their inquiries. Others failed to give proper addresses, with the result that today numbers of letters addressed to former service men by the bureau, are being returned by postmasters from all parts of the country, accompanied by statements that it is impossible to find the addressee. Fragmentary or insufficient information also inevitably resulted in the miscrediting of premiums, due to lack of identification.

Some idea of the enormity of the job may be gained from the fact that the most recent figures show that the total number of applications for insurance received by the bureau was 4,610,388, totaling $40,141,237,500, the premiums to March, 1920, totaling approximately $325,000,000.

For a long period, it was necessary for the bureau to typewrite all of its addresses. This meant reference to a record in each case, multiplying the chances of errors and entailing an enormous amount of labor. With such an unprecedented business as came in, the bureau was flooded with applications, inquiries, remittances, etc., and it was a physical impossibility for the bureau to mail to each of the 4,610,388 men on its list, information relative to the changes in rulings, etc., as rapidly as they were issued. To make even one complete mailing to each of the millions of addressees and at the same time to cope with the work of the bureau was an almost insuperable task. Naturally, much complaint developed on the ground that service men were unable to get information about what the bureau of war risk insurance was offering or was doing.

Handicaps Overcome.
Very serious handicaps in the addressing of the men have just been overcome. Through a special appropriation made by congress, the bureau has been enabled to put its entire list of former service men on addressograph plates, a task which has required several months and which has completely monopolized the plate-making section of a great factory. In the bureau of war risk insurance itself, over nine hundred people have been employed in putting the names and addresses on the plates.

In addition to enabling the bureau to make full mailings of its most important information to former service men and women, the sending out of premium notices has been enormously facilitated. The new system of printing both the premium notice and the premium receipt at the same time from the addressograph plate and by filling the returned addressograph notice in place of the premium receipt to credit the individual account with the remittance, reduces to a minimum the possibility of misapplication of premiums received. Additional safeguards rests in the fact that each addressograph plate carries the certificate or policy number, and the amount of premium regularly due from the service man. This prevents the errors that previously occurred through repeated copying with a typewriter. In a great business where there are more than thirty million records, including the names of more than fifty thousand Johnstons, Johnsons, etc., and proportionately large numbers of Smiths, and Browns, occasional errors and misunderstandings were bound to develop, but the ironing-out process is now so well under way that even such discrepancies will be rapidly corrected.

Difficulties Reduced.
The promptness with which premium notices can now be mailed, is expected to obviate largely the difficulties and vexations which hitherto have been occasioned by premium notices being mailed without the necessary and already been made. Prompt receipting for premiums, which now is possible and will be carried out, will largely do away with this difficulty, except, of course, where notices sent out in a previous month, are forwarded before the current payments could be credited.

Issuance of the insurance policies for the permanent (converted) government life insurance, which are desired by all the men who are insured, has been delayed pending the completion, which now has been passed.

The new notices are now being completed by the actuarial and legal experts and sent to the government printing office, and it is expected that they will be mailed out before June 1.

With the insurance business of the bureau on a current basis, it is now anticipated that former service men who have been deterred from keeping up their insurance by reason of the delays which they had experienced in the handling of their accounts, will take advantage of the very liberal provisions for the reinstatement of war risk insurance by the payment of two monthly premiums and a satisfactory statement of health and will get back on the books.

The new law has made the insurance very attractive by enlarging the list of permitted beneficiaries to include parent, grandparent, step-parent, parent through adoption, wife or husband, child, grandchild, stepchild, adopted child, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, brother through adoption, sister through adoption, stepbrother, stepfather, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, a person who has stood in the relation of a parent to the insured for a period of one year or more prior to the insured's enlistment or induction, the children of such persons: parent, grandparent, step-parent or parent through adoption of the insured's wife or husband.

Want Permanent Forms.
It is also anticipated that the provision of the new law which permits lump-sum payments, at the option of the insured on converted policies, (ordinary life, twenty-payment life, thirty-payment life, 20-year endowment, 30-year endowment, and endowment at age sixty-two) will greatly increase the number of conversions into the permanent form of government life insurance.

More than 105,000 applications for the conversion of war risk policies into permanent forms already have been received.

Former service men desiring to reinstate war risk insurance which has lapsed or been canceled, or to convert their insurance in cases where it is now in force, should apply to any post of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, or other organizations of former service men, Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting stations, State Insurance Commissioners, any home service section of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare Board, Y. M. C. A., or to other fraternal or welfare organizations which are in a position to furnish blanks and necessary information.

OLD SHAKESPEARE IS FOUND

Fragment of "Passionate Pilgrim" Believed Earlier Than Any Other Issue.

London.—Sotherby's will sell at auction a volume which rivals in rarity the tiny book which G. D. Smith of New York bought for $15,000 from the Britwell Court library last December. That sold from the Britwell library comprised Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis," fourth edition, 1593, of which only one copy is known; Shakespeare's "Passionate Pilgrim" and "Sonnets," first edition, 1594, of which only one other copy was then known, and "Emmellidulfe," by E. C., an author never identified, 1600, and Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis," fifth edition, issued in 1590, the same year as the fourth edition.

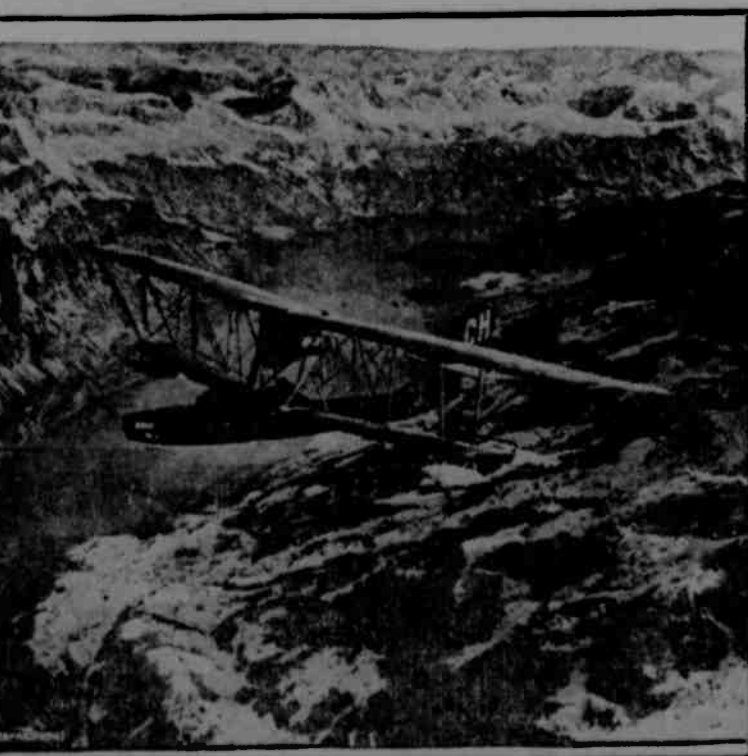

The "Passionate Pilgrim" and "Sonnets" is a fragment containing a large portion of the work. Its twenty-seven leaves out of thirty-four are, moreover, made up of two issues, one of which is the issue offered at the Britwell Court sale, but the other issue from which the piece is made up is one hitherto unknown. It contains misprints which in the Britwell Court edition are corrected. Consequently the claim of the latter to be the first edition is, in the words of the catalogue of the new find, rendered doubtful.

The new volume was discovered by Richard Francis Burton at his home Longnor Hall, near Shrewsbury.

MARYLAND FARMERS TO HEAR MEREDITH

SEC. OF AGRICULTURE WILL BE FARMERS' DAY SPEAKER AT COLLEGE PARK, MAY 29.

BIG PROGRAM PLANNED

Demonstrations Will Cover All Phases
Of Rural Work Including Features Of Interest To Women—Baseball Game In Afternoon.

An address by the Hon. E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, demonstrations of the value of labor saving machinery on the farm and in the home, motion picture presentations of rural activities and a baseball game between Maryland State College and Johns Hopkins University, will be the outstanding features of Farmers' Day at the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park, on Saturday, May 29.

The program for this seventh annual event promises to be more than usually interesting and arrangements are being made to care for hundreds of visitors from every part of the State. Every effort has been made by the faculty of the College and the corps of specialists connected with the Extension Service and the Experiment Station to make the day one of profit and pleasure to those who attend.

In addition to the regular train and trolley service to the College, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will operate several specials, both from Baltimore and Washington, to handle the passengers between those two cities and College Park.

PROGRAM COVERS WIDE FIELD.

The program for the day will cover a broad field of agricultural activities, so that there will be some particular feature of special interest to each visitor who will have the opportunity of watching such demonstrations as he most desires to see. A varied and entertaining program has been arranged for the women by the Home Demonstration Department.

The demonstration work will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning and from that time until 1 o'clock, representatives of each department will be present to explain the various exhibits. Guides will be on hand to meet the visitors and show them to the points where the demonstrations are in progress.

At 11 o'clock motion pictures will be shown in the auditorium in the Agricultural building and at 2 o'clock the address of the day will be delivered by the Secretary of Agriculture. The ball game is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Owing to the high price and scarcity of labor, it is expected that the farmers will show particular interest in the demonstrations of labor saving machinery and the specialists in charge of this part of the program will take the opportunity to point out that the more extended use of machinery on the farm is one of the very best methods of combating the present labor situation.

TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION.

In this connection the use of the tractor in belt work will be demonstrated. Many farmers have wrongly come to the conclusion that the tractor has little value outside of its function in pulling the plow and the cultivator. Consequently the tractor is put to work on many farms for a period of approximately one month and stands idle during the remainder of the year. The many uses to which this valuable machine may be put by applying the power from the belt will be demonstrated, the idea being to show that the tractor should be kept busy every month during the year.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN.

Extensive plans have been made to entertain and instruct the women visitors. On the second floor of the Agricultural Building there will be a special exhibit of labor saving devices, which can be employed by the farmer's wife. These will include all manner of electrical appliances such as washing machines, electric irons, dish washers and toasters.

On the lower floor of the same building in the offices devoted to the Home Demonstration work, there will be an extensive display designed to show the conservation of clothing. Women's and children's garments and even center pieces and other fancy work will be shown as a part of this demonstration in the utilization of old clothing.

Miss Madge Reesa, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be in charge of the milk show and will demonstrate the uses and explain the value of this commodity. At 10:30 o'clock a fashion show with living models will be staged in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building and it is expected that this will be one of the most attractive features for the women visitors. Mrs. Richardson, of the Woman's Division of the War Loan Organization, Fifth Federal District at Richmond, will be present and will make a talk on household accounts and budgets.

GRANTSVILLE

The Grantsville High School will hold commencement exercises next month at the conclusion of the school term, and, as this will be the first graduation exercises ever held here, it will be an event of interest to every one, being a forward step in the educational work of this community especially. Certificates will be awarded those completing the two-year high school work, and also to those completing the grammar grades. A meeting of teachers and patrons was held on Thursday night to formulate plans for the approaching exercises in June.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Lutheran church met at the home of Mrs. W. C. Loebel on Tuesday afternoon, the mission topic being "Jesus the Light of the World," with a study of work in the foreign fields. Those present included Mrs. J. J. Bender, Mrs. Stewart Rodamer, Mrs. C. S. Zeller, Mrs. M. T. Bender, Mrs. Richard Younkin, Mrs. J. H. Miller, Mrs. A. T. Shirer, Mrs. William Baker, Mrs. John Zehner, Mrs. Bruce Shaw, Mrs. M. Kinsinger, Mrs. Elizabeth Lohr, Mrs. C. C. Miller, Mrs. J. U. Stanton, and Mrs. S. R. Getty. At the conclusion of the program a most delicious repast was served by the hostesses.

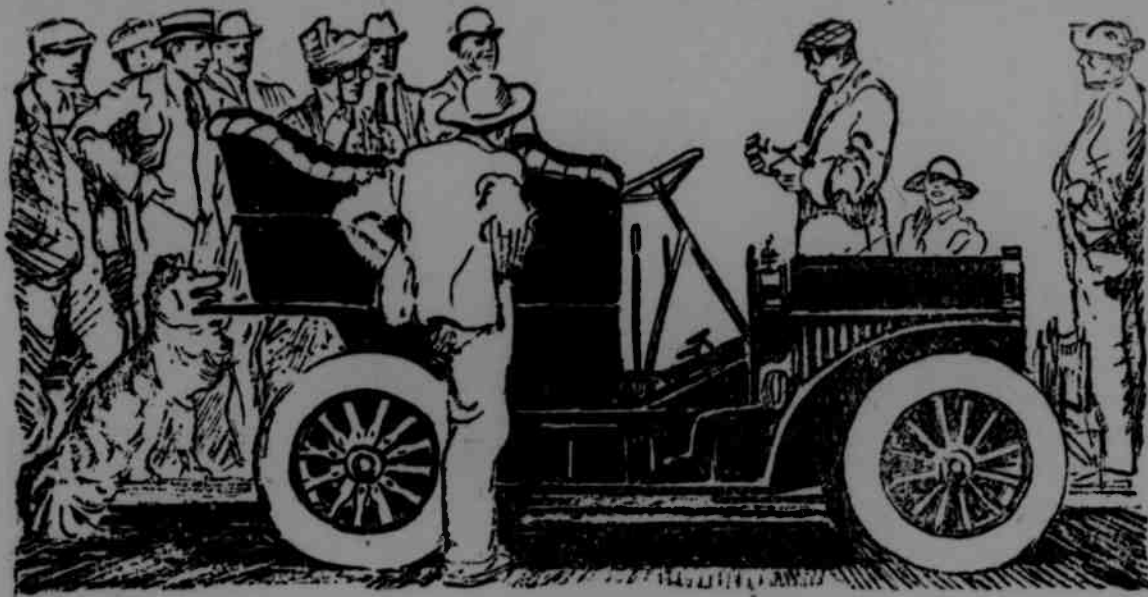

Miss Margaret Getty entertained the Girls' Club on Tuesday night at her home the following guests being present: Misses Angela Getty, Beulah Bender, Edna Bender, Hazel Younkin, Marie Connor, Viola Broadwater, Mrs. C. S. Zeller and Mrs. S. R. Getty. Refreshments were served.

The C. E. Society was conducted in a very interesting manner by Mrs. Eva Bevans, with a splendid talk on "High Ideals" by Miss Pressman, and a delightfully rendered solo by Miss Edith Swan. M. E. church services followed immediately afterward.

Rev. W. D. Swan is suffering from a severe wound in his hand, inflicted by a rusty nail.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kinsinger and daughters, Clara and Mrs. Bruce Shaw, spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Glatfelter, of Frostburg.

Misses Angela Getty and Vida En-

They used to call a man a "sport" when he bought an automobile

THAT was before the days when pretty nearly everybody owned one—or could, if he wanted to.

There was a lot of waste about motoring in those days. A man spent a lot of money on his car and never thought very much about what he was getting in return.

II

When a man buys a tire nowadays he has a pretty definite idea of what he expects to get out of it.

The dealer who sells him one that gives him less than he expects isn't likely to get any more of his business.

That's one of the reasons why we handle U. S. Tires—and recommend them to the motorists of this community.

III

The U. S. reputation for quality is not built on any one tire.

There is not one standard for large U. S. Tires and another standard for small ones.

Every tire that bears the name "U. S." is built the best way its makers know how to build it. The oldest and largest rubber concern in the world cannot afford to play favorites in seeking its public.

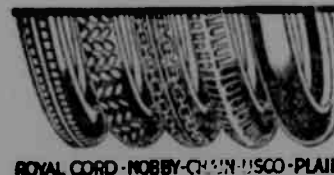

IV

Come in and tell us what you are looking for in tires.

We can probably tell you whether you need a U. S. Nobby, Chain, Usco, Plain, or a Royal Cord.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cord.

Special Steels add Life to the MAXWELL

These steels are the product of the highly developed Maxwell laboratories, where steels have been studied, analyzed and tested for years.

They are made to Maxwell's own formulae and enable the Maxwell to stand punishment that few cars can meet successfully.

They lessen the task of the engine and make it more responsive, quicker in action and a delight to handle.

These are some of the virtues which have won friends for the Maxwell in ever increasing numbers and give it a longer life than many cars of higher price.

Today there are approximately 400,000 Maxwell's on the world's highways. The year 1920 will add 100,000 more.

MUTTON HOLLOW

Messrs. Lesley and Hale Wright made a business trip to Deer Park Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Glaze, and daughter, Dorothy, of Oakland, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Glaze's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wright.

Quite a number of the young people of this section attended the festival at the Wilson's school house Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien and daughter, of North Glade, visited his brother, Mr. Dan O'Brien at this place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bateman and family spent Sunday at the home of Mr. John Howell.

Mrs. A. M. Jeffries and daughter, Miss Ruth, of Altamont, was a pleasant visitor at the home of A. H. Friend Sunday evening.

HUTTON

"Warm hearts are more than coronets," but who would not have been effected perceptibly by so sudden and unexpected change in the weather that existed the latter days of last week? Atmospheric conditions were such on Saturday as to literally envelop the earth in sheets of whiteness. Grave doubts are being entertained now as a result of this as to the prospects of a bumper crop of fruit next harvest. Nearly, if not all the trees in the surrounding orchards were in full bloom. We fear exceedingly that the frosts have effectively blighted the tender blossoms.

A number of our young people visited Freeport on the Sabbath and while there spent a few hours reconnoitering about the mines. The lofty mountains, almost directly opposite, affords the visitors an excellent view of the neighboring towns and villages that lie in close proximity to the mining town. I am sure the excursion was a very agreeable one and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of being one of the company.

Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, of Oakland, was a professional visitor to Hutton one day last week.

Mr. J. W. Moon, who has been visiting his brother, Mr. Sanford Moon, near Hutton, returned to his home near Waynesboro, Pa., on the morning of Saturday last.

Miss Frances Dolores Pendergast was visiting friends in Oakland Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Stephen Faherty was a visitor to the county seat recently.

Miss Margaret Connell, a former Hutton young lady, we are pleased to note is among this year's class of student nurses to graduate from the training school of the Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia. The date of the commencement has not yet been announced.

Mr. Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, passed through Hutton Friday, en route to Terra Alta.

Mr. William Baker, of Parsons, Va., was a week-end visitor to relatives and friends in this community.

Mr. John F. Pendergast recently purchased a house and lot just over the State line in West Virginia, and Mr. Pendergast with his family have moved to their new home where they are comfortably located.

Mrs. Thomas Hughes, of Terra Alta, was visiting friends in Hutton Friday and Saturday.

"The thing that divides is satanic; The thing that unites is divine; The thought that decrees is dynamic; The force that creates is sublime."

VALUABLE LAND FOR SALE

The surface of Lots Nos. 3 and 4 of the sub-division of the Brant Place, or Wilsonton, in District No. 10, Garrett county. Lot No. 3 contains 65.5 acres, and Lot No. 4 contains 74.6 acres. A large part of this land is cleared and ready for the plow. Terms easy. Maps showing the sub-division of the tract are at hand.

Apply to Edward H. Sineell, Attorney for Owner. Advertisement.

BITTINGER

On Friday and Saturday nights of last week the mercury went down considerably below the freezing point, and we were visited by heavy frosts both nights. It is hoped that no great damage was done to fruits.

Mrs. David Miller, of Mountain Lake Park, spent Saturday and Sunday with her daughters in this town.

Mr. George Yommer and family, of near Jennings, were Sunday callers in this village.

Deputy Sheriff Lester Bittinger and wife, of Oakland, motored to this place last week and Mrs. Bittinger spent a few hours calling upon relatives while the genial young deputy was attending to some official business in the neighborhood.

Mr. Haine Gieseman, of Oakland, purchased a truck load of farm produce in this neighborhood last week which he marketed at Brownsville, Penna.

A saw mill, owned by Mr. Peter Opel, and located on the Clarence Stephens farm near here, burned to the ground on Sunday, May 31st, entailing considerable loss to the owner.

The Phillips Coal Company had an engineer on the ground last week surveying for some new openings which will be made at once and when they are made the production of the mine will be largely increased.

Messrs. Clyde and Chauncey Broadwater sold a nice herd of young cattle to Mr. Frank Glatfely, of Oakland, a few days ago.

Miss Harlene Bittinger, of near Jennings, was a guest at Henry Wiley's recently.

STEIDING

The Steiding Sunday school is planning for a big picnic on Saturday, June 26th, in L. H. Glatfely's grove. The program will include singing, speaking and various kinds of music. Dinners and all sorts of refreshments will be on sale at the picnic grounds; also two beautiful quilts, cushions and numerous other articles. All proceeds will go toward the erection of the new church now in progress of construction. Various kinds of amusements will be provided for all who may come. The program will continue throughout the day and the evening. No one can afford to miss this which promises to be the best picnic held in this section for years. Come, bring your friends, and enjoy the day with us. The exercises will begin at 10:30.

FEED THY KIDS BY THE SHEPHERD'S TENTS.

Long ago these words were uttered by one whose experience qualified him to speak authoritatively.

They bring to us two grand lessons. One is, that those who would have communion and fellowship with Christ must adhere to holy ordinances; must join himself to His people.

The other is, those who have families must bring them with them to religious assemblies.

Let the kids (the children) have the benefit of the Shepherd's tent.

It is too true, alas, that it should be said, for the thought of it is sad, that many parents are negligent to their trust and negligent in their duty to their children. Apparently indifferent to their religious instruction and their moral welfare.

There is no question that ought to interest the parent so much as that of child training, for upon the proper fulfillment of this duty depends the future success and destiny of the child.

The correct answer to this question must be found in the word of God. The divine system is given in a few plain rules. The first is that given by Paul in his address to the Ephesians, when he exhorted children to obey their parents, he turned to the fathers and said, "And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Remove every influence, for evil, every object that tends to awaken unbelly thoughts and desires—everything that would spoil the tender shoot that may grow into a healthy vine. Surround it by holy influences and strive to make its home as much like heaven as possible.

The days of childhood are the most impressive of life, and they are susceptible of a good or evil influence before they are able to act for themselves. The plastic mass that is cradled in the mother's arms receives impressions by contact that cannot be undone, and the position of the mother toward the child enables her to turn the feeble current of life in the direction of elevated morals, true manhood and pure religion. She nurses a soul of God-like powers, but its character and destiny will be largely determined by the things it comes in contact with. By neglect or careless discharge of duty the latent powers of the coming man may lie dormant forever, or perchance appetite and sordid passion may be developed only to hold tyrannical sway over its powers; or such an influence may be brought to bear upon the child that it shall thrill its entire being, causing the buds to burst into the blossoms of a true manhood or womanhood.

No wonder then, that she who watches over the early days, should with deep concern and tender anxiety ask, "What manner of child shall this be?" Before her lies the plastic clay which she moulds and fashions at will, and whether it shall be a vessel fitted for dishonor or one destined for honor and usefulness depends in a great measure on her who is by nature the guardian and guide of its helpless days. Harsh, bitter words should not fall then; the cold, unfeeling answer should not be given the questions of the little inquirer; the chilly atmosphere of quarrelsomeness should not be allowed to remain in that home, for the tender plant cannot grow into a healthy vine there; but love, tenderness and purity should greet the child's ears.

A constant guest in every home, a friend of the fireside, should be the lover of children who gave them His divine blessing. The spirit of love should dwell there, to leave its impress of the idea of good, the idea of the true and the beautiful. The parental influence is incalculable. If it is evil, the parents suffer with the child the fearful consequences of their actions, but if the influence is good, they rejoice in reaping the fruits of their labors and share the success and prosperity of the child.

The life and example of Herod's wife so influenced her daughter that she was ready to do anything to gratify the inveterate jealousy and fiendish animosity of her mother's heart.

The song of Abigail received their first lessons, which culminated in destroying the house of God and giving the dedicated things to Baalim, from the "wicked woman." It has been said with truth that "the destiny of children is in the hands of the mother." She sows the seed that shall produce a harvest of rich fruit or worthless brambles. The mother has power over the heart of the child to form it for vice or virtue.

Wodsworth says, "Our childhood sits, our simple childhood sits upon a throne that hath more power than all the elements." This throne is held by the mother who nourishes this childhood as her life. She may treat it as a doll, let it drift as a puppet, or give it an appreciation of and love for the good, the true and the beautiful. She may mar or make it for eternity. The lives of great men teach us that the influence of the mother is never eradicated from the mind. It may be weakened, but never lost, for the influences of childhood and the atmosphere in which it is cradled do more for it than all else beside. The early instruction of Moses and the influence of her who believed in the God of Abraham did more toward forming his principles and establishing his faith in God and love for his people, than all the wisdom and learning of kingly courts. Joseph's early home training enabled him to withstand the malignant assaults of his enemies. John Newton said that to the care of his mother he owed that bias to religion, which, with the grace of God reclaimed him and brought him back to the paths of peace. This is the rule, though there are exceptions to it. The school boy carves his name on the smooth bark of the birch tree and surveys his work with satisfaction. As the tree grows, the letters increase in size. The impressions made on the young heart are never blotted out but become a part of the child's being.

This being true, how important that the spiritual life of the parent, which is the foundation of all true life, should be carefully nourished. Upon this foundation the entire structure of character is to be reared. How applicable to the parent is the precept of Solomon: "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." JOANNES.

BALTIMORE SUN LIKENS WOOD TO CLEVELAND, COMPARES THE POLICIES OF THE TWO MEN.

The Baltimore Sun, in a recent editorial discussing General Wood's outline of his platform as indicated in the opening speech for the Presidential campaign in South Dakota, last week, says: "Many people, we imagine, in reading this address will get the impression that there, perhaps, may be a Grover Cleveland type of man, rather heavy, not greatly imaginative or creative, but one with a firm grasp on certain fundamental principles, adherence to which is greatly needed in this country today, a man of sobriety and firmness and character."

Leonard Wood has led by a big majority in all nation-wide polls yet taken, showing his universal popularity.

Miss Lily Georg entertained a number of her young friends Sunday with a chicken dinner. The guests returned to their various homes in the evening, each reporting a good time.

WHO GETS THE PROFIT? NOT YOUR GROCERYMAN!

An Illustration of Cost of Selling a Barrel of Sugar.

The high cost of living continues to be high!
The high cost of sugar is getting higher than ever!
Who gets the profit?
The following figures show the cost of selling a barrel of sugar in a retail grocery store. This sugar was purchased in Baltimore at a cost of twenty and one-half cents per pound and was billed as weighing three hundred and sixty pounds net. Actual net weight was found to be three hundred forty-eight pounds and five ounces. This loss in weight is not unusual. It shows about the regular loss when bulk sugar is weighed out in small lots. These are the various items of expense incident to selling a barrel of sugar.

Out of this $2.85 the grocer must pay his taxes, and such sundry expenses such as sales tickets, stationery, etc.

This lot of sugar was sold one pound to a customer, the dealer in this case serving 348 customers for a profit of less than $2.85—a profit of less than 1/4c for every customer served.

After numerous and continuous inquiries, pleading with and begging sugar dealers and jobbers to sell him some sugar, the grocer succeeds in buying a sack or a barrel of the "precious sweet stuff." He gets the sugar in his store, weighs it up and hands it out as his customers call, or sends it in his customers' orders. For this service the grocer actually receive a net profit of almost three-fourths of one cent from every customer to whom he sells sugar. For this he is called a "prostitute."

FLAG DEMOBILIZATION

At St. Paul's M. E. Church Last Sunday Morning was Impression

Before a very large audience the service flag on the M. E. church was demobilized Sunday last. The flag had thirty-eight stars, including one gold one, representing Sgt. Procter Kildow, who made the supreme sacrifice in the Argonne. About twenty-five members of the American Legion were present, they marching there in a body lead by the Oakland Band. The address was made by Congressman F. N. Zihlman, who spoke of the part that Maryland had played in all the wars of our nation, and especially how we had played our part in the Great World War. In all Maryland had furnished for the army and navy more than 60,000 men and Garrett county alone furnished something over 750 men. At the conclusion of the service the roll was called, all service men answering to their names, except the missing one for whom taps was sounded. The flag was presented to Mrs. William Kildow, in whose keeping it will remain.

DOINGS OF BOYS' CLUBS

A Number of Such Organizations Active in Garrett County.

Loch Lynn Boys to Hold Festival—At a regular meeting of the Loch Lynn Heights Boys' Agricultural Club which was recently held, it was decided by those present to hold a festival on Wednesday evening, May 26th. Each boy reported progress of his project. The next meeting will be held on June 4th in the school house at the hour of 7:30 o'clock.

Grantsville Club Holds Interesting Meeting—The Grantsville Boys' Club held a very interesting meeting on Wednesday evening, May 19th. President Deacy called the meeting to order and then each member gave a report on the progress of this project. Practically every member of the club is raising a pig this year. Five boys intend raising pure-bred Berkshire gilts. Emmons Warnick, the boy who fed a pig last year which made an average daily gain of nearly two pounds, told of his method of feeding, care, etc. It was decided at the meeting to pay $35, the sum remaining to be paid on a lantern slide machine, which was purchased last fall. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, June 4th.

Hittinger Boys Organize—On last Thursday evening, May 20th, a Boys' Agricultural Club was organized at Hittinger. Practically all of the boys decided to grow potatoes. The officers elected were as follows: President, Carl Hittinger; vice-president, Vernon Wiley; secretary-treasurer, Herbert Buckle. Plans were made to increase the membership of the club by canvassing every boy in the community.

McHenry Boys Are Progressing—At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the McHenry Boys' Club Friday evening, the secretary reported that approximately one-half of the stock for the spraying machine had been subscribed. The boys expect to purchase a machine that will cost about $150 and hope to make the machine pay for itself this summer by doing all of the community spraying. Any of the farmers in the vicinity of McHenry desiring the use of the sprayer should communicate with Earl Glatfelter, at McHenry, who is secretary of the club.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

American Legion Post of Oakland Is Arranging to Properly Observe It

Procter Kildow Post, American Legion, which was recently organized in Oakland with a goodly number of members, is arranging to properly observe Memorial Day on Monday, May 31st, the 30th this year falling upon the Sabbath, hence the day following will be observed.

The various lodges and the schools of the town and immediate community, will participate and the members of Crook Post Grand Army of the Republic will be provided with automobiles to convey them to the cemetery from in front of the Sturgiss Pharmacy, their place of rendezvous on such occasions for the past quarter of a century.

The parade proper will form in front of the municipal building on Third street and march to the cemetery, headed by the Municipal Band, the formation for the march to take place at the hour of ten o'clock in the morning. Arriving at the cemetery a gentleman of prominence in the community will deliver an address befitting the occasion.

All members of the Post are most urgently requested to be present in uniform, as well as all other ex-service men from every section of the county.

All of the ex-service men are requested to wear the uniform if at all possible to do so. Also, the people coming into Oakland from the country are requested to bring with them any amount of wild flowers and to leave them at the Town Hall not later than ten o'clock Monday morning.

On Tuesday evening Dr. John D. Darby, Commander of the local Post, caused invitations to be mailed to every former service man in the county, in which they were requested to be in Oakland upon Monday, the 31st.

At the services to be held on the above date the impressive French Memorial Death Certificate, awarded to the nearest relative of those who died in the late war, will be presented. Those in Garrett county who are to receive these certificates follow:

Mr. Wm. T. Stanton, Grantsville.
Mrs. Alfred Lohr, Swanton.
Mrs. Dora C. Enlow, Hoyes.
Mrs. B. Younkin, Grantsville.
Mrs. S. K. Welch, Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Julia Edgar, McHenry.
Mr. Ralph Browning, Oakland.
Mrs. George Little, Oakland.
Mr. Jacob W. Friend, Friendsville.
Dr. T. D. Richards, Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Mary C. Wrightsman, Mountain Lake Park.
Mrs. Letitia M. Enlow, Friendsville.
Mrs. Margaret E. Baker, Finzel.
Mrs. Susan Sellers, Guard.

Mrs. Candie Ellen McIntire, Swanton.
Mrs. F. J. Glatfelter, Route 1, Accident.
Mr. John W. Skidmore, Route 2, Deer Park.

Mrs. Delia Friend Longren, Garrett county.
Mrs. Vera Calhoun, Route 1, Deer Park.
Mr. Charles R. Savelge, Deer Park.

Mrs. Amanda Hochman, Accident.
Mrs. Adeline Frazee, Guard.
Mr. Richard Custer, Route 2, Swanton.
Mrs. Nola Rinehart, Crellin.

Mr. Alfred Sisler, Route 2, Oakland.
Mrs. Ezra Michael, Westport.
Mrs. Latina Polidoro, Kitzmiller.
Oakland business men will as a general rule observe the day as a holiday and the various places of business will be closed at least during the exercises at the cemetery.

Attention! G. A. R.
Members of Crook Post, Grand Army of the Republic, are requested to attend the Decoration exercises next Monday, which are to be held in Oakland. The members of the Post are to assemble at Sturgiss' drug store at 10 o'clock and join in the procession to the cemetery.

STATE DROPS IN STANDING
Sage Foundation Says Maryland Schools Show Most Decrease

Maryland has shown the greatest falling off in relative school standing in the United States, according to the report just issued by the department of education of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York. Maryland stands thirty-seventh among 52 states and territories.

Governor Ritchie's attention was called to this and other features of the report tending to show that Maryland was far behind other States in public school development.

There is not much I can say to that at this time," said the Governor. I am glad the report is coming out now, when the new board is coming in and the effort to improve our public schools is beginning in earnest. I have every hope that the new State Board of Education will make such a report as that impossible in the next 10 years. It has been appointed for that purpose and I look to it to make good and I am sure it will make good. That a report like that is possible even at this time is most unfortunate.

Dr. J. M. T. Finney, who has been re-appointed a member of the new State Board of Education, declined to comment upon the Sage report until after the board's first meeting next Wednesday.

"I think it would be inopportune to make a statement at this time," Dr. Finney said. "We meet on Wednesday, and I am in hope that we will make some progress there. I may have something to say after that meeting, but not now."

Jonathan Defeats the Philistines. I Sam. 14:6-13. Read entire chapter.

Be strong and of good courage. Josh. 1:6.

THE PERIL.

The Hebrew had no more friends than the Jew has today nor half as many. Belaguered on all sides by hostile forces it needed every resource and the most determined spirit to carry those early pioneers to the stability of a settled state. Saul came into power on the wave of a victory over an invading force from the eastern deserts and there must have been great jubilation at his crowning. More than ever before there was a united front that fused tribes and parties in substantial agreement in matters of state. They were in all probability the vassals of Philistia and their activities against another foe was regarded as a good thing since it interposed a buffer force between themselves and the multitudinous raiders. But to elect a king was war. During the days of struggle between the States numerous vessels were built in England and turned into the hands of the Confederacy as the Florida, Alabama, etc., to prey upon United States commerce. Adams was our representative in London and he closed his last note to the British Government with the line, "It would be superfluous for me to point out to your Lordship that this is war." Israel was in the same position and Philistia had no question over the situation. For a vassal to presume to set up a kingdom left nothing to be done save its overthrow. Armies must have moved speedily or perhaps the garrison's were strengthened but the last remnant of hesitation was swept away by Jonathan's impetuous attack upon the mountain fortress of Gaba which he took. Israel was swept back to the very crest of the ridge that overlooked the Jordan and many fled precipitately beyond it while others sought refuge in the numerous caverns among the hills so that Saul had but few men left clinging desperately to the crags and needing but a little to force them out completely. Believing that their larger task was done Philistia left a strongly guarded out post at Micklash to watch what was left of the Kingdom while they raided all the region, north, south and west, with utter immunity from any resistance. The northern tribes were cut off from the Judaic section and there seemed nothing in the way of complete overthrow of the Israelitish colonies whose situation paralleled Valley Forge.

THE PRINCE.

Unless hereditarily all at fault Saul has reaped some very ill-deserved criticism. Such a son as Jonathan springs neither from degeneracy nor vice. He justifies Samuel's judgment in the anointing and God's call to the son of Kish. As vigorous as his father he had surer judgment and greater initiative. Devotedly religious he found the secret of the Divine comradeship that his father failed to reach. A friend whose hand was always given to worthiness and never withdrawn, his love for David is one of the classics. Unselfish and generous, modest and brave, he is one of the most princely figures that appears on any page and his rule would have been in all probability as successful as David's own. There is little wonder that much of Saul's anxiety to get David out of the way was born out of love for this splendid young fellow who would so finely have continued the family in the place of authority. Will was it for Israel that in so great a crisis of his history there was such a man to stand in the breach and stop the flood.

THE PATRIOT.

As alert as Marshall Foch Jonathan studied the position of the enemy and endeavored to plan their overthrow.

he garrison at Micklash was in a position that thrust itself into the very heart of Israel. Yet it communicated with all the lines behind and was the key to its holdings and it could be taken there would come speedy retreat for all the rest. But it was apparently an utterly hopeless position to assault. Nevertheless he essayed the impossible for he built his endeavor upon a tremendous faith in a working God. A Major General said at Chateau Thierry, "The French are running and throwing down their arms, and saying 'fin de guerre!' And the only thing that stands between the dissolution of the army and perhaps the final winning of the war by Germany is the thin line of American troops, and the only thing that can save the nation and the world is God Almighty." It might have been the expression of Jonathan himself for it voiced the conviction in his own heart. He would work and Jehovah not limited by numbers whether many or few would give the victory. No less daring was his comrade who is one of the nameless but not unknown heroes who have helped God's cause toward success. Knowing he would be commanded to stay instead of to dare the two climbed down into the gorge that they might test the temper of the garrison. If they were supremely overconfident in despising the Hebrews there would be sure evidence of weakness and quickening for their own faith. "Come up!" called the Philistines and then turned to whatever had occupied their attention before for no one could climb the cliff nor would dare attack so redoubtable warriors as themselves. Suddenly over the brink pushed a head quickly followed by a body that gripped a sword that smote thru the first man opposing. Another head appeared and sudden panic seized them as the grim fighter hewed his way forward and the other followed smiling also. Shouts and confusion spread. The camp followers caught the fear. The impressed Hebrews threw down loads and grasped deserted weapons. An earthquake shock completed the rout and the rush across the table-land and down the passes toward the sea was well under way. Captain Jonathan and Sergeant York are a good pair.

THE PRIZE. The prize was the kingdom. Saul keeping every form of religion but not recognizing its spirit, hurled his followers after the retreating enemy but made the day a fast so that they were too weakened to pursue as far as they might. Then out of the silent oracle and the sullen ranks Saul drew the fact of some disfavor which the lot revealed as Jonathan's eating on the march. The stern righteousness of Saul is as striking as that of some old Puritans and even the life dearer than his own would have been offered upon the altar of his mistaken zeal. But that was a democracy not a despotism and the people expressed in no uncertain terms their will so that the splendid leadership of the winner of the victory, under God, was spared to their counsels for further service to the land to which he gave his full devotion.

DEER PARK

Mr. James Strawser and sister were visitors of friends in Mountain Lake Park, Wednesday.

Mr. J. A. Rodheaver was a business visitor at Corinth, W. Va., Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Jeffers, of Altamont, was shopping in town one day recently.

Among those who recently visited Oakland on business and otherwise were the following:

Miss Dora Steiding, Mr. C. F. Cuppett, Mr. Earle George, Mr. J. W. Walters, Mr. A. K. King, Mr. J. S. Hardesty, Mrs. S. P. Specht, Mrs. Robert Jankey and daughter.

Mrs. Mary True, of Wilson, was in Deer Park, Friday.

Miss Hilda Terrasher spent Thursday evening in Oakland where she was the guest of Miss Evelyn Cheuvront.

Mr. John Laughlin spent a few days visiting friends at Swanton last week.

The following young people spent Sunday evening as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Ries at their home here: Mr. Ray Wright, of near Altamont; Misses Ella Bower and Effa Fultz, of Higginsville, West Va., and Misses Alice and Eunice George, of Deer Park.

Rev. O. A. Bremer, of Spokane, Washington, held services in the Lutheran church at this place on last Sunday morning, being the first time that services were held in this house of worship for many months. There was a large congregation present to hear the message delivered by this most excellent young minister who is highly esteemed for his true worth as the shepherd that he has proven to be to not only the little flock here but in the larger field in the west to which point he went, three years ago as a home missionary in that part of the great west. He spoke on Sunday morning very briefly of the conditions which confronted him when he arrived in his new field; of the discouragements met and overcome by leaving the faith until at last he succeeded with the help of a very few faithful friends in establishing a thrifty Lutheran congregation and the dedication of the new church just a few months ago with a membership of slightly over a hundred. Mr. Bremer was received here by many warm hearts on Sunday, all of whom he was glad to meet after the intervening years. We trust that the period of time between his next visit and his recent one will not be so long. Here he will always find a welcome by not alone his own particular church people but by those of other denominations as well.

Mrs. E. E. Sollars and Miss Louise Marshall were shopping in Cumberland on Saturday last.

Mrs. T. W. Burson spent a few days with relatives at Mountain Lake Park this week.

Miss Luella Savedge and sister returned home on Tuesday morning, after having spent the week-end in Cumberland visiting their mother, who is in the hospital in that city and is reported as being in a serious condition at this time.

Mr. Harry Glatfely, of Oakland, was here on Monday visiting his aunt, Mrs. Specht, who has purchased the Glatfely home in Oakland and will move to the county seat in a short time.

Mr. F. A. Smouse went to Cumberland on business, Tuesday.

The World's Largest Tire Factory Building 30x3, 30x3½ and 31x4-inch Tires

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Owners of the smaller cars can enjoy the same high relative value in Goodyear Tires that gives utmost satisfaction to owners of big, costly motor carriages.

They can take advantage of that tremendous amount of equipment, skill and care employed by Goodyear to build tires of extraordinary worth in the 30 x 3-, 30 x 3½-, and 31 x 4-inch sizes.

They can secure these tires without waiting, despite the enormous demand, because, in addition to its larger sizes, Goodyear builds an average of 20,000 a day in the world's largest tire factory devoted to the three sizes mentioned.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or any other car using one of these sizes, go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr, who spent the past winter in California and other western states, recently arrived at the Park, and are now occupying their home here. On Sunday they had as their guests Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Carr, of Fairmont, who returned to their home in that city Monday, accompanied by Mr. Larny Carr, who was also a guest for a few days of Dr. and Mrs. Carr here.

The Rev. Dr. W. B. Slutz, manager of the Park, will preach in the Methodist church here Sunday morning, May 30th, at eleven o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

The copy for the first number of The Bulletin, a publication to be issued at intervals by the Mountain Lake Park Association, is now in the hands of the printer and will be published and circulated within the next few days.

Mr. E. E. Friend has rented his dwelling to a Wheeling gentleman and Mr. and Mrs. Friend will occupy their E street house during the summer.

Homer Rodeheaver and his company of singers have been engaged to appear during the month of July.

The electric current will be turned on about the middle of the coming month and uninterrupted service is expected until the middle of October or later. The plant has been thoroughly gone over and the service wires put in the best possible condition.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Allen, of Cum, and have their home open for the summer months.

Mr. Calvin H. Fowler, who recently retired from active work on his farm near Red House, has purchased the Dr. Thistle property through the M. M. Schrock agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Davidson, en route to Baltimore from Chicago, Ill., stopped off in the Park yesterday and are guests at the home of Mrs. Davidson for a few days. In Baltimore Mr. Davidson will assume charge of the Maryland Farmer, a high-class agricultural paper. He was engaged in editing a publication of similar character while living in Chicago.

Judge Silas F. Cuppett, who recently purchased the Feltz store building, has thoroughly renovated the place. In addition to shelf groceries, Mr. Cuppett will install a meat market and in an adjacent room of the building he will serve cold water and ice cream. He is being assisted in the management of the business by his grandson, a most excellent young man.

Mr. W. Creel Dunnington, who has been manager of the Mountain Lake Hotel for several years past, and who has been ill for about ten days suffering intensely, was taken to a Cumberland hospital this morning by his physician, Dr. Henry W. McComas, where an operation may have to be performed to correct the trouble.

The railroad stations and buildings and otherwise improved during the past several weeks and now the work will be performed upon the station and surroundings at the Park.

Garrett County School Notes.
The Maryland State Summer School at Frostburg will not open until June 28th, and will close July 31, 1920. School will be in session six days for five weeks, making the thirty days required. This date, June 28th, will be much more convenient for the Garrett county teachers. Summer school catalogues will be sent out in a few days.

The Patrons' Club of the Garrett County High School and the Oakland Grammar School will have a booth at the Garrett County athletic meet on Wednesday, June 2nd, at Mountain Lake Park, at which they will serve sandwiches, coffee, lemonade, ice cream cones and refreshments of various kinds. It will not be necessary for anyone to be either hungry or thirsty. The money will go into the treasury of the Patrons' Club and will be used for school improvements of various kinds. The cause is a worthy one.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Payton and family desire to thank their neighbors and friends for their kindness during their recent bereavement by the violent death of their uncle, the late Thornton Gilpin.

GORTNER

Speaking of the latch string coming off of the visiting gate, the following named spent Saturday and Sunday in this community with relatives and friends: Revs. John Raher, John Rose and Nicholas Naffizer, of Canada, and Noah Brenneman, of Grantville; Misses Elizabeth Beachy, of Norfolk, Va.; Naomi Yoder, Alma Miller, Mary Tice, Wilma Eichorn and Amanda Yoder, of Grantville; Messrs. Henry Whitmer, Benj. Beachy and Ephraim Brenneman, of Kalona, Iowa; El Tice, Milton Yoder, of Meyersdale; Allen Maust and Evan Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Enos Maust, of near Grantville; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Savage, newlyweds, of Terra Alta; Mr. and Mrs. E. Thomas and sons, Ralph and Cecil, of Selbyport, and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Martin and children, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Huff.

Mrs. Delpha Matheny and son Darwin, of Terra Alta, spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. W. C. Welch's.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lee and their daughter, Miss Bertha and Miss Grace Mason, called on Mrs. David Mosser at Red House Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Mosser is critically ill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein and children and Misses Mary Lichty and Emma Burkholder, and Messrs. Ross Lichty and Harvey Swartzentruber attended the Sunday School Conference at Cherry Glade church, near Bittinger last Monday.

K. of P. Notes of Interest.
Grand Chancellor Julius C. Renninger was called to Baltimore on official business on Monday afternoon and will spend two or three days at the Pythian headquarters in that city before returning to Oakland.

There was no work on last Friday evening, the session of lodge being taken up with suggestions concerning the good of the order.

We have received a list of the prizes which are to be given by Garrett lodge and the Grand Lodge of Maryland for the membership drive during the current year. Among the prizes are several worth striving for and as a result we expect much more interest to become manifest in the contest for additional members in all lodges of the State.

At the next regular meeting to be held Friday evening the rank of Pate will be conferred on a class.

On this evening there will also be something specially interesting to the membership, hence it is requested by the officers that every member possible be present. No information concerning the nature of this special request will be given out in advance, so if you desire to know what it is your presence at the session will be necessary.

One application for membership and two members have been received last Friday evening.

Brother Albert Ross has been ill for the past week.

Please make a special effort to be present on Friday evening.

The Knights cordially extend an invitation to the Pythian Sisters to participate with them in the Memorial services which will be held Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock. They are requested to be present at their hall at 9:30 that morning.

A Quiet Home Wedding.

On Tuesday evening of this week Miss Mary Frances Sinzell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. H. Sinzell, was married to Mr. Elfred Roberts, son of Mr. E. J. Roberts, of Westernport, Md., at the family home on Second street in Oakland, the Rev. O. A. Bremer, of Spokane, Washington, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sinzell, performing the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lillian Sinzell, while little Miss Adeline Sinzell was flower bearer. The ceremony took place in the front parlor of the residence beneath a canopy of spring blossoms and similar. In addition to members of the bride's family there were present Mr. E. J. Roberts, father of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Patrick, Miss Eola Roberts and Miss Ethel Roberts, of Westernport. Following the ceremony a large number of the young friends of the couple assembled on the lawn surrounding the house and serenaded them most elaborately.

The serenaders immediately became guests of the household and enjoyed the occasion by their presence and good wishes. The couple left Oakland in an automobile about ten o'clock for points in the east and north. They will reside in Westernport, where Mr. Roberts has a position with the Allegheny Coal Company, of which his father is president and general manager.

Boy Needed at His Home.
Elwood Golliday, who left his home in Westernport last week, is requested to return home. His family is moving to Midland next week. There are no charges against him and his mother needs him, is the message sent The Republican for publication by Mr. W. M. Somerville, Cumberland attorney, who adds that the last seen of the youth was in New Germany district of this county.

DO YOU
Value Your Eyes?

A $5,000.00 Accident Policy pays its face value (the same as for death) for the loss of both eyes. How much do you value yours?

IF YOU REQUIRE GLASSES

Why do you put it off? Do it now! Often a slight defect of vision or eye strain, if neglected, will assume more serious proportions later.

Consult your physician or ask your glass wearing friends when you are thinking of glasses, and you will save time, money and sorry experiences.

I have examined over 2000 people in Garrett county, so am sure of being advertised by my work and friends. May I add you to my family of satisfied patrons?

Shortly after the advertisement appeared in the Baltimore Post-Examiner, of Baltimore, was in Oakland as the guest of Deputy Warlen R. S. Browning. During his visit to Garrett county the state official visited a large wooded area and after inspecting it gave it as his opinion that the property would be an ideal one as a game refuge or preserve similar to the one maintained by the state in another county in Central Maryland.

Postmaster Charles A. Deffenbaugh has been advised by the Postoffice Department that upon recommendations made to it by Inspector Minch that as soon as the residents of Oakland provide the proper receptacles for their mail and the dwellings and places of business have been properly numbered the department will inaugurate a free delivery service in all parts of the town. This service, however, will not include delivery of parcels post packages except they be special delivery packages indicated by a special delivery stamp affixed. The hours of delivery will be at 8 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The annual party of the Seniors and Juniors of the Garrett County High School was held at the home of Mrs. Fred T. Martin on Alder street in Oakland, Thursday evening, May 20. The three front rooms of the delightful home were decorated very elaborately in the class colors, green and gold, and carrying out the color scheme in a great display. There were about seventy-five young people in attendance who were first entertained by the greatest cinematograph homologue show, which was a scream from start to finish, and which included a prophecy which was a surprise to all. After the show dancing was indulged in by those present, and then dainty refreshments were served. The junior class feels its obligation to Mrs. Martin for the use of her home for the occasion and takes this method of acknowledging her great kindness.

Mr. N. U. Bend Married.
The numerous friends of Mr. N. U. Bond, who is so well and favorably known throughout Garrett county, will be surprised to learn that on January 1st, 1916, Mr. Bond was married at London, Kentucky, his bride being Miss Martha Medlock, of Annyville, Kentucky. Mr. Bond had been looked upon as a confirmed bachelor and the news that he became a benedict more than four years ago will come as a complete and happy surprise to his many friends. After his marriage, Mr. Bond took his bride to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he established a beautiful home, being within convenient reach of his large lumber plant at Bond, Ky. This union has been blessed with three sons, the first being twins, now about three years of age, and the third son a few months old. The fact of the marriage has been known to a few of the close friends of Mr. Bond for a long time, some of whom have visited at his home in Ohio. We extend sincere congratulations and hope that in the near future we may again have Mr. Bond with his family among us, as he contemplates building a substantial home at or near Oakland, where the summers, at least, will be passed.

In The Republican to-day will be found the local laws passed by the late but not lamented General Assembly. These laws are all effective at this time and are the only ones, so far as can be learned, that safely got through the Legislative mill.

An opinion was handed down one day last week by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington in which Jennings Bros., local railway operators and owners of the Jennings railroad in this county, were exonerated and released from paying any damages whatever to the National Coal Company, which concern had instituted proceedings against the railway owners for an alleged discrimination relative to the distribution of coal cars over its line. The suit as docketed in the United States District Court at Cumberland placed the damages sustained by the coal company at $25,000. Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill, of Oakland, represented Jennings Bros.

On Sunday morning last Rev. O. A. Bremer, for three years pastor of the Lutheran congregations of Oakland and Deer Park, went to the former place and preached a sermon teeming with good advice and scriptural truths to a crowd of people of all denominations who had gathered at short notice to hear him. In the evening he occupied the pulpit in the local Lutheran church where the edifice was filled to capacity. The speaker was in a happy mood and brought to his hearers a gospel message such as one seldom hears. His visit to Oakland has been appreciated by everyone and as an evidence of the good fellowship existing he was presented on Tuesday afternoon with a purse containing in the neighborhood of $50. Yesterday Mr. Bremer spent the day in Baltimore and Washington as the guest of Mr. H. C. Sincell, both gentlemen returning to Oakland this morning.

Civic Club Tea.

The regular monthly Civic Club tea will be held at the club rooms on Tuesday, June 1st, at three o'clock.

At the tea which was held in May a debate on suffrage was held, the participants being Mr. E. R. Jones and Mr. A. T. Matthews. The club takes this method of thanking the gentlemen for their kind help.

At the business meeting of the club on Tuesday, May 25th, it was decided to leave the cleaning to the Town Council. It is hoped that everyone will co-operate with Council and that Oakland will be a model of cleanliness this year.

ATHLETIC DAY, June 2

Annual Field Meet of the Garrett County Public and High Schools.
The annual field meeting of the schools of Garrett county will be held on the athletic grounds at Mountain Lake Park, Wednesday, June 2nd. A great deal of time and effort has been expended on the field to prepare it thoroughly for the various exercises of the day.

The people of the county should show an interest in this great event by attending the meet if possible, although the fact is appreciated that at this particular time everyone is busy with their farm and business problems.

Refreshments will be served by the Patrons' Association of the High and Public Schools of Oakland.

The following officials have been appointed to serve during the day:

Referees, E. A. Browning, Miss Lillian V. Cutter.
Starter, Robert Sliger.

AGED MAN KILLED

Thornton Gilpin Struck and Instantly Killed by Train at the Park.

Saturday morning last at an early hour, Thornton Gilpin, an aged resident of Loch Lynn Heights, where he has resided since the recent death of his wife, making his home with his daughter, Mrs. Peyton, was struck and instantly killed by a freight train at a point close by the station at the Park, his body being horribly mangled by the wheels which passed over it.

Following the horrible accident the remains were brought to Oakland and prepared for burial by Undertaker D. E. Bolden and later conveyed to the home of his daughter in Loch Lynn. The funeral services of the deceased were conducted at four o'clock from the U. B. church in Loch Lynn Heights being in charge of the Rev. J. E. Johnson. Mr. Gilpin was aged 83 years.

To Whom It May Concern.

In the issue of The Republican of May 13th there appeared the advertisement of a number of sales of land for taxes due and delinquent, amongst which was that of Mr. Joel H. Miller, of Grantsville.

Shortly after the advertisement appeared I was in receipt of a letter from Mr. Miller in which he stated that he had paid his taxes, and upon investigation I found that his contention was correct, the error on my part having occurred in not making the proper entry on the tax ledger, but the amount paid was credited to him in my cash book of November 19th, 1915.

There was no intention on my part of trying to make it appear that Mr. Miller was delinquent in his taxes, nor to belittle him in the eyes of his neighbors and friends. This is the only case, so far as my knowledge goes, where such an error has been made since my administration of the affairs of the office, and such errors are likely to occur with any one engaged in financial matters of all kinds and under all conditions.

I trust that the above explanation from me will be satisfactory to Mr. Miller and his friends.

J. W. KIMMELL, Treas.

To the next knowledge of The Republican Mr. Kimmell has been particularly careful in making out his lists of delinquents and so far as we are aware Mr. Miller's property is the only one that has been erroneously advertised upon which the taxes had been paid.

Real Estate Changes Ownership.

Mr. Franklin O. Glatfely, who is soon to leave Oakland with his family for Spokane, Washington, near which city he will engage in a large logging contract for a corporation of eastern capitalists, has sold his dwelling house located on Second street in Oakland to his sister, Mrs. S. P. Specht, of Deer Park, who will move into the property as soon as it is vacated by Mr. Glatfely and his family.

Yesterday Mr. James Treacy, owner of the Treacy Garage, purchased from Mr. John W. Davis the Davis home property facing on Second street and adjoining The Republican building. In the acquisition of this property Mr. Treacy will have a frontage for his garage on both Second and Alder streets, having acquired by purchase some months ago the small lot of land in the rear of the Davis property.

LEAP YEAR DANCE.

The most brilliant and novel social affair of the season was the Leap Year dance given at Offutt's Hall last Monday night by a number of the ladies of the town, upwards of fifty guests being present. The hall had been transformed into a bower of spring blossoms and evergreen, being lighted by Japanese lanterns and shaded candles. Small tables occupied a pavilion in one end of the room, where punch was served between dances, and a collation toward the latter part of the evening. In keeping with the Leap Year idea, the gentlemen were invited guests and had their programs filled out by their partners. During the collation they received favors from the ladies, but were afterwards allowed to reciprocate with corsage bouquets of apple blossoms. As the collation neared its close, all those present were crowned with ingeniously-made paper hats and caps, and at just the right moment a huge parasol showered the company with confetti. Each gentleman was decorated with a placard announcing his particular traits as a dancer, which furnished a great deal of amusement. Cards were provided for those who did not dance. In the opinion of some of the guests, the decorations surpassed anything ever seen in Oakland, and the whole entertainment was ingenious and clever to a marked degree. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mealy, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rasche, Mr. and Mrs. Weston Dolson, Dr. and Mrs. William Grant, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Legke, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Naylor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Peddicord, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sliger; Mrs. Naniene Offutt, Misses Leah Sincell, Evelyn Helbig, Lillian Helbig, Mabel White, Grace Jones, Beas Hendrickson, Margaret Sincell, Cecelia Hart; Messrs. Carlton McComas, Will Davis, Herbert Leighton, J. A. Towler, T. V. Downing, Carl Kahl, Max Jarboe, Frederick Thayer, Cecil Smith, Donald Sincell, Misses Ara Peddicord, Rebecca Naylor, Rebecca White and Virginia Duval served refreshments and under the direction of Mrs. Offutt attended to the details of the entertainment.

SCHOOL WORK EXHIBITION

The Oakland Grammar school will hold its annual exhibit of school work on Friday afternoon from two to four o'clock. The work will be on exhibit on Sunday afternoon at the same hour for the benefit of those who are unable to be present Friday. All the patrons and friends of the school are earnestly and cordially invited to attend.

Driving Ease in a MAXWELL is Due to Special Steels

Many who drive a Maxwell prefer it to a larger car.

They like its nimbleness, its quickness in getting under way, its peculiar ability to thread its way through traffic, its rare driving ease.

One can drive it farther in a day with less fatigue than many cars much larger.

The reason is clear: its engine pulls no superfluous weight.

Not a single unnecessary pound burdens it.

Special steels in a Maxwell eliminate the useless weight—steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, which equal pound for pound those in any car built.

They have extra strength forged into them, and they provide lightness.

This is one reason why Maxwell has won public favor the world over as indicated by nearly 400,000 now in use. How marked the tendency today is recorded by a production of 100,000 for 1920.

SOME INCIDENTS OF GENERAL BRADDOCK'S FATED EXPEDITION

How the Haughty British Commander Alienated His Indian Allies.

S. S. Miller in Meyersdale Republican. While General Braddock was halting with his army at Fort Cumberland in the spring of 1755, for the purpose of assembling supplies and equipment preparatory to his descent upon the French post at the forks of the Ohio River, he was there joined by a considerable force of Indian allies. These were secured mainly through the efforts of the noted frontiersman and Indian trader, George Croghan of Pennsylvania, who was acting on behalf of the governor of his province. Croghan had also arranged for sundry other Indian forces that were to join the army on its march.

But, as every reader of American history very well knows, General Braddock, like the true Briton that he was, had none but feelings of the most supreme contempt, not for the Indians only, but for the American soldiers as well. And by his arrogant and impolitic manner, soon succeeded in alienating his savage, but proud and sensitive allies, and most of them became either active or passive enemies of Braddock and his cause.

When Braddock marched out of Fort Cumberland on June 10, only nine Indians accompanied him, and the forces that were to meet him on the way, never came. Among the nine warriors that remained faithful to the General was the famous Oneida chief, Scaroyadi, and his son. History does not record the name of this son. Scaroyadi was successor to the distinguished chief known in history as "Half King," and he had met and befriended Washington at the times of his several western trips, and a strong friendship existed between the two.

Braddock's army resumed its march from Little Meadows, in what is now Garrett county, and located near the town of Grantsville, on the National Road, on June 19, after a three days' halt at that place; and some time during that day, Scaroyadi and his son, who were scouting near the main line of march, fell into an ambush of French and their Indian allies who were already hovering on Braddock's flanks. Scaroyadi was captured and among his captors were some of his former Indian friends. A fierce wrangle here ensued among the captives. The French wanted to kill him, and the Indians would not consent to it. They even threatened to desert the French if they killed Scaroyadi. They finally compromised by leaving the old chief securely bound to a tree. The young Indian escaped and raised an alarm. He thought his father was killed. A detachment was sent in pursuit of the enemy, whom they, however, failed to intercept, but Scaroyadi was found and released.

The exact spot where the old chief met with this singular experience can never be known, interesting as such knowledge would be, but as this occurred not far from the main line of march, and on the first day out from Little Meadows, and as the army here consumed four days in advancing 12 miles, it is evident that it happened near where Grantsville now is.

Scaroyadi's son was fated to meet with a tragic end. On the 6th of July, when the army was some distance west of Great Meadows, several of Braddock's Indians, in a sudden attack in the rear, were killed and scalped. An avenging party was sent in pursuit of the perpetrators of this deed, and they unexpectedly met with a band of their own scouts, and although they gave the usual signs to denote that they were friends, their signs for some reason were misunderstood, and they were fired upon and the son of Scaroyadi was killed.

It would almost seem as though the eyes of General Braddock were by this time in a measure opened, as such a fate took, for him, extraordinary measures to mollify the aggrieved Indian father. He showered numerous presents upon him; and to the surprise of all, he ordered that the young warrior be buried with full military honors, and that all the officers of the command were to attend. A volley was fired over his grave.

Thus was buried with all the pomp and honors of war this unnamed Indian youth, not so many miles from the spot where seven days later, in the dead hours of night, midst gloom and silence, the remains of the haughty General himself, found sepulture.

The old chief was appeased and remained faithful to Braddock; he was with him in the morning of July 9th, when Washington for the last time admonished the General to take more effective measures to guard against surprise, only to receive a curt reply. Scaroyadi was with the army when later in the day with banners flying and drums beating, it was led blindly into the jaws of death on the banks of the Monongahela.

Scaroyadi escaped unscathed from this field of frightful carnage. He passed the remainder of his days along the Ohio river, Western Pennsylvania and Ohio; it is not known that he engaged in war after this. But he always remained the steadfast friend of Washington and the Colonies.

The several historical incidents above given are well authenticated. Nearly all of the incidents of the Braddock campaign, as recorded by Irving and others, were originally gleaned from a journal that was kept by Captain Robert Orme, a British officer and one of Braddock's aides, and from a journal that was kept by certain sailors that belonged to the expedition, known as the "Seaman's Journal." These papers were unearthed many years afterwards in England and were published by the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

Captain Orme was himself severely wounded at the great slaughter, and was carried on a litter, on horseback, to Fort Cumberland.

At Little Meadows, Braddock was joined by a band of scouts and rangers from Pennsylvania, armed and equipped with rifle, knife, hunting-shirt, leggings and moccasins, looking almost like a band of Indians as they issued from the woods. They were under the command of Captain Jack, a famous scout and ranger who had at one time lived among the Indians as a captive for a number of years. This force was also engaged by Croghan, at the suggestion of Governor Morris, and offered their services to General Braddock to act as scouts and rangers. The reception they got from General Braddock was of such a nature that they forthwith shouldered their rifles, turned their backs upon the camp and headed by Captain Jack, departed in Indian file through the woods for the usual scenes of their exploits on the banks of the Juniata or the Conococheague.

GIVE ME SOME WAR SAVING STAMPS

MANY PERSONS HELD
BY HYPNOTIC SPELL

Erroneously Imagine That Value of Money Lies Within Itself and Not In Those Things It Will Buy.

Thousands of Americans are under the hypnotic spell of money. With distorted viewpoint they have come to regard money as a great treasure in itself whereas money has its real significance only in what it buys for us. A man's reward for his work does not depend merely on what he earns. For the true reward of labor is the service the worker is able to obtain with the money he earns.

It is evident that a man may earn twice as much as he once did in money and yet be no better off if the goods he needs cost twice or three times what they formerly cost. But it is apparent to all that apart from increase or decrease in wages as expressed in money, there is a wide difference in the real value earned by persons receiving the same in actual cash.

What a person gets out of the world in return for what he gives it, depends finally on the choice made in disposing of his income. One man by wise buying, careful and consistent saving and safe and profitable investment in such securities as War Saving Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates and Liberty Bonds, may transform the reward of his labor into all the necessities and comforts of life that he requires and even its luxuries. Another, gaining exactly the same sum in actual cash, may, through waste, extravagance and failure to save, find himself unable to secure even the necessities.

Whether or not a worker earns a sum which fulfills his estimate of what should be his just reward for labor, the responsibility for the way he spends what he gets remains with him and with him alone and cannot be transferred to any other person. Prices of necessities and wages may ebb and flow like the tide but the fundamental fact remains unchanged that apart from the nature and volume of his earnings every man can, within limits, determine the richness of the reward of his labor. He can accomplish this by the amount of restraint and intelligence he exercises in spending what he has to spend and in saving and investing what he has to save.

SCALPER OF WAR SAVING STAMPS ARRESTED.

From every Federal Reserve District in the United States information is being received by the Treasury Department in Washington that a determined war is being waged against persons, who, by preying upon the unwary, are trafficking in War Saving and Treasury Certificates.

The latest information regarding the activity of the "scalpers" comes from St. Louis, where two arrests have been made by Deputy United States Marshals. Both prisoners were released on $5,000 bonds and are now waiting for a hearing before the Federal commissioner.

One of the men is said to have altered registered numbers on War Savings Certificates. It being alleged by St. Louis postal authorities that in the man's office were found $678 in War Saving Certificates from which the registration numbers had been removed. It is charged that the other accused man had in his possession $864.90 worth of altered government securities.

One of the suspects is employed by a St. Louis newspaper concern; the other is the proprietor of a hotel.

WHY CERTIFICATES ARE SO ATTRACTIVE

Uncolored Features Make New Government Securities Splendid Medium in Which to Invest Savings.

Details of the features which make the new Treasury Savings Certificates of $100 and $1,000 maturity value attractive investments have been compiled in pamphlet form by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department. In addition to the regulations governing the sale of these "baby" securities, the pamphlet contains the rulings of the Secretary of the Treasury on various questions concerning the new issue.

One of the interesting features of these certificates that make them unique investments is that they may be issued and registered in the name of an infant. Every certificate is issued and registered as a means of absolute protection to the purchaser. Certificates may also be issued and registered jointly to two persons and may be made payable to either of the two purchasers or to both.

Rulings governing payment of certificates to deceased owners are also contained in the pamphlet, with specific mention made for each legal requirement according to laws of various states regarding wills, etc. At discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, in event of no other legal obstacles, payment will be made in the following order of classes:

First, husband, wife, next of kin or other person who pays the reasonable funeral expenses of the last illness or other preferred claims against the decedent's estate; second, creditor for funeral expenses; third, child or children, husband or wife, child or children, father or mother, any other of the next of kin of the deceased.

UNCLE SAM SAYS HERE'S LIBERTY BOND'S BROTHER.

Treasury Savings Certificates are a new issue of United States government securities. They are of $100 and $1,000 denominations. They run for five years and bear 4 per cent interest, compounded every three months.

They are little brothers of the Liberty Bond and big brothers of the War Savings Stamp.

A $100 Savings Certificate costs $84.40 this month. It will be worth $100 January 1, 1924. It is cashable any time with accrued interest at any postoffice on ten days' notice. It is a government obligation.

A $1,000 savings certificate costs $844 this month. It will be redeemed by Uncle Sam January 1, 1924, for $1,000. It is cashable with accrued interest at any time at any postoffice on ten days' notice.

Treasury savings certificates are registered in your name, thus insuring against loss.

BRITISH NOW SAVING
LARGE SUMS OF MONEY.

In spite of the exigencies of war, the volume of saving deposits in England has grown tremendously in the last five years according to the comptroller of the British Post Office Savings Bank. Only twice, the comptroller states, was the flow of savings deposits interrupted: once by the war loan of 1915 and once by the 5 per cent loan of 1917.

Total deposits increased despite the fact that depositors transferred over $1,000,000,000 from their postal savings into the various issues of the government. The recent figures show conclusively, the comptroller asserts, the power of saving of the British public for the amount diverted to the government war issues has not been wasted or dissipated but must still be included in the savings of the nation.

Annual Exhibit of the Garrett County High School.

The annual exhibit of school work at the Garrett County High school in Oakland, will be held on Friday afternoon, May 23, from two to four o'clock in the High School auditorium. The most interesting feature of the exhibit this year will be the display of work done in the Departments of Manual Training and Home Economics. The manual training exhibit will include a great variety of useful articles showing the skill acquired by the pupils in the use of woodworking tools. The home economics exhibit will include work in both sewing and cooking, the acquirement of which practical arts on the part of the girls has been a special aim of the High School program this year. Samples of the written work in the other departments will also be shown, and which will include English, history, mathematics, French, Latin and commercial branches.

A cordial invitation is extended to the parents of the High School pupils and to all other persons interested in the educational progress of our community to attend this exhibit. Light refreshments will be served to all visitors by the girls of the second year class under the direction of the teacher of Domestic Science.

A. E. BERRY, PRESIDENT OF THE C. AND P. TELEPHONE CO.

Starting his working career on a dredging boat in the Potomac River and being elected President of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at just about forty years of age, A. E. Berry is making friends in Maryland because of his policy of plain dealing with the public.

"There is nothing about our business we want to hide," said Mr. Berry to newspaper men in his office recently. "On the other hand I would like to get all Maryland asking questions about the telephone business."

Mr. Berry's policy of absolute frankness with the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia resulted in the quickest rate-case hearing on record and a favorable decision on the company's application to increase the rates to parallel those requested in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE BOY GETS

TELEPHONE JOB

LEO D. MAHON, TELEPHONE MAN-AGER OF BALTIMORE.

True to its policy of making acceptable local appointments to its important managerial posts, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, has appointed Leo D. Mahon as District Manager in Baltimore. Mr. Mahon was born in Baltimore in 1889 and has grown up in the telephone industry. His first job after leaving school was peddling combs in the streets of Baltimore. Because of his grasp of the telephone business he was sent to the National Capital temporarily during the war and helped carry the enormous load on the telephone company during that period. His official duties in Baltimore commenced June 1.

A CALL TO THE YOUNG WOMEN OF MARYLAND

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE CENTENARY BEING CELEBRATED IN BALTIMORE THIS WEEK.

Under The Auspices Of The Maryland State Association Of Graduate Nurses.

GRADUATE NURSES ARE ALL HELPING.

Through emphasizing the life work of Florence Nightingale and her wonderful contribution toward alleviating suffering by her nursing and her revolutionizing of the care of the sick, the Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses, in the celebration this week of the centenary of this remarkable woman is hoping to stir up such interest throughout the state in the nursing profession as will react toward increasing the number of young women who will take up this profession as their life work. Wednesday, May 12th, is the anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth and it is on this date that the celebration is to take place. It will be held in Baltimore and representatives of the nursing profession in every county of the state as well as of the various nursing institutions of the city will participate.

Throughout the counties the superintendents of the hospitals and training schools, are taking a keen interest in the celebration and in the effort to pay fitting tribute to the memory of the "first trained nurse," while at the same time bringing home to the young women of their neighborhoods the advantages as well as the opportunity for real service to humanity to be found in nursing.

The Graduate Nurses' Association has sent out invitations very generally for the celebration which takes place in the Associate Congregational Church, Preston street and Maryland avenue. Dr. William H. Welch will preside, Dr. Howard A. Kelly will make the address and other members of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland are to participate. In addition to the members of the nurses' organizations, the church is to be decorated for the occasion, and a feature of the observance will be the showing of lantern pictures of scenes and incidents in the life of Florence Nightingale and in the life and duties of nurses.

In charge of the arrangements is a committee representing the Nurses' Association, the officers of which are: Miss E. M. Lawler, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, president; Miss Jane E. Nash, Church Home and Infirmary, and Miss Eleanor Evans, Union Protestant Infirmary, vice-presidents; Miss Sarah F. Martin, secretary, and Miss Bernice V. Connor, treasurer.

The graduating classes—the graduates—The Public Health Nurses—Army Nurses and as many other nursing groups as we may have from the schools of nursing throughout the state will attend in uniform and form in procession, which will be one of the most interesting features of the celebration.

The idea of those in charge of the arrangements for the celebration is that both the training schools and the nursing organizations need primarily a better public understanding of their work. The training schools throughout Maryland have a second vital interest which is particularly important at the present time—which is to bring before the public "Nursing as a Profession," and to urge young women to see the opportunities in the field of nursing.

It is felt that the returns from the Nightingale centenary can scarcely fail to be considerable, both in the shape of a public better informed concerning the work of Schools of Nursing and Nursing organizations, and therefore more responsive to appeals for larger numbers of desirable recruits to the training schools.

"Florence Nightingale was born at Florence, Italy. At the age of thirty-two she began her nursing career, studying hospitals and nursing methods in Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy, and was appointed superintendent of a private hospital in London in 1853. At the outbreak of the Crimean War she was selected by Sir Sidney Herbert, Secretary of War, to superintend hospitals at the front. In October, 1854, she went to the Crimea taking charge of 38 nurses. In two months she had transformed the hospital, secured supplies, established sanitation, and reduced the death-rate from forty-two to two per cent. She returned to England at the end of the war, July, 1856."

It was from this beginning that Florence Nightingale went forward to her wonderful life of organization and teaching which finds its ultimate fruit in the day to day nursing in the hospitals and sick rooms of the world today; and has its echo in the praises and blessings which the countless number of sufferers as well as the soldiers of the Wars of more modern times shower upon the followers of the "Lady with a lamp."

She died in 1910, at the age of ninety years.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

Monday's Exercises In Oakland Were In Charge of the American Legion

Monday of this week the annual Decoration Day exercises in Oakland were held, with a goodly number of soldiers of the World War in the parade and a very small number of the old G. A. R., but the interest on the part of the latter was not in any way lessened for every man who wore the nation's colors in the sixties who could possibly be present, was here and took part in the exercises. Their number totalled less than ten, whereas only a few short years ago the ranks of those who annually assembled to pay tribute to their fallen comrades filled quite a space when they marched to the beat of the drum and the martial music which befit the occasion. The old soldiers occupied automobiles in the march to the cemetery which had been donated for the purpose by the owners residing in town, the formation being as follows:

Oakland Municipal Band
Procter Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion

Veterans of 1861 in automobiles
Garrett Lodge Knights of Pythias
Pythian Sisters

Daughters of Isabella Knights of Columbus
Garrett County High School
Oakland Grammar School

The parade was formed in front of the municipal building on Third street and from that point marched out Third street to Pennington, thence to Second street and after passing down this street the march to the cemetery was taken up where, upon arrival the band executed in a most commendable manner, several selections pending the arrival of the orator of the occasion, the Rev. Frank McCamie, but a wreck on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad having occurred, he failed to arrive at all. Almost without a moment's notice Dr. Archibald Moore, superintendent of the Oakland District, M. E. church, was waited upon by the committee having charge of the arrangements and was prevailed upon to make an address. This he did without preparation of any kind. It was a masterful effort on the part of the speaker, teeming with pure Americanism, truths and good advice.

Following Dr. Moore's address the French certificates awarded the parents or next of kin of the soldiers who were killed or died in the cause were presented by Mayor Thomas A. Gonder. The presentation and reception of the certificates in many instances were pathetic in the extreme, after which Dr. Moore pronounced the benediction upon the assembled crowd, and details of the American Legion decorated the graves of the soldiers whose names appear below, many of whom fought under the stars and bars, but the majority being Unionists:

Immediately after the decoration of the graves of the soldiers had been completed the Legion marched back to Post headquarters where they were relieved from further duty by Commander John D. Darby.

In addition to the decoration of the soldiers' graves the various organizations also strewed flowers upon the graves of their deceased brethren. The day was an ideal one for the occasion and marks the first Decoration Day exercises participated in by the American Legion in this section of the country. The men all carried themselves well and showed to the casual observer that the hard training they were subjected to while in active service remained a part of their soldierly bearing.

NEW SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER.

Mr. William Andrew Gonder Appointed by Governor Last Monday

Announcement was made in Oakland Monday of the appointment by Governor Ritchie of Mr. William Andrew Gonder of Oakland, as a member of the Board of Education of Garrett county. Mr. Gonder was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Joseph T. Giotfelly, who submitted his resignation to the Governor as a member of the Board about two weeks ago. With the absence of Mr. Giotfelly there passes the last evidence of minority or Republican representation on the County Board of Education. Mr. Gonder is engaged in the confectionery business in Oakland.

The County Board of Education now stands:

1922—Thomas J. Johnson.
1924—W. Andrew Gonder.

1926—John O. Thayer.

It is impossible at this early date to set forth what future confronts our county school system. Its advancement or its demoralization and disruption are now in the hands of the three parties named above. Into their keeping have been placed the sacred care of the future citizenship of our country. The actions of those who compose the Board will determine the future peace and welfare of our schools. If the best interests of the schools are forever kept uppermost, and not the satisfying of certain irresponsible "ward heelers," who have personal or party interests to advance or revenge through insidious arguments and political trickery, then we can see no reason why our schools should not continue along the high plane of progress they have been following during the past eight years. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION

Meeting of Stockholders of New Organization to be Held Monday.

The stockholders of the agricultural association of Garrett county, now in course of forming, will be held at the City Building in Oakland on next Monday morning, June 7th, at the hour of ten o'clock for the purpose of electing a board of directors and the selection of officers for the ensuing year.

It has been the intention of those responsible for the organization of the new agricultural association to limit the capital stock to $3,000, but as this amount has practically been subscribed and a number of the business men and agriculturists of the county have not been interviewed by the solicitors, it is possible that the capital stock may be increased to $5,000 or more in order to allot a small block of stock to those who are anxious to identify themselves with the association. This, however, will be definitely determined at the meeting to be held on Monday, at which all who are interested are invited to be present, whether they have subscribed to the stock or are contemplating doing so.

DOINGS OF THE BOYS' CLUBS

At Different Points In Garrett County During the Past Fortnight.

Accident Club Is Reorganized—On Tuesday evening, May 25th, the boys of Accident and vicinity met in the school building and reorganized their Boys' Agricultural Club, when the following named officers were elected: President, Fred Alexander; vice-president, Aubra Beeghley; secretary, treasurer, Clayton Speicher.

Oakland Club Holds Meeting—The regular May meeting of the Oakland Club was held Wednesday afternoon in the High School auditorium. President William Weber was in the chair who called upon the various members to report on the progress of their projects. A paper was read on the advanced Registration of Poultry. Henry McComas was elected vice-president and James Wolfe, secretary-treasurer to fill existing vacancies. It was decided to charge monthly dues of 10 cents.

North Glade Club Organized—A Boys' Agricultural Club was organized at North Glade school house on Wednesday evening of last week. Sixteen boys were present and participated in the organization. The purpose and benefits of a club were explained by County Agent Towler and Assistant County Agent Downing. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles Merrill; vice-president, Maynard Moon; secretary-treasurer, Herbert Rhodes. It was decided to hold the next meeting on Tuesday evening, June 22nd, in the school house at North Glade.

Bittering Club Meets—On last Friday evening the Bittering Boys' Agricultural Club met in the school house at that place. No program had been prepared, so each boy gave a report on the progress of his project.

Barn and Contents Burned.

The barn on the farm of Mr. Ezra Wolfe, near Cranesville, was burned last Saturday evening about eight o'clock, in which all the contents of the barn were consumed. These included a horse, chickens, farming implements, grain, hay, etc. The timely arrival of neighbors and their assistance in confining the fire to the barn was the only thing that saved the complete destruction of the surrounding buildings. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe were absent from their home at the time of the blaze.

GRANTSVILLE

A dual birthday party was given to Mr. and Mrs. William E. Broadwater, of Avilton, on Wednesday night, by their daughters, Mrs. Delbert Durst and Mrs. Blaine Vangilder, of near Grantsville, the two ladies planning the surprise and carrying it through in a most delightful and thoroughly successful manner, both Mr. and Mrs. Broadwater being in entire ignorance of the affair until the whole party descended upon them just as they were about to retire for the night. There were about thirty-five guests, including the children. Mr. Broadwater was 55 years old on May 15th and his wife's 48th natal day coming upon the 19th, it was decided to celebrate the two birthdays by giving the party upon the latter date. All kinds of delicious refreshments were brought to light by the two joyous instigators of the happy festivities, and everybody had a delightful evening. Mr. and Mrs. Broadwater received a number of very handsome and useful gifts.

A teachers' meeting was held at the school house on Wednesday, Miss Edna Marshall, grade supervisor, being present and in charge of a goodly number of teachers from various sections of this community. It has been decided to make the approaching commencement a centralized one, and all pupils of the district schools who have completed the seventh grade, will take part in the graduation exercises, to be held on June 18th, at 8:30 o'clock in the evening.

The C. E. meeting on Sunday evening was led by Miss Alverta Miller with talks by Miss Ruth Keller and others. The subject was, "Shall a Man Rob God?" The Bender Boys' orchestra provided most delightful music for the occasion.

Mrs. Lucinda Bowser died at her home near Bittering on May 21st, at the age of 72 years, 11 months and 8 days. She was the wife of Cornelius Bowser and was well known and esteemed in the community. Death came suddenly to her, being caused by apoplexy. Besides her husband, two daughters and four sons—Mrs. "Bud" Bittering, of Hagerstown; Mrs. Silas C. Beachy, of near Bittering; Joseph Samuel, Ernest and George, all of this county, survive. The funeral was held Sunday in Maple Grove church, Rev. John Green, officiating. The interment was made in the cemetery at the church.

Misses Ina Morgan, Bessie Volk, Mary Laffey, Margaret Stepleton and Katherine Crowe, teachers from the Maryland Avenue school, Cumberland, spent the week-end at the Casselman Hotel here.

Joshua Durst and family attended the funeral of the former's son-in-law, Robert Gibson, at Somerset, Pa., who met his death last week through an accident on the railroad on which he was employed. His widow was formerly Miss Mary Durst, of this place. She has one child.

F. B. Willoughby, of Pittsburgh, has resumed operations upon the large concrete dam, which he began building near Grantsville last summer. Mrs. Willoughby is at present in Pittsburgh, in a hospital, but will join her husband here in the near future. Her sister, Mrs. Menelly, and family, are with Mr. Willoughby at present.

Gunnert Bros., painters and plasterers, of Frostburg, have done a very artistic job of stucco work on the new postoffice building, owned by J. M. Custer, and on the home of Miss Gertrude Hone, located next door to the First National Bank.

Mrs. Rush Montgomery, of Cumberland, spent several days with her mother, Mrs. Sophia Winterberg, recently.

Miss Margaret Hanft, of Elk Lick, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanft here. Mrs. Eva Beavans has been visiting relatives at Union Bridge, Md.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

SUNDAY, JUNE 6.

Saul's Failure. I Samuel 15:13-23. Read entire chapter. Thou hast rejected the word of Jehovah, and Jehovah hath rejected thee. I Sam. 15:26.

THE UNSTABLE THRONE.

Saul's seat was settled but it was by no means a secure one in the midst of tribal jealousies, differing parties and aggressive enemies. That he accomplished all he did is rare comment upon the ability of the man. The initial victory over the Philistines brought no occasion of their hostility but probably made them chary about spreading over the plateaus of upper Judea but they clung all the more tenaciously to the trade routes upon which their prosperity depended. When Saul grew strong enough to consolidate the central and southern sections of his territory and was moving northward to clasp the hands of the tribes beyond Esdraelon there was an immediate response for that would have severed Philistia's main arteries of supply from Damascus and the East and the defeat at Mt. Gilboa ended the life of the champion of Israel. Amalek occupied the southern deserts and harassed all the border with occasional raids so that the enmity begun at Sinai grew with the years. They were a constant menace to the peace and so long as Saul could not show strength enough to keep the border clear the strong tribe of Judah would be lukewarm in his support. Here lay the political reason for an attack and the religious party urged it upon other grounds, Samuel like Peter the Hermit preaching it as a crusade against the enemies of Jehovah. Behind the march seems to have been the united feeling of Israel's south of Galilee. And the expedition was a conspicuous success so that there was long peace upon the border but out of it came the estrangement of Samuel, the defection of the religious party's support of the reign of Saul and the beginning of his decadence as a ruler. The grief of the Seer is tragic but the break was irreparable and forecasted the sure weakening of the reigning house. Victory over an outer foe at the price of inner cleavage is worse than a defeat in the field could possibly be and it is at this parting of the ways that the elements of the choice made by the King become so significant for any other person standing.

"With reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet."
THE CHOICE OF POLICY.

The passion for righteousness that flamed in the heart of Samuel and turned in the later prophets found scant repose in the external religion of Saul. More and more would he grow out of sympathy with its heat and would incline to favor the political party in affairs of state. The latter were probably in the majority in the army camp and when rich spoil fell into their hands there was the demand that what had been preached as a crusade should become a raid for plunder. There is a significant change in the tone that tried us thru the war and that which has been sounded in our share of the settlement; service of the world has been altered to service for America for class. Saul faced a stormy session with his chieftains upon that far away battle field where all the moral supports of home were banished and he must make his choice. Apparently it was expedient to placate these clamant voices and Saul followed policy in determining his course. There was such captured material not worth the carriage up the defiles into the hill country and this should be utterly destroyed but there was much other useful stuff some of which could be used for religious purposes that might as well be saved. He surrendered to a threat upon the throne and followed policy instead of conscience in making the momentous decision. Had Robert E. Lee done likewise he would have been the head of the Louisiana Lottery but he could not be bought by any pressure to use his name in connection with what conscience condemned. To compromise any moral question is to accept defeat upon the field of character.

THE CHOICE OF PRIDE.
It had been a sweeping victory but certainly there had been cost as well. A valiant King would not surrender with unbloody sword. There would be questions asked on the return home, there would be pensions to pay and wounds to heal and to face his home constituency with empty hands would be as fatal as it often is for the modern office holder. Taxes are never spell-binders for the impovers. For the home folk to see the spoils of a victorious war, to shout over the degradation of a defeated foe, to see their King as the maker of a great national triumph would thrill the imagination of all and still every tongue of detraction. How fine it would be to come back with such proofs of prowess! Pride leaped to his ear in swift counsel and Saul listened. Now pride always mistakes itself for reality, show for solidity and Saul made a fatal mistake in listening's stead of holding to his conviction of right.

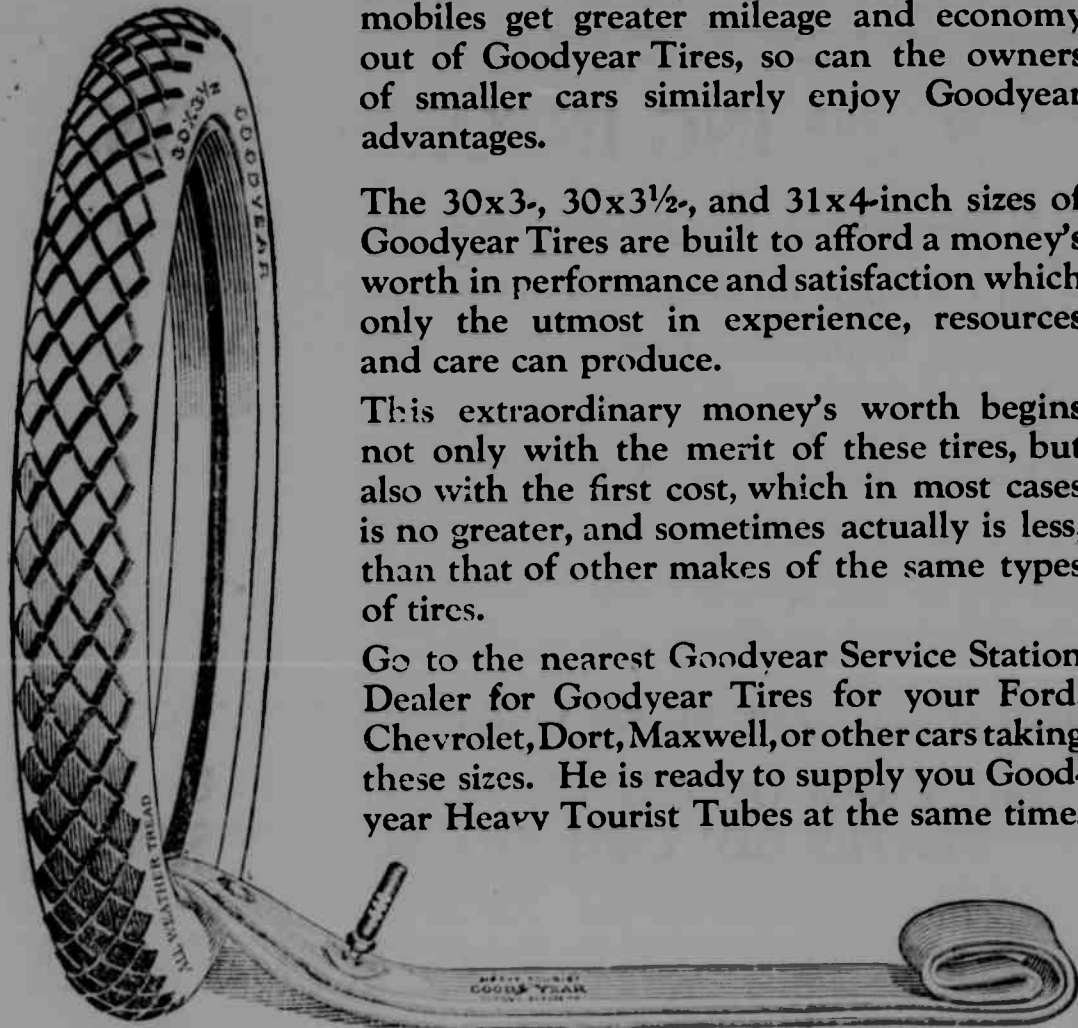

THE CHOICE OF APPEARANCE.
Never was there more dramatic scene than the becoming of King and Prophet. Fever was there more scathing denunciation of a victorious leader. Squirm as he would, juggle with words as he attempted to do, lie as he did, Samuel snatched away every defense and showed his shame. Then he cried, "Let me seem a King before the people whether I am or not; sacrifice as you have always done!" To be a sham and not know it is a tragedy but to do a sham and rest content knowing it is to be morally a degenerate. Browning records the finding of a beautiful bit of statuary in an Italian church whose examination revealed the usually unseen back of the head absolutely rough. Tracing the sculptor's record he found crime as he had shrewdly expected to do. Only moral weakness will support a sham. It was in the moral realm that Saul failed and Samuel's mourning is easily understood. The critical moment came in the hour of choice and whatever is less than the highest in that great hour becomes weakness or sin. This fine King never found place to redeem the choice that cursed his reign for the Samuel grieved he never came back.

NO GREAT FEAR OF CORN BORER

Pest Brought to This Country in 1909-10 With Importations of Corn From Hungary.

INJURY SO FAR NEGLIGIBLE

Wide Dissemination of Insect Throughout Mississippi Valley Is Entirely Possible—Clean Culture Will Control Pest.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The experience of the past season with the European corn borer leads the United States department of agriculture to make the statement that, apparently, there is little justification for alarm over the possibility of this insect's becoming a menace to the corn crop throughout the entire country. While the corn borer is a pest to be reckoned with and one that may cause considerable injury to susceptible varieties of corn in certain localities, its effect on the corn crop of the country as a whole, especially in the corn belt, is unlikely to be serious.
These reassuring facts have been discovered as the result of the department's work during the past season: Serious Damage Only Near Boston.
Up to the present time, the corn borer has inflicted considerable damage to corn only in the Boston district, where the corn grown is of the sweet and dwarf varieties and where the corn borer, owing to the climatic influence of the gulf stream, is two-brooded. After ten years of slow spread, the insect has attacked occasional fields of sweet and flint corn, under conditions favoring multiplication of the borer, to the extent of nearly 100 per cent of the stalks and 20 to 50 per cent of the ears. However, in most of the fields in the area now invaded in coastal Massachusetts and New Hampshire, the injury has been negligible. When the corn borer larvae are limited to the stalks, the ears, as of cultural control. The only place where appreciable injury has resulted from the corn borer is the trucking and small garden district immediately around Boston, where the truckers have universally complained of a shortage of labor. There has been very general neglect of weed growth along roadways, on waste land and even in home and truck gardens. The insect—known to have more than 100 food plants—breeds in such grass and weeds. The corn grown throughout this area is in patches of from a fraction of an acre to a few acres, and evidently attracted and concentrated the insects from the surrounding weeds. The infested fields were usually either poorly tilled and weedy or surrounded by neglected, weedy areas. There were notable examples in the center of this district of well-tilled fields of sweet corn with clean surroundings in which injury was negligible.

The menace to the corn crop of the country, then, is minimized by the slight susceptibility of common corn to borer attacks; by the practical certainty that the insect will be single-brooded over the main corn-growing areas and that where single-brooded it inflicts no injury even on small types of corn; and that good culture in clean surroundings appears to be a control measure.

Where Borer Is Known to Occur.

The European corn borer is now known to occur over the entire coastal region of Massachusetts, including Cape Cod and adjacent islands, and over several towns in southern New Hampshire, approximately 1,800 square miles; in New York, in the Mohawk valley between Amsterdam and Albany, about 500 square miles; in western New York, over an area of at least 500 square miles, and the area of known infestation is constantly expanding as the survey proceeds; and over a limited area in Erie county, Pennsylvania.

In view of this known wide distribution and the possibility that it may exist in numerous other localities, and in view, also, of the large number of plants on which it feeds, the department of agriculture realizes that extermination of the corn borer is out of the question except perhaps in limited areas of intensive production, and that the problem now is to determine the areas infested, the economic importance of the insect in different regions, and the possibilities of practical control or extermination within small areas. For this purpose, congress has been asked to make an appropriation of $500,000.

RAISING WINTER EGG LAYERS

Chicks Should Be Hatched in March If They Are of General Purpose Breeds—Give Best Care.

"Pullets intended to produce winter eggs should be hatched in March if they are of the general purpose breeds," says Prof. L. H. Schwartz of Purdue university. "Leghorns mature a little sooner and need not be hatched until April. The pullets should be given every advantage during spring, summer and fall, receiving the best of feed and water and should always have access to shade. Adequate ventilation in the house in which they are kept is essential, and the pullets should not be overcrowded. Each one requires at least four square feet of floor space."

GUINEAS MAKE GOOD EATING

Unlike Hens They Do Not Lay During Entire Year—Gamy Taste of Flesh Relished by Some.

While guineas do not lay all the year around as the chicken hen does, they are great layers in their season (which is spring) and the eggs, though smaller than those of the chicken hen, are very good for food. The eggs sell in the market, but generally below the price of hen's eggs.
Guinea meat on the table is perhaps as desirable as that of the chicken, being dark and inclined to be rich, but when cooked it is by no means an unwholesome dish. Indeed, as a gamey flavor which appeals to no appetites.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.
To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush of the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

McMULLEN-RITCHIE DUELLO.

The Baltimore Sun of Tuesday last contained the following leading editorial relative to the contention which has arisen between former Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen and Governor Albert C. Ritchie relative to the appointment of the new State Roads Commission and the dropping from that body of Mr. McMullen's personal friend, Mr. Uhl, of Allegany county in the face of an implied promise by the Governor to Mr. McMullen that Mr. Uhl would not be disturbed:

"Perhaps to some minds," said the Sun, "Mr. McMullen's sharp criticism of Governor Ritchie's appointments to the State Roads Commission may be weakened by the personal pique that seems to have inspired it. If Mr. McMullen's friend, Mr. Uhl, had not been dropped, would Mr. McMullen have been so severe? Possibly not; though, if his assertions are well founded, his personal interest in the matter does not detract from their truth.

"The Governor's reply to Mr. McMullen's charge that he was simply playing politics, and that his avowed reason for the changes in the Roads Commission was merely a clumsy effort of invent an artful explanation," may be unconvincing to the Governor's critics, but it, at least, puts forward a sound general principle. Mr. McMullen, the Governor says, is entitled to his own opinion, but I am also entitled to mine, and it happens that the responsibility rests on me. I feel that that responsibility can be best discharged through a new commission of my own selection, and I intend to discharge it that way."

"If the Governor's motive is wholly inspired by consideration of public welfare, by the belief that his new commission will give us better roads than the old could have done, he may be acquitted of the accusation of insincerity, although there would still be good ground for questioning his judgment. What creates doubt of his perfect frankness is the fact that, without apparently sufficient cause, he has put out a commission which has an unusually fine record of achievement, and put in one that is more or less of an experiment. It may or may not prove a success. But the old commission was already a conceded success. There was no doubt of its capacity for work. Another fact that seems to give weight to Mr. McMullen's charge is the personnel of the Conservation Commission. This follows hard on the heels of the other and is admittedly made up of active politicians.

"The Governor will be vindicated, partly at least, if his new boards prove as good or better than the old. But we are inclined to think that the unbiased public will believe that politics has not been entirely omitted from these new deals. Probably it is too much to expect that the Governor should be wholly free from the prevailing Maryland political weakness for fence-building."

MR. WILSON'S INTERNATIONAL COLORS.

In the unapproachable seclusion of his lonely person behind the White House portals and the isolation of his spirit entombed within its own impenetrable shell, President Wilson seems never to have heard, never to have sensed, what has happened to his League of Nations not merely at the hands of Republican but under the feet of Democrats. To a county chairman out in Oregon he repeats that the Democratic party must go to the national polls on the issue of the covenant.

But if the Oregon Democrat, who presumably is not shut in from the events of the world like the President, will hold his ear to the ground for only a single second he will hear a mighty rumble of Democratic hosts running their legs off to get away from Mr. Wilson's national issue of the League of Nations. The stampede has just begun, but as far as it has traveled it looks as if the only Democrats that will not get swept along with it are those whom Mr. Wilson has hitched to the Government payroll. Not merely the Democrats of eastern New York and Massachusetts of New England are in the stampede; the Democrats of Senator Hitchcock's Nebraska of the West and the Democrats way down South in Georgia are there also.

Meanwhile it is an awesome thing to know that on the eve of the two great national conventions there still can come from the White House recesses a voice proclaiming that the badge of honor for an American voter to pin on his breast is internationalism, and that, by the same token, if our citizenship will wear only the badge of Americanism this act must be, in the eyes of the President of the United States, a deed of dishonor.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE ROUNDLY SCORED BY HUGH A. McMULLEN

State Executive's Sincerity, Gratitude and Road Plan Questioned by the Former Comptroller.

A special telegram to the Baltimore Sun of last Sunday under a Cumberland date line of May 29th, said:

Political circles were unusually disturbed today by the publication of a letter from former State Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen, Democratic leader in this county, addressed to Governor Albert C. Ritchie, in reply to one from the State Executive, telling him why he could not reappoint Clinton Uhl, of Mount Savage, this county, a member of the State Roads Commission.

Mr. McMullen questions the Governor's sincerity, gratitude and desire to maintain the present high standard of Maryland roads. His letter follows:

May 29, 1920.
His Excellency, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, Annapolis, Md.

Sir—I am in receipt of your letter of May 24, as follows:
I know that you will be disappointed at my decision to appoint an entirely new State Roads Commission. I am sorry and I want you to know that it is in no sense due to my lack of appreciation of Mr. Uhl's services or of your own wishes.

It is simply that we are about to embark on a new era in road building, viz., our lateral road program, and I feel that I would like to discharge my responsibility with respect to that through a commission of my own selection.

"Your letter containing two paragraphs, the last being the most important, in which you give us your reason for appointing an entirely new commission the fact of the construction of lateral roads in the state. This explanation is similar to the statement made by you in a Baltimore newspaper. BULLETIN

MAY 29, 1920. MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK ASSOCIATION No. 1.

GREETINGS

This number of the Bulletin has been delayed in its appearance for a multitude of reasons which need not be named. It might tax your patience.

The Board of Foreign Missions in accepting the property from the Mountain Lake Park Association do so gladly, with the understanding that this splendid property, when fully restored to a livable condition, will serve the Kingdom in a manifold way.

The Park for many years has been well known to the Methodist Episcopal Church as a most attractive place to sojourn in summer, and we are endeavoring to make it attractive physically, as well as from a religious, instructive and entertaining way.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Several of the honored Bishops of the Church, including Bishops W. F. McDowell, Joseph F. Berry, William F. Oldham, Ernest L. Waldorf and William F. Anderson, will be present.

There will be entertainments after June 15th, including the well-known film production Jean Valjean, and other literary and nature studies.

The Camp Meeting will open on July 2nd with Bishop Oldham and Dr. Morrison as chief preachers.

The Pittsburgh Conference Epworth League Institute will convene Monday, July 12th, and will continue until July 19th, when the Washington-Baltimore Epworth League Institute begins, and will continue until July 25th.

The week of July 26 will be given over to Chautauqua numbers, including lectures, readings, concerts of a high order. This will include Dr. J. M. Taylor on "Mexico in Transition." While in that country recently he was kidnapped and held for ransom.

Marion Bell Hart will read for you "The Melting Pot" and the "Man Who Forgot." Two most dramatic selections.

Homer Rodeheaver Company appears afternoon and evening of July 29th. He is the well known associate and song director of the famous "Billy" Sunday.

The Home and Foreign Summer School of Missions will be interdenominational and will be in charge of the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies. Mrs. W. F. McDowell will preside. The dates are August 1-7.

We are planning to turn on the electric lights June 10th and continue to use the current until October.

Mr. Landon, superintendent of the water plant, promises to have an abundance of water by June 10th. He has installed a six-inch iron pipe from the mountain springs, two miles away, reaching to the Park. He has also put new four-inch pipe through different sections of the Park, so we feel confident that we shall have an abundance of water at all times.

When the painting contract is completed, the Park public buildings will have a new appearance. It pays to liberally use a good quality of paint.

Mr. Dunnington has charge again of the Mountain Lake Hotel. This building has the most commanding location on the Park. Mr. Dunnington is an experienced hotel man and has pride in running a good house.

The hotel for a number of years known as the Chautauqua Hotel, is to be known as "Thoburn Inn." A cafeteria will be installed in this well known property, which will make this center a popular stopping place. Mr. W. H. Hamilton is the manager of the cafeteria.

Miss Dougherty, the well-known kindergarten teacher, will hold forth in the Hall of Philosophy this summer, beginning July first.

The Pittsburgh Conference Epworth League Institute promises to bring five hundred people to the Park. Friends who have extra rooms please report them to the office. A great institute in every way.

Bishop Anderson's lecture on Thursday, August 12th, subject "The Rebuilding of Europe After The World War," will be vitally interesting, since he has visited Europe three times during the last eighteen months.

Rev. C. M. MacConnell brings to us August 9th, through fine pictures, "The Challenge of the Rural Orient."

The music for the Camp Meeting promises to be of a high order.

Bishop Berry is to be heard at the Epworth League Institute; also Bishop McDowell and Bishop Waldorf will be heard during the summer.

There will be no danger of an ice famine this summer at Mountain Lake Park. We have fifteen hundred tons stored in the ice house. It is full to the rafters.

The gentlemanly Community Directors promise us practically a new walk along the State road from the station to the Amphitheatre.

Quite a number of people have already located at the Park and many more will join them soon.

A number of dying and dead trees have been removed from Chautauqua Park, adding to its attractiveness; also from the enclosure around the Amphitheatre.

How do you like the new fence around the Superintendent's Home and Amphitheatre?

We have installed a Simplex Moving Picture Machine in the Amphitheatre, reported to be the best in the world. Be sure to see "The World at Columbus" and "The Stream of Life."

We are expecting Miss Gertrude Thompson, Norfolk, Va., to be here to the management and have charge of the office.

Miss Annabelle Bradstreet, Director of Physical Education, a graduate of Oberlin College, here the summer in physical education, teaching children exercises to guarantee good health. They are young people organized.

We are promised an interesting evening Amphitheatre.

The publicity department of the Pittsburgh Conference Epworth League Institute has issued an attractive folder advertising the Camp Meeting. You should see it.

The Washington-Baltimore Epworth League Institute promises to bring five hundred delegates to the Park for a high order of gospel.

McMULLEN-RITCHIE DUELLO.

The Baltimore Sun of Tuesday last contained the following leading editorial relative to the contention which has arisen between former Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen and Governor Albert G. Ritchie relative to the appointment of the new State Roads Commission and the dropping from that body of Mr. McMullen's personal friend, Mr. Uhl, of Allegany county in the face of an implied promise by the Governor to Mr. McMullen that Mr. Uhl would not be disturbed:

"Perhaps to some minds," said the Sun, "Mr. McMullen's sharp criticism of Governor Ritchie's appointments to the State Roads Commission may be weakened by the personal pique that seems to have inspired it. If Mr. McMullen's friend, Mr. Uhl, had not been dropped, would Mr. McMullen have been so severe? Possibly not; though, if his assertions are well founded, his personal interest in the matter does not detract from their truth."

"The Governor's reply to Mr. McMullen's charge that he was simply playing politics, and that his avowed reason for the changes in the Roads Commission was merely 'a clumsy effort of invent an artful explanation,' may be unconvincing to the Governor's critics, but it, at least, puts forward a sound general principle. Mr. McMullen, the Governor says, 'is entitled to his own opinion, but I am also entitled to mine, and it happens that the responsibility rests on me. I feel that that responsibility can be best discharged through a new commission of my own selection, and I intend to discharge it that way.'"

"If the Governor's motive is wholly inspired by consideration of public welfare, by the belief that his new commission will give us better roads than the old could have done, he may be acquitted of the accusation of insincerity, although there would still be good ground for questioning his judgment. What creates doubt of his perfect frankness is the fact that, without apparently sufficient cause he has put out a commission which has an unusually fine record of achievement, and put in one that is more or less of an experiment. It may or may not prove a success. But the old commission was already a conceded success. There was no doubt of its capacity for work. Another fact that seems to give weight to Mr. McMullen's charge is the personnel of the Conservation Commission. This follows hard on the heels of the other and is admittedly made up of active politicians."

"The Governor will be vindicated, partly at least, if his new boards prove as good or better than the old. But we are inclined to think that the unbiased public will believe that politics has not been entirely omitted from these new deals. Probably it is too much to expect that the Governor should be wholly free from the prevailing Maryland political weakness for fence-building."

MR. WILSON'S INTERNATIONAL COLORS.

In the unapproachable seclusion of his lonely person behind the White House portals and the isolation of his spirit entombed within its own impenetrable shell, President Wilson seems never to have heard, never to have sensed, what has happened to his League of Nations not merely at the hands of Republican but under the feet of Democrats. To a county chairman out in Oregon, he repeats that the Democratic party must go to the national polls on the issue of the covenant.

But if the Oregon Democrat, who presumably is not shut in from the events of the world like the President, will hold his ear to the ground for only a single second he will hear a mighty rumble of Democratic hosts running their legs off to get away from Mr. Wilson's national issue of the League of Nations. The stampede has just begun, but as far as it has traveled it looks as if the only Democrats that will not get swept along with it are those whom Mr. Wilson has hitched to the Government payroll. Not merely the Democrats of eastern New York and Massachusetts of New England are in the stampede; the Democrats of Senator Hitchcock's Nebraska of the West and the Democrats 'way down South in Georgia are there also. Meanwhile it is an awesome thing to know that on the eve of the two great national conventions there still can come from the White House recesses a voice proclaiming that the badge of honor for an American voter to pin on his breast is internationalism, and that, by the same token, if our citizenship will wear only the badge of Americanism this act must be, in the eyes of the President of the United States, a deed of dishonor.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE ROUNDLY SCORED BY HUGH A. McMULLEN

State Executive's Sincerity, Gratitude and Road Plan Questioned by the Former Comptroller.

A special telegram to the Baltimore Sun of last Sunday under a Cumberland date line of May 29th, said:

Political circles were unusually disturbed today by the publication of a letter from former State Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen, Democratic leader in this county, addressed to Governor Albert G. Ritchie, in reply to one from the State Executive, telling him why he could not reappoint C. Clinton Uhl, of Mount Savage, this county, a member of the State Roads Commission.

Mr. McMullen questions the Governor's sincerity, gratitude and desire to maintain the present high standard of Maryland roads. His letter follows:

May 29, 1920.
His Excellency, Albert G. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, Annapolis, Md.

Sir—I am in receipt of your letter of May 24, as follows:

I know that you will be disappointed at my decision to appoint an entirely new State Roads Commission. I am sorry and I want you to know that it is in no sense due to my lack of appreciation of Mr. Uhl's services or of your own wishes.

It is simply that we are about to embark on a new era in road building, viz., our lateral road program, and I feel that I would like to discharge my responsibility with respect to that through a commission of my own selection.

"Your letter containing two paragraphs, the last being the most important, in which you give us your reason for appointing an entirely new commission the fact of the construction of lateral roads in the state. This explanation is similar to the statement made by you in a Baltimore newspaper. The present road system of the State of Maryland is its own argument as to the capability of the former Roads Commission, and I do not think that your clumsy effort to invent an artful explanation for this change will be accepted by the people of the State as the correct reason for having made it. It bears on its face a purpose to advance the political interests of a certain faction of the Democratic party rather than a desire to protect the roads and their users throughout the state."

"Certainly the work of Mr. Zouck, Mr. Uhl and Mr. Mudd has been of a high order and their capability to construct the main arteries of the roads in the State would seem to assure their qualifications to perform the lesser tasks of the lateral road construction."

"The further fact, if the newspaper reports are true, that you found it necessary to appoint a relative of yours, no matter what the ability of that person may be, indicates a personal interest from the point of the taxpayers and citizens of the State."

In regard to the first paragraph of your letter, I have nothing to say. Your frequent statements to me of appreciation of my efforts in behalf of your election I dismiss without further consideration. I leave your action to determine the measure of gratitude and sincerity contained in them."

You did not treat me with candor in turning down the application for appointment of a personal friend whose merits as a road builder have been publicly testified to by a Republican board of county commissioners in Allegany county.

Mr. Lloyd Alexander, who is engaged upon the farm of Senator H. J. Speicher at Accident, was in Oakland on business yesterday.

Mr. Lloyd Durst and daughter Jane, of Wheeling, West Va., spent the weekend in Oakland where they visited Mr. and Mrs. David D.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Charles, of Cumberland, Mrs. George Stevens, Mrs. Arthur Lemmert, Mr. Howard Stevens, of Mount Savage, and Mrs. Hager, of near Frostburg, were guests on Monday of Mr. and Mrs. George Little at their home in Oakland.

State Senator Mish, of Hagerstown, who is the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, visited Oakland and other points in Garrett county yesterday. Mr. Mish plans an active campaign in this and other counties composing the District.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig, of St. Clairsville, Ohio, who spent the past two or three summers in Oakland, drove to this point from their home in Ohio, arriving here Monday night, where they may again reside during the present season.

Grand Chancellor Commander J. C. Renninger of the Maryland Knights of Pythias, motored to Williamsport, Md., on last Sunday where he delivered a Memorial Day address to the members of that organization upon the occasion of the exercises held in the cemetery at that place, returning to Oakland in his automobile the same evening.

Mr. William Miller, of Accident, who has been elected one of the delegates from Maryland to the Democratic National Convention at San Francisco, Cal., was in Oakland and at the Park yesterday attending the track meet, stated to The Republican that he, in company with Mrs. Miller, expect to leave on the 20th inst. for San Francisco, going by the Denver and Rio Grande Route, and that he will be the next Democratic candidate for State Senator from Garrett county.

FERTILIZER.—I have a car of Buckwheat Flints on the way to arrive some time about June 5th. Those who desire this fertilizer should give notice so that they may be informed when same comes in. Price will be not more than $10 per ton from car, or $12 after it is unloaded and stored.—D. J. Swartzentruber.—Adv. 21*

On last Friday the editor and several members of his family, accompanied by the Rev. O. A. Bremer, who had been a guest of the former's household here for two weeks, left Oakland by motor for Pittsburgh and intervening points. After a day spent there the visitor was left with Mr. and Mrs. John Smyth and family and the Oaklanders returned home reaching here Sunday at noon. Mr. Bremer planned to leave Pittsburgh some time Sunday night for Chicago, where he will be joined this evening by Mr. Frank O. Glatfelter and one of his sons, and the latter for Spokane, Wash.

FOURTH ANNUAL FIELD MEET

Kitzmiller Lead in Points, With Oakland Grammar Second.

Yesterday at Mountain Lake Park the fourth annual field meet of the high and grammar schools of Garrett county was held by authority of the Garrett County Board of Education and under the direction of the Public Athletic League of Baltimore.

The grounds upon which the meet was held are located just below the lake in the Park which had been put in splendid condition by the pupils of the Oakland and Mountain Lake Park schools, and from the appearance of the field good honest work had been done by those who had the preparation of the field in charge.

The day was an ideal one for the meet, and it is estimated that the crowd in attendance numbered considerably above a thousand, coming from various sections of the county, many being present from the most distant points from the Park.

Luncheon was served at the field by the Patrons' Club of the Oakland schools, the ladies in charge being kept very busy from the moment the stand which had been previously erected was opened until late in the afternoon serving sandwiches and coffee to the hungry boys and girls.

In the absence of Dr. Hurdick, Mr. W. W. Pitman, of Baltimore, was selected as the director, his report of the meet following:

HAD LOST HOPE

But Doan's Effected a Complete Recovery After Other Remedies Failed. Now in Good Health.

Mrs. J. A. Stutzworth, E. Bell Ave., Red Key, Ind., says: "Kidney trouble came on me suddenly and before I realized it I was in a critical condition. My body bloated and my feet and ankles swelled like toy balloons. The kidney secretions hurried terribly in passage. My face puffed up and the flesh under my eyes and on my cheeks hung down in folds. I had another anginal spell, when I thought I would die. So much water had collected under my skin, I weighed 170 pounds, a gain of 45 pounds. My sight failed and little black specks passed before my eyes. I felt drowsy and was so nervous, I couldn't stand the least noise. Rheumatic pains darted all through me and it felt as if every nerve in my body was affected. Medicine didn't help me and I had little hope or strength left. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored me to health. I am now well and strong."

Success before me.

Modern Woman Is Superior to Grandmother

London.—The woman of today is intellectually and physically superior to her grandmother of the ever-ready bluish and the downcast eye. Her latchkey is the badge of her emancipation. She is no longer the wood but the worker. She has, and exercises, the right to select her own mate.

Dr. Alfred T. Schofield, the latest champion of the modern woman, advanced this courageous theory at a recent lecture at the Central hall, discussing that strangely tangled subject, "The Psychology of the Female Mind."

The subject, says Doctor Schofield, presents at the moment a dissolving view of great promise. The woman of early Victorian days has nearly disappeared, though she may still be found in remote country places—the gentle, quaint, prim, yet graceful lady with her tippet and poke bonnet, her samplers and her still room. But the new is better! The coming picture is on nobler and grander lines. The gentle submission and downcast eye may not be easy to find nowadays, but they have been replaced by the candid and clear look of complete emancipation and the upright figure of the freedom.

Marvel in Rapid Advance.

The marvel is that with such rapid advance there has not been more extravagance. Setting aside exceptions, nothing is more delightful and marvellous than the quiet, decent, self-respecting dignity of the modern latchkey young woman living in her own rooms in a large city. Very severe strictures have been passed on her dress. In these last few years, but that has been somewhat confused the causes. In all times of war and general upheaval similar caprice in women's dress has been observed, but that was not in any way the outcome of the emancipation of womanhood.

The remarkable lack of women's interests in their own minds, Doctor Schofield points out, is a very curious point. No doubt this is a survival of the past bad years. After the most careful search in the libraries of the world no works on psychology written by women are discoverable, save, perhaps, tentatively by that remarkable Swede, Ellen Key.

The world still waits for a true conception of the female mind written by a woman. The future of England and America largely depends on the quality of woman's mind today. A good physique is important to the next generation of woman, but the quality of her mind is of still greater importance than her body. In proposed legislation which is now being considered with regard to the prevention of a certain contagious disease, the question really turns on whether the health or the morals of a nation are of greater importance. In ultimate analysis there is no antagonism between health and morals.

Value of Man's Body.

In earlier times the value of man's body was supreme; a woman's mind then was cultivated better than a man's and her preponderance as a sex in spiritual matters was overwhelming. When man, however, substituted machinery for manual labor his bodily powers were heavily discounted and his success in life depended on his intellectual powers; at the same time his spiritual outlook approximated more nearly to that of a woman.

Since then the resemblance sexes has increased. The result is nowhere more than in the typical press John Bull. A hundred years ago the streets in this filled with portly, ruddy or jovial of visage, a cent from the more slightly attenuated dividends who are the modern John Bull.

The doctor's attention of ten years has been a miracle. The modern home is a very true inclusion of the modern man and woman.

Assured she will probably select her mate in a way that would now, with our false standards of conduct, be considered perfectly indecent, but going back to the mother of the resulting race, it seems only right she should do so. One thing is certain, that a large number of degrading unions which now take place would at once cease and the whole psychology of marriage would be raised to a higher level.

Until the economic position of women is altered woman is most unfairly handicapped. It is undoubtedly for the good of the individual, of the nation and of civilization itself that the financial position of a woman shall be assured as that of a man. Already the freedom of women has begun, but it is in vain to strike off the prisoner's shackles one by one so long as the most galling one of all is retained in the form of economic dependence. No doubt professional and business careers have to some small extent solved the problem, but much more is required. A radical change of view as to the provision of daughters as compared with sons seems to Doctor Schofield to be an essential step.

TO RETURN FRENCH HOTELS

Government Soon Will Give Back to Owners Hostilities Used for War Purposes.

Paris.—Hotels requisitioned for government offices are to be returned to their owners as soon as possible, according to advice received by the French cabinet. It is believed they will be ready to accommodate the flood of American visitors expected next summer.

There are 600 large hotels and 2,500 smaller hostilities in Paris. Of the latter 1,000 are suited for the tourist trade. Hotel men believe they can handle the tide of excursionists this year and intend to open a central bureau where strangers may be directed to satisfactory quarters.

Foreigners are barred from the hotel and restaurant business by a bill introduced in parliament by the government. The war revealed that many foreign hotel and restaurant owners were enemy agents. The bill forbids participation by aliens in the customs, transit or commission agency trade, information bureaus, employment agencies, munition factories, chemical works affecting national defense and the like.

MISS TERRY

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

Miss Terry put the potatoes on to bake, and went to spread a snowy luncheon cloth upon her mother's tray. Every day as the hands of the kitchen clock pointed to 11:30, Miss Terry did this very thing, the one exception being when the potatoes were either boiled, or creamed.

Ellen's father had been a stern man, permitting no gaiety or frivolity in his own domain.

Miss Terry was treated with respect by the community, her unselfish devotion a by-word. For few stopped to consider the weariness of her life's routine, or lingered to brighten its dullness. It was a vision of years to come, like those which had passed in sameness, which came to Ellen upon a certain morning as she put the luncheon cloth on her mother's tray. A change of some kind must be wrought, Ellen thought desperately, and when she had placed the tray before the grateful invalid, Ellen took up last night's "Farm Herald" and an advertisement caught her eye. "Young woman teaching in Lardula Academy would like board in quiet home," she read. Then Ellen Terry committed the one daring act of her life. She answered the advertisement, independently and without consulting her mother, then fearfully awaited reply. The answer came in person, Miss Betty Blair of Boston, presented herself for approval, and was apparently delighted over the prospect of her new boarding place. A new world opened to Miss Terry within the shelter of her own little home. Betty's presence seemed to fill each corner with new and joyous interest. The letters which she brought back from the little post office and shared confidentially with Ellen, were an interest in themselves.

"Was there never one that you cared about? Never, really, dear?"

Ellen had shaken her head vigorously, but after awhile, when the griddle cakes were carefully turned, she had said apropos of nothing: "Do you ever talk to Dan Wise, the postmaster, Betty? Dan's a real pleasant man. His wife died two years ago. He went off away from home."

"Dan Wise? He went off away from home?"

"Dan Wise? He went off away from home?"

Special Steels Eliminate Useless Weight in a MAXWELL

The reason the Maxwell engine is so responsive and yet thrifty, the reason the tires roll into big mileage is due largely to one fact: A Maxwell is burdened with no useless weight.

Special steels make this so. They are made to Maxwell's own formulae. No other steels in any car are just like them.

These special steels are of great strength and make possible the ideal Maxwell construction of brute strength with light weight.

Obviously, they are high priced metals. They equal, pound for pound, the steels in any car built.

The wisdom of their use in the Maxwell becomes evident when one observes the rapid growth in public favor of this remarkable car.

Consider that nearly 400,000 of them are now in use; that 100,000 more will be added to this total in 1920.

FEED THY KIDS BESIDE THE SHEPHERD'S TEST.

Much care is often bestowed on flowers and properly so. They are guarded against insects, placed in suitable atmosphere, preserved from intense heat of summer and protected from the frosts of winter that they may blossom in the parlor. Yet this careful care is denied the children, the very kind they need, for little things affect them and the defects of the spiritual life of home touch them and tell on their future. They should be constantly under the influence of the word of God and its authority. I have known of parents who took their little ones to great men that they might lay their hands on them and speak words that would influence their lives. Rather let them take them to Him who bless little children when He was on earth, and whose words are wiser and more inspiring than the wisest of earth and whose touch is more tender than a mother's. With profit mothers today may hear what was said to Hebrew mothers on this point. (Deut. 6: 6-9) Sow the seed and it will bless the heart and life in the future. But let not the father think that he has no part in this work, for through his indifference or carelessness much of good influence may be nullified. He should encourage and help in every possible way in feeding the kids. But alas! how often is the duty of instructing the child delegated to the Sabbath school teacher. The teachers instruction is not to be despised but they cannot do that for which God has instituted the family. It is the influence of parents above all others that arouses the attention and excites inquiry of the child. The parents can do the child more good than all others.

The family is God's school and it is a gross error to send them out of this to get in the Sabbath School what they ought to get at home. Solomon's rule still holds good. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." The will is the seat of responsibility in man and the executive power of the soul. With an enfeebled will a man is to be pitied. He is liable to be imposed upon, is incapable of great achievement, and with a perverted will a man is a monster of hideous men who is to be shunned, but if the volitions are right then the man appears as an agent for good. As the child comes from the first stages of the impressive state, it has absorbed much of the world; it begins to realize its powers and assert its supposed rights. New thoughts occupy the mind, new emotions fill the soul. Impatient of restraint, its desires like birdlings spread their wings to soar in the investigation of the unknown.

Should the child be left to the guidance of this will? The will clamors for the mastery, the critical period has come, but the will must be under the direction of experience. The breaks must be put upon the animal passions. The child must be kept on the narrow track, running free, but under the direction of Him who rules all things. How slow many are to heed the divine rule, in spite of the sad consequences of its neglect that are everywhere seen about us. Give an imitator will full sway and it will not be long in pulling down the structure of the child's being. Solomon says, "Correct thy son and he shall give thee rest." Yes, he shall give delight unto thy soul. Here is the line of duty made plain before us, but many from a false affection shirk it. A mere sentimental tenderness makes them different to the command of the Lord. The future destiny and influence of your child demands that you "train it up in the way it should go."

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS STATE SCHOLARSHIPS IN ENGINEERING COURSES.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Civil Engineering Building, Homewood, Monday-Saturday, June 21-26, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering established under the provisions of the laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. There is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 17, 1920, beginning at 9 A. M. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Cecil, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1920-1921, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the five counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the county and city scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in engineering unless free tuition be granted them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each county and in each legislative district of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expenses of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College.

One scholarship will be awarded "At Large." Applicants should address The Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarship, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28, 1920.

COAL LAND BRINGS BIG MONEY

138 Acres Near Grantsville Nets Estate $15,200.—Purchased by Mr. Charles A. Bender.

A large number of Grantsville people were in Oakland on Saturday, attracted to the county seat by the sale of the real estate and some coal property belonging to the estate of the late John Opel of Grantsville. The farm consisting of thirty acres, and which lies partly within the corporate limits of Grantsville, was purchased by Mrs. Opel for the sum of $5,500. The coal lands lying on the south side of the National Road and immediately west of Grantsville, comprising one hundred and forty-two acres, was purchased by Mr. Charles A. Bender, for $15,200. Mr. Bender has a producing mine adjoining the Opel lands and with the additional acreage his holdings become very valuable. The coal is the four-foot seam and is probably one of the best coals mined in the county. The sale was made by Messrs. Renninger & Offutt, trustees. Among those who were present at the sale were Mrs. Opel and her two daughters: Messrs. Peter Opel, Chas. A. Bender, Charles H. Bill, U. M. Stanton, John O. Getty, all of Grantsville, and John D. Miller, of Elk Lick.

NEW SCHOOL HEAD FOR MARYLAND IS SELECTED

Superintendent Cook of Baltimore, to Succeed Dr. M. Bates Stephens.

The State Board of Education at a meeting held in Baltimore on last Friday night elected Albert C. Cook, superintendent of schools of Baltimore county, to succeed Dr. M. Bates Stephens, of Caroline county, who had been State Superintendent for more than twenty years.

The election of a new superintendent had been anticipated ever since Governor Ritchie forced members of the old State Board to resign action in re-electing Dr. Stephens on the eve of the reorganization of the board and a few days prior to the going out of office of one of them. Although the chances were against him, Dr. Stephens made a desperate fight to be retained in the office, but held so long, and many of his friends rallied to his support.

Mr. Cook, the new superintendent, has been superintendent of schools of Baltimore county for 20 years, and at the time Dr. James H. Van Sickle was retired from the superintendency of the schools of Baltimore, Mr. Cook was mentioned prominently as Dr. Van Sickle's successor.

Mr. Cook is 46 years old. He was born in Franklin county, Pennsylvania, and after going through the public schools of his township was graduated from the State Normal School at Shenandoah. After teaching for a while in the schools of Franklin county he spent a year at Gettysburg College and then entered Princeton University, from which he was graduated in 1895. Later he spent four summers in the study of pedagogy at the Teachers' College of Columbia University. In 1906 Princeton conferred upon him the degree of master of arts for special work which he had done at Columbia.

OVERCOME BY GAS IN MINE

Jacob Yutzy Was Unconscious From 1 A. M. Until Noon Yesterday.

Jacob Yutzy, son of County Commissioner Jonas Yutzy, of Oakland, had an extremely narrow escape with his life yesterday morning when at four o'clock he was overcome by gas in the mine of the Turner-Douglas operation near Oakland and remained in an unconscious state until noon. Mr. Yutzy was engaged as pumpman at the mine, his duties requiring him to keep in operation a pump driven by a gasoline engine which keeps the workings clear of water. He went to work on Monday and was on duty for forty-eight hours when the air in the mine became foul and he was overcome. Fortunately his condition was discovered by the men going to work yesterday morning and he was taken from the mine, almost lifeless, where first-aid was given him. Later a physician arrived and with restorative measures he was brought back to consciousness after more than eight hours' work.

When Mr. Yutzy's condition was discovered by the men at the mine he was in such state that the merest sign of life was perceptible and it was stated by the superintendent that an other half hour in the mine would have had a fatal result.

Report Made To The Court Yesterday Afternoon and Body Discharged.

The grand jury for the June Term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, of which Mr. John O. Getty, of Grantsville, was the foreman, made its report to the Court yesterday afternoon just at the closing hour of the day's session and was discharged by Judge Boyd from further duty at the present time. The report of the grand jury at this hour is not available, but it is understood that sixteen indictments, most of which were for minor offenses were found by the body.

On the civil side of the Court during the week a number of cases were heard and determined, but in none of these was the services of a jury required the Court acting both as judge and jury. No cases thus tried were of public interest.

At the close of the session yesterday afternoon Judge Boyd adjourned court until Monday morning, at which time the criminal docket will be taken up and disposed of, Judge Boyd returning to his Cumberland home yesterday evening.

NO BALLOT UNTIL TONIGHT

Republican National Convention Decide Stand On League of Nations Today

While the Republican National Convention holds daily routine sessions at Chicago and the managers of the candidates continue to hustle and hope and predict, the real fight for the moment has switched back to the League of Nations.

It centers upon the question of whether the Republican party is going to declare flatly against the League of Nations or whether it is going to declare for a league with reservations.

While the delegates were assembling in the Coliseum yesterday where Senator Lodge and the remainder of the temporary organization was made the permanent one and to hear nothing more exciting than a prayer and a speech by Chauncey M. Depew, the League of Nations fight was being carried on in a committee room where a dozen men, representing the reservationists and the irreconcilables were gathered.

The irreconcilable swear they will fight to the last ditch to prevent the Republican party from going before the country with any sort of endorsement of the league idea, and thus become the "tail to President Wilson's kite," as Senator Johnson himself put it. The element opposed to them argues it will be a sorry thing for the party if their views prevail.

So involved has the fight become that the first ballot upon the nominees that will be placed before the convention during the hours of today that the first ballot will not be taken until tonight.

All the leading candidates are keyed up to the highest tension and all claim that they will be nominated.

"WETS" ARE IN DESPAIR.
BUT SOME FEW HOPE ON Prohibition Officer Dodson Says Enforcement Will Go On.

The blade of Constitutional tests having failed to cut the strands of prohibition, the "wet" advocates on sides now admit they have de-paired of solving the Gordian knot through any means except by undoing, under a long-drawn-out political campaign what has been done. Some believe this will never be accomplished; others hold out some hope, but don't think the present generation will ever live to see it.

All is not pessimism, however, and there are those optimistic enough to rejoice in the Supreme Court's having given out its decision in time for the coming Presidential election. They say that the issue is, as a result, made more clear-cut than ever and the prediction is made that the candidate of one or the other of the two larger parties will come out openly on a "wet" plank for abolition of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Richard S. Dodson, Maryland Director of Prohibition, gave out a statement Tuesday of how his office is affected by the Supreme Court's action, he said:

"My office has been doing its utmost to enforce prohibition since its inception on the ground that the act was valid until declared otherwise by the Supreme Court. Personally, I had felt confident all along that the finding of the tribunal would be in its favor."

"Our intention is to continue enforcement in the future as it has been conducted in the past—in the best of our ability—although we are now short-handed. But I believe there will be less willful violations, now that the citizens have their Supreme Court's decision."

"It is my opinion that some of the remaining wholesale liquor dealers who are doing business on permits to purchase will promptly go out of business rather than now face the stringent regulations before them. They have signified this intention in their talks with me."

J. Bibb Mills, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, was at Washington as the representative of the legal department of the Anti-Saloon League of America when the Supreme Court handed down its decision on Monday. He acted for Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the League, who is at Chicago.

"When the Court read off its decision, I made a note of the action on each of the points," said Mr. Mills. "I hastened to a telephone and got a long distance call through to Mr. Wheeler. He bubbled over with delight when I informed him of the victory on the 11 points, all of which were reviewed and upheld by the Court."

Mr. Mills said he agreed with Mr. Dodson that the enforcement up to now has been very satisfactory here. "All indications," declared he, "are that there has been very little bootlegging in Baltimore, and no open selling as reported from some other localities."

Loar Summer Home Sold to Baltimore Party.

Mr. C. T. Riley, of Baltimore, has purchased the magnificent summer home of Mr. Lawson L. Loar, located a half mile from Oakland on the Deer Park road, and will occupy it with his family within a short time. The property consists of a large and well furnished dwelling, with modern improvements, barn, garage, and other splendid buildings, and contains about nineteen acres of lawn, orchard and woodland. The property is one of the best appointed homes in this section. While the consideration was not given it is understood that more than $15,000 was paid for the property.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mr. J. B. Doman, of Clarksburg, brother of Mr. T. B. Doman, of the Park, has purchased the Jolliffe cottage located near the Mountain Lake Hotel and has a number of men at work upon it installing baths, electric lights and other improvements that will make it one of the most desirable properties in the Park.

The splendid weather that we have been having lately is making it possible, by continuous hustling, to get the Park ready for the summer season, which is now nearly upon us.

We are glad to know that Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Crane, of Kingwood, who but recently returned after spending the winter in California, are now located for the summer in their home at Loch Lynn Heights. Both Mr. and Mrs. Crane are well and favorably known by a large circle of friends in the Park and at Oakland.

The old auditorium has been re-roofed and re-floored and is now receiving a fresh coat of white material, and all the public buildings are being freshened up with a coat of suitably colored paint.

Among other improvements made to the various buildings we note that the north wall of the amphitheatre is being rebuilt; an up-to-date booth has been built at the entrance of this structure in which the moving picture machine will be housed which we predict will be the means of affording much pleasure and entertainment for the crowds who will be present this summer when the moving picture plant is put in operation.

We are pleased to note the presence of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Richardson and their daughter, who motored to the Park from their home at Piedmont, West Va. on Sunday arriving here about the noon hour. Mr. Richardson's recent affliction whereby he lost his foot has not taken from him his noble good nature nor his ability to play checkers. He is open to all comers, including our champion, Capt. Hayden.

The engine for the electric light plant at the Park has been thoroughly overhauled during the past two or three months and is now in place at the station in the Park; also a new stack for the boiler has been received and has been erected, so we hope to have an abundance of lights in a very short time.

The Deaconess Home, the Braethorn the Dixie and Rosemont are now open for guests.

The news from the hospital in Cumberland where Mr. W. C. Dunnington, proprietor of the Mountain Lake Hotel, is a patient, he having been taken to that city for a surgical operation about two weeks ago, is most encouraging and we may expect to have him back with us in a short time, we are pleased to say.

Many cottagers have arrived for the summer season.

A new boardwalk is being built from the bridge crossing the Little Yough to the bowling alley thus replacing the old one, and the remainder of the walk is being placed in excellent repair.

The lake is now ready for boating. New boats are expected to arrive in a short time.

Mr. Larney Carr and Mrs. Carr, who have been at Fairmont for several weeks, have returned to the Park, and are at home in their cottage at this time.

HUTTON

On last Sabbath morning at the hour of ten o'clock one of the most beautiful ritualistic services of the Catholic church was observed in Pendergast's hall at Hutton when the largest assemblage of worshippers ever known to collect in the community were present at the celebration of the Holy Mass. The solemnity of the occasion was awe inspiring as well as highly edifying to all of those who assisted at this devotion.

Attorney E. R. Jones, of Oakland, passed through Hutton Sunday morning for Terra Alta, where he spent the day with relatives and friends.

Mr. Jerry J. Pendergast and sister Miss Anna M., went to Cumberland Saturday evening, where they visited friends, returning to Hutton Sunday.

Mr. Robert Sliger, of Oakland, was a recent business visitor to this section.

On Monday of last week a very impressive ceremony occurred in the hall at Hutton when a large number of children professed the faith of their fathers and made a solemn renewal of their first Holy Communion. The altar had been temporarily erected for this occasion was magnificently decorated with the choicest of blossoms. The Rev. Father Connell, of Oakland, was the officiating minister at the services held both Sunday and Monday.

The sad intelligence of the death on Thursday of Mr. Michael Faherty, a former resident of this place, was conveyed to his relatives and friends of this community by means of the following brief message from Cumberland: "Mr. Michael Faherty, aged 38 years, was instantly killed this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when a runaway dumping car crushed him against the rear end of a shifting engine at the Kelly-Springfield tire plant site on River road, near Cumberland, Md."

The deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Faherty, and is survived by four sisters and two brothers, namely: Mrs. F. J. Fleming of Baltimore; Mrs. J. Hodley, of Keyser; Mrs. Patrick Burk and Mrs. J. Clark, both of Cumberland; Mr. Thos. Faherty, also of Cumberland, and Mr. Stephen Faherty of this village. The deceased had been working for the tire company as a switchman for about three weeks, having previously been employed in a like capacity by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. The remains of the deceased were sent from Cumberland to Oakland on Monday morning where after services in St. Peter's Catholic church conducted by a priest of St. Mary's parish in Cumberland, the body was interred in the local Catholic cemetery. A large number of friends from Cumberland accompanied the funeral party to Oakland, returning to their homes the same afternoon.

"Nenth a flowery mantle they laid him, The truest and kindest of friends; Pilgrims, we too, are hastening onward

To meet him at the journey's end. No more shall we hear the glad sound of his laughter, Nor e'er will we feel the warm clasp of his hand; For the angel of death has called Michael to heaven

Where may God bid him rest in the spiritual land.

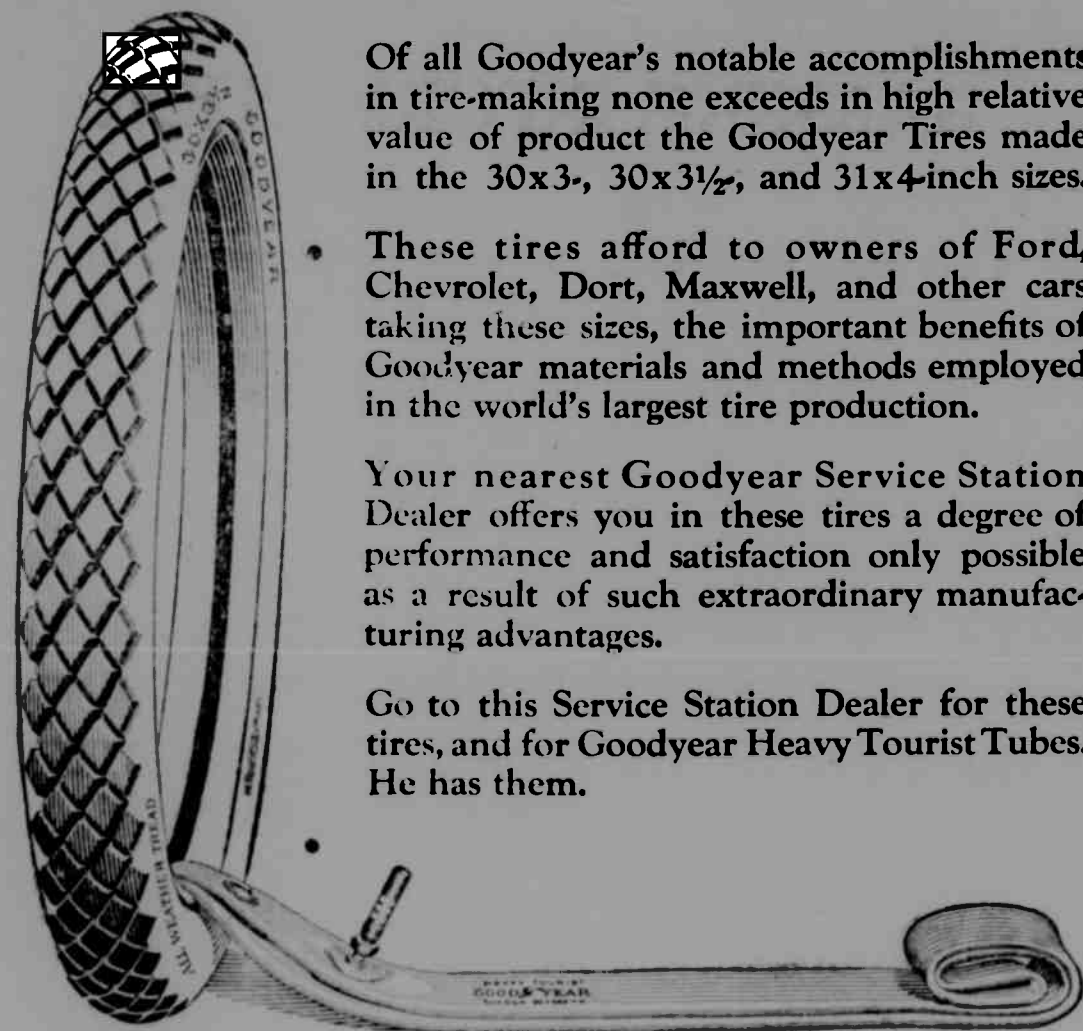

Mrs. Jean Gander visited friends in Hutton on Sunday.

Misses Anna and Loretta Carney, of Clarksburg, were visiting home folks recently.

Mr. Charles Carr returned to Hutton Sunday after a brief visit to his family at Wellsboro, Pa. Mr. Thomas Hughes of Terra Alta, was a Hutton visitor recently.

DODSON

We have been silent for several weeks past but nevertheless we have been digesting the interesting letters from other sections of the county and at last we decided that Dodson was a too important town to keep quiet.

The coal mines here have been unable to run full capacity due to car shortage. We are satisfied the delay will soon be overcome and the busy barge will be itself again.

Supt. and Mrs. A. J. Garrett and little daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and Chief Clerk W. I. Kinkead spent one day last week in Oakland on business.

Mr. Walter B. Callis, meat cutter for the Dodson Supply Company, has decorated the interior of the meat shop which adds much to the appearance of the Supply Company's store.

Dr. Henry W. McComas, of Oakland, was here one day last week on professional business.

Mr. C. E. Nine and family, old residents of Dodson, have moved to Morgantown, W. Va., where they have purchased a home in the University town and also where Mr. Nine has accepted a responsible position.

Quite a number of the young folks of this town went to Gettysburg May 31st on the W. M. excursion. All reported a delightful time. Many, who had never before seen the battlefield, will hold the picture in their memory that will never fade.

Messrs. W. I. Kinkead and John Fitzwater attended the Dan Cupid show at Kitzmiller last Thursday evening.

Mr. Gomer Williams, of Kulpmont, Pa., has moved his family here. Mr. Williams is in charge of the new amusement hall which is now completed and will be opened in a few days. Visitors say it is the finest hall along the Western Maryland Railroad.

Dr. Melody of Oakland, made a professional call here last Wednesday. Mr. C. N. Morgan, cost engineer, spent last Tuesday in Keyser or business.

Messrs. John Amtower, Albert Nine and John Fitzwater made a business call at Oakland last Tuesday evening in Mr. Nine's new car.

Dr. T. B. Crittendon, wife and Miss Ellen Garris were visiting friends in Franfort, W. Va.

Mr. Harry Adams and family spent Decoration day at their old home in Franfort, W. Va.

Mr. Lee Schlagee, of Asklund, Pa., is here on an extended visit with his sister, Mrs. Robert W. Thomas.

The Uniform Rank of the M. W. P. A's held a very interesting meeting last Wednesday evening where the Rank of St. Elmo was conferred on a class of candidates, after which refreshments were served and a general good old time meeting was had. Many interesting subjects were discussed by Grand Empress Mrs. Crittendon, Mrs. Dellinger and Miss Annie Adams. The Rank contemplated holding an all-day reunion at River Side Park in July when all the Uniform Ranks in the State will receive an invitation to be present. The next meeting will be held at the friends.

Mr. N. H. Tenney, engineer of this home of Mrs. J. Garrett.

Mrs. Dan McRobie is on an extended visit with friends in Pennsylvania looking after interest in the oil wells, returning here Monday morning.

Mrs. E. J. Adams, of Cumberland, Md here Monday morning.

GIVING NATURE FAIR CHANCE DYES FROM VARIOUS SOURCES

Sluggard Quite Willing to Lie A-bed While She Did a Good Job of Repair Work.

"Arise!" we said in a tone admirably adapted for declamatory purposes, addressing the sluggard, who was still slugging at an unreasonably late hour. "The lark is up to meet the sun. The bee is on the wing. Remember the manner in which the inexperienced schoolboy read aloud the admonition to Lucy: He had been taught that when he encountered two letters of the same kind he should pronounce them 'double-o' or whatever they might be, instead of 'o, o.' So he sternly recited, not 'Up, up, Lucy!' but 'Double up, Lucy!' The sun is in the sky, and so forth. Why do you not double up, and in your tasks away?"

"That is a very good story," replied the sluggard, "but it does not move me. We are told that nature does most of her repair work on us while we are in bed. It is my intention to lie here until she fixes me up so that I feel like going to work."—Kansas City Star.

Indian Squaw Lays Many Plants and Trees Under Contribution for Her Bright Colorings.

In making Indian dyes the stems of the maidenhair fern and the bark of the willow produce a dark brown; a shining black from the chaws of the unicorn plant; a brilliant red from the yucca roots and numerous mineral and vegetable substances yield for her a variety of colors. The season for gathering the fibers for baskets is when the stalk has finished growing and before it hardens. These the squaw splits and rolls them in cloths or bark and lays them away for future use. When about to be used the split withers are soaked in tepid water and woven when still saturated with water. Some tree roots, as spruce and cedar, require many weeks of soaking before they are free of all soft matter and ready to be woven.

SAVED ZEBRAS.

"Would you like to hear my story?" asked the zebra.

"Very much," said the others.
"Well, you know," said the zebra, "I do have to laugh when I see little babies being brought to the zoo and being fed on bottles."

"Why does it make you laugh?" the others asked.

"Oh, I can't help but laugh," he said. "I can't help but laugh."

"Do tell us why," the others asked.

"You see," said the zebra, "I was brought up on a bottle and so when I see those babies acting as though they were so proud of their bottle and clutching it so hard as though they wouldn't let anyone else have a show at all I feel like laughing and saying: 'There, there, little man, or little lady, whichever you plan to be, you mustn't think that you're the only creature to have a bottle, and you mustn't think that babies are the only ones to have bottles. No indeed for this zebra was brought up on one.'"

"I was brought up on a bottle, too," said one of the other zebras in the zoo.

"Yes, I heard about you, too," said the first zebra. "As you are older won't you tell your story first and how it happened with you? You're Mr. General, aren't you? Allow me to present to you the other animals."

"Of course, the second zebra knew the other animals as well as the first zebra, but the zebra was very happy and jolly this day and he thought this would make every one a little more friendly.

"How do you do, Mr. General Zebra," they all said, bowing their heads and swishing their tails and speaking in their best voices.

"How do you do, everybody," said the second zebra. "But you know it isn't correct to say Mr. General. I don't want to be rude, you see, but I just thought I'd like to explain."

"Of course, of course," they all said. "So it isn't correct to say Mr. General," asked the first zebra. "Well, I'm glad to know that, I'm glad to know it. The more I know, the more I'll know. Ha, ha, you all thought I was going to say something different, eh? I fooled you all. Ha, ha."

"So all the animals laughed and then they said: 'Tray, General, tell us your story.'"

"Well," said the General, "I'm but a zebra, but I was named after a very famous general named Pershing. I'm three years old now."

"Well," said the others, "that was a great honor. That was fine, really fine, to think that a zebra should be named after a great general like that."

"Well, you see," said the zebra, "my keeper was a great admirer of the general's and is still for that matter and always will be, too, and when I was born he said: 'I must name this zebra after my hero.' And he did."

"Well, you know that our mothers are very apt to sit on us here in the zoo when we're born and so when I was born the keeper hurried me away from my mother so I wouldn't be used as a pillow. So that I would be kept from being suffocated that way—which is a long word meaning not to breathe because one's nose and breathing parts are covered up and one can't—he took me off. That's not the sort of ideal sentence a general would make, but remember I'm a zebra and I'm trying to explain things in simple zebra language."

"The keeper brought me up on a bottle until I was strong and well and here I am, a healthy striped zebra. Now tell us your story, first zebra."

"I, too, was snatched from my mother, whose name is Gram, because the keeper feared the same thing might happen to me as almost happened to you. Then I, too, was brought up on a bottle. It's quite a fine thing I think to be classed in with little babies who have blue eyes or brown eyes. And I was named Victory because I was born on Memorial day. We have nice names, eh, General?"

"You're right," said the general. "You're right."

"TAKING STOCK"

Should Sentiment Always Have Precedence?

"Taking stock" of oneself is a periodical duty, probably not always practiced, and is as necessary as taking stock of your household effects or your "store goods." The right minded man will do this. In untroubled moments he gives way to deep meditation; he gathers his thoughts to ascertain if brains, energy, and ability are synop- tizing properly, working together on lines that answer to an ambition that looks for a satisfactory return. If there be a deficit, his endeavor should be to discover the leakage. It may be that he lacks the nerve to go into a retrospective analysis, or fails in initiative that will prompt him to throw his horoscope in the future. Unless he can do these things he will never be able to pull himself out of any "rut" in which his condition has placed him. He must "take stock."

"Stock taking" leads to modern-day efficiency, and is demanded of every worker if unsatisfactory conditions are to be overcome. In the case of the farmer it may be that he is working a "too high-priced farm"; interest and rent may be an "overhead" eating up the profits. There may be other reasons why profits are not shown. It is just possible that he is sacrificing profit and encouraging loss because of sentiment, but he does not realize that this is the cause. The farm was his birthplace; reared upon it, he knows every nook and corner of the old place. He fished in the brook, hunted squirrels in the woods, hid in the hayfield, grew to manhood upon the place, courted and married and brought up his family there. Those are ties that commend themselves, and why shouldn't sentiment have a say? To many this will appeal. But are these good reasons to continue? Does not one owe it to himself and to his dependents to "take stock," and put into effect action that will bring a balance on the credit side of the ledger—the balance that will bring happiness and give a comfort far greater than a mass of unpaid bills and a house full of worry, and a devotion to sentiment? Should he not look around for more favorable conditions, which may easily be found?

Procrastination is said to be a thief. In this case the axiom is undoubtedly true. To allow the adverse conditions under which you may be laboring to continue may keep you for years longer in the present unsatisfactory position.

There was a man at Brazil, Ind., who made weekly visits for upward of a year to the office of the Canadian government at Indianapolis, Ind., and from the agent secured all the information he possibly could as to conditions in Western Canada. But he lacked decision, did not "take stock," or if he took it, failed to act. This was fourteen years ago. He lived on a small farm, which gave him a mere existence, and no promise of anything more. He is still on the same place and no better off today than then. He had a friend working in a glass factory, who also had but little means. He became interested in Western Canada. He possessed, though, spirit and action. With the impulse thus prompted he moved to Saskatchewan and took up a farm. Today he is the owner of a splendid section of land, has plenty of money in the bank, and could retire with a handsome competence.

That which has been the good fortune of the Brazil glass worker, who had "taken stock" and profited by it, may be that which will follow any other of like temperament and a firm wish to erect for a satisfactory future.

Western Canada submits for consideration and approval conditions in agricultural lines that are exceptional. There is land there that annually produces about the same return as any other farming land, and it can be purchased at but a portion of what the place which has not been a source of profit can be sold for. A section instead of a quarter-section, worked under western conditions, with no more effort, solves the big "overhead" expense. The social conditions, which are an important factor in deciding on a new home location, are ideal.—Advertisement.

COUNTY KIDDIES DON'T GET SQUARE DEAL.

The eleven million school boys and girls who attend rural schools are not getting a square deal, according to Hon. Thomas E. Fineman, state superintendent of public instruction for Pennsylvania. He says that while city children have the privilege of ten months of public school education, rural children have only five months. He says that the best of equipment as to teachers, school buildings and school room conveniences, also courses of study that the rural schools are as a whole less well equipped than the city schools.

"During May I traveled through four states, including my own, and saw rural schools. They are in a sorry state. They are not equipped with the time required by their state law for attending schools. Some states require only 100 days of rural school attendance," said Prof. Fineman. "While most of the city schools require at least 200 days. Such a situation places the country child at a disadvantage."

We also have been putting the poorest teachers and poorest equipment in our rural schools, when only the best of each is available. "Courses of study should also be rearranged," Prof. Fineman added. "Rural schools are not equipped with the same facilities as city schools. They are not equipped with the same facilities as city schools. They are not equipped with the same facilities as city schools."

NOW WE KNOW WHAT IT IS. These are the conditions that exist in the rural schools of Pennsylvania. We are not getting a square deal for our country children. We are not getting a square deal for our country children. We are not getting a square deal for our country children.

erous. "All hope abandon, ye who enter here" is not true alone of hell; it should have been inscribed in flaming letters over the so-called "family entrance" of the rum shop.

There was never a more sinister phrase than that, the saloon in the "poor man's club." That lure deluded many a man, but it was merely another way the saloon had of baiting its prey. Look over the records of local politics everywhere, and you will find the saloon as the bulwark of the corruptionist, and the partner of the vice. Throughout all time its baleful influences hung like a dark heavy cloud over every community effort for decency and progress.

Hence the saloon had to go, if life in America was to be all that we hoped and planned for it in health, vigor and contentment. Liquor had to go—had to go absolutely—because the saloon could not be trusted to obey a moderate law. It would defy and break any law enacted except unqualified prohibition, nation-wide. Hence prohibition has come and the saloon is responsible for it. The country has rid itself of that poisonous influence. At every family fire-side a fervent "Thank God" must have been uttered when the news reached it Monday.

BAUGHMAN WILL ENFORCE NEW AUTOMOBILE LAWS

First List Of Approved Headlight Devices Will Be Received Monday.

The first list of approved headlight devices will be received from the New York testing laboratories by Automobile Commissioner E. Austin Baughman on Monday. Under the new headlight law, which went into effect on Tuesday of last week, clear-glass lenses are a violation of the law and the patented non-glare devices which do not pass the tests which the State Headlight Commission has formulated, will make the users equally liable to arrest and fine.

A few days of grace have been allowed numerous regulations which became effective on June 1, and which Baughman will better familiarize them with the requirements. Within the next 30 days all owners of motor cars must make application for a certificate of title. Application blanks have been mailed to those who are now holding licenses for automobiles. The registration fee is $1. To secure a title it will be necessary to furnish the Automobile Commissioner with a full description of the car for which it is desired to secure a title. If it should be found that the owner of a car should have a license, he must apply for it within the time which he must apply for it is shortened to 60 days.

It was not so difficult for the automobile commissioner to find out who have not complied with the law. His files will reveal that. Some of the names will be the same as those of the first of January last, and the title has been secured and the car is now being operated. When the law is fully operative, the commissioner believes that it will be the same, some of the names will be the same as those of the first of January last, and the title has been secured and the car is now being operated.

MAKES RECORD FLIGHT

May Albert Smith, United States army aviator, who has established a one-day flight record by piloting a De Havilland plane from Camp Lewis, Tacoma, Wash., to Rockwell field, San Diego, Cal., in 11 hours 13 minutes of flying time. He demonstrated the practicability of air travel from Canada to Mexico in daylight of a single day, although his own landing was made after nightfall. His flight was of approximately 1,300 miles with three stops en route.

ALIENS LEAVE BY WHOLESALE

6,000 Are Sailing Weekly for Europe Where Dollar Is Potent.

CAUSE OF LABOR SHORTAGE

Difficulties of Traveling in Europe and Danger of Losing Their Money Has No Influence on Aliens Eager to Return.

New York.—Wholesale re-emigration of aliens in America began last April and is continuing in ever growing numbers. Steamship ticket agents agree that 6,000 are leaving for Europe weekly, although the immigration is confined to Italians and Belgians.

I have been in contact with a great number of alien laborers in the United States since my return from Europe in January and I find that a great percentage of them are preparing to leave the states, writes Joseph Szobenyi in the New York Times. Among the Hungarians and those coming from the newly formed states in eastern Europe, 50 per cent are about to return to the old country.

The resultant labor shortage especially is being felt already, and employers of alien labor are forced to advertise continually in order to replace the hands leaving week after week. They are spending thousands of dollars on advertisements in Slovak and Hungarian papers. Mining companies especially prefer Hungarian workers because they are steady and hard workers, doing jobs no others would do, and earning in most cases up to $120 a week.

The causes of the wholesale re-emigration may be found in the following facts:

1. Alien laborers have saved up money during the war, when they were barred from sending it home, and, according to bankers dealing exclusively with them, they have an average of $3,000. If we take what a dollar is worth in eastern Europe, it is easy to comprehend that the worker exchanging his dollars into kronen becomes the richest man in his village, a lure very few could withstand. For $3,000 he gets as much as 750,000 kronen, enough to buy out the richest landlord in his district.

2. Prohibition.

3. The laborer has not seen his family, many have not even heard from them, for six to ten years.

4. The high cost of living in America. Geza D. Berko, managing editor of the Hungarian Daily, who has his finger on the alien movements in America more than any one else, when questioned on the subject said:

"The re-emigration is slow because there is not sufficient shipping. There are only five steamers weekly available for eastern Europe at present, and yet 6,000 are leaving by them. Should the sailing facilities improve, and the passport question be simplified, it will grow by leaps and bounds."

5. Cannot Be Discouraged.

The manager of Emil Kiss' banking house, the largest bank agents on the east side, said that they were discouraging re-emigration as much as possible, and explained to applicants the difficulties of traveling in Europe, the danger of losing their kits and money on the way.

"Yet it is impossible to persuade them to stay," the clerks assert. "There are letters from former travelers who say that they have been cheated and robbed of their possessions, arrived home stripped of everything, yet you can't induce them to stay."

"Do you discourage exchange of dollars as well?" I asked.

"No, but the constant fall in the exchange makes it difficult. By the time the man arrives home he gets more for his dollars, so he prefers taking it in cash, as most of them are ignorant people who mistrust drafts. Now, in traveling through Europe the victim for you can't call him by any other name—scoundrel, law in every country prohibiting the export of dollars. If he lands in France his money is exchanged into francs, in Germany into marks, in Austria or Jugoslavia into kronen, being 10 or more per cent everywhere."

Some of the re-emigrants travel through five countries and thus lose 50 per cent of their money on forced exchange. In France there are even graver difficulties, for even the export of French money to exceed 1,000 francs is prohibited. The traveler must get a state permit, a procedure taking sometimes weeks. The whole of Europe is hungry for dollars.

THE SILVER YATAGHAN

By LILY WANDEL

(© 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Alcina thoughtfully chewed the end of her pencil in Mrs. Mawson's great library. She was off in a corner with her typewriter and letters, but she was not thinking of work. Tomorrow was a holiday and in the evening there was to be a fancy dress ball. Phil, her brother, in a rare burst of brotherly interest had promised to take her to the festivity. "You're getting to be a regular little mouse and I'm going to take you out among people," he had said patronizingly. "Now, don't worry and be bashful; I'll scare up a few fellows to dance with you, but of course you can't expect to be the belle of the evening and all that sort of thing. Get yourself a costume—something that suits you; be a Quakeress or a schoolmarm."

She had nodded and thanked him, but inwardly resolved to throw off her little mouse cloak and be somebody else just for one evening. "I'm sick and tired of being the sedate private secretary. I'm just as fond of being jolly as any other girl. I'd have half a chance. And I'm going to have it, too. A masquerade ball is just the thing!" And then and there she decided to go as a Turkish vamp!

At home in a locked bedroom drawer lay the costume quite handy—yellow silk trousers, crimson bolero jacket and white lustrous chemise, red turban and floating, filmy veil, even turned-up Turkish slippers and a wonderful black and red sash. It was a perfect outfit; she really would look like a Turkish woman, but she wanted to be a vamp! Something was needed, a little touch—she did not know what. So she continued to bite the unoffending pencil and stare with wrinkled forehead at the high bookcases, antique shields and sword scabbards, until the sun had faded away. Her little typewriter table hung a queer looking thing, a dagger or knife, thought Alcina idly. Very black and tarnished, an odd handle, too, the usual crossbar missing and the blade more than a foot long, fastened in the scabbard double cross. On the handle something was engraved, curious characters—she rose to see it better—why—that must be a Turkish inscription. Oh, now she knew, the dagger was a Turkish yataghan! Suppose it were polished and gleaming? Tuck it in her sash, she thought, and before Alcina knew what she was doing she had laid her hands in his! It was a silent but true promise of future partnership in the silver yataghan!

A very pale, quiet social secretary crept into the great gloomy library for work that morning. She raised two worried eyes to the bare spot where the yataghan had hung—but Alcina drew back, actually frightened, then hastened to touch it to see if it was real and not an optical illusion. No, it was the silver yataghan, there was no possible mistake. "I don't understand it," she said aloud; "it's the most remarkable thing that ever happened."

"Not really so very remarkable, considering that I put it there," said a voice strangely familiar. Alcina swung around to see a tall young man quite unknown to her.

"Don't you really remember your devoted tormentor?" he questioned, coming nearer.

Alcina gasped. "How on earth did you get here and how do you know me, if you please?"

"I think I would recognize the dark eyes of my Turkish vamp anywhere, but seriously I owe you an apology. I took the yataghan last night—you see it happened to be my yataghan. I recognized it immediately. But if I had had an idea that it would make you leave I never would have done it in the wide world. When I could not find you anywhere, then I left, too."

Alcina, mortified, her breath coming fast, answered, very disturbed, "Then you must be Mrs. Mawson's youngest son?"

He nodded. "I am very much ashamed of myself for causing you an anxious moment over that old knife. And I'm going to confess still further. When I came home night before last I happened to glance in the library, and lo and behold a very charming young woman was taking down my old Turkish yataghan and putting it in her muff. I wondered what on earth she could possibly mean with that sword. On questioning her I found out who you were and that you intended to go to a fancy dress ball. Then and there I decided that I was going to the ball, too, but it was not the silver yataghan that made me go! Please forgive me, and let's be friends!" He held out both hands, honestly and before Alcina knew what she was doing she had laid her hands in his! It was a silent but true promise of future partnership in the silver yataghan!

KEEP DELAWARE RICH

People of Other States Contribute the Cash.

Purse Overflowing With Fees From Corporations From Every Direction.

Dover, Del.—Most states are governed by the high cost of government. But not Delaware!

As a financier Delaware has Wall Street beaten 40 ways.

This state taps the purses of people in the other states.

Wherefore $1,500,000 excess funds now lie in the state treasury—the most money Delaware ever had.

The easy income is derived from issuing charters to corporations. Delaware has "bond laws." You can take out a charter for a corporation doing anything from yellow gold to blue sky.

Hundreds of corporations all over the country are chartered under Delaware laws.

Pay Delaware a charter fee, and your attorney spends once a year to hold an "annual meeting," pay your yearly charter tax regularly—that's all there is to do. Stock doesn't even have to be paid for, only subscribed.

The state has cost as well as sports corporations. The General Motors company last year paid Delaware a fee of more than $200,000 when it increased its capitalization, because it was chartered here.

There's so much money in the state treasury the legislature at its coming session will transfer $500,000 to the school fund, enabling counties to keep the school tax rate under 50 cents per $100.

Fifty thousand dollars a mile is being spent for 50 miles of concrete highways. The state will soon have 600 fireproof schools. Delaware does not tax property—the rest of the United States keeps her rich.

Fish Industry Is Ruined.

Salmon in Washington Depleted by Foreigners.

State Fisheries Commission Urges That They Be Barred From State Waters.

Olympia, Wash.—Washington's salmon industry, once among the leading in the state's activities, has been almost depleted by the intensive fishing of the last six years, L. H. Darwin, state fish commissioner, declared in his annual report filed with Gov. Louis F. Hart.

Creation by the legislature of a fisheries commission to take full charge of fishing operations in Washington waters was recommended by Mr. Darwin.

He urged that foreigners be barred from fishing in the state waters, because, he said, the destruction in a large part, has been accomplished by persons not citizens of the United States. During the war, he said, foreign fishermen banded themselves together, took the lead in the industry and increased the prices.

Sockeye salmon runs of the Puget sound have almost been wiped out by the heavy fishing, the report stated. The silver and chum or dog salmon have also been reduced in number.

The humpback salmon runs probably will be attacked by the fishermen next and, in a few years, the commissioner predicted, they, too, probably will be depleted.

Columbia river, Grays harbor and Willapa harbor waters of Washington sound, Mr. Darwin said, largely because of the greatly increased hatchery work. But as the fishermen are beginning to take immature salmon and are preventing the fish from reaching their spawning grounds, it is probable these waters will suffer more in the near future.

Jobless, Triplets Welcome.

Former Soldier Overjoyed When Stork Raps Triple on His Little Flat.

New York.—The prize optimists of Greater New York were found in a little three-room flat.

They are Frank Cangoni, former soldier, and his wife, parents of six children.

Three of the children are newly born triplets—all girls—and the reason Mr. and Mrs. Cangoni take all honors for optimism is that despite the fact that he is out of employment they accept their rare gift with deep gratitude and believe themselves lucky.

The new babies are Mabel, Catherine and Genevieve, and they have been christened to avoid a mistake.

The landlord of the tenement house in which the Cangonis live has agreed to keep the family until fortune smiles on them. Frank can always get enough to buy food and the mother and babies are doing well. He was in Mexico with the Twelfth regiment.

ALIENS LEAVE BY WHOLESALE

6,000 Are Sailing Weekly for Europe Where Dollar Is Potent.

CAUSE OF LABOR SHORTAGE

Difficulties of Traveling in Europe and Danger of Losing Their Money Has No Influence on Aliens Eager to Return.

New York.—Wholesale re-emigration of aliens in America began last April and is continuing in ever growing numbers. Steamship ticket agents agree that 6,000 are leaving for Europe weekly, although the immigration is confined to Italians and Belgians.

I have been in contact with a great number of alien laborers in the United States since my return from Europe in January and I find that a great percentage of them are preparing to leave the states, writes Joseph Schenzel in the New York Times. Among the Hungarians and those coming from the newly formed states in eastern Europe, 50 per cent are about to return to the old country.

The resultant labor shortage especially is being felt already, and employers of alien labor are forced to advertise continually in order to replace the hands leaving week after week. They are spending thousands of dollars on advertisements in Slovak and Hungarian papers. Mining companies especially prefer Hungarian workers because they are steady and hard workers, doing jobs no others would do, and earning in most cases up to $120 a week.

The causes of the wholesale re-emigration may be found in the following facts:

1. Alien laborers have saved up money during the war, when they were barred from sending it home, and, according to bankers dealing exclusively with them, they have an average of $3,000. If we take what a dollar is worth in eastern Europe, it is easy to comprehend that the worker exchanging his dollars into kronen becomes the richest man in his village, a lure very few could withstand. For $3,000 he gets as much as 750,000 kronen, enough to buy out the richest landlord in his district.

2. Prohibition.

3. The laborer has not seen his family, many have not even heard from them, for six to ten years.

4. The high cost of living in America. Geza D. Berko, managing editor of the Hungarian Daily, who has his finger on the alien movements in America more than any one else, when questioned on the subject said:

"The re-emigration is slow because there is not sufficient shipping. There are only five steamers weekly available for eastern Europe at present, and yet 4,000 are leaving by them. Should the sailing facilities improve, and the passport question be simplified, it will grow by leaps and bounds."

Cannot Be Dissuaded.

The manager of Emil Kiss' banking house, the largest ticket agents on the east side, said that they were discouraging re-emigration as much as possible, and explained to applicants the difficulties of traveling in Europe, the danger of their losing their kits and money on the way.

"Yet it is impossible to persuade them to stay," the clerks assert. "There are letters from former travelers who say that they have been cheated and robbed of their possessions, arrived home stripped of everything, yet you can't induce them to stay."

"Do you discourage exchange of dollars as well?" I asked.

"We do, but the constant fall in the exchange makes it difficult. By the time the man arrives home he gets more for his dollars, so he prefers taking it in cash, as most of them are ignorant people who mistrust drafts."

Now, in traveling through Europe the victim, for you can't call him by any other name, encounters laws in every country prohibiting the export of dollars. If he lands in France his money is exchanged into francs, to Germany into marks, in Austria or Yugoslavia into kronen, being 10 or more per cent cheaper here.

Some of the re-emigrants travel through five countries and thus lose 50 per cent of their money on forced exchange. In France there are even graver difficulties for even the export of French money, to exceed 1,000 francs is prohibited. The traveler must get a state permit, a procedure taking sometimes weeks. The whole of Europe is hungry for dollars.

When Mrs. Alena, a Turkish woman, was asked how she felt about her situation, she said: "I am very much ashamed of myself for causing you an anxious moment over that old knife. And I'm going to confess still further. When I came home night before last I happened to go into the library and to behold a very charming young woman was taking down my old Turkish yataghan and putting it in her muff. I wondered what on earth she could possibly want with that sword. On questioning her I found out who you were and that you intended to go to a fancy dress ball. Then and there I decided that I was going to the ball, too, but it was not the silver yataghan that made me go! Please forgive me, and let's be friends!" He held out both hands, bowing slightly, and before Alena knew what she was doing she had laid her hands in his. It was a silent but true promise of future partnership in the silver yataghan.

MADE FAMOUS BY COLUMBUS

Island of Porto Santo Known to Moderns as Place Where Great Explorer Once Owled.

Off the north shore of Madeira lies a misty strip of island which accounts itself famous because Christopher Columbus once lived there. Porto Santo, as the mist-covered isle is called, consists of but a few miles in the form of a town known as the Villa, scattered vineyards and grain fields, a steep range of hills and a shore line now edged with spiky crags, now sinking into a level stretch of sand.

If it had not been for Columbus the island would be almost dull and commonplace. As it is, the place is often dull, but it lives in history, and sometimes travelers come over from Madeira to see the island where the discoverer once lived and where he is said by some to have received his first clue to the existence of an unknown land in the West.

Porto Santo was discovered by accident early in the fifteenth century by a Portuguese explorer who was driven there during a storm. As the day happened to be All Saints' day, and as he was particularly thankful to have found a safe refuge from the wind, the navigator named the little island Porto Santo. He then returned to Portugal and spoke in such enthusiastic praise of the discovery that a colony was soon formed to take possession of the land of promise. Among the colonists was Bartholomew Perestrelo, an Italian sea captain serving with the Portuguese government, who was to be governor of the island.

Columbus fell in love with Bartholomew's daughter in Lisbon. So when she departed for Porto Santo, Columbus followed, and there, in time, he married her.

THE SILVER YATAGHAN

By LILY WANDEL

(1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Alena thoughtfully chewed the end of her pencil in Mrs. Mawson's great library. She was off in a corner with her typewriter and letters, but she was not thinking of work. Tomorrow was a holiday and in the evening there was to be a fancy dress ball. Phil, her brother, in a rare burst of brotherly interest had promised to take her to the festivity. "You're getting to be a regular little mouse and I'm going to take you out among people," he had said patronizingly. "Now, don't worry and be bashful; I'll scare up a few fellows to dance with you, but of course you can't expect to be the belle of the evening and all that sort of thing. Get yourself a costume—something that suits you; be a Quakeress or a schoolmarm."

She had nodded and thanked him, but inwardly resolved to throw off her little mouse cloak and be somebody else just for one evening. "I'm sick and tired of being the sedate private secretary; I'm just as fun-loving and jolly as any other girl if I'd have half a chance. And I'm going to have it, too. A masquerade ball is just the thing!" And then and there she decided to go as a Turkish vamp!

At home in a locked bureau drawer lay the costume quite handy—yellow silk trousers, crimson bolero jacket and white ruffled corset, red turban and floating filmy veil, even turned-up Turkish slippers and a wonderful black and red sash. It was a perfect outfit; she really could look like a Turkish woman, but she wanted to be a vamp! Something was needed, a little touch she did not know what. So she continued to bite the unfeeling pencil and stare with wrinkled forehead at the high bookcases, antique shield and torse that dotted the summer walls. Right above her little typewriter table hung a queer looking thing, a dagger or knife, tumbled, an odd handle, too, the usual crossbar missing and the blade more than a foot long, and it was a real Turkish vamp!

That was the touch that her costume needed. The only trouble was: Would Mrs. Mawson lend it to her for the ball? She hesitated for the old lady had recently refused to lend her a book from the library. "I'm sorry," she had said, "but I'm afraid I can't lend you that book. There was another way. Mrs. Mawson never entered the gloomy room. Alena always went to her employer's parlor or dressing room for dictation or instructions. If she took the yataghan home with her tonight and returned it the day after tomorrow no one would know the difference."

When Mrs. Alena came, Alena, a bit conscience-stricken, took down the dagger, and wrapping it quickly in a piece of newspaper stuck it in her muff and without looking right or left hurried from the house.

Locked in the privacy of her room, she rubbed and polished it, and behold the black melted away and beautiful gleaming silver came to view! Her eyes sparkled with delight as she saw herself in her pretty Turkish suit with a silver yataghan stuck in her muff. It was bound to attract the attention of everybody.

When they left the dance a long cloak covered her up completely so that not even Phil had an inkling of her costume. He was not even curious, for he thought he would know her in any kind of dress.

She lingered in the dressing room and then conscious that she looked very pretty and attractive, took the plunge into the ballroom just in time to see Phil benevolently tuck the hand of a demure little shepherdess under his arm and patter off with her under the impression he was doing his duty to Alena.

Alena was surrounded at once. Everybody was sure they knew her. Knights and clowns, sailors and Roman soldiers, all were highly interested in the Turkish vamp with the glittering silver yataghan. Alena had not known that any one could have such a glorious time. It and by she realized that she had danced three times in succession with a certain fascinating torador, and decided it was time to change, but he persuaded her to sit out a dance. Laughing they found a little nook for a tete-a-tete.

"That silver yataghan, it attracted me at once when you entered the room; where on earth did you find anything so wonderful?" he asked.

Alena flung under her veil at him for an answer, when a rather merry pilgrim strutted up and pulled her off for a fox trot. She gave a little sigh of relief; the torador was lovely, but the questioning about the yataghan was embarrassing. She noticed with delight that it was near twelve, almost time to unmask. She quite longed to see the Spaniard's face. And then the joy of Phil's amazement when he saw who the Turkish vamp was!

The fox trot over, Alena put her hand to her ear—it felt a trifle loose.

The yataghan must have slipped a little—where was it? It was gone—she had lost it! Then began a frantic search, but it was not to be found. Terror-stricken, she questioned many of the dancers, and then, as a last resort, ran to the dressing room and asked the maid. No one had seen the dagger. It had vanished, it seemed. Tears of fright came to Alena's dark eyes; she sank to a chair in the cloakroom, miserable, utterly unhappy. The evening was over for her. She could not return to the festivities. In a moment or two, enveloped in her long cloak, she was speeding home in a taxi alone. A sorry end of the wonderful evening.

At breakfast Phil was not even concerned about how she had reached home alone. He was still under the impression that she had been the shepherdess and somebody had informed him that she had left with an escort. Alena did not explain, she was too miserable to care about anything except how she would explain the loss of the yataghan to Mrs. Mawson.

A very pale, quiet social secretary crept into the great gloomy library for work that morning. She raised two worried eyes to the bare spot where the yataghan had hung—but as she drew nearer she rubbed her eyes, for there in its old place hung the Turkish dagger, polished like new. Alena drew back, actually frightened, then hastened to touch it to see if it was real and not an optical illusion. No, it was the silver yataghan, there was no possible mistake. "I don't understand it," she said aloud; "it's the most remarkable thing that ever happened."

"Not really so very remarkable, considering that I put it there," said a voice strangely familiar. Alena swung around to see a tall young man quite unknown to her.

"Don't you really remember your devoted torador?" he questioned, coming nearer.

Alena gasped. "How on earth did you get here and how do you know me, if you don't mind?"

"I think I would recognize the dark eyes of my Turkish vamp anywhere, but seriously I owe you an apology. I took the yataghan last night—you see it happened to be my yataghan. I recognized it immediately. But if I had had an idea that it would make you leave I never would have done it in the wide world. When I could not find you anywhere then I left, too."

Alena, mortified, her breath coming fast, answered, very disturbed. "Then you must be Mrs. Mawson's youngest son?"

He nodded. "I am very much ashamed of myself for causing you an anxious moment over that old knife. And I'm going to confess still further. When I came home night before last I happened to go into the library and to behold a very charming young woman was taking down my old Turkish yataghan and putting it in her muff. Those Good Brakes in a

are aided by special steels

Brakes seem to be one of the overlooked features of a motor car. In a Maxwell they have had the extreme of attention.

For instance, a road engineer, in about 500,000 miles of experimental driving, has constantly tested and studied them.

That is why you can check the speed of a Maxwell in an instant and bring it to a standstill either by foot brake or hand brake.

Special steels in a Maxwell are largely responsible. They give it extra strength in wear and endurance, but they make the car light in weight.

Thus when you call on it to halt, the brakes are not required to "wrestle" with superfluous weight, and the momentum of the car is easily stopped.

These are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae. They equal, pound for pound, the steels in any car built. But no car has steels just like them.

In a large measure they contribute to Maxwell's growing prestige, as expressed in figures like these: nearly 400,000 now in use; and 100,000 more for the year 1920.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, JUNE 13

A Shepherd Boy Chosen King 1 Samuel 16.

The Spirit of Jehovah came mightily upon David from that day forward. 1 Sam. 16.

THE VISION OF TEARS.

Samuel had left the ship but the ship had not left Samuel. In Ramah the prophet who had steered the vessel into the port of organized government could not dismiss from mind or heart the storm tossed bark whose helm was in the hands of a politician King. The visionary religious fanatic had been dismissed from office and the course should be laid without their help. In many little ways there are being attempted the directing of submarine and torpedo by wireless waves and presently into the great deep will creep the dread defender of our shores crewless but not unguided in its great mission. Upon the hills Samuel prayed thru tears for the land he loved and the King he had elected and out of the dim eyed petitions came the influence that sent the ship of Israelitish nationality upon its wonderful course down the years. After all it is the passion of prayer and dripping tears that determines the course history takes. The slave power flaunted its defiance of human rights and made men its chattels depending the institution of the Word of God. But Lovejoy and Garrison, Phillips and Lincoln caught thru tears the vision of God's liberty and set of their passion came a new age. The liquor power ruled us with a rod of iron but Francis Willard and Neal Dow dropped their tears before the throne until God found a world ready to do His high behest in spite of politicians. Militarism discharged its prophets and out of their agony of intercession armies sprang and they dreamed a warless world which, please God, shall still be. Saul's fatal error was his break with the religious party that had given him the place of King in the beginning. The ship of state was staunch enough but the hand that guided was at fault. The man and not the monarchy had broken down. Samuel dried his tears, heard God speak and roused himself to save the nation forecasting. Lloyd George's statement: "The only institution that stands between society and chaos is the Christian church."

THE PRACTICE OF PRAYER.

Americans are apt to organize before they organize. When William of the first messenger, opened the doors of a passion of tears and prayer was born the practice of that same prayer that did not dissipate its vision in rainbow of words but in shrewd activity. No man could be thick of choosing a man out of a home in which there was no vital religious life. Where better could he look than in the house of Ishab, the reformed, Ruth the devoted and Boaz the true? He did not yet know the man but God was surely pointing to the Godly home of Jesse the Bethlehemite. The Elders trembled at his coming for the relation with Saul were known. Yet the last thing Samuel desired was civil war and his errand had to do with the real peace of Israel hailed surely upon religious foundations. The sacrifice was open, for the knowledge of all but God's secrets was for the public. Man may tell the truth and the whole truth and not tell all the truth he knows. On the contrary, a half-truth may be a whole falsehood but half of the truth is as true as the other half. One is meant to deceive, the other to serve the people; one is born in self, the other in social interest. The anointing was known but not even David understood its import. All saw it as Jehovah's call to place, since its securing depended upon David's developing character, Samuel might well refuse to name the position. It was openly a call to a royal life and character to always crowned; failing this the Prophet could promise no other coronet. Carey had preached his great sermon from the twin thoughts, "Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God!" the people all unstirred rose to leave as usual. Seizing Andrew Fuller's hand the young speaker cried, "Are we not going to do anything? O Fuller, call them back, call them back! We dare not separate without doing something!" So that early missionary society came to birth and Carey, its first messenger, opened the doors of a new world period. Samuel was out of the same type.

THE FORGOTTEN BOY.

Why was Jonathan "passed by?" The son of Saul shadowed his son for whom he would have died. The moral lapse of a parent is visited upon the children unto this day. The child of a defaulter is suspected of being a thief. Sin's sowing is watered by the wife's tears and reaped by the children. So Jonathan's chance was stolen. But old farmer Jesse, grand son of an immigrant, was no handicap to his boys; if there was failure it was their own and not their father's. Samuel was going to see the life of the home before anointing another King and would have personal contact with the folds before making another nomination. He was delighted with them and picked the big first-born at once. But silence saved him. He had learned much since Saul's visit to the housetop and the longer he was to pass the threshold of fame, God kept us mindful of the boy at play or work for the Kingdom waits his coming. Wesley was forgotten also in the flaming hour of destiny in that little personage only to overtop all the rest who were first outside. It was upon David's ruddy hair that the oil glistened warning us that God's high destiny may be for the boy we pass by and forget. May Samuel's multiply who will recognize their worth and anoint them for royal service.

THE UNKNOWN KING.

The Spirit came mightily upon David. He would make himself worthy of his call whatever its meaning might be and there came an ever deepening fellowship with Jehovah as he still followed the flock and studied the stars. The joy of his soul poured itself out in music, leaped into courage that made him attempt the impossible if it were in the way of duty, gave him grace in word and bearing so that when Saul desired some singer who could charm away his black moods this country lad was mentioned for the place. And when he stood in the presence of Saul with the simple gifts of the farm as old Jesse's tribute to royalty such was his attractiveness that the King loved him and the court opened its heart to his unspoiled genuineness. Uncrowned he was still a king before the magic sceptre of whose winsomeness hearts gave unspoken homage and he was lifted to the throne of their affections long before they dreamed he might hold the seat of authority in the coming empire. So God led the forgotten boy toward the heights of life he eagerly set himself to win unthinking of any jeweled trappings for brow or brain. He would be his best for God and God and man smiled.

What Will Your Truck Driver Save You This Year?

HAULAGE conditions here in town will undergo a big change within the next year or so.

Merchants are putting their transportation on a more "brass tacks" basis. Big savings will be made.

It seems that the merchants who are making a haulage "profit" keep in touch with their drivers.

They receive first-hand information as to which truck is most economical to operate and maintain—the truck freshest from repairs—or the truck which is quickest and easiest to handle.

It is interesting to note that the men who have learned Packard facts in this way are standardizing on Packards.

Dear Sirs:

You may be interested to know that one of our three-year-old three-ton Packards with special body now in active operation every day from February 1, 1918, to January 31, 1920, during this time it covered 8241 miles, making rapid deliveries with as many as forty stops a day.

It is also significant that the National Standard Truck Cost System has been a great help in determining cost and securing more efficient operation.

We now have eight Packards in our fleet.

Very truly yours, The Haulier Creamery Co.

Packard drivers like to keep costs—it's easy to show a big dollar-and-cents saving with a Packard.

BESIDES, the driver has a good chance to make a reputation for himself.

Any local business man interested in knowing what he can save with a Packard should come in and see some of the records of the 1700 Packard owners using the National Standard Truck Cost System.

Phone for an appointment with one of our transportation engineers. Let him show you hauling figures of Packard owners in the same line of business as your own.

MY MAYDAY SONG.

By Rev. D. A. Friend.

I love when summer days have come
Among the fields and woods to roam,
And spend some lovely passing hours
Mid growing grass and blooming flowers;
And by the side of streamlet fair
To sit my heart to heaven in prayer,
And feel that sweet enrapturing love
That draws my soul toward heaven above.

There in the shade of stately trees,
With face upturned and bended knees
To talk to Him who hears from heav'n
And realize all things forgiven,
And pledge my soul to Him anew
To serve Him all my journey through,
And as my prayers ascend the sky
To feel that God is drawing nigh.

My Father, Thou who holy art,
Come and possess my waiting heart
And take away all doubt and sin,
And wash my soul from every stain,
And keep me pure from day to day,
And lead me forth in wisdom's way,
And may Thy love my spirit fill
As I engage to do Thy will.

Dear Jesus, Thou whose love was giv'n
That I might gain a home in heav'n,
O, make my heart Thy dwelling place
And ever keep me by Thy grace,
And may I come at Thy first call,
And never from Thy favor fall,
Till Thou shalt call me hence, away,
To walk with Thee in endless day.

And Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove,
Baptize my soul with perfect love,
And ever my dull spirit fill,
And lead me safe up Zion's hill,
Till in that brighter day to come
I reach my glorious, heavenly home,
And there some shining stars I'd bring
To deck the crown of heav'n's King.

And with the angels fair and bright
I'd praise His name both day and night,
And by the river's flowing brink
I'd ever from life's fountain drink,
And with my golden harp in hand
I'd march with heav'n's glorious band
And heav'n's bowers shall ever ring
With joyful songs that we shall sing.

And with the saints of former years
Free from all sorrow, pain and tears
We'll pluck the fruit from life's fair trees
And bask in heav'n's spicy breeze,
And as the ages roll along
We still will sing redemption's song,
And in perpetual blooming youth
We'll praise our glorious God of Truth

FEED THY KIDS BEHIND THE SHEPHERD'S TENT.

If a promise is made to the child it should be kept, not is it wise to be too ready with a "yes," but once it is said after proper thought, let no coaxing lead you to retract or do what your judgment disapproves. I is to bring them up in a simple style of life, with plain tastes and habits and acquaint them with hardships even though you can surround them with luxury. They will be better fitted to meet emergencies. They need not then truckle to win the patronage of the rich, nor act lowly to keep it.

No better rule can be had for dealing with your children than that of Moses, "And these words that I command you this day shall be in thine heart and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children."

The child is not a machine. It has intellect, with powers of perception, memory, judgment, reason and imagination. It is a workshop wherein may be manufactured great machines; a council chamber where great plans may be devised. This intellect must have a teacher. The object of teaching besides arousing and disciplining these powers, is the accumulation of knowledge. Never should the direction of the Lord be forgotten. He tells what to teach: "The words which I command you." Begin with the law and teach, "thou shalt have no other gods before Me." Keep before them ever the code of morals, which presents the field of duty and relations. Teach them to sing with David and store their minds with the Proverbs of Solomon, and the precepts of the chin Jesus. How shall I do it? Let love fill thy heart—love that makes the whole being to vibrate with new life and that lays itself on the altar of self-sacrificing service. When love is the motive power there will be no trouble in teaching; no difficulty in securing the attention. Give them good influence, wholesome restraint, Divine truth. Begin when the first cry is heard, nor cease your labors until a resolute and thoughtful woman goes forth to dare for the right and do for God. Let prayer without ceasing be made for them. Carry them on the arms of faith as the mother of Richard Cecil and give them as Hannah did to God. In your hands is the glory and prosperity of coming generations. Your prayers, cares and judicious restraints will bring from cottage and palace men of prayer who will strengthen and sustain our government. Perhaps some one may say, "I wish I could." You can if you will. You ought to, you must or fall far short of your duty and maybe prove to be a wreck of lives and souls. In the home is trained the voters who direct our country. Here is formed the character of the future man.

You can train the child to abhor the evil and cleave to the good. Under your hand they form the bias that will last them through eternity and the little craft has its prow turned toward heaven or hell before the parents' hand lets go the helm. "Give me," said a prominent man, "the first ten years of a child's life and you may have the rest." He knew how deep were the impressions of the early years. The hosts of sin boldly march on with flying banners, inscribed with "The Boys Own," "The Girls Own," "Seaside Library," that full of perilous adventures, bloody exploits, sensational love stories that feed a distorted imagination and pamper the grossest desires of a depraved soul; that give false ideas of life; weaken the mind and create a morbid appetite for romance and sentimentalism. Give them good books and suitable reading matter.

The devil draws them away thro the gates of the senses; through what they see and hear; through the touch as he pulls them into wrong places; through the taste as he feeds them on food and events steeped in alcohol.

The child can know the right as soon as it can the wrong and as soon as it can obey Satan it can be won by the forces of Christ. Save our generation, and you win the world. They may be Christians in early years or criminals. It looks like some of the churches have over their doors "No admittance for Children." Train them early to attend church and be with them yourself. Teach them to put their trust in God and serve Him. Make home attractive and keep them there as long as you can. I pity the parents who allow their children to go about as they please, not knowing where they are or with whom they are associating. They will presently be caught in the devil's snare and led far along the road to ruin. It is alarming the amount of disobedience to parents. What shall we say to the foolish parents who allow their daughters to dress as many of them do now. For a street parade or social function they seem to aim to get as little clothing on as possible. Low necks and short sleeves! So low that suspicion is aroused as to their object. Not much more on than to hide the shame of their nakedness, not much more than a "katie-did." Have the parents any sense of propriety and fitness of things? The latest fad is winged shoes for girls. The fool fashion maker from Paris has so decreed it and presently we will see a lot of our girls and women with bird wings on their shoes. The birds of the air, God's songsters, must be slaughtered to gratify the pride and vanity of men. Well, if the fool-killer were abroad in the land with his gun he wouldn't have to go far until he would get all the killing he wanted.

The trend is downward and men and women will not recognize the awful fact. Better for us to awake to a sense of our responsibility and face our duty. Act like those who must give an account for our actions to the Judge of the universe. The scales will drop from our eyes by and by. May they drop before it is too late.

Yours in the interest of childhood,
JOANNES.

To Keep American Ships on the Seas

For the first time since the Civil War we have a real merchant marine. It cost us $3,000,000,000 to get it.

The farmer, manufacturer, laborer—every American is interested in holding our position on the seas.

As a first step in this direction it is necessary to modify those articles of existing commercial treaties which have operated to thwart the rebuilding of our merchant marine—By giving the notice of termination for which the several treaties provide.

This action is decreed in the constructive Shipping Bill now before Congress.

Which declares it to be the policy of the United States "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage" a merchant marine.

This policy deserves the support of every American.

Lacking this support the pressing effort to maintain our merchant marine may suffer the fate of many ineffective attempts of the past.

Send for a copy of "For an American Merchant Marine."

GRANTSVILLE IMPROVEMENTS

Among Others Third Story Has Been Added to National Hotel.

The Republican likes to see the spirit of improvement everywhere. At Grantsville, which is one of Garrett county's oldest towns, the spirit is manifest to a marked degree.

A recent visit to the place by The Republican brought this fact forward, for upon every hand was seen the progressiveness of the people of the town. Within the past two weeks a new post-office building has been completed and is now being occupied as such. Just below this building a new dwelling is almost finished, while along the main street can be noticed other buildings that have been recently built or improved. Here also the painter and artisans are given all they can do, for almost without exception the homes are neat, fresh looking and so clean that it is refreshing to wander about and note the difference between that town and other places where the grime and dirt is in such quantities as to make it painful.

One of the greatest improvements at Grantsville, which is now nearing completion is that made by Mr. Chas. Bender, proprietor of the National Hotel. To this well-known hostelry a third story has been added, the lobby doubled as to capacity and made more home-like in every particular. In the lobby a tile floor of beautiful design has been laid, while a new stairway of ample proportions has been built reaching to the upper portions of the house. In the basement will be provided wash rooms and other conveniences for the patrons of the hotel. Mr. Bender expects to have his house entirely completed by July 1st. The improvements he has made cost him several thousand dollars.

TOWN IN DARKNESS

And Will Remain so Until Repairs Are Made At Electric Station.

Oakland is again in darkness and will so remain, according to officials of the electric plant that furnishes light for the streets and dwelling of Oakland, for at least a week.

Lightning last night caused the trouble when a bolt ran into the plant and burned out the generator in the twinkling of an eye.

Aside from the damage sustained at the electric station no other has been reported, although the storm which began about seven o'clock lasted with momentary intermission, nearly the entire night.

Picnic At Aurora July 3rd.

Independence Day will be observed Saturday, July 3rd, at Aurora, just across the line in West Virginia and about twelve miles from Oakland. The Aurora band will furnish music all day. Refreshments of all kinds will be furnished on the grounds. A committee will have charge of the games in which old and young may take part. A lawn fete will be held in the evening.

Million A Month For Drinks in Maryland.

Oakland and the rest of the State spend almost a million dollars a month for soft drinks and ice cream, and more than a million a month for movies and the theatres. These figures are shown in taxes paid to the Collector of Internal Revenue. On the first two items the taxes paid indicate that $411,000 was spent on them in April, a season of the year when the ice cream and soda water business is not at its height.

In the same month, Marylanders paid $1,100,000 for admission to some form of public entertainment chiefly moving pictures and the theatre. That makes a total of $1,911,000 for the month on practically two forms of enjoyment.

Some time ago the statement was made that New York spent $1,000,000 a month on soda water fountain beverages. Since those figures probably included ice cream to the same extent that the local returns embrace this commodity, Maryland spends more in such a way per person than does New York.

Barn Burned on Farm Near Deer Park

The barn of W. W. Groves, located on his farm near Deer Park, was totally destroyed by fire on last Friday night. In addition to the barn Mr. Groves sustained the loss of three cows, two threshing machines, two wagons, all of his farm machinery, twelve tons of hay and two hundred bushels of oats. The barn was built a number of years ago and in the days of cheap lumber. The sills supporting it were made of twelve inch square white pine and the construction of other portions of the building were in keeping with the sills. It has been estimated that could the lumber entering into the building be procured today the product would cost not less than three to four thousand dollars, while the labor at the present prices would bring the cost of the structure well up to $10,000 or more.

BRIDE OF ONLY EIGHT DAYS

INSTANTLY KILLED FRIDAY

Wife of Mr. Christian Felty, Formerly of Oakland Victim of Accident.

Mrs. May Felty, a bride of eight days, having been married at her home in Luke, Allegany county, to Mr. Christian Felty, of Connellsville, formerly of Oakland, on June 3, by the Rev. Harry G. Spencer, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, of Piedmont, was killed Friday last about 4 o'clock in an automobile accident near Connellsville, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Felty had just returned the day previous to her death from their honeymoon trip spent in eastern cities. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wier, of Luke, and was a trained nurse by profession, having graduated from the Hoffman Hospital in Keyser in 1916.

Mrs. Felty was almost instantly killed. She became frightened and leaped from a runaway automobile on Work's Hill, near Connellsville. In company with Mrs. Elizabeth Monahan, of Connellsville, who resides in the Felty building in that city, Mrs. Felty was riding in a Haynes roadster. When coming down Work's Hill the car became unmanageable and started on a wild run down the steep and long grade. When about two-thirds down the hill and within a short distance of a dangerous curve where many serious auto accidents have already occurred, the machine caught up with a heavy truck of the Schuster-Gormly Co., Connellsville, which was being driven by Bert Means, an employee. Mrs. Monahan, who was driving the roadster, apparently swung her car sharp to the left in order to avoid a collision. The fender struck the rear of the truck and the roadster shot over the curb and struck a telephone pole. Mrs. Felty jumped just as the runaway car shot past the truck, striking head foremost against a large stone. Mr. Means stepped his truck and went to the assistance of the two women. Mrs. Monahan remained at the wheel of her car and while not seriously injured, she was cut about the face and hands. A passing automobile took both women aboard, driving rapidly to the Cottage Hospital, Connellsville. Mrs. Monahan was taken to her home. Mrs. Felty's injuries were of such a nature that she never regained consciousness and died at the hospital about 5 o'clock.

Her funeral occurred on Monday from the First Methodist Episcopal church in Piedmont, the services being conducted by the minister who less than two weeks prior had spoken the words that made her the wife of Mr. Felty, who is well remembered by nearly every resident of Oakland.

Mrs. Felty's first wife was Miss Porter, a daughter of the late Robert Porter, of near Oakland. Her death took place several years ago, her remains having been interred in the cemetery in Oakland.

FAIR DIRECTORS ORGANIZE

Dr. Henry W. McComas Made President and L. O. Blocher Vice-President.

The initial meeting of the board of directors of the Garrett County Agricultural Fair Association was held at the office of County Agent James A. Towler in the Court House Tuesday afternoon of this week, the following named members of the board who were elected at a meeting of the stockholders on Monday of last week, being present at the organization: Dr. H. W. McComas, Geo. D. Browning, A. R. Martin, U. O. Blocher, W. T. Stanton, Charles R. Savedge, Josiah G. Friend, Gus T. Hilleary, Andrew Shartzler and G. B. M. Friend.

The board organized by electing the following officers to serve for one year: President, Dr. Henry W. McComas; vice-president, U. O. Blocher, of Grantsville; secretary-treasurer, W. O. Davis, of Oakland; James A. Towler, of Oakland, business manager.

An executive committee, composed of Dr. McComas, Messrs. George D. Browning, William T. Stanton, A. R. Martin and Andrew Shartzler, was also elected by the directors' board.

Among other matters transacted by the board the following committee was selected to secure suitable buildings and grounds for the Fair: A. R. Martin, C. R. Savedge and Andrew Shartzler.

The dates for holding the Fair were fixed as September 28, 29, 30; October 1.

The election of the executives of the association and the committees appointed for the various purposes set forth above meets with the approval of the large number of the shareholders. All are energetic, wide-awake business men and will exert every effort at their command to make the Fair of 1920 the success that it should be, keeping before their mind's eye that a success for this year means a larger and better Fair next year and the years to follow.

At the proper time the officials will issue the year book containing the list of premiums to be awarded and other literature concerning the Fair, its plans and ultimate benefit to the agriculturalists and stockmen of the county.

Now is the time to prepare for your exhibits; next fall will be too late.

BITTINGER

Joseph Ash, with machinery and men, has begun work on the county road between this place and Grantsville and the folks are generally delighted at the prospect of having a better road.

A few days ago when Mr. Oliver Beachy was notified that Madam Stark had visited his home, and as a remembrance had left a baby boy, Oliver forthwith began to dance a jig on the back porch and punctured his best foot with a rusty nail, so now he crows about limping but smiling.

Mr. B. H. Wiley left last Monday morning for Crellin, Md., where he has secured a position with the Kendall Supply Co.

A very excellent and appropriate children's day program was rendered by the young people of the Lutheran Sunday School of this village on last Sunday morning.

Mr. J. F. Bittinger and wife, of Hagerstown, spent part of last week with their parents here.

Mr. Oscar Wiley returned to Akron, O., last Wednesday after spending several weeks at his home here.

Mrs. C. J. Sechler, who underwent a surgical operation at the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland some time ago, returned to her home in this village last Friday and is recovering rapidly.

Mr. Allen Stanton is dividing his time and attention between a new baby daughter and a new Harley Davidson motor cycle, but has not yet been able to decide which makes the most noise.

SELBYSPOUT

Miss Lulu Umble, of Confluence, Pa., visited her parents here last week.

Misses Ida and Kathryn Liston attended church at Guard last Sunday.

Miss Nazzie Friend left on Sunday to visit friends for a few days.

Mrs. Howard Pitt and son left last Saturday for Bidwell, Pa., to visit Mr. Pitt, who is employed in that town.

Miss Bessie Welch entertained a number of the young people on Saturday evening.

Misses Lettie and Mary Selby arrived home on Friday evening from Frostburg where they have been attending school.

Messrs. John Morgan and William Green, of Frostburg, visited at the home of Mr. W. S. Friend's Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Irene Grove and Lewanda Knapp were the guests of Mrs. Orpha Frazee on Sunday.

Mr. H. M. Frazee, of Guard, is visiting here for a few days.

HUTTON

Dr. N. I. Broadwater, of Oakland, is in Hutton on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Jesse Poole Walsh, of Terra Alta, visited here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reams and Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Friend, of Crellin, were among the visitors from that place who attended the school celebration here on the evening of Wednesday last.

Dr. George Melody, of Oakland, was here professionally one day last week.

Mrs. Ernest Ashby, of Crellin, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hardesty, on Monday.

Miss Mary Foley, of Oakland, was visiting in Hutton recently.

Mr. Callia, principal of the Crellin school, was here on Wednesday evening, having accompanied his pupils to this place. We were pleased to have them all present.

On Saturday evening, June 19th, a box supper and ice cream social will be held in the school building at Hutton for the benefit of the school. There is also scheduled a dodge ball contest to take place on the school grounds the same evening. Come and encourage the children by your presence.

ST. ELMO.

GRANTSVILLE

The monthly meeting of the Mothers' Club was held at the Victoria Hotel on Monday night and took the form of a Round Table discussion in which many of the mothers participated, the topics being "Courtesy and Co-operation in Home and School." Most of the members were present. A picnic is on the tapis for June 17th and the club members are planning for the event with some eagerness. A committee meeting in connection with this event was held at Mrs. J. J. Bender's home one night this week.

The Missionary Society of the Lutheran church met at the home of Mrs. Will Baker, Tuesday afternoon, about eighteen members being present. A very interesting and profitable meeting was held, after which refreshments were served by the hostess. Another honorary member was added—Mrs. Wm. Morgart, of Jennings.

The private school of Miss Holmes and Miss Wallace closed for the season with a very clever and effectively rendered program on Friday night, in which the tiny students took their parts with a zest and aplomb that would have done credit to far older pupils. The exercises consisted of a play, "The Sleeping Beauty," in which the little students participated in an admirable manner. Then followed a solo by Jane Bowen, a wand drill song and duets by each child and Miss Holmes on the piano; an essay by Miss Bowen and a charmingly rendered song in French by the little pupils. There are seven students, ranging in years from six to eight, namely: Jane and Ella Bowen, Mabel Beachy, Marion Folk, Clyde Benner, Rexford Bittinger and John Blober. Their studies comprise geography, arithmetic, writing, spelling, drawing, grammar, history, reading, gymnastics, music and French. Samples of their work were on exhibition during the evening and elicited much commendation. The record of attendance was excellent.

Misses Helen and Evelyn Beachy will graduate this week from the School of Training for Nurses at Dixon, Pa. Their sister, Miss Ella Beachy, has gone down for a conference with her class. The young ladies are at the head of their class and consequently graduate with honors. They are the daughters of Marshall Beachy of this place. Their mother, having died a few years ago, both girls are pretty, clever and popular and will be a credit to their chosen profession.

Charles Zehner, of near Grantsville, has returned from a week's trip in the West, where he attended the twenty-fourth annual reunion of the Zehner Reunion Society, on June 3d. This meeting was held at the home of W. E. Westover, northwest of Salem, O. Many years ago, about thirty in fact, a member of the Zehner family from this part of the country migrated to the West. Later the news of his death reached his friends here as having occurred in a rather unusual way from the effects of bee stings. Whether or not this intelligence was correct there was at least sufficient progeny of the old pioneer to perpetuate the race. The several hundred members of the Zehner clan bear living witness to the fact that the family has not become extinct, but at this, the twenty-fourth reunion, numbered more than ever. Mr. Zehner spent a most profitable week with his friends and relatives, enjoying the trip exceedingly.

The new post office building next door to the Victoria Hotel, has been opened to the public, the moving having taken place on Monday night. It is a first class room commodious and convenient with several rooms overlooking for the postmaster's use. The old postoffice building will be used as an office in connection with the new time's carcase.

The E. Society was held on Sunday night by Miss Esther Zehner, the topic being "Ebbie Reading." A large crowd was made by Messrs. J. H. Miller, Charles Beachy and M. Kenning.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Keller and their daughter and son, have been on a motor trip to Winchester, Va., Frederick, Gettysburg and other places of interest.

S. S. Miller of Springs, J. D. Miller of Elk Lake and J. O. Getty of this place, returned to Oakland on Saturday. Mr. Getty remaining there for the following week where he was foreman of the Garrett county grand jury.

Emmons Youkin and Roy Zehner, of Pittsburgh, spent last Sunday here with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Poling, of Piedmont, spent Sunday with Mrs. Poling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bittinger here.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall H. Lohr attended the Lutheran Sunday school convention at Johnstown, last week.

Harold Miller, who was a student at Gettysburg Academy, returned to his home this week for the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bender spent Thursday in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Zeller spent last Thursday in Frostburg.

Mrs. Wm. Schreier has been ill of typhoid fever, but is now slightly improved.

Miss Gertrude Hone, who has been ill, is somewhat improved, but will be obliged to remain in bed for several weeks more.

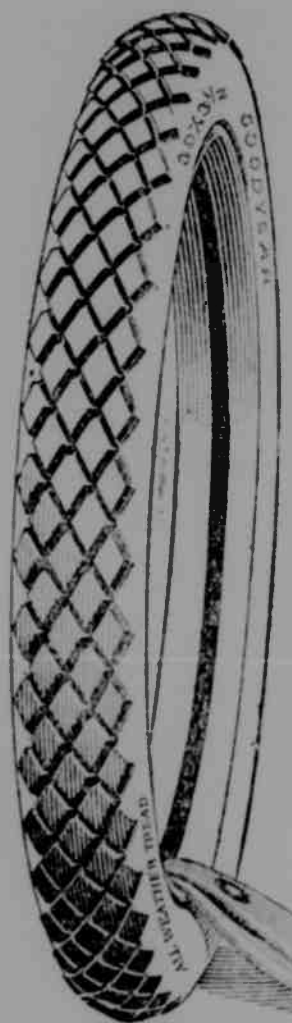

The following teachers took the examinations at Oakland last week: Misses Edna Wiseman, Hazel Youkin, Mabel and Myrtle Custer, Hester Beachy and Cora Hochman.

Owe Their Health To

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine. Compared with it, all other medicines for women's ills seem to be experiments. Why is it so successful? Simply because of its sterling worth. For over forty years it has had no equal. Women for two generations have depended upon it with confidence.

Thousands of Their Letters are on our files, which prove these statements to be facts, not mere boasting.

Here Are Two Sample Letters:

Mother and Daughter Helped.

Middleburg, Pa.—"I am glad to state that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me much good when I was 35 years old. I was run down with female trouble and was not able to do anything, could not walk for a year and could not work. I had treatment from a physician but did not gain. I read in the papers and books about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. The first few bottles gave me relief and I kept on using it until I got better and was able to do my work. The Vegetable Compound also regulated my daughter when she was 15 years old. I can recommend Vegetable Compound as the best medicine I have ever used."—Mrs. W. YERGER, R. 3, Box 21, Middleburg, Pa.

GOT MARK TWAIN STIRRED UP

Humorist, Tired of Listening to Series of Remarkable Stories, Rose to the Occasion.

A naval officer said at a banquet in New York:

"Some of the war stories that I hear remind me of Mark Twain. Mark, you know, once sat in the smoking room of a steamer and listened for an hour or two to some remarkable lies. Then he drawled:

"Boys, these fables of yours that you're been telling about recall an adventure of my own in Hannibal. There was a fire in Hannibal one night, and old man Hunkinson got caught in the fourth story of the burning house. It looked as if he was a goner. None of the ladders was long enough to reach him. The crowd stared at one another with awed eyes. Nobody could think of anything to do. Then all of a sudden, boys, an idea occurred to me. 'Fetch me a rope,' I yelled. Somebody fetched a rope, and with great presence of mind I flung the end of it up to the old man. 'The boy round your waist!' I yelled. Old man Hunkinson did so and I pulled him down."

JIM'S SURPRISE

By ETHEL L. STANTON

(©, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Little Mrs. Carey frowned at her monthly budget.

"Three dollars and nineteen cents left this month. Last month it was two dollars, and the month before it was one-thirty-seven. That is a lot of money for a college graduate to squander, isn't it? I know Jim can't give me any more, besides I suspect he is worried over his magazine. It would be too bad for him to have to suspend publication just as he has worked up a good circulation."

"Wish I could help him," she mused. "What good is my college-trained mind if it can't think up a scheme to earn money at home? It certainly was not much use when I began to care for a baby and a house all at once. Poor Jim, what chaos he lived in for two years, until I tried to make a household efficiency expert of myself."

An idea like a flash sprang into her mind.

"Why can't I at home train a few college girls so their husbands won't have to suffer as Jim did while I was learning my job? They could come here from 9 till 5, one girl in the morning and one in the afternoon, or two all day. I'll charge two dollars for a three-hour lesson, three months' course. Maybe the dean will let it count one-half point toward a degree. I'll go right over to the college this afternoon."

The dean of the nearby college allowed Mrs. Carey to present her plan to a gathering of the girls.

Humorously she described her own helpless floundering when she was trying to begin housekeeping. Then she explained her idea of allowing girls to come to her own home, where by actual experience they could learn the routine work of a house.

"Frying and dressmaking will also be included," she added. "Now don't think that your trained minds can easily master the intricacies of housekeeping. That idea, I believe, is wrong. A girl without college training will take more kindly to housework because her mind has never had the advantage of advanced study, which has the tendency to make the routine work of a house seem petty."

"That does not mean that I object to college training in the home. On the contrary, the college-bred women will attack the confusion caused by her ignorance of housework with a keenness that will make her more efficient than her sister with the untrained mind. She will give to the home and will surround her children with an atmosphere which only education can give."

Eight girls responded to this appeal. Six of these could start the next week and take three lessons a week. The other two, who were to be married soon, wanted to come together every morning for three months. Mrs. Carey went home jubilant. She even decided to teach her pupils to bathe her baby.

The success of the plan was far beyond her expectations. For two years she had pupils every day, and at the end of that time had $2,500 in the bank. The best of it was that Jim never suspected what was going on.

He was working night and day himself, yet did not act like a prosperous man. Several times she tried to urge him to tell her his troubles, but he evidently decided to spare her as long as possible. Perhaps she did not press the matter suddenly, knowing that the day for her surprise would surely come.

It was two and one-half years after the teaching had been inaugurated that he came and slumped wearily into a chair.

"I've had news to tell you," he said. "I shall have to go into bankruptcy this week, and for only $999, too. I've tried everywhere to raise the money, but I can't do it. I am ashamed to bring this on you. The little home will have to go," he added, breaking.

"I'm sorry for you. I have tried—I guess I'm a failure. You ought not to have married me."

"Not another word," whispered his wife, kissing him. "Just shut your eyes and I'll get a surprise for you."

After her explanation he looked up from the total figure to the face of his wife, saying in a low, reverent voice:

"You can't realize what this means to me." He took her face between his palms and drew it to him. "It is your kind, dear, that make men worship women. Thank God that he let me marry you."

Would Take Lesson From Nature.

It is curious to note that from Scandinavia, the home of beautiful wooden houses and abundance of timber, appreciation is being expressed at the proposal to revive the ancient method of pile de terre in building. A writer in Sweden shows how it should follow the example of rockmaking in nature, pounding, stamping and filling in every crevice with fine particles of earth, substituting for the weight of sea water some other form of pressure that would not require so many centuries to complete the operation. He does not suggest that we should return to cave-dwellings, but that we should take lessons from the concrete examples in nature.

DOUGHNUTS and CRULLERS

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

DOUGHNUTS made the doughboy happy during the war and no wonder. There is nothing more wholesome and delightful than doughnuts or crullers rightly made. Their rich, golden color and appetizing aroma will create an appetite quicker than anything else in the world.

Here are the famous doughnut and cruller recipes from the New Royal Cook Book.

Doughnuts
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten eggs; stir in milk; add nutmeg, salt, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together and enough additional flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick; cut out. Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 40 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Afternoon Tea Doughnuts
2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

2 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons milk
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Beat eggs until very light; add sugar, salt, nutmeg and milled shortening; add milk, and flour and baking powder which have been sifted together; mix well. Drop by teaspoons into deep hot fat and fry until brown. Drain well on unglazed paper and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar.

Crullers

4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and beaten eggs; sift together flour, cinnamon, salt and baking powder; add one-half and mix well; add milk and remainder of dry ingredients to make soft dough. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick and cut into strips about 1/4 inches long and 1/4 inch wide; roll in hands and twist each strip and bring ends together. Fry in deep hot fat. Drain and roll in powdered sugar.

SEEKS FOE OF JAP BEETLE

Specialist Has Been Detailed to Bring to This Country Enemy of Horticultural Pest.

The Japanese beetle is going to have its old enemies on its trail in this country. The United States department of agriculture has sent a man to Japan to find those enemies and send them across the ocean. They will then be established in the sections of New Jersey where the beetle has gained a foothold, and they are expected to aid greatly in the control of the pest.

The agent employed in Japan is familiar with Japanese conditions and is a specialist in this kind of work. It is expected that the task will require his sojourn in Japan for two or three years. While something is known of the parasites of the Japanese beetle a great deal is still to be learned only under field conditions where the beetle lives with all the enemies that prey upon it. The beetle reached this country with importations of greenhouse plants, and thus far apparently has been comparatively free from molestations by natural enemies.

Free Tin Boxes.

There are countless uses for tin boxes.

Most dealers in cigarettes have on hand boxes of this kind, eleven inches long, six inches wide and four inches deep, which are thrown away. Some dealers are glad to accommodate persons who desire these tin receptacles and will give them away without cost. The following are some very good ways in which the tin boxes can be utilized:

Lunch boxes when out camping or fishing, as they will hold a good supply of lunch.

Covered with a white enamel and used as a cake-box or bread-box.

Keeping food away from rats, mice and other pests.

Painted and used as a flower box.—Thrifty Magazine.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove them simply by an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your drugist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have been to disappear, while the darker ones have vanished entirely. It is evident that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

WHAT MR. MUNSEY THINKS OF SENATOR HARDING.

(The following signed editorial by Mr. Munsey is reprinted from Tuesday's Sun and N. Y. Herald.)

This is a trying moment for some of you who had confidently expected to see your favorite, among the long list of candidates, carry off the prize at the Chicago Convention. With your heart fixed on his getting the nomination, it is only human that you should be disappointed, bitterly disappointed, perhaps, that some other man was selected as the standard bearer of the party instead of your man. In the hour of so keen a disappointment it is not fair to you to form a just and fair estimate of the genuine worth of the triumphant candidate.

I wonder if in this situation I can help you in visualizing Senator Harding? First, let me say that the Republican nominee neither is a personal friend of mine nor was a favorite of mine for the nomination. I am in a position, therefore, to speak without prejudice for or against him. Briefly, I like Senator Harding, like him very much, and am exceedingly happy that the Republican party selected him as its candidate for the Presidency. He is not the only man of the group of aspirants for the nomination that has in him first rate Presidential timber. There was half a dozen of them, perhaps more, who are inherently well fitted for the job.

Frankly, if I had permitted myself and my newspapers to have a candidate it would not have been Senator Harding, not that I had anything against him, but rather because I had never looked very closely into his qualifications. He has always been and still is a modest, dignified man who has never employed press agents to magnify his doings from one end of the land to the other. Newspaper man that he is, he should, perhaps, have shown greater appreciation of the value of publicity.

Be this as it may, it is clear that the picture I had of Senator Harding a week ago is not the picture I have of him now that I have come to know him better.

Following him all the way up from the farm, through childhood, young manhood; seeing him as a printer at the case after he had finished his education; seeing him as a venturesome young editor-owner of a small country newspaper—daring to put himself to the test in one of the most difficult of all fields of endeavor and winning success; seeing that small country newspaper grow under his wise and vigorous handling into a prosperous and influential journal that has made him financially independent; seeing him as a Senator in the Legislature of Ohio; seeing him as Lieutenant-Governor of his State and then as United States Senator from Ohio, and as the candidate of the Republican party for the Presidency—the highest honor a party can bestow on a man—all that spells something, means something. Men do not pick up records of this sort in the street. They do not come by accident. There is merit in the man who achieves as Senator Harding has achieved.

Senator Harding is not a genius. If he were a genius he wouldn't be level-headed. Geniuses are never level-headed. He is, however, better than a genius for an administrative job, because he is a practical man of common sense.

So far Senator Harding has not startled the world by anything he has done or said in the United States Senate. He has made a fine record in that body as a sound, safe man, who thinks well, talks well and has the courage of his convictions. As a matter of fact, Senator Harding has taken quite a conspicuous place in the United States Senate as any man well can take in his first term in that body. The Senator who projects himself into the foreground and essays to be a leader and a maker of public opinion in his first term, as a rule, talks to empty benches and strews stumbling blocks in his own path.

An examination of Senator Harding's work in Committee and on the floor and an examination of his speeches and general bearing as a first term Senator shows admirably in his favor. Senator Harding is the first United States Senator in all our history to receive the nomination for President. It is clear that he could never have had the indorsement of his fellow Senators for the great office of President if he were not equal to the job.

As a sound, clean, human man Senator Harding, like McKinley, looms large. We could welcome such a man in the White House again. With Harding as President that historic mansion would open wide its doors, let in sunlight and bid welcome to the world.

What I have said here of Senator Harding is but the opinion and deductions of one man, myself. Some of you may have better deductions, a better opinion. As to this, I have no intention or desire to argue the point. Seeing him as I now see him, I am entirely satisfied with Senator Harding as the Republican nominee. I shall work wholeheartedly for his election and the election of his running mate, Governor Coolidge, and my newspapers will work wholeheartedly for his election and the election of his running mate Governor Coolidge. If elected Warren G. Harding will give us, I am confident, a thoroughly safe, sane, efficient administration, a wholesome cordial common sense Administration, a clean cut business Administration, an Administration that will command the best brains of the country to the service of the country, an Administration with its feet squarely placed on the ground.

We have had seven years of hitting the sky. We have had enough for the present.

FRANK A. MUNSEY.

Accepting the fact that Senator Harding's preference for a campaign of McKinley kind—one conducted from the front porch of his home at Marion through addresses to visiting delegations—will be put down as another sign of intense "reactionaryism," nevertheless, there are many people who would be pleased to see him put the plan into effect. They will wish to see him do it because the Senator is not a good campaigner. On the contrary, a pastmaster in the business, Mr. Bryan, whose experience in unrivaled, says of him: "As a campaigner, Senator Harding will be a great asset to his party. He brings to the party the best equipment in this respect of any candidate of recent years." Desire for return to the old-fashioned method is due to dissatisfaction with the stress, strain and excitement of a Presidential campaign, subjected to by the harnstorming campaigner; to the feeling that there is something unbecoming in forcing a man who may occupy the highest position in the nation to undergo an ordeal of speech-making at all hours of the day and night, compelling him to shake hands with thousands of people, to kiss the babies and pass the time of day with anybody energetic enough to get near him. It cannot be demonstrated that the practice wins votes. It does put upon the candidate a burden he ought not to assume. Nothing a candidate has to say can be said at his own home, and the great mass of the people would welcome a return to some of the dignity that surrounded Presidential campaigns of earlier years.—Baltimore Evening News.

A Dissertation On Tax Rates From The Snow Hill People.

Everybody is naturally interested in the county tax rate for 1920, now that the assessment has been fixed. The rate is higher this year than last, but no higher than in 1918, when it reached the high figure of $1.50. Still there will be kickers as long as the world stands. There will be kickers against the present tax rate, notwithstanding the plainly obvious fact that the prices of everything are ascending almost every day and that the county is obliged to buy its commodities, labor, building material, road machinery, etc., just as the individual does. There are those who think that their taxes ought to remain fixed at the dead level of 10 or 20 years ago, or even go down—but never up, no matter what the circumstances may be. They also think the same about the subscription price of their weekly newspaper even though newsprint used to cost about 3 cents a pound and now costs 20 cents; that the best of printers used to be content to work for $5 to $10 a week, and now demand all the way up to $30, $40 and $50, and get it. Some of our good farmer friends think it all very nice to get $2 a bushel for corn, $5 a bushel for potatoes and so on, but for taxes to increase even so slightly, "gosh all hemlock," that is an occasion for a brain storm and sufficient provocation to "let 'em alive." "Do you know what taxes I paid on my place in 1904?" (and he probably paid $1000 for it, and has just recently refused an offer of $12,000 for it). We are tolerantly and amusingly silent. "Just $11.64, by gum, and now it is $62.35. What do you think of that?" One might as well try to demonstrate the binomial theorem to that irate customer as to explain the why and wherefores of his tax increase.—Snow Hill Messenger.

GARRETT COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

The Hutton School Now a "Standard School."

Wednesday, June 9th, was a very proud day for the teachers, pupils, and citizens of Hutton. Their school building was visited and inspected by Mr. William J. Holloway, State Supervisor of Rural Schools, who found the school having all thirty-seven requirements which are necessary for it to be "standard."

About 6:30 P. M., people from Hutton, Crellin, Corinth and places close by began to gather for a community meeting. The school children gave a short entertainment during which activities carried on throughout the year were shown. The program was as follows:

Concert recitation... American Creed Songs:

(a).....America, the Beautiful
(b).....Stars of the Summer Night
(c).....Commencement Song
June Exercises.....Primary Grades
Recitations.....Primary Grades
Dramatization "The Lark's Nest"
Victrola selections
Singing Games

(d)....."Let's Play We're Indians"
(e)....."How do you do, My Farmer?"
(f)....."Oats, Beans, Peas and Barley Grow."

(g)....."Looby Loo."
(h)....."How Many Miles to Babylon?"
Essay, Our clean up Day, M. Adams.
At this point two dodge ball games were played between Hutton and Crellin. Hutton lost both games to the visiting team, but the fine team spirit, the idea of fair play shown by the team from both schools must be emphasized.

Following the games, Miss Edna M. Marshall, Grade Supervisor, took charge of the evening. Superintendent Rathbun, Mr. Morris, trustee of the Hutton school, Misses Barnhill and Mann, teachers, and Mr. Holloway. Mr. Holloway said, in part:

"The people of Garrett county have reason to be very proud that one of their rural schools is now recognized as a 'standard school.' It is an achievement of the first importance. Many schools in all parts of the state have been striving for similar recognition, but so far there is only one other two-room school that ranks with this school at Hutton."

Over a year ago the State Board of Education adopted a definition of a standard school. This refers to an improved type of building, ample and well-kept grounds, correct lighting, heating and ventilation, good sanitation, approved furniture for pupils and teachers, proper equipment, first-class teachers living in the community, and a community actively interested in the welfare of the school.

"When this building was erected a few years ago, the Board of Education saw to it that it was planned in accordance with accepted principles of school house architecture. Through this wise provision of the local school authorities, the building itself was found to meet the requirements of a standard school. It then remained to secure the necessary equipment, to improve the grounds and to provide the playground apparatus. To that end, the county superintendent, the grade supervisor and the teachers have worked indefatigably. Mention should also be made of the fine spirit of cooperation manifested by the intelligent and progressive patrons of this school, headed by Mr. Lawson. Today they receive the well-earned reward. After a careful inspection of the school, I am ready to recommend its approval, and the certificate will be awarded."

"The facilities that the children of this community now enjoy should be extended to all the children of Garrett county. They have a right to expect no less. I hope that many more rural schools of this county may soon ask for an inspection with a view to being standardized. To secure this much to be desired result will necessitate an unselfish devotion to the interests of the children on the part of the taxpayers. The people themselves have it in their power to place their schools in the very front rank. This will require, but not a small effort, on the part of the community. It is a privilege to have their money expended for such a purpose. It is an investment which returns vastly more than is received for money spent for any other purpose, either public or private. The best is none too good for any child. The welfare and future progress of this county demands that the best of educational opportunities be afforded to teachers and children of our schools. The schools of this county are on the up-grade. We in the State Department have watched with interest and pleasure the progress that has been made, and have tried to co-operate in all things that make for the best interests of the children. With public sentiment actively supporting the school authorities and the teachers there will be continued growth that will make Garrett county stand out as one of the leading school systems of the country."

The Board of Education, Superintendent and Supervisor wish to take this opportunity to commend the co-operative spirit of the Hutton citizens and teachers, Misses Barnhill and Mann. To accomplish what has been accomplished was done through no little effort. Other teachers and communities have been working just as hard to get together this equipment, but not having physical conditions to start with as did the Hutton school, they could not accomplish it in one year. Throughout the year the co-operative and progressive spirit of the teachers of the county as a whole, and of many communities, have been marked.

Let's make 1920-1921 a banner year in every respect!

Central Closing Exercises. The elementary schools of Garrett county will have their closing exercises at the following places:

Friendsville Wednesday, June 16th; Accident, Wednesday, June 16th; Kitzmiller, Thursday, June 17th; Grantsville, Thursday, June 17th; Grantsville, Thursday, June 17th; Grantsville, Thursday, June 17th.

It is hoped that the smaller schools lying close to these places will participate in these exercises. At Friendsville, Grantsville and Accident, pupils about the elementary school grades will have parts. The Garrett County High School will have its commencement on Friday, June 18th.

Parents and friends of the children receiving certificates from elementary schools, and all people interested in schools, are cordially invited to attend these exercises.

Miss Bertie Spike and Nina O'Brien returned home this morning from Keosau, where they had been guest of the Misses Shillingburg at their home in that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Emerson, of Burr Oak, Mich., who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Naylor at their home in Oakland for some days past, left here this morning for their home.

Messrs. Edgar Helbig, Thomas McCree, Robert Helbig and Misses Evelyn and Lillian Helbig, returned to Pittsburgh in the former's automobile Sunday, returning to Oakland Tuesday.

WANTED—Man with team or auto who can give bond to sell 137 Watsons house and farm products. Biggest concern of its kind in the world. $100 to $500 yearly income. Territory in this county open. Write today to J. R. WATKINS CO., Dept. 113, Winona, Minn.—Advertisement 15-7.

STRAYED—From my farm near Swallow Falls, last Saturday, a Jersey cow with horn ring in ear. Reward for any information given that will lead to her recovery. JONAS SIVES, Oakland, Md.—Advertisement.

Mr. T. D. Sutton, of Richmond, Va., is in town in the interest of a new survey. He has been in consultation with many of the town and county officials and prominent citizens in regard to a plan which will be of great benefit to the community if it can be carried through successfully.—Advertisement.

Mr. Daniel Pfeiffer, of La Sale, Ill., and Mr. Charles Pfeiffer, of Dayton, Ohio, arrived in Oakland this morning to visit relatives for some time. They are sons of the late John Pfeiffer and left Oakland more than twenty-five years ago.

Miss Anna Eichhorn, of Cumberland, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fraley at their home in Oakland several days last week, returned to her home Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Fraley accompanied their guest in the former's automobile, the return to Oakland being made Sunday evening.

FOR SALE—Modern home in Oakland; 8 rooms; bath; electric light; gas; hot water heat. Bargain. Address Box 517, Oakland, Md.—Advertisement 17.

Mr. John H. Sanders, who was operated upon at Mercy Hospital, Altoona, Pa., some time ago, has returned to his home near Oakland. During the convalescent period Mr. Sanders was at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. R. Hauser, wife of the Rev. E. R. Hauser, pastor of one of the Lutheran churches at Altoona.

Senator Harvey J. Speicher returned to his home at Accident last Saturday night from a week's visit to the Valley of Virginia, he having marketed in that section a large number of stock cows which were shipped the week previous from Oakland.

A broken rail on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at a point just a short distance west of town yesterday morning was fortunately discovered by a workman who was walking down the track to begin his day's labor. The condition of the track was such that had it not been discovered a serious wreck would have resulted. All trains were more or less delayed until repairs had been completed by the trackmen who were hurriedly called out for the purpose.

Miss Eva Falkenstein, who has been a student in the W. Va. W. College at Buckhannon, West Va., for the past two years, was graduated from the standard normal course of that school on Wednesday and arrived at her home in Oakland Sunday night, accompanied by Misses Grace and Mabel Falkenstein, who had gone to Buckhannon on the Sunday preceding in order to be present at the exercises incident to the graduation.

Mrs. Franklin O. Glatfelter and the members of her family left Oakland on Friday last for their new home in Spokane, Washington, for which city Mr. Glatfelter and one of his sons departed several weeks ago. Mr. Glatfelter has secured a dwelling in a splendid portion of the western city where his family will reside while he is engaged in the lumbering operation for which he has along term contracted a few miles from the city.

Mrs. Joseph E. Harned went to Westminster, Md., on Thursday last to be present at the graduating exercises of the class of 1920, of which her daughter Miss Louise, is a member, and who received from her parents as a graduation present a handsome Buick roadster. Mr. Harned, accompanied by Mr. Walter W. Dawson, driving the machine from Oakland to Westminster on Monday. Mr. Harned returned to Oakland by train this morning while Mrs. Harned and Miss Louise will return here in the latter's car.

Mr. Joseph Coddington, who left Oakland more than forty years ago, at a time when he was a mere boy, settling near Uniontown, Pa., where he farmed until recently when he sold his farm and returned to his native place in Oakland and vicinity several weeks ago, returning to his home yesterday morning. Long accompanied by his niece, Miss Nellie Coddington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Coddington. While in this community Mr. Coddington secured an option on a nice farm south of Oakland and may purchase it and make Garrett county his future home.

Merchant George Hoover, of Jennings, which he claims will be the second town in Garrett county within a short time, was in Oakland on business Monday. What gives foundation to Mr. Hoover's claim concerning the future of Jennings is the fact of the great activity in the coal of that section, now mines being opened as fast as men can be secured to do the work, and the fields are practically unlimited and inexhaustible. The coal mined and shipped from that section of the county is claimed to be the best sent out from any of the many mines in Garrett county and a growing demand for the output of the mines has become so great that the orders received cannot be filled by large odds.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK SCHOOL ORGANIZATION IS BEGUN

Garrett County Resource will be Center of Education for Foreign Missionaries

When the new center of missionary education is established at Mountain Lake Park, two miles from Oakland, by the Methodist Episcopal church this summer it is expected that about 400 foreign missionaries and candidates for the mission fields of that denomination will be students of the new school. It will be the training center of the church for foreign missionaries.

These students will come from all parts of the country, being for the most part young men and women preparing for foreign mission work. A feature of the school is that it is planned to hold the schools of instruction for the missionaries only in the summer months.

Besides the preparatory courses at the school there will also be courses for missionaries who have had actual experience and who are in this country on leave of absence from their various fields. The Park will be a place of recreation as well as of study for them, as it also will be the center of a large part of the foreign missionary activities of the church when it is fully established. At present it is planned to hold the schools of instruction for the missionaries only in the summer months.

Plans already are being shaped for the school. The tract of more than eight hundred acres with all the buildings was presented to the society after it had been operated for some time by the friends of the new center. The buildings are now being put in thorough repair by the Mission Board and are adequate for the present, but will be added to in the future as necessity demands.

The Rev. John F. Goucher, who was in Oakland yesterday when the school was formally transferred to the new owners, and who sailed on the following day for London, Eng., to attend some religious conferences of international importance, is given chief credit for putting this educational plan for missionaries into effect. He is a member of the Board of Foreign Missions, and was the chief stockholder in the Mountain Lake Park Association. He returned this spring from a tour of the mission fields in the Far East, and has been closely identified with Methodist missions for more than a generation.

Others who were identified with the old association and who contributed largely in making the transfer of the property to the new owners, are Messrs. Gibson S. Hamill, A. D. Naylor, the heirs of the estate of the late D. E. Offutt, Charles S. Lewis, of Oakland; Dr. Charles S. Lewis, of Baltimore; Dr. W. D. Reed, of Baltimore; recently of Oakland, and others. The school will be a large number of acres, who will be able to take up the work and pay of the school of the old corporation so that it could be turned over to the new owners. It is a fact that the school was one of the conditions upon which the transfer was made.

The proposed school of missions will cost several thousand dollars annually to operate. The money will come chiefly from the Garrett County Fund, as the whole project was made possible by it and is a direct outcome of the Methodist Centenary Movement.

GARRETT COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

Commencement Exercises Are Now Being Carried Forward.

This is commencement week in the Garrett County High School in Oakland and the graduating class is composed of a happy lot of young ladies and young gentlemen, eight being the total number.

Last night was class night when a very entertaining program was carried at the High School building, consisting of songs, readings and the class play in which nearly all members of the class had parts.

The graduation exercises and the award of diplomas to the students will occur at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow night.

The graduating class is composed of the following: Hazel Fern Crane, Ella Elizabeth Helbig, Ann Rebecca Ledford, Rosale Margaret Pendergast, Adna Robert Sterling, Arthur Chilton Michael, Rebecca Baker White, Wilhelm Harp Weber.

TIMELY ADVICE TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

The Book of Proverbs has great principles for our guidance. Chapter 4 gives us an earnest exhortation to hear and attend unto wisdom. There are dangerous places ahead of us, hence we should "stop, look, listen." There is a lot of noise and haste now-a-days, there fore the necessity to hear and attend. Wise counsel is given us and it will be to be guided by it. The results of hearing and heeding are the promotion of honor, grace and glory, length of years, enlargement and stability and better than all, life—real life. Bring these together and they make a strong character, one worth while to, yet the wisdom that produces these qualities is ignored. Wisdom cries to those in the wrong way. This is a self-pleasing way. You cannot please everybody, but if your way is right, you can please yourself with reasonable assurance also of pleasing God. But you must be sure you are right then go ahead, stick to it at any cost. "Suit everyone? You never will! That's settled any minute; the task is far beyond your skill, so never you begin it." There is an old proverb which says, "He who pleased everybody, died before he was born." That is only another way of saying no one ever has, or can please everybody. However we can carry the self-pleasing process too far. The wrong way is a self-exalting way. That suggests vanity and pride and pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall. "God resisteth the proud but He exalts the humble." It is a self-willed way. It doesn't pay to insist on having your own way always. Others know something as well as we do. Your way may not be the best after all. We must recognize authority, especially the divine rule of action and be governed by it.

Jonah is a forceful illustration of a self-willed man. He insisted on having his own way. He chose his own course. He refused to go where the Lord directed him, but chose his own destination, paid the fare, but had to embark in the first submarine of which we have any knowledge. He had to yield his will at last, though it was cutly work for him. We may detect the wrong way by conscience. What is conscience? It is hard to define satisfactorily, though we may discover its constitution in some measure through its operations. It is a compounded faculty. It implies mutual knowledge between two persons regarding one thing, especially knowledge of wrong doing. I am conscious I have sinned and God is conscious of my sin. I may not be conscious of sinning, but I know, and God knows, I know that God knows and God knows that I know that He knows. This knowledge gives mental suffering on account of the sin.

"Everything is naked and open unto the eyes of Him with whom we have to do." Bunyan describes God as "all eye and always eye." No sin can escape His holy eyes. Conscience in the link that binds us to our Creator, when all others are rendered by sin. In the midst of moral devastation conscience lived and flourished. Man is now a moral ruin and the only hope of his ultimate restoration is to be found in the possession of conscience. This is the way God approaches the soul. Destroy conscience and you are severed from God and your doom is sealed. It is the watchman at the door of the soul and gives warning at the first approach of danger of temptation or sin. It is like a watchdog at a home. The barking of the dog arouses the inmates to repel the marauder. A silent dog is worthless, a dumb dog is a menace to the safety of property and life. So a silent conscience is worse than no conscience. It is a menace to the soul's safety in the hour of need. By means of conscience, God protects against sin in thought or act. A normal conscience will challenge every desire for evil or deed of sin. Whenever sin is committed conscience enters its protest in the temple of the soul and the whole moral edifice returns the fearful echo.

We may know the wrong way by the inward restraints that we experience, by the teachings of the Bible, by the admonitions of the church, by good books, by friends and by the providential dealings of God. The spirit of wisdom is the spirit of God, says Isaiah. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Paul says that Christ is the wisdom of God. Right relationship to Him then is the way of wisdom for us. We can't attain a good and strong character apart from right relationship to the Son and proper adjustment to the spirit of God, but it is the spirit who makes these available to us. Worldly wisdom is considered essential, yet in essence and expression it is selfish, self-asserting and self-exalting. The best book for business is the Bible. The best book of the Bible is Proverbs. It is preeminently the business man's book. Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Senator says, "The Bible should be studied by all men and women and must be desired by everyone who reflects at all on the condition of the world at the present time."

Secretary Daniels said on one occasion, "I never knew a wise man who was not familiar with the scriptures. I never knew a public speaker who reaped the hearts of hearers, who did not draw upon the Bible for his best illustrations and most convincing epigrams. No man is educated who is not versed in the Book of Books." But we are not only to give heed to wisdom, we are to take fast hold of instruction. We shall need it in the battle of life. A ship's crew must sometimes betake themselves to their boats. A whale ship in the south seas was struck by a wounded whale and was sinking. They loaded their boats and put off one hundred yards, when two of their strongest swimmers plunged overboard and swam for the boat. Down the hatchway they went and soon came up with something in their arms. They started for the boats, when the vessel sank. They were caught in the eddy and lost their load, but indifferent to their fate, they grasped their load and held it fast. It was the compass. Regardless of everything else, we must hold fast to wisdom. It will be a compass to you in your journey. You will need it in sailing over the rough sea of life. Your boat has been or will be struck. Not by a wounded sea monster, but by the enemy of all good who would destroy you if he could. Yes, he would wreck the universe were that possible.

NEW CURE FOR DRUG ADDICTS

Twilight Sleep Used by California Physician With Marked Success.

MANY DOPE FIENDS CURED

Method Includes Two Processes; First, Patient Is Given Anesthetic, Then Cure Is Completed by Suggestion.

Oakland, Cal.—"Twilight sleep" is being acclaimed a cure for the drug habit.

This new clinical discovery, hitherto restricted to only in obstetric cases, is being used by hundreds of drug addicts by Dr. John Scott Barker, head of a sanatorium here, with results that are attracting attention from the medical profession all over America.

So remarkable has been his success that the city administration at Oakland has opened for him a clinic in the city hall where the poorer victims may get free treatment.

See Two Aspects

"The drug habit is both physical and mental and must be treated from both aspects," said Doctor Barker. "The physical method is like a surgical operation. The bodily processes which have been functioning only under stimuli must be set back in their normal channels. Then the habit which is a mental thing must be changed by suggestions to the will. The latter can be done by hypnosis or any constructive means that effect in the patient's will to stay cured."

Doctor Barker's method therefore includes two processes—the first a purely physical one, in which the addict is placed in a state of coma or twilight sleep, with scopolamine for two or three days. The drug habit, says Doctor Barker, is like a rattlesnake bite and produces a toxic condition. The sudden removal of the use of drugs causes such intense suffering that it would break down the patient's will, or even mind, if he were not relieved by an anesthetic.

The second stage of treatment begins when the patient comes out of the coma. While he is still relaxed and his mind like a clean blackboard, Doctor Barker, by the use of hypnosis, builds up a belief in the patient's mind that he is through with the drug for good.

Along with these suggestive therapeutics he carries on a program of body building—including diet, baths, exercise, massage and occupational diversion.

Situation Is Acute.

"The 'dope' problem is getting acute," said Doctor Barker. "On the one hand the dry law has increased the use of drugs. On the other the high cost of living has driven the illicit traders in narcotics a chance to proliferate. The result is that only two classes can afford drugs—the rich and the criminal class. 'The former can afford to pay $150 an ounce for heroin or $100 an ounce for cocaine and morphine. The latter

"Truth" Unadorned Covered With Blanket

San Francisco.—A very pretty young woman wandered from her room early one morning at the Porter hotel out into the street and into the lobby of the Yuba hotel, a block and a half away.

Ordinarily this would have been unimportant, but this woman was no other.

The clerk at the Yuba hotel protested. "That's all right," she replied. "I'm Truth, and Truth should be unadorned."

The clerk couldn't see it that way. He telephoned Charles Simpson, steward at the Central Emergency hospital. Simpson came to the rescue with a blanket.

"Truth" fought efforts to blanket her, saying it was a sin to conceal Truth, but Simpson was firm.

The girl is under observation, less intense, but more official than usual.

"Truth" was the only name she gave.

commit crimes to get the drugs. An alarming number of crimes are reported by persons driven desperate by the craving for 'dope'.

"The big majority of my patients are well-to-do. One was a New York broker, who spent $20,000 for drugs in three years. Another is a Los Angeles cafe owner, who has been spending $150 a month for four years. It is said there are 20,000 addicts in San Francisco, and this general average runs through every large city."

GHOSTS ROAM CASTLE

Disturb Inmates of Lord Leith's Residence in Scotland.

'Green Lady' Is Seen to Walk Through Walls of Maid's Room.

Aberdeen.—Rumor and fact are strangely blended in a remarkable ghost story concerning Eyrie castle, the Aberdeen residence of Lord Leith, which brings up to date an ancient legend of the house.

The castle is rich in legends of murder and revenge in the olden days, but until recently little untoward events have been heard of for many a year. The rumor which has revived these stories is that recently masons and carpenters were called in to remove a fungus growth from the wall of the gun room, which is situated in the oldest portion of the Preston tower, from which legend says a former reigning lady repelled an invader with a deluge of molten lead.

When the wall was demolished a human skeleton was found among the rubble. It was interred in the village churchyard, and ever since it is said it has manifested its displeasure by moans, groans and mysterious knockings in every part of the castle.

A maid servant named 'Mae' declares that she saw the ghost of the famous 'Green Lady' walk across the floor of her bedroom and disappear into the wall beyond. Mrs. Massie stoutly repudiates any suggestion as to a possible mistake. "I saw the lady walk across the floor," she said.

Other servants, though not seeing the apparition, corroborate the tales of nocturnal noises and strange moanings.

Miss Kellas, the housekeeper, told a story of hearing a remarkable disturbance in the chandelier and hall room. She went upstairs, only to find nothing that could account for it.

The 'Green Lady' was a prophetic figure who appeared in olden days immediately prior to any pending evil, which visited the owners of the estate. Eyrie castle stands in a remote district, Macduff, and dates back to the fifteenth century.

Leap Year Cupid Aid. Lexington, Ky.—In order to encourage matrimony and assist lovers, the Lexington Postmaster has established a "leap year cupid bureau." It is being worked overtime, too. FIGHT DISEASES AND WORM PESTS Trouble Begins in Garden as Soon as Seeds Are Planted in Vegetable Garden.

MANY CAUSES OF AILMENTS

Plants Suffer If Soil Is Not Suited—Weather Is Also Important Factor—Quite Essential to Prepare Good Seed Bed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

From the time the seeds of garden crops are put into the ground until the crops are harvested a succession of diseases and insect enemies may appear, each of which must be fought by the methods that experience has shown to work best in the particular case.

Diseases of plants are due to many causes. Plants suffer if the soil is not suited to them. It may be too rich or too poor or too heavy or too light, or it may contain too much or too little water. It may lack lime and humus. Some vegetables, such as spinach and cauliflower, thrive in cool weather and do poorly in midsummer, while others, like tomatoes and lima beans, are hot-weather plants. Excessive heat produces wilting or withering. Too much water in the soil keeps the roots from the air they need and causes a sickly, yellow growth. Fertilizers in excess or used carelessly may burn the leaves, injure the roots, or prevent seed from germinating.

It always is important to have the soil deeply plowed or spaded and made loose and light with plenty of well-rotted manure or compost and to keep the ground cultivated so that the surface will not become hard or weedy. Use the best seed to be had.

Rootknots on Lettuce—Similar Galls Are Formed by This Pest on the Roots of Nearly All Vegetables.

and sow it liberally to get a good stand, but thin out the plants as overcrowded plants are in much greater danger of becoming diseased than those that receive plenty of air and sunshine.

The diseases which cause most losses are due to fungi and bacteria. Fungi and bacteria are plants, though usually exceedingly small. The disease-producing forms live on or in our vegetables and fruits, feeding on them and causing the various blights, rots, and spots of which we complain. The details of this rotation must vary in each case according to the climate, soil and vegetables grown and the diseases and insects to be guarded against.

The weather has an important influence on the development of fungal diseases, moisture and warmth being necessary.

True insects are small creatures which in the adult stage have rather hard bodies divided into three portions, head, thorax (chest), and abdomen (belly). They have a single pair of antennae or "feelers," normally three pairs of legs, and usually one or two pairs of wings. Among injurious forms of true insects are beetles, butterflies, moths, sawflies, ants, grasshoppers, plant-lice, thrips and plant-lice.

Other small creatures in a general way are popularly classified as insects, such as sowbugs, red spiders, mites, and thousand-legged "worms."

Insects are classified into (1) chewing or biting forms, which devour leaves and other portions of plants; and (2) sucking forms, which injure and destroy plants by sucking the vital life juices. For the first class, arsenicals are the best remedies; for the second class contact poisons are used.

Gardeners should learn to know the insects which are useful in destroying injurious insects. Prominent among these is the convergent ladybird. It destroys not only all forms of garden plant-lice but the eggs of various insects, such as the Colorado potato beetle. Other beneficial insects are wasps, ichneumon and chalcids flies (minute, wasp-like insects), ground beetles, soldier bugs, scyrrhus flies, tachinid flies, and lace-wing flies. But for the natural enemies of the potato beetle, cabbage worms, army worms and similar pests, all vegetable crops probably would be failures.

The gardener who starts with a clean soil may do much to keep insects and diseases out, and thus save the trouble and cost of applying sprays. Prevention is better than cure, especially in the home garden, which usually must be planted on the same ground year after year.

Some of the worst garden troubles are brought in on the roots of plants and remain in the soil to attack the next crop. So in buying plants of any kind one should be sure that they are healthy and free from insects. The roots should be clean and fibrous, not swollen or knotted. Southern gardeners in particular should be on the watch against root-knot. Cabbage and cauliflower plants should be inspected for clubroot and sweet potato plants for black-rot. Irish potatoes should be treated for scab before planting. Control insects that spread plant diseases.

Many insects not only attack the crops directly but also carry plant diseases. Thus, the striped cucumber beetle, squash, melons and related plants; plant-lice carry the cucumber mosaic, the potato flea-beetle, the bacterial wilt, and various other insects occasionally carry spores from diseased to healthy plants.

Avoid Wounding Plants. In cultivating or working around plants, avoid wounding or breaking them. In pruning make a clean, close cut. In harvesting fruits and vegetables that are to be stored, handle with the greatest care to avoid bruising, as decay most frequently begins where the natural protective covering is broken. Certain insects, such as the potato tuber moth, also gain access at such points.

Neatness, cleanliness, and order in the garden help in the fight against insects and diseases. As a general rule, the residue of the garden, such as cornstalks, potato tops, etc., are to be turned under to improve the soil. To this promptly, so that insects and disease spores may not be harbored by the rubbish. In some cases, which will be pointed out later, diseased vegetable remains should be taken out of the garden and burned. Weeds in the garden and around it harbor both insects and diseases, particularly if the weeds are related to the cultivated plants.

Just as soon as any crop is gathered, spade up the ground, and plant something else. Except in the extreme North, rye or oats can be sown to give winter cover.

Crop Rotation.

Farmers have found that by rotating their crops they reduce the injury from plant diseases and insects and also increase the fertility of the soil. This principle applies to the home garden, where, if possible, it will be better to make a new plan each year, placing each vegetable where some other grew the year before—peas on the old tomato ground, beets and carrots after the corn, etc. The details of this rotation must vary in each case according to the climate, soil and vegetables grown and the diseases and insects to be guarded against.

PODDENOTES

Keep the house and yard clean.

Provide roosts and dropping boards.

Feed table and kitchen waste to the hens.

Provide a nest for each four or five hens.

Give a heavier feed of grain in the evening.

Give a light feed of grain in the morning.

Let the hens help themselves to a dry mash.

Gather eggs daily; market at least twice a week.

Keep standard-bred poultry. It is more profitable.

Keep poultry free from lice and the house free from mites.

Feed grain in straw or other litter to make the hens scratch for it.

Grow green crops in the poultry yards if they are not in permanent sod.

Build substantial, comfortable poultry houses, but make them as inexpensive as possible.

Hatch early. Early hatched chicks live better, grow better, and the pullets make full and winter layers.

Sudden fright and excitement at once tells on the egg crop. Never allow strange dogs about where the hens are.

If you have had little or no experience in poultry keeping, start in a small way. Then increase as your experience and success warrant.

Don't let roosters run with the hens after the breeding season is over. The hens will lay just as well and the eggs will be infertile and will keep better.

Many farmers say that labor and time saved in looking after one incubator rather than 15 or 20 setting hens, is enough to make the purchase of an incubator practical.

What Women Say

Danville, Va.—"From my earliest childhood Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' have been used by my people. My mother depended upon these remedies whenever her children seemed listless or sluggish, and I am sure they saved her many a doctor bill. 'When I was developing into womanhood I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' whenever I have felt the need of a tonic, and when constipated or distressed with sluggish liver."

"I consider Dr. Pierce's medicines the very best remedies on the market."—Mrs. J. H. Kime, 760 Patton St.

Fredericksburg, Va.—"At one time I became all run-down, weak and nervous, suffered with nausea. My mother advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it soon stopped all nausea and built me up, and I felt well during the remainder of the time. I also had a very fine, strong, healthy baby."

"We have also used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in the family. They are very excellent remedies."—Mrs. W. T. Layton, 95 National Boulevard.

Indigestion, Pain In Heart

Danville, Va.—"I used to suffer with dreadful spells of indigestion so that my heart would pain me, I would blot up so with gas. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets relieved me at once and eventually cured me of this suffering. At the same time I was bothered a great deal with women's trouble, for which I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was entirely restored to perfect health and relieved of all pains."—Mrs. Alice Ferrell, 21 Green St.

SACRED CATTLE WIN

Awarded Blue Ribbons at Stock Show in Texas.

Used With Humpas Thrive on Arid Plains—Crossed With Native Stock.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The great sacred cattle of India have gone to home pastures with blue ribbons for the first time from the Fort Worth fair stock show, setting a new era in the industry in the southwest.

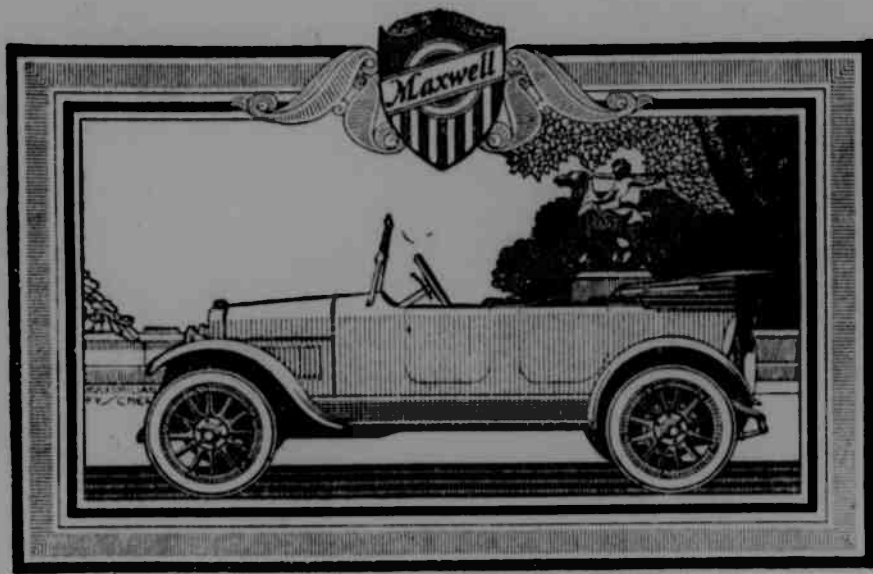

The Brahmas came from the great Pierce ranches in Wharton county and were shown in public interest at the exhibition this year the Horsford, the Bollinger, Jerseys and other breeds. Fifteen of the sacred cattle were brought to the show.

What attracted most interest about the "sacred cattle" is the fact that they are tick-proof and drought-resistant.

Originally pure bloods, these giant, gaunt cattle have been crossed with Texas stock until they have donned some of the physical characteristics of their kind. But they still retain the hump and their natural wildness has been intensified by the admixture with the Texas stock.

They are tall and almost gaunt and can run like deer, but their most tender and strengthening. Breeding of these sacred cattle has never progressed into an industry in Texas, yet this year's exhibit has strengthened interest in the crossing of the breeds, especially in west Texas, because of their drought-resisting qualities.

In periods of drought, the ordinary steers cannot wander far from a water hole in search of grass, with the result that all of the vegetation around the particular water hole is soon eaten up and the cattle begin to suffer. But the Brahmas will go far afield in quest of food.

The Thrift of a MAXWELL comes from its special steels

Nearly 400,000 owners know well how thrifty a Maxwell really is.

Men in the trade in selling other cars often use the expression "as thrifty as a Maxwell."

Special steels are the underlying cause of Maxwell's thrift.

These are steels, made to Maxwell's own formulae, after years of tests, analysis and study, which make possible the ideal construction of great strength and light weight.

They give a Maxwell the ability to stand wear, strain, twists and jolts that other cars much larger and heavier would have difficulty to resist.

But they make a Maxwell light. They eliminate useless weight; they ease the burden on the engine and thus gas, oil and tires render long mileage results.

Hence, the ever growing respect and admiration for Maxwell the world over; and its consequent fast growing numbers. Nearly 400,000 in use today; a year hence 500,000.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, JUNE 20th.

The Lord Our Shepherd. Psalm 23. John 10:1-17.

Jehovah is my shepherd, I shall not want. THE WONDERFUL PICTURE. "And I was up above the clouds," said mother as she told the story of her trip. "Mother, did you see God?" came the eager question. "No, dear. Why?" The wistful little face grew tenderly mysterious as she answered, "If I'd get above the clouds I'd just try to get a peek at Him." And man has always been trying to get, if possible a peek at God and in lieu of that has exercised his imagination to produce the feature of Deity. And a sorry mess has he made of it for in those old days of the Shepherd Psalm there were wonderful conceptions but invariably the War God dominated all others and dripped blood under whatever picturing was done. Egypt or Babylon or Hittite made no difference and for centuries longer that dominated all other ideas. But here in the Judea hills some nameless keeper of sheep who may have been David, the names were placed after the songs were written and are little more a part of the revealed record than Ishar's dates, saw another fall. There is nothing more tender in the Book until Christ draws the face of Father and gives a few added strokes to the very picture that has dreamed among the flock. Small wonder that it is the best known and best loved in all the Psalter! Many find diversity in the figure that changes from shepherd to guide and then to host but its unity may be just as striking for under every figure of dress are the same features. The shepherd who leads the flock into pleasant pastures guards it thru the dark dell and tenderly cares for his fiercest spots needs no other character than the one that gives name to the old song.

THE SONG OF EXPERIENCE. "I" is the author's only pronoun. His relationship is tremendously personal and could only have been born of his experience. This shepherd of the hills discovered what the Centurion later learned that in one's occupation God could be found. Like the woman who touched the garment's hem and reached thru to her Lord he handled things in such fashion that they became mere shells for the spirit within. Under star or blinding sun he brooded upon his flock until Jehovah walked the lands with him and opened his eyes to the gracious, guiding, guarding presence as in his own life. The very flock must have been startled by the exultant shout of this singer of the upper fields. He was not lost in the crowd, his God knew him, provided for him, forgave him, protected him, ministered to him, overtook him with goodness and mercy. The reason for its note of praise and gratitude is not far to seek and the note of confidence is the only one with which it could possibly close. The song strokes the absolutely vital thing in the religious life, a personal experience. If I do not know I have a Father my sense of sonship is dead in deed. If I am not sure His love is personal I will greatly doubt its being universal. The soul that cannot say "my" is either unborn or bedridden.

THE SONG OF THE JEW. The experience that does not progress from "I" to "We" counts for little in the world. Brotherhood is the only sufficient goal for a personal faith. Yet brotherhood must be dragged into this old song by implication and not by any expression that is found within it. The Jew lost his place because of this very hesitancy to share with all the world the Jehovah that was his own. Germany made the same mistake for the Jew would have imposed his God as the Kaiser would his Kultur but to share with inferiors was out of the question. The Hebrew sang this as we sing America and found in it all the national passion that thrills hearts today for what is stated concerning the singer as a person had been the experience of the nation ever since the gates of Egypt had been unbarred and they had been settled in a land flowing with milk and honey and had been fed in the presence of many an enemy and had needed the soothing lotion upon many a hurt. It is not surprising that the Hebrew nation should have given the world such a revelation of God as is found in the Book when this was their national song for a people singing their way into history more vitally than they fight or law themselves into it. Yet brotherhood lies under the figure of the shepherd for it is the flock that makes him one; no man is shepherd of a single sheep which is merely a pet for the household. Jehovah was "Shepherd" of Israel or of one lone Hebrew solely because there were others than the singer. The hidden source of the Psalm's vitality is after all in this universality that will transform "my" into "our" and hold unchanged its truth and passion. THE SONG OF THE SHEPHERD. All that the old dreamer, among the sheep conceived Jesus declared as a fact of life. And much more beside for there is the added thought of the fold when the troublous day is done. Taking a picture from life He says, "I am the door." In many a fold there is nothing but the shelter with a narrow opening thru which the sheep pass in or out. When the flock is within, folding himself in his rough coat, the shepherd lays himself across the entrance and no danger can pass to the sheep nor can any stray lamb wander save as a way is forced over his own body. Jesus says that is precisely His position in relationship to His sheep. He is the living door and in every night whether it be of death or danger I may rest secure. Moreover there is here the blood of the cross of sacrifice by which men are saved from the wolves of sin and beyond the narrow limits of the old singer are the "other sheep" and the final folding of them all into one flock. Wonderful as is the song in the dawn of the Book far more thrilling is that of the high noon of the Gospel and it holds within it the hope of the world.

50c. Talking With 50c. The Dead

A handsome booklet of 150 pages. The latest and most up-to-date work dealing with the mysterious communications from the Spirit World.

Increasing interest in this subject has been manifested for some years past, but particularly since the World War. A great desire on the part of bereaved parents and friends of the boys who died in camp and "Over There" to know something about their present state is to a large extent responsible for the universal interest in this subject today.

Talking With The Dead

touches every phase of these phenomena. It is both Scientific and Scriptural. Price post paid 50 cents.

Special offer, "Talking With the Dead" will for a limited time be given free with one year's subscription to the Golden Age. Subscription price $1.50 per year. Published every other Wednesday. Deals with all important subjects of the day and their application to the good times coming.

Do You Depend on Gasoline, Oil and Tires for Economy

REAL Estate men tell us, "The days of blind buying" are over. People here in town are more careful to investigate land values, property depreciation and the all around economy in good building."

Keen appreciation of what property will be worth next year or the year after greatly influences buying.

We too, can notice a decided change. This same sure buying condition is more and more evidenced in the purchase of motor cars.

For example, many of our Packard friends, who previously owned 1, 2, 3 and even 4 different makes of the so-called economy cars, tell us: "Our biggest saving is not due to the Twin Six's gasoline, oil or tire mileage."

The "Fuel-izer"

A Remarkable Invention Now standard equipment on all new Twin Six Cars

This ingenious development: Eliminates carbon. Stops fouling of spark plugs. Prevents oil dilution on cylinder walls and in crank case. Makes starting easy in any weather.

Ask to see it demonstrated. Even though a Packard will give gasoline mileage from 9 to 13, depending on road conditions, oil mileage 500 or more to the gallon and tires properly cared for, 10,000 to 16,000 miles—a Twin Six owner's greatest economy is in the permanency of Packard value.

PACKARDS five, six or even ten years old have a proportionately higher re-sale value than any car we know of.

Let us explain the many cases right here in our town where Packards have proved to be more economical to operate than cars costing one-half or two-thirds as much.

We suggest a visit to our showroom to those who do not know the unusual saving that can be made with a Twin Six.

VOLUME 45

OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1920.

NUMBER 16.

Senator Harding Was Nominated On The Tenth Ballot; Coolidge For Vice-President

Governor Lowndes Released His Delegates On 9th Roll Call And Stampede Carries Ohian Far Over The Line

Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, was nominated for President late Saturday afternoon in the Republican National Convention in Chicago on the tenth ballot, receiving a fraction over 645 votes.

Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, was nominated later in the evening for the Vice Presidency. Pennsylvania's vote gave him his majority in the ballot as it did Senator Harding, the Presidential nominee.

Lowndes Threw Strength to Calton. In a dramatic session in which Governor Lowndes, of Illinois, released all his friends, and his delegates turned to Harding in rapid succession, the Harding landslide, which started with a gentle movement early in the morning, steadily and surely grew and resisted all efforts of Wood and Lowndes to check it if they had had a disposition to do so.

Immediately after Senator Harding's nomination was a fact, it was decided to attempt to have a brief recess on the floor, with the delegates remaining, so a choice could be decided upon for second place, and the business of the convention ended on Saturday night.

Senator Harding was in an anteroom nearby while the convention was casting the ballots which made him the Republican nominee. For some of the time he chatted there with Governor Lowndes, who had given up the fight a few minutes before. Mrs. Harding was also with him.

Colonel Procter, General Wood's manager, and others, visited Senator Harding and Governor Lowndes there while the convention was noisily and anxiously making history only a few feet away.

When the result was communicated by Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, Senator Harding left for his hotel with Mrs. Harding and announced that he would have no statement to make at this time.

It was just about the moment that Governor Sproul in person in his seat on the floor was casting the 60 votes from Pennsylvania, which ran Harding's total over 620 and gave him the nomination.

As the convention realized that a nominee had been made, a clamor broke loose and there was an unrestrained demonstration for several minutes. When quiet was restored the calling of the roll was continued. Contrary to expectations many of the remaining States held their original formations, giving complimentary or far-well votes to favorite sons or men whom they had been supporting.

La Follette held his 24 votes from Wisconsin to the last ballot and the convention and galleries hissed their delivery as usual.

The Philippines remained and Maryland remained faithful to General Wood to the last.

On an unofficial total Harding received 645 votes and seven-tenths. Then came a landslide of change in votes in which most of the delegations wanted to climb on the bandwagon and throw in their entire delegations for Harding.

Colorado changed to a solid Harding vote, as did others, while efforts were being made to make the nomination unanimous by the usual motion.

Illinois changed 16 of the remaining Lowndes 17 to Harding.

Washington, which had stood solid for Poindexter, also changed to make her vote unanimous for Harding.

Delegates in the Wisconsin group voted against making the nomination unanimous.

Senator Lenroot was nominated for Vice President by Senator McCormick, of Illinois, and seconded by State Chairman Hott, of Kentucky.

Judge Wallace McCamant, of Oregon, nominated Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, for the Vice Presidency, which was seconded by North Dakota, Michigan and many other of the states. There was a great burst of enthusiasm for Coolidge, and delegates fairly fell over themselves for a chance to second him.

A woman delegate tried to make a speech from a chair. The convention saw her gestures but never heard a word.

All over the hall delegates were standing on chairs or climbing on the seats supporting the galleries, delecting themselves to the business of making noise. It probably was a reflex from the tension of ten ballots and five gruelling days in an intense heat.

HARDING TELLS HOW HARDING WAS NAMED FOR PRESIDENT

Nomination of Ohian Spontaneous Result of Harmony Conference. June 15.—Room 404 in the Blackstone Hotel will be spoken of for years to come as one of the famous hotel rooms of history.

It is the recreation room of the suite occupied by Col. George H. Harvey in the thrubbing days of the Republican National Convention. In this room at 2:30 on Saturday morning, when Hiram Johnson was speaking successfully in the suite above, Warren G. Harding was introduced to opportunity as a dozen leaders of the party representing its main followers selected him as their only possible candidate.

As everybody knows, there was nothing but chaos and confusion when the convention adjourned on Friday night after four futile ballots. As naturally as day follows night the leaders, who felt the responsibility of the hour, the imperative necessity of building the party together and of ending the unhappy altercation by Saturday night, turned toward a central figure. They found this figure in the person of Col. Harvey, who had assisted powerfully in the victory of Americanism over internationalism and who came to the convention at the invitation of many leaders to assist in finding a candidate who could be elected and who could end what has been going on in Washington for more than seven years.

Conference In Spontaneous. The Colonel's rooms adjoin the suite occupied by Will H. Hays, national chairman. Before the night had aged the real guides of party policy found their way to room 404. They did not go by request or by any sort of previous arrangement or understanding. The conference which developed was not "set up." It was elastic and constantly changing in personnel as this national figure or that entered or departed. It brought together in the heart of a remarkable crisis men that were heartily for one or another of half a dozen aspirants, and which by a compromise of down-right common sense and mutual give and take before daylight showed through the windows looking out on Lake Michigan and made history. Here is the intimate story as told by Colonel Harvey himself.

Big Men Meet. If it can be said that any one man took a leading part in the momentous talks that developed, the part might be assigned to Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut. But the decision represented the best judgment of all the men who sat with Brandegee and Harvey. These men were Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts; Senator Modell McCormick of Illinois; Senator Reed Smoot of Utah; Senator James E. Watson of Indiana; Senator James W. Walsh of New York; Senator William L. Calder of New York; Senator Charles McNary of Kentucky; and Joseph B. Keating, of Indiana.

They were of all divisions of sympathy in the matter of a candidate. Lodge would have liked to see Wood nominated. McCormick was a friend of Johnson and of Lowndes and had nothing against Wood. Calder liked Lowndes. Hays was for Lowndes. Watson liked Lowndes and so it went. Everybody wanted to have his own way, but everybody knew the danger of letting the convention run over into the following week.

Eliminating the Aspirants. As the hours went by all aspirants and possibilities were eliminated. Coolidge, as a candidate for President, was too much of the East. Sproul was tagged by Attorney of the Pennsylvania Road. Hughes inevitably recalled the fluke of 1916, and a fluke is the most tragic, the most irreparable thing in politics. As for the "Big Three"—Wood, Lowndes and Johnson—the impossibility of nominating any one of them without a long drawn out 40 or 50 ballot contest producing hard words and causing deep wounds, was recognized.

So, as the hands of the clock went around towards 3, it came to Senator Harding, the only candidate that had not aroused antagonisms; the candidate of Ohio, a state that must be won; the candidate that had not been mentioned by another McKinley. Leader after leader left Colonel Harvey's room, thoroughly convinced that if Lowndes must be named, C. Procter, the general manager of Lowndes, had no strategy to be employed. Their business was then to instruct and guide their own delegates to the organization for the work in hand.

After Wood Obdurate. When they had gone, all except Brandegee, Senator Harding went to the Blackstone and was shown up to Room 404. They were weary men. Harding, Brandegee and Harvey, but they were too tired to hurry to bed and they talked for an hour and a half. Harding was asked when he was told that his nomination had been decided upon and that he would have the cordial backing, it was then hoped, of all rivals and their followers.

With the early morning the news was taken to Col. William C. Procter, Major General Wood's manager, and then to West himself. They were asked to agree to a halt, for the fuel. They would agree to anything that meant Wood's retirement from the race.

Wood himself went to Johnson and made an appeal. He was not going to turn back, he said, and he was personally at the Blackstone and having left Lowndes in a proposal that if Lowndes would consent to Wood's nomination Lowndes could have the Vice Presidency. Lowndes rejected the offer instantly.

As for a counter-proposal, he admitted that it was impossible. He was not going to be nominated for President and had no power or moral right to promise anything for support.

General Wood withdrew, defeated, but determined to carry on the fight in the convention.

Great Credit Given To Lowndes. As regards Lowndes, the one out of the four states reflected great credit upon him. The decision in favor of Harding was a blow and a shock. It meant the collapse of a hope that had been sustained for a long time.

There was something of humiliation in it—tragedy as a matter of fact—because the general manager of Lowndes, C. Procter, had been so sure of victory. But he took the news calmly and acted handsomely. It was taken to him by A. T. Hart and Charles E. Warren, National Committee men, respectively, from Kentucky and Michigan. They told him that neither Wood nor himself would be nominated, Johnson, of course, having been out of the race from the start. Lowndes replied:

You gentlemen know more about it than I do, but I have reached the conclusion that you are right. I will be guided by the wishes of the leaders and the good of the party. I am ready to release the delegates at any moment you please.

HARDING'S PAPER O. K.'S HIM

Says He Will Surrender Himself With Abolish Lowndes.

The Marion (O.) Star, Senator Harding's newspaper, on Monday of this week printed an editorial on the nomination, which said:

"The selection of Senator Harding as the Presidential nominee of the Republican party is naturally most pleasing to this paper—pleasant, and for the honor done the Senator and the honor which comes to Marion as the home of the nominee. It can hardly be held a violation of the proprieties for the writer to confess that the Star considers the nomination an excellent one."

"A long and intimate association in newspaper work enables the writer to say that Senator Harding's great pride will be the restoration of a Republican Administration in Washington in which the executive is surrounded by the ablest leaders in the nation.

"We make no attempt to discount the effect of local pride, yet local pride would hardly in itself account for the remarkable endorsement given him by his home town and county at the Presidential primary and the spontaneous outburst of rejoicing upon the report of the news from Chicago Saturday evening. With Coolidge—clean and courageous—as running mate, we feel that the ticket is one which should and will meet the approval of the country as it does of Senator Harding's friends and neighbors here at home."

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest

At the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge held on last Friday night the rank of Esquire was conferred upon two Pagos.

The awards from Garrett Lodge No. 113 for increases in membership was agreed upon and hence there will be two awards from this lodge in addition to the State-wide awards.

At the next regular meeting to be held tomorrow evening the rank of Knight will be conferred on a class of five Esquires.

It is probable that Garrett Lodge will be unable to take even a short vacation during the summer months due to the fact that there are now twenty candidates who have not received even the first degree. These candidates will be initiated on the evening of the 18th inst. at which time the work will be conferred upon the entire number.

One member of Garrett lodge has secured sixteen new members during the present year and is therefore entitled to the awards for both five new members and likewise ten new members.

During the coming summer months when lodge is in recess on Brother H. L. Stemple will see that every member is furnished with refreshing cold drinks.

Come to lodge on Friday evening, and if you should enjoy the session then we know that you will be on hand for the big class that will come in later.

The Pythian Sisters initiated a class of seventeen Monday evening, the work being done in a very able manner by the degree team from Terra Alta, who came to Oakland on the afternoon train for that purpose.

A young vote of thanks was given the Terra Alta Sisters by Oakland lodge as a mark of appreciation for the services rendered and the benefits derived by their visit to us. The Terra Alta Sisters were welcomed by an address delivered by Brother E. R. Jones and also by Grand Chancellor Julius C. Reminger.

It is a source of very great pleasure to note the fraternalism which prevails at these meetings.

After the initiatory services refreshments were served.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

"Boys are Feeling Themselves by Holding Back for a Drop in Prices." In brief, this is the gist of the advertisement which is the first of a series of localities that prices are due to fall, made by several of the most prominent mercantile men who make this territory.

The widespread impression created by news dispatches from the bigger cities that prices are coming down, prompted us to inquire of these gentlemen, whom we know to be in close touch with the situation, if there was any good ground for this belief.

In answer, they pointed out the innumerable factors in the present situation which they claim absolutely prohibit any drop in prices. Invariably, they pointed out the scarcity of raw materials in all lines and the difficulty of securing the labor and transportation facilities necessary for any prompt relief.

In addition the low rate of production in manufacture because of labor scarcity in freight rates are mentioned as strong influences for high prices. High taxes, high interest rates, and the probable resumption of trade with Russia are also declared to be vital forces in maintaining a high price level.

"The present flurry," said the representative of a big dry goods concern, "is almost exactly the same nature as the one we had a year ago in March, when outing flannels, denims, cotton prints and percales took a drop. A few big dealers were overloaded in these lines and forced selling until they unloaded. Those who waited for greater reduction suffered a costly experience."

"The wise buyer will take full advantage of any bargain being offered now, for fundamental conditions are unchangeable. Consequently, as the effect on business of this unusually backward spring wears off the reaction will very likely take us to still higher price levels."

IN MATTER OF ENFORCING THE NEW HEADLIGHT LAW

Automobile Commissioner Baughman Asks Co-operation of Motorists.

Surely everyone who has done any amount of night driving in the State during the past year or so appreciates the fact that a radical change is necessary in the law in so far as it applies to automobile headlights. The tremendous number of machines which use our highways at night has made the use of strong and powerful headlights seen necessary to the majority of motorists. The average person thinks that if he has a sufficient amount of light to get along with at a moderate rate of speed, he is not doing his duty he feels that he must secure bulbs that will make the light shine at least half a mile down the road so that other people can see him coming. It was to meet this tendency that the headlight law was amended so as to provide that no bulb of greater than thirty-two (32) candle-power could be used. Even with a bulb of this size, unless the headlights were bent well forward, it was impossible to avoid a glare when a plan lens was used. Consequently, the last legislature, realizing the dangerous conditions resulting from the use of high candle-power bulbs and plain lenses, made it unlawful for any automobile to be used or owned in this State on which there was not some sort of a proved headlight lens. While this provision will undoubtedly cause some inconvenience on the part of motorists now owning cars in this State by requiring them to secure approved lenses, it will eventually secure the results desired inasmuch as it will compel the manufacturers of motor vehicles to install approved lighting devices at the various factories. A series of tests shows conclusively that a better light for driving purposes can be secured from certain makes of lenses, properly adjusted, with a bulb of medium candle-power, without inconvenience to other users of the road and with greater safety to the driver of the car, than will result from the use of a high candle-power bulb behind lenses improperly adjusted or with no means of preventing glare.

A tabulation of accident reports in this office shows that there has been a decided decrease in the number of deaths from reckless driving and as a result of accidents in the past year. On the contrary, the number of deaths and accidents occurring at night as a direct result of glaring headlights show an increase. Many accidents, resulting in injury, have been caused by the operator of a car running off the road or striking an obstacle or person in the road for the reason that he was blinded by the light of an approaching car. The evidence invariably, in cases of accidents happening at night, is that the approaching car had such bright lights that the operator of the car involved in the accident was temporarily blinded. Investigation usually discloses the fact that the approaching car was equipped with clear lenses.

I trust that the motoring public will give this office all possible co-operation in order to remedy these conditions, and while the enforcement of the new headlight law may result in some inconvenience due to its drastic provisions, I believe the betterment of conditions in the near future will more than repay for any inconvenience that is now caused. The officers at my command have been instructed as to the construction and proper focusing of light, and where on attempt has been made to provide approved lenses, and have them properly focused, the officers of the department will be only too glad to co-operate by making suggestions as to corrections which may be necessary to bring the light within the legal requirements. I shall endeavor to accomplish results by a campaign of education rather than by a series of arrests, provided the motorist on his part displays a willingness to provide the proper lenses and bulbs.

E. AUSTIN BAUGHMAN, State Commissioner of Automobiles.

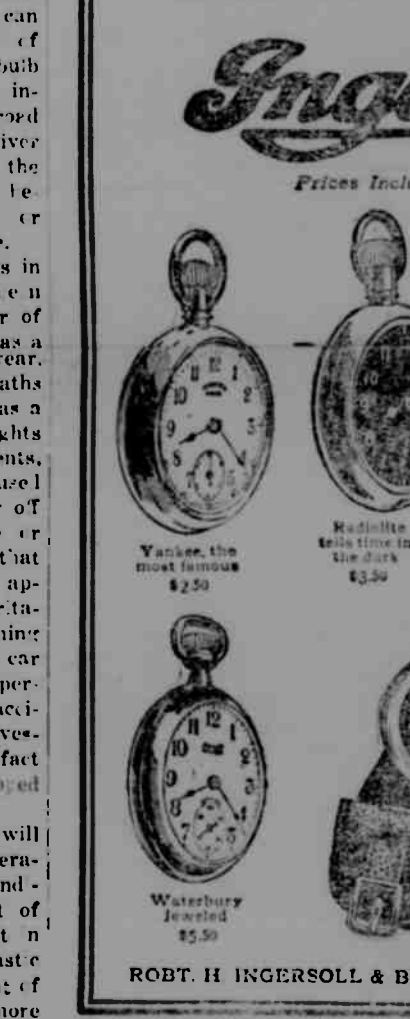

There's a Special Ingersoll for Each of These Folks.

Did YOU ever "get fitted" to a watch? We mean, did you ever figure out exactly your watch needs and then see if you were properly equipped?

There are a dozen or more different Ingersolls—varying in price, varying in purpose—small watches, jeweled watches, radium dial watches for night use, and so on. For instance, if you have an expensive watch, you probably would choose a Radiolite for $3.50. If you haven't a good serviceable watch, you'd be likely to buy a 7-jewel Reliance. The dealer will help you to select just the one for you.

"Ingersoll" has always meant the lowest-priced good timekeeper. Today, with present day costs and the 1920 purchasing value of a dollar, $2.50 is the lowest price at which we can make a watch while keeping up the Ingersoll standard of quality. "Ingersoll" means "money's worth" whether it's for the $2.50 Yankee or one of the Radiolites that tell time in the dark, or for one of the jeweled watches.

BLOOMINGTON

Mr. Fred Morehead has purchased from Mr. George Barker, of Keyser, his six-cylinder Overland car.

Mrs. James Coffman was called to Keyser a few days ago on account of the serious illness of her sister's little boy.

Notwithstanding the fact that the daily papers report car delivery 100 per cent., operators and miners complain of just the opposite.

Mrs. H. M. Kemp, of this place, is visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, in Oakland.

The Silver Coal Mining Co., operating at Beryl, are making preparations to give their employees one of the most hilarious Fourth's of July that has ever been celebrated in this section.

The big dancing platform on the "Nob" is being repaired, the grounds adjoining cleaned up, ready for the speech making, music, dancing, eats and fire works. Of course it would hardly be a perfect Fourth of July unless the distinctively American pastime, base ball, was a special feature of the day.

Admittance free, the company puts up the stuff under the direction of a committee of stockholders.

Mrs. Nancy Guthrie, of Buffalo, N. Y., en route to Terra Alta, where she had been called to visit her sister, Mrs. Nellie Jones, the latter having been painfully injured from a fall down a stairway in her home, stopped off and spent a short time with relatives in Bloomington. She was accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Beulah Guthrie, wife of Rev. Charles Guthrie.

Bloomington Lodge No. 162, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers at their regular meeting on Monday evening: N. G., Homer Watson; V. G., Martin Swiers; Sec., Thos. Swan; Financial Sec., Charles Brendlin; Treas., H. M. Kemp. The lodge is reported to be in a thriving condition, numbering nearly one hundred and forty members with three initiations at the last meeting.

Certainly we saw the airplane on Saturday afternoon. It made enough noise to attract the attention of everybody in town and only those who thought the noise to be the popping of a locomotive missed the sight. It passed directly over the town in a northerly direction and was just two minutes in passing from one horizon to the other, steering directly west.

The Mastellar Coal Company contemplated quite an extensive addition to their plant this summer. We understand ten or twelve buildings for the employees will be erected on the plateau surrounding the residence of the superintendent. The homes will be two stories, five or six rooms with all modern conveniences.

Charles Price, sperannuated by West Virginia M. E. conference in Cumberland, has been secured by the district superintendent to fill the Bloomington appointment. He comes up every Saturday evening, making his home while here with his son, Mr. Herbert Price, who attends his congregation morning and evening and returns to the city on Monday. Rev. Mr. Price was in charge of the Bloomington circuit some twenty years ago, and is well known to the older members of the congregation which he again serves.

John Titchener, Civil War veteran, of Albright, West Va., has been visiting here. Jacob Stump, during the past week. He is accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Agnes Hamilton, aged 35 years, wife of Mr. Thomas Hamilton, residing at Hampshire, died at her home last Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. For quite a long time she had been afflicted with a cancerous condition of the stomach and only a few weeks ago returned home after a major operation at a Cumberland hospital, from which she never fully recovered. The burial occurred in the Bloomington cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

James Rowe and his son Robert Rowe and Nelson Green are home from Akron, O., having been recent employees of a large manufacturing plant in that city. They were caught in a wholesale discharge of 4000 employees who were laid off on account of the shortage of raw material.

An infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warnick, of Barnum, died from pneumonia on train No. 10 of the W. M. R. R., en route to the Hoffman hospital at Keyser on Monday morning.

The "Beccas" who failed to attend the last regular meeting of the lodge on Wednesday evening, missed another good time, socially. The male members, only a few in number, had the tin and they were there on time and finished in fine style, eating, every thing that came to them with a relish that showed their appreciation of the delicacies prepared by the lady members. We understand these appeals to the palate are proving quite popular and increasing the attendance wonderfully and will be a regular feature in the future.

The Daughters of America are working under a special dispensation and during the summer season, until Sept. 1st, will hold regular meetings every two weeks instead of weekly as heretofore.

Real scientists claim there is positive proof that nature paints her own true signs on the face of mother earth, but there are few that can read them. Be this as it may, some one who has had his ear to the ground, a geologist, we would suppose, in and around Oakland, Mountain Lake Park and Deer Park, has interpreted the indications and communicated his observations to the populace of those communities and the people are now pussyfooting over their lawns, looking into each other's eyes and wondering if they are walking over a subterranean lake of liquid gold and if oil derricks will supercede church steeples and oil promoters fill the place of preachers.

AN ACT to repeal Section 52 of the Code of Public Local Laws of the State of Maryland, Article 12, title "Garrett County," sub-title "Kittumillerville," as enacted by Chapter 285 of the Acts of the Assembly of Maryland of 1906, entitled "An Act to incorporate the town of Kittumillerville in District No. 13, Garrett County, State of Maryland, by amending the Code of Public Local Laws of the State of Maryland, Article 12, title 'Garrett County,' adding additional sections thereto to be known as Sections 138A, 138B, 138C, 138D, 138E, 138F, 138G, 138H, 138I, 138J, 138K, 138L, 138M, 138N, 138O, 138P, 138Q, 138R, 138S and 138T, and to follow immediately after Section 138 of said Article 12 and to be known by the sub-title 'Kittumillerville,'" and to re-enact the same with amendments.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 138Q of the Code of Public Local Laws of the State of Maryland, Article 12, title "Garrett County," as enacted by Chapter 285 of the Acts of Assembly of Maryland of 1906, entitled "An Act to incorporate the town of Kittumillerville, in District No. 13 in Garrett County, State of Maryland, by amending the Code of Public Local Laws of the State of Maryland, Article 12, title 'Garrett County,' adding additional sections thereto to be known as Sections 138A, 138B, 138C, 138D, 138E, 138F, 138G, 138H, 138I, 138J, 138K, 138L, 138M, 138N, 138O, 138P, 138Q, 138R, 138S and 138T, and to follow immediately after Section 138 of said Article 12, and to be known by the sub-title 'Kittumillerville,'" be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

Section 138Q. That the said Council may annually levy upon the assessable property within said town by direct tax not exceeding ninety cents on the one hundred dollars, such sum as they may deem necessary for the purpose of defraying and settling the expense incurred by them on behalf of said corporation.

Sec. 2 And be it further enacted, That this Act is and shall be deemed to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety and that therefore it shall take effect from the date of its passage.

What a lot of argument there used to be about a woman driving an automobile TODAY she can "make a train" or fix a tire as well as anybody.

As soon as a luxury becomes a necessity the point of view changes.

Two or three years ago you would have listened to more varying opinions about tires than you could shake a stick at. Milcages, construction, treads and whatnot.

It's different now. Tire users are working towards a unanimous feeling.

You express it one way—the man down the street another. But sifted down it amounts to this:

That the only way to settle your tire problem is to get a tire of known value and stick to it.

We recommend and sell U. S. Tires because their value is known.

There's no guess about it. It was the U. S. quality policy which led to the perfection of the straight-side automobile tire, the pneumatic truck tire—two of the greatest additions to tire value that have ever been made.

As representatives of the oldest and largest rubber concern in the world, we are in a position to tell you something about tire values. Come in some day and talk to us.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel: In sandy or hilly country, where the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or U. S. Plain. For front wheels—The U. S. Plain. For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.

NOTICE.

This is to certify that request has been made to the Board of Education of Garrett County, Maryland, by Samuel Ringler, A. P. Sanders, N. C. Sanders, J. W. White and D. N. Sanders, for the removal of the Snaggy Mountain school building, located in Election District No. 14, to a site on the farm of J. W. White, to a neighborhood known locally as "Promised Land," the object of the removal to be to place the beforementioned Snaggy Mountain school building more in the center of population of the Snaggy Mountain school district.

The object and purpose of this advertisement is to give notice to the citizens concerned of Election District No. 14 to appear before the County Board of Education for Garrett County, at its office in the town of Oakland, Md., at a meeting to be held on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23, 1920, at 10 o'clock A. M., to show cause, if any they have, why said school building should not be moved and rebuilt as requested and set forth herein.

N. B.—Competitive bids will also be received up to the time aforesaid for the dismantling and rebuilding of the Snaggy Mountain school building as herein described, the same to be in conformity with the contract as set forth by the County Board of Education.

By order of the Board of Education, May 18, 1920.

EX-SERVICE MEN, TAKE NOTICE!

An Opportunity Afforded You To Obtain An Education Free of Cost.

The National War Work Council of the American Y. M. C. A. is appropriating the sum of $5,000,000 for 50,000,000 free scholarships to honorably discharged ex-service men of the Army, Navy, Marines and S. A. T. C., besides the Sons of Veterans who have been killed in the late war.

This fund may be claimed by the States and counties throughout the United States, on a pro rata basis of three cents per inhabitant. One-sixth of this fund provides collegiate scholarships for the ex-service men of the different states and is administered by the State Educational Service Committee of the Y. M. C. A.; the other five-sixths is a county fund which provides scholarships in Y. M. C. A. schools, and home correspondence courses that are carried on directly with the United Y. M. C. A. schools in New York. This fund is administered by a committee in each county, which has full authority to receive applicants for and to grant awards in any of the one hundred and sixty different courses that have been prepared. The State allotment for collegiate scholarships in Maryland is $6,977, a considerable balance of which still remains to be allotted. These collegiate awards are averaging about $125 apiece.

The general scholarship fund for Garrett County is $517, which is enough to provide about eleven Home Correspondence courses for as many ex-service men. These courses are especially adapted to men who are employed during the day, and who are willing to devote a little spare time each day to study, that they may add to their efficiency through these vocational studies.

The Committee having this educational service in charge in this county is constituted of Messrs. F. E. Rathburn, County Superintendent of Schools, Jas. D. Hamill, Justice of the Peace, and D. R. Sincell. Apply immediately to any one of this committee and he will give you a full list of the courses from which to choose and further instructions how to proceed in order to complete your application for a free scholarship.

All awards must be made before Oct. 1, 1920, but any course entered upon and completed before June 1, 1921 will be protected.

THREE STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

At Mountain Lake Park, the Machine Being Driven By Rev. Bissell.

Tuesday evening at a point in Mt. Lake Park near the bridge spanning Little Yough, which has been utilized by pedestrians since the tearing up of the boardwalk leading from the Park to the railroad station, Edison Kesner, Earle Willett and Miss Dorothy Slutz, who were walking along the roadway in company with several others, were struck by an automobile being driven by Rev. Mr. Bissell, pastor of the Park M. E. church, all of whom escaped with slight injuries except Mr. Willett, who was knocked down in the roadway, both wheels of the machine passing over his prostrate body.

The injured were rushed to Oakland in another machine where they were attended by Dr. Henry W. McComas. Miss Slutz and Mr. Kesner sustained but slight bruises and were able to return to their respective homes in a few minutes, but upon examination of the injuries sustained by Mr. Willett it was found that the wheels of the machine where they had passed over him had caused severe bruises to his chest and abdomen. After receiving treatment at the physician's office he was taken to his home in the Park where he is now resting quite well and will be out within a few days.

THE DEATH RECORD.

MRS. DAVID F. MOSSER.

The death of Mrs. Virginia Elizabeth Mosser occurred at her home near Red House on Thursday morning, June 10, 1920, after an illness of several years due to an incurable disease with which she was afflicted. The deceased was the wife of Mr. David F. Mosser and was also the daughter of Judge Henry G. Sanders, of Oakland. She is survived by four daughters and one son; fifteen grandchildren, her husband and father, five brothers and one sister. She was born June 26, 1860 and was aged 59 years, 11 months and 17 days. Her funeral took place from the Red House Lutheran church on Sunday, June 13th, Rev. S. S. Adams, pastor of the Red House church officiating.

COURT PROCEEDINGS

Docket Was Completed Thursday Last And Court Adjourned.

With the trial of the last case on the criminal docket in the Circuit Court for Garrett county, the June Term adjourned last Thursday afternoon.

Associate Judge Robert R. Henderson, of Cumberland, conducted the business claiming the attention of the Court last week, and upon the adjournment of the term he returned to Cumberland.

The cases disposed of during the week were as follows, not including several that were continued for various unassigned reasons:

Criminal Appeals.

1. Emory Tasker and Nelson Custer vs. the State, both of whom were before the Court upon the charge of disorderly conduct, the latter was found not guilty and the former guilty, who was paroled.

2. Porter Wilt vs. State, who was implicated with Tasker, and Jas. Murphy, also implicated in the same case, were both found guilty by the Court and paroled for the term of three years or pending their good behavior.

Criminal Trials.

4. State vs. Carl Hunter, larceny of $10 in money from Charles Green, was found guilty by the Court and paroled for three years.

5. State vs. Floyd Paugh, indicted for criminally assaulting Elsie Wilt, was tried before a jury who returned a verdict of not guilty by reason of the insanity of the accused. He was committed to the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane by the Court.

6. State vs. Howard Johnson, Rodney Johnson and Robert Moon, three young boys living near Oakland, who were indicted for having stolen from the Baltimore and Ohio warehouse in Oakland various articles of merchandise, entered a plea of guilty. The Court paroled Rodney Johnson on account of his youth while he committed Howard Johnson and Robert Moon to the Maryland Training School for Boys until they respectively attain the age of twenty-one years.

9. State vs. Clarence Sell, who was one of three young men from the vicinity of Bittinger indicted for having stolen a quantity of wool from a farmer in that community last winter, was found guilty by the Court and paroled for three years upon condition that he pay one-fourth the value of the wool to the owner and the costs of prosecution.

10. State vs. Erasmus F. Dove, indicted for having stolen a portion of a blacksmith's outfit at the Taylor-Offutt mine, located a short distance west of Oakland along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was found not guilty of the charge.

12. State vs. Earl Gank, indicted upon the charge of larceny, was tried before the Court and a verdict of not guilty rendered.

14. State vs. Robert Stockley, indicted for having hunted and shot game on the Sabbath day, was placed on trial. During the hearing of the evidence in the matter it was brought out that the alleged infringement of the law had been committed more than a year prior to the bringing of the indictment, hence he was declared not guilty.

15. State vs. William M. Hartley, charged in the indictment with assault with intent to murder, was tried before the Court and a verdict of not guilty was rendered. The accused man is a mine foreman at one of the mines along the Potomac river and the alleged crime was committed when he was charged with having assaulted one of the miners in his employ with a pick handle.

16. State vs. Edith Wagner, who was charged with having entered an abandoned house, the property of Margaret Murphy, near Swanton, and stolen therefrom a number of dishes, entered a plea of guilty and was paroled by the Court.

17. State vs. Harry Reams, stealing an inner tube from an automobile, was tried before the Court, found guilty and paroled.

Mountain Lake Park May Be Football Camp for W. V. U.

There is a possibility that Mountain Lake Park may become the training grounds of the West Virginia University football squad this fall. Should the Garrett county resort be selected interest in football around this section of the country will undoubtedly increase. Among the teams to be met by West Virginia are Yale, Princeton, Pitt, Washington and Lee, Rutgers, Washington and Jefferson, West Virginia Wesleyan and several others. At present the race for the training camp has narrowed down to the Fairmont Country Club and Mountain Lake Park.

GRANTSVILLE

The Reformed Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Beachy on Wednesday last, a very instructive and interesting program being rendered. Refreshments followed the afternoon's mission study.

An interesting Children's Day service was given by the Reformed Sunday school on Sunday morning, the church being beautifully decorated with flowers. There were songs and exercises by the children and special music by the choir and an address cleverly given in allegorical style, by the pastor.

The C. E. Society meeting, Sunday evening, was led by Miss Hazel Pressman who gave a splendid address on the subject of "Mistakes in Life." There was a good attendance.

Mrs. Florence Baker Bittinger, a recently returned missionary from India, is at present the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker, of near Grantsville. Mrs. Bittinger's husband and children accompanied her home and they expect to remain in the States for about a year.

Dr. and Mrs. Bowen and four children spent last week with relatives and friends at Front Royal, Va.

Theodore R. Close, recently of the U. S. Marines in Cuba, but now of Wellersburg, Pa., spent Sunday in Grantsville the guest of Sara R. and Margaret Getty. Mr. Close was but lately discharged from the Walter Reed Hospital where he underwent treatment for injuries to one of his feet while engaged in active service.

H. C. Bonig and son Henry J., and daughter, Miss Marjorie, of Frostburg, and C. Bonig, of Cumberland, spent Sunday in Grantsville, guests of their sisters, Mrs. John Zehner and Mrs. C. H. Bill.

Miss Beulah Bender is spending a week with Miss Winifred Bonig, of Frostburg.

Irving Beachy went to Washington, D. C., one day recently and returned this week with his brother, Walter, who has been a student at the Maryland State College this year.

Miss Corn Bittinger spent the week end with Mrs. John Hanft.

Miss Angela Getty and brother, Mr. Wm. Getty, have returned from a week's visit to Baltimore, having attended the State athletic meet while there.

Wm. Browning and sister Miss Zaidie, of Oakland, were guests of Miss Gertrude Hone, Friday evening.

The fifteen-year old son of Silas Bittinger, of New Germany, is receiving treatment at the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland.

Miss Grace Yutzky and niece Miss Grace Hershberger, have returned to their homes from Akron, O., where the former was a teacher and the latter a pupil in high school. Miss Yutzky is now with relatives at Pocatong, Pa.

Miss Helen Wiltman, of Cumberland, spent the week-end with Miss Hazel Pressman.

Mrs. Truman Fazenbaker, of Keyser, West Va., is the guest of her sister, Miss Gertrude Hone.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin have returned from a sanatorium at Dicomont, Pa., where their son Frank is very seriously ill.

Dan W. Hershberger of Frostburg, spent the past week with his mother, Mrs. Ida Hershberger.

Mayor C. H. Bill has had his home improved by a fresh coat of paint.

MUTTON HOLLOW

Mr. Mont Jackson, of Vindex, was a pleasant visitor at the home of Mr. John A. Wright one day last week.

Mr. Charles Friend was at Keyser Thursday and Friday last on business.

Mrs. A. H. Friend and Mrs. Ernest Wright visited the county seat town recently. They were accompanied by Mrs. Wright's two daughters.

Mr. Harry McRobie, of Bayard, W. Va., visited his aunt, Mrs. J. A. Wright, at this place Thursday last.

Mr. Wilmer Friend, of near Swanton, spent Sunday visiting his uncle, Mr. A. H. Friend, at this place.

A number of the young folks of this section attended the pie social at Green Glade Saturday night.

AVILTON

Rain and consequently mud, seems to be the order of the day in this section of the county.

Rev. Walls preached a very interesting sermon to a large and attentive audience at Cherry Grove Saturday night. He also conducted services on Sunday.

Rev. David M. Merrill, who has been on the sick list for some time, still remains unimproved, but we hope for his ultimate recovery.

Mr. Bori Kelly and family, of Maestown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Johnson and son Paul and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clark, of Meyersdale; Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Fike and family, of Piedmont; Mr. Henry Merrill, of Corinth; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Merrill and Mr. and Mrs. John Baer, of Westernport; Mr. and Mrs. John Merrill and son, of Savage River, were all visiting Rev. and Mrs. David H. Merrill.

Mrs. Fannie Weitzell, who has been spending some time with her son, G. W. Weitzell, near Deer Park, was accompanied home Saturday evening by Mr. W. F. Custer, of Jennings.

Miss Blanche Layman was a guest of Misses Laura and Fannie Fike Saturday and Sunday.

Ellis Robeson was calling on his best girl on Savage River Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Grove were shopping in Lonaconing Friday.

Mr. Orville Stark and family attended children's service in New Germany Sunday morning.

Mr. Enoch Robeson and sons have begun the excavation for the foundation for a new addition to their home.

Judge Brown sold a valuable cow and calf to Delbert Durst one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Fike and family attended the love feast held at Markleysburg Saturday evening.

Miss Mary Price closed her school at this place on Friday last.

Miss Leah Robeson was shopping in town Saturday afternoon.

Orville Stark, with a force of men, was scraping the road from his place to J. O. Wilhelm's last week.

Ernest Michael was slightly injured on the grader last week, but is around again.

Miss Laura E. Fike expects to take a course at the State Normal school at Frostburg this summer.

Perry Broadwater is still looking for something he seems unable to locate.

BITTINGER

During some of the several electrical storms which passed over this section last week, the barn on the Oscar Brenneman farm was struck by lightning. The frame of the building was considerably shattered, but fortunately no fire resulted and the only other damage reported is the injury sustained to one of Mr. Brenneman's horses. The bolt of lightning passed to the ground near where the animal was tied and since it seems to be entirely deaf.

After a successful and entirely satisfactory year's work in the village school at this place, Miss Lulu Hettick closed her school on last Friday afternoon, returning to her home at Accident on Saturday morning.

Rev. J. L. Marvin attended the sessions of the conference of his church at New Haven, West Va., last week.

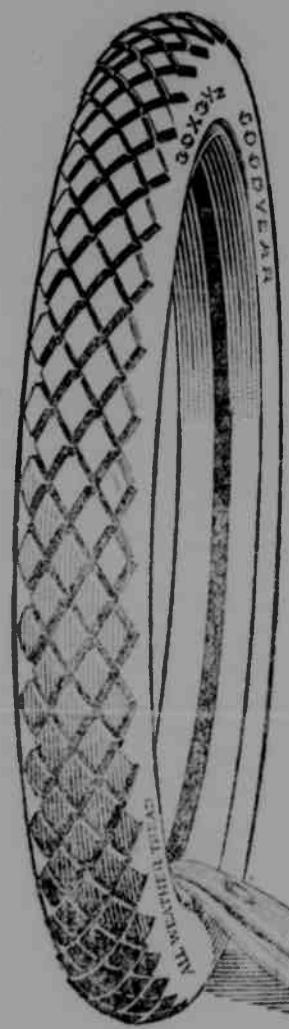

Rev. L. K. Young and William Kahl, of Accident were callers in this village a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beachy, of this neighborhood, attended the wedding of Elder Clyde Broadwater, one of our excellent young men, and Miss Effie Gnagay, which occurred at West Milton, Ohio, on Thursday evening of last week.

A number of the members of the Meadow Mountain Lutheran church came to this village a few days ago and donated some provisions for the use of their pastor, the Rev. J. L. Marvin, and family.

Perry H. Broadwater attended a special meeting of the Farmers Fire Insurance Association, which was held at Accident last Saturday.

Such extraordinary competence and carefulness as are characteristic of all Goodyear manufacture likewise characterize Goodyear's building of tires for the smaller cars.

Only very unusual experience and endeavor make possible the high relative value built into the 30x3, 30x3 1/2, and 31x4-inch Goodyear Tires in our Plant No. 2, the world's largest factory devoted to these sizes.

In addition to the larger sizes Goodyear builds, a daily production averaging 20,000 tires of these smaller sizes alone makes them easily available, regardless of the big demand, to owners of Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, and other cars taking these sizes.

If you are one of these owners, go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires, and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He carries a stock.

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x 3 1/2 six in water-proof bag $4.50

Prayed for Cure Finds it After 10 Years
Food Would Sour and Boil —Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gessner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.:
"I had stomach trouble over ten years; kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever. Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk. I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one-third of it and began to feel relief; when it was three-fourths gone, I felt fine and when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the new box and I have no more stomach trouble. Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man; I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all."

THEIR DAY OFF

By LYDIA L. ROBERTS.

(© 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Goodby, dears; be good children for grandma. Yes, I'll bring some candy; yes, baby, you may stay up and wait for us. Don't forget to practice. Bob; and please return the library books, Dick. Goodby, everybody," and Barbara Allen ran down the steps and hurried for the train. "Now for a real rest and some fun," she thought in relief as the train neared the city.

"You are right on time, Harvey," she smiled as a tall, gray-eyed man eagerly met her in the station. "Today I can have you for a whole afternoon all to myself. I don't know how I should stand life otherwise, for business claims most of your time usually, and the furnace and the children demand the rest of it."

"It is very flattering to think you prize my society so highly," replied her husband, looking with fond pride at the dainty, fair-haired little woman at his side.

"Here we are in the palace of thrills, and we are lucky today, for these are good seats," said Barbara as they settled themselves in the theater.

"Sweets to the sweetest," murmured Harvey, handing her a ribboned box and squeezing her hand in the darkness.

"I told you to buy only half a pound," scolded Barbara. "For you know the other half would buy a pair of stockings for baby; but they do look delicious."

After the picture the lights went on and the orchestra began to play.

"It was a good show," said Barbara as they left the theater. "I laughed till I cried, and then I laughed at myself for laughing."

"Yes, I enjoyed it," agreed Harvey. A large, perfumed, fur-coated lady came toward them and stopped to chat.

"We are dining in town tonight," said Mrs. Graham, "and we take in the opera afterward. Have you been lately?"

"Oh, dear, no!" laughed Barbara. "We are having our regular day off. Every Saturday afternoon we meet in town and enjoy the movies, and end up with coffee and crackers at a dainty lunch and go home with a bagful of groceries and goodies for the children. We have heaps of fun and it brightens all the week."

"Oh, you children!" said Mrs. Graham indignantly. "Well, it's all right if you like it, I suppose. We really must be hurrying, so goodbye."

"That couple has never grown up," playfully said Mrs. Graham to her husband as they walked on.

"They seem very happy," he replied quietly.

"I wish you had a fur coat," sighed Harvey, as they came out of a store. "You would look mighty pretty in one."

"Yes, of course it would enhance my beauty," said Barbara demurely, "but the real question is, would you love me more in it?"

"Impossible," said Harvey sincerely. "Well, then, would it make me any happier? No, because I'm as happy as anyone can be right now. Don't mind, Harvey, dear; we are young yet and there are years of fun and opera to anticipate, but meanwhile it's a very nice world today."

"Just think, hubby, we've got four pounds of sugar to take home. Listen till I tell you something."

"We hold up our heads. For we're quite at our ease; In tones loud and fearless we say, 'More for please!'"

"Who is this young and frivolous girl I have with me?" mocked her husband. "Come in this store at once while I buy flowers for my poetical wife."

"No, no, dear, you must not! Yes, of course I love jonquills. Well, just these, for the little vase on my brown desk. Oh, dearie, these are lovely."

"Had a good time, wife?" asked Harvey as they finished their shopping and started for the train.

"Lovely time," said Barbara enthusiastically. "I feel very luxurious going home with candy and flowers and a new magazine, besides all our necessities."

"Well, I have to treat my young lady right," teased Harvey. The train was crowded and the white-haired conductor good-naturedly struggled and pushed his way through the happy end-of-the-week throng.

"Don't squeeze me so hard, ladies, you make me blush," he joked as he nodded to Barbara and Harvey.

"Yes, I sold her the hat," said a girl's voice in front of them. "She's my brother's girl and thinks nothing of buying a fifty-dollar hat whenever she wants it."

"Commuters' special," whispered Barbara. "Isn't it funny that what buys only enough for one person's head will feed and house and take care of several other people from head to foot?"

"Here is our station," smiled Harvey. "We've bought happiness today, anyway, haven't we, dear?"

"Yes, the sugar is in the bag," roguishly teased Barbara.

"A short walk brought them to their street."

"I see the boys watching for us and there's baby with her curly head bobbing in the window. Now they see us! Oh, Harvey, how rich we are! We've got each other and home and love and little children!"

COOKIES and SMALL CAKES

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

WHEN the children romp in hungry as young bears, here are some wholesome, economical delights that will not only be received with glee, but will satisfy the most ravenous appetite in a most wholesome manner.

Cookies
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract or 1/2 teaspoon grated rind of 1 lemon
3 tablespoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening and sugar together; add milk to beaten eggs and beat again; add slowly to creamed shortening and sugar; add nutmeg and flavoring; add 3 cups flour sifted with baking powder; add enough more flour to make stiff dough. Roll out very thin on floured board; cut with cookie cutter, sprinkle with sugar, or put a raisin or a piece of English walnut in the center of each. Bake about 12 minutes in hot oven.

Cocoa Drop Cakes
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
3 tablespoons Royal Baking Powder
1/4 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; beat well and add milk slowly; sift flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa into mixture; stir until smooth, add vanilla. Put one tablespoon of batter into each greased muffin tin and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes. Cover with boiled icing.

Orange Cakes
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1 egg
2 cups flour
3 tablespoons Royal Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon orange extract
grated rind of 1 orange

Cream shortening; add sugar slowly, beating well; add milk a little at a time; then add well-beaten egg; sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to mixture; add flavoring and grated orange rind; mix well. Bake in greased shallow tin, or individual cake tins, in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes. When cool cover with orange icing.

Grasshopper Bait.
A year ago the grasshopper ate up nearly $100,000,000 worth of our winter wheat. Science at once set about devising some scheme to control this pest. They mixed a concoction, on an enormous scale, known as "grasshopper bait," mulling 4,565 tons of it, or enough to fill 163 large railroad cars. To mix this bait they used 500,000 lemons, eighty-three tons of white arsenic and other ingredients in similar proportion. The bait was then scattered over a great area in Kansas. The grasshoppers ate it freely with the expected result. This year there are no grasshoppers in Kansas.—Boys' Life.

Star-Spangled British Product.
It came recently to the attention of the American chamber of commerce in London that a British firm was using the American flag and words and phrases indicating American origin for the advertising, container and bottle labels of a wholly British preparation. Communication of this fact to the British board of trade saw all traditions of departmental red tape shattered when the board of trade rang up by telephone instead of following the usual formal tortuous channels of communication. After obtaining further particulars the firm concerned was called to account and has agreed to refrain from the objectionable practice in future.—The Nation's Business.

Something Smart.
There was a slip young clerk at the boarding house table, who was always trying to show off. He seldom asked in the usual way to have a thing passed to him, but had to get off something smart. One day when he wanted the milk he sang out, "Drive the cow down this way." The landlady, who sat at the head of the table, called the maid, saying as she handed her the pitcher, "Here, Mary, lead the cow down where the calf is bowling."

World's Sleepiest Tramp.
A widely known character, one J. J. Mercer, called "the sleeping tramp," has been arrested in Versailles, according to the Manchester Guardian. This occasion he is charged with the theft of rabbits.

The morning before his arrest he was found on the Grand route by a carter in a deep sleep, from which all efforts of the latter failed to awake him. In the police station he woke up for a few minutes, then fell asleep again. It was found absolutely impossible to arouse him from slumber, and he was sent to a hospital, where he continued in the same state.

MR. GOMPERS AND THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

How can conservative labor expect serious consideration for its demands when its leaders are guilty of such garbling of a party pronouncement as Mr. Gompers and Mr. Woll's report of the Republican plank on labor?

This report alleges that the plank "denies the right to strike."

The assertion is a flat falsehood in effect. The plank does deny the right to strike against the government. Every rational implication from the rest of the plank is recognition of that right.

The report asserts that the plank proposes "industrial enslavement and an abrogation of rights as precious as life itself."

If to deny policemen and firemen or other public employees the right to paralyze the functions of government and leave society without protection is enslavement, then indeed the plank declares for enslavement. We do not think intelligent labor is ready to defend any such theory. If it could establish such a doctrine it would endanger its own welfare, for manual labor would suffer as much as any other class from the chaos which must follow the strike against the government.

The plank recognizes collective bargaining and does not deny the right to strike in private industrial controversy. It does deplore the waste of strikes and lockouts and urges the creation of more and better means of voluntary adjustment, of giving employees prompt and impartial means of getting their claims heard and fairly decided, and thus of bringing about the just advancement of labor by the least wasteful methods.

If such proposals are "turning its back on labor," then labor expects something more than any other class of citizens would ask for itself.

But we do not think Mr. Gompers and Mr. Woll express the real opinion of the wage earner on this plank. Mr. Gompers is a partisan Democrat who has been highly honored by the present administration. His report shows that he cannot be fair or is not willing to be fair toward the Republican platform. There are hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of wage earners who are not partisan Democrats, who, in fact, in party matters, are Republicans, and these we believe will resent Mr. Gompers' distortion of the Republican plank on labor, which expresses views any fair-minded wage earner may respect and approve.

Emma Goldman's return to Russia seems to have wrought a change of heart. She has seen the Bolshevik system at work and finds it "rotten." According to a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who interviewed her before he left Petrograd, what she has seen of Bolshevism has convinced her that it is unmixable tyranny. "You may be called," she said, "an agent of the capitalist class by the people in America who don't understand. If you are, tell them we have been here four months, and now we know. We have investigated factories, homes and institutions as no newspaper man can be permitted to investigate them, and we've found them bad." In other words, like a number of other people who indulge in cheap denunciation of the American system of government, she has found, as soon as she comes in actual contact with an entirely different and opposite system which she thought she would prefer, that tyranny such as would be inconceivable in America, is rife in Russia, and she has had the honesty to say so. Suppose she had been as vigorous in her denunciation of the present Russian regime as she has been of American government, how long would Russia's new masters have tolerated it?

PROPOSE TO ELECTRIFY SEVENTEEN-MILE GRADE

E. & O. Investigating Other Roads With View Of Making Improvement.

The Seventeen-Mile grade, west of Piedmont to Altamont in this county, will be among the first sections of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to be electrified if the project under consideration is adopted.

J. H. Davis, chief electrical engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio, who with officials of the operating department of the company, left Baltimore about six weeks ago for a trip over the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad to study its electrical equipment, has returned. A report of their investigations will be submitted to the executive officers of the company, after which the policy of the road toward electricity on some mountain lines may be determined.

It is said the St. Paul road was selected for this investigation because it has some of the heaviest mountain grades in the country and it has found that electricity is more economical than coal. This motive power has been in use on the St. Paul road for some time.

Eastern lines are using electricity, but few have tests so severe as the western road has met. Before making a final report, it is said, a similar investigation will be made over the electrically operated lines of the east. There are many streams along the Baltimore and Ohio in the Allegheny Mountains where electricity can be generated.

A BIG PICNIC

On Saturday, June 26th, a big picnic will be held in L. H. Glatfelter's grove by the Steiding Sunday school. The program will consist of singing, music, and excellent speaking, among the speakers being the Rev. Waters, of Grafton, West Va.; Rev. Scott, of Kingwood and Rev. Ralston, of Windber, Pa., and many others. Two beautiful quilts and other articles will be on sale, and refreshments of all kinds will also be on sale. Program will begin at 10:30 and continue all day and evening. The proceeds will go toward the fund for the new church now in progress.

MRS. MARGARET BALDWIN.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Baldwin, of Mountain Lake Park, was held at her home in that place on Wednesday last, the Rev. Mr. Bissell, pastor of the M. E. church, assisted by Rev. Paul L. Flanagan, of Grafton, West Va., former pastor of the Park church, officiating at the service. The service at the home was impressive when a number of selections, rendered by Mrs. Decker, assisted by the Misses Rathbun, were sung. The floral tributes were beautiful and the casket containing the remains of the deceased lady was placed amidst a mass of ferns and palms which she loved. The interment was made at the Deer Park cemetery. Mrs. Baldwin died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph White, at Ralplhton, Pa., on Sunday, following an attack of pneumonia which she contracted while upon a visit to Mrs. White and her family. The body was brought to Oakland in an ambulance from Ralplhton Tuesday evening and taken from here to her late residence in the Park the following morning.

Knitting Mill Equipment On Way.

The Republican has been advised by some of those interested in bringing to Oakland a branch mill of the American Knitting Company, that the power plant for the factory had been shipped out of Pittsburgh on the 17th inst., the delay in making shipment being by reason of the fact that some minor changes and repairs were necessary in the machines to make them operate successfully.

Married.

Schoch—Nordack—A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the Rev. S. E. Wicker in Oakland on last Saturday afternoon when Miss Anna May Nordack became the wife of Mr. A. Minners Schoch. Mrs. Schoch is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nordack, of Freeport, West Va., and Mr. Schoch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Schoch, of Crellin, near Oakland. After a wedding trip to eastern cities they will be at home to their many friends at Crellin where Mr. Schoch is employed as chief sawyer by the Kendall Lumber Co. Their hosts of friends wish for them a very long and happy married life.

The D. A. R. Honors Washington.
The Great Meadows Chapter of the Daughter of the American Revolution dedicated a tablet which will permanently mark the site of Fort Mifflin at the Great Meadows, a few miles west of Grantsville on the National Road last Friday. As this point Col. Washington made a stand against the French. The tablet is a gift of the Great Meadows Chapter, Uniontown. It is to commemorate the battle of the French and Indian War where "Lieut.-Col. George Washington fought his first battle and made his first and last surrender, July 3-4, 1754."

Knights of Pythias Notes.

At the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge held on last Friday night the rank of Knight was conferred on a class of five.

It has been decided to hold our annual picnic this year on Labor Day, September 6th. J. W. Whorton, Jas. B. Bell and H. L. Stemple, three of our active members, have been appointed the committee of arrangements and they have already started the ball rolling to make the affair the success we all hope it will be. The indications at this time is that the picnic will bring together the largest crowd ever assembled in Oakland as all lodges within reach of town have been or will be invited to attend the gathering and to bring their friends with them.

On next Friday evening the rank of Esquire will be conferred on a class of 22 candidates, which is the largest class the local lodge has had in a long time, and upon this occasion we shall need your assistance. It is the request of the Chancellor Commander that every member possible be present to assist in the work. So please, brother, come, and bring that other tardy brother with you.

The membership will receive within a few days a circular letter on awards from this lodge.

The Pythian Sisters will hold regular meetings on Monday evenings of each week in the future.

Don't forget to start your plans for the Labor Day picnic. Much will be expected of each member of Garrett Lodge. We do not want to disappoint our visitors upon that occasion.

Successful In Life Insurance.

The Monthly Agency Review, the official house organ of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has the following to say regarding Mr. Robert Sliger, the company's representative in Oakland, who stands seventh in the United States in the six months' contest which was inaugurated by the company some time ago: "Mr. Robert Sliger, Oakland, Md., who holds seventh place, is another representative who is just cutting his teeth in the life assurance profession. He is perhaps the youngest of our representatives and so brim full of energy and pep that the near future will assuredly see him making a strenuous effort to overtake those ahead. Mr. Sliger was but nineteen when he entered the company's service in July last and has effected his qualification in eleven months. And this working in a village of 1900 inhabitants at the top of the Alleghenies. We are glad to welcome Mr. Sliger and predict great things for him." Perhaps this young man's success is due to the fact that he has been a persistent advertiser in The Republican for the past few months. His advertisement will be found each week on page eight of this paper.

Children's Day Service.

There will be a Children's Day service at Pleasant Valley, June 27th, beginning at 10:30 in the morning. All are most cordial invited to attend these services, especially the mothers with their children.

Burned By Exploding Gas.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Louis Walters, residing in the east end of Oakland, was painfully, and at the time was thought to be seriously burned, when gas in a stove at her home exploded, burning her face and hands severely. HUTTON

Mr. Graham E. Johnson, of Parkersburg, West Va., was a guest at "Elmhurst," the home of Mr. Jerry J. Pendergast, on Thursday.

Mr. Frank Benson, of Terra Alta, motored through to Hutton on Friday en route to Cumberland.

Mrs. Mary Coleheim reached here a few days ago and is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Salzman. Mr. and Mrs. Coleheim spent the greater portion of the winter months in Florida, but recently arrived in Baltimore in which city the former is now visiting his parents. Mrs. Coleheim coming on here where she expects to remain for a few weeks before leaving for the Monumental City where she will join her husband and a company of friends on an excursion trip north.

Mr. C. M. Jones, of Grafton, W. Va., was a business visitor in Hutton Monday.

Mr. Stephen Faherty was called to Cumberland recently on account of the serious illness of his brother Mr. Thomas Faherty, who at the time was reported to be in a serious condition due to the effects of a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Faherty's Dr. advised that he be sent at once to Mercy Hospital, in Baltimore, where he is now receiving treatment, and at this writing we are pleased to note that his condition is very encouraging.

Mr. Charles Carr, who has been employed as a mechanic at the plant of the Tioga Tanning Company for a number of years, resigned his position on Thursday and has gone to Wellsboro, Pa., where he has accepted a similar position with a firm at that place.

A few young ladies from Crellin attended the school social here on last Saturday.

Mrs. Merchant and daughter, Miss Irene, of Brunswick, were visitors in this community on Tuesday last, the former going to Morgantown, W. Va., where she visited relatives and friends a few days, returning to Hutton on Friday, and from here she was accompanied by her daughter on the return journey to their home.

The public school at this place closed on Friday for the present scholastic year, and we earnestly hope that the children may enjoy their hard earned vacation to the fullest extent, so that when school reopens in the early autumn they may return refreshed and invigorated both in mind and body. The box supper given on Saturday evening, we are pleased to say, was a grand success financially as well as socially. The returns will be more than sufficient to cancel the debts incurred by the school. The instructors, Miss Theresa M. Barnhill and Miss Carrie Mann, left on Sunday evening for their respective homes in Cumberland and Mountain Lake Park. Miss Barnhill announced that in a few weeks hence she intends entering the Allegheny Hospital training school for nurses.

Mrs. Agnes Connell, who has been spending some time in Texas, arrived in Hutton recently and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Connell, going from here to Waynesburg, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. McNut. ST. ELMO.

LARGE YIELD MADE POSSIBLE TO ASTUTE INVESTORS WHO SEIZE BIG OPPORTUNITY.

Investors who bought Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes at recent market prices were thus able to earn considerably more than the bond rates of interest on their money, according to figures compiled by stock and bond brokers. Moreover, income taxes recently completed by the War Loan Organization of this district show that the bonds, inasmuch as they are exempt from all state and local property and income tax (except estate or inheritance taxes) are equivalent in their net yield to taxable stocks and bonds paying rates of interest substantially higher.

The property tax on stocks and bonds is sometimes considerable. From these property taxes, state and city, Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes of course are exempt. This means, therefore, brokers point out, that the government securities yield a net income equal to that of taxable stocks and bonds paying much more.

The following figures show in the order named the yields of Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes, their respective periods to maturity, recent market quotations and the approximate annual interest based upon these prices and conditional upon the securities being held to maturity.

First 3 1-2, 27 years, $85.30; 3.94 per cent.
First 4 3-4 years; $85.50; 5 per cent.
First 4 1-4, 27 years; $85.50 5.5 per cent.

Second 4 22 1-2 years; $85.50; 5.11 per cent.

Second 4 1-4, 22 1-2 years; $85.50; 5.5 per cent.

Third 4 1-4, 18 1-2 years; $85.50; 5.63 per cent.

Fourth 4 1-4, 18 1-2 years; $85.50; 5.47 per cent.

Victory 4 3-4, 3 years; $84.30; 6.08 per cent.

Victory 3 3-4, 3 years; $85.30; 5.08 per cent.

In comparing the income from Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes with the net yield of taxable stocks and bonds the usual taxes should be added to each of the percentage yields given above.

It rests with the legislature, brokers point out, to increase the taxes here. This then would make the income yield of non-taxable government bonds just that much greater and the bonds would therefore be all the more valuable, bankers and business men say, as investment securities.

LITTLE HOPE OF SECURING GAS FOR NEXT WINTER'S USE

Test of Braxton Field Has Proven Disappointing to Gas Company.

Unless the fourth well to be drilled in the Braxton field by the West Virginia and Maryland Gas Company, the parent concern of the Northern Natural Gas Company, which supplies that commodity to users in this and other towns of Garrett county, proves a much greater producer than the first and third wells, the community will be without a sufficient supply of gas during the coming winter for cooking or lighting, according to the inference contained in a letter received on Monday from Mr. John B. Richards, Baltimore, one of the attorneys for the gas company, and directed to the city officials of Cumberland.

Mr. Richards stated that the three wells drilled in the Braxton field had brought in but 1,100,000 cubic feet of gas, while one well proved a "duster." The first well had a flow of 700,000 cubic feet, while the third one only produced 400,000 cubic feet, this being secured in what is known as the Salt sand, while no gas was found in the Big Injun sand. Mr. Richards pointed out that the test of the field as far as the company has gone was so disappointing that it would not justify connecting the Braxton field with the Weston field, which serves Oakland now. He said the fourth well which is now under way would not be completed for two months, but little hope was held by the company for a flow from this in sufficient quantities to justify the extension of the pipe line.

Mr. Richards said the gas company was "swilling" to continue charging the flat rate to consumers here until September 1st.

MASQUE BALL MONDAY NIGHT

Return Dance Given By The Young Men A Pronounced Success.

The fancy dress ball given on Monday night of this week at Offutt's Hall by a number of the gentlemen of town, was a marked success in every way and was pronounced by those present a fitting return for the leap year dance given by the ladies last month.

The hall was beautifully decorated, as on the former occasion, and varied and unique costumes of the dancers made a riot of color and beauty. Music of a high order, full of originality and pep was furnished by Mr. Edgar Barrett's orchestra from Morgantown.

The program opened with a grand march, which was followed by a fox trot, and this in turn by the "waltz unique," during which the lights in the hall were lowered and the dancers used flash lights as an illuminant. At the end of the first cotillion figure there was an intermission of twenty minutes for judging the ladies costumes.

Miss Marjorie Burgess, of Huntington, West Va., was awarded first prize; Miss Elsie Hanst, of Oakland, second, and Miss Mary Schroeder, of Grafton, West Va., third prize.

The costumes were the big feature of the evening, many of them being things of grace and beauty, while others were most amusing and good for a laugh every five minutes. Many of the dancers were so cleverly disguised that they could not be recognized until the unmasking, which took place just after the first cotillion figure. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Other novel and pleasing features were a part of the evening's entertainment and the "home waltz" found everybody reluctant to bring such a delightful evening to an end. Among those on the floor were:

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mealy, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Peddicord, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Slinger, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rasche; Mrs. Nannette T. Offutt; Misses June Dunington, Marjorie Burgess, Mary Schroeder, Elsie Hanst, Louise Harned, Bess Hendrickson, Leah Sincell, Lillian Helbig, Evelyn Helbig, Grace M. Jones, Cecelia Hart, Margaret Sincell, Edwina Peddicord, Martha McComas, Nell McComas, Messrs. W. O. Davis, Max Jarboe, J. A. Towler, Herbert Leighton, T. V. Downing, Harold Harned, Cecil Smith, Carleton McComas, Carleton Hinebaugh, Morris Sincell, Carl Kahl, Donald Sincell, Edgar Helbig, Clyde Dawson, Robert Slinger and Frederick Thayer.

In addition to the above there were several others present who did not dance but were interested spectators.

BOY LOST EYE MONDAY

Exploding Dynamite Cap Destroys Optic of Mill Hand.

The little nine-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Shaffer, who reside on the road leading from Oakland to Crellin, at which latter place Mr. Shaffer is employed as a mill hand, lost his left eye Monday afternoon when he found a dynamite cap and exploded it with an axe after placing it upon a rock and striking it with the implement. Particles of the explosive struck the boy squarely in the eye and destroyed the sight.

Postmaster Charles A. Deffenbaugh, accompanied by his son Thornton left Oakland Thursday night last for a vacation trip to points in the east. They will visit Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Niagara Falls before returning to Oakland. Postmaster Deffenbaugh has been on the job ever since he took charge of the local office, this being his first vacation of any consequence.

Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, of Accident, left Oakland Saturday last for Baltimore from which city they accompanied the Maryland delegation, which left there on Sunday for San Francisco, Cal., to attend the Democratic National Convention to convene in that city on Monday next. Mr. Miller is the delegate from Garrett county, having been chosen as such at the recently held Democratic State Convention in Baltimore.

A large consignment of brook trout was received in Oakland during the past two or three days and were sent out and placed in the various mountain streams of this section by Deputy Game Warden Browning, assisted by the members of the Fish and Game Protective Association of Garrett county. This distribution of young trout should assure good fishing in the near future. The results of placing these small fish in the streams of the county are apparent every day to lovers of the sport as many fish of this variety measuring from ten to sixteen inches are caught almost every day, brought to town and exhibited to those who have not the time to go a-fishing themselves.

SEA SCAVENGER FRIEND OF MAN

Expert Says Sharks Can Supply Good Food and Fine Leather.

FLESH HAS DELICATE FLAVOR

Scientist Gives Some Interesting Information About Fish Which Seems to Have Been Grossly Labeled—Particular About Food.

New York.—From time immemorial the shark has been considered as an enemy to man and a scavenger of the sea. He has been pictured as the devourer of the deep, and in fiction has been painted as the monster who lurks about the ill-fated ship in order to devour the unfortunates who may have met their death in a gale or on the reef. We, therefore, for generations have cherished an antipathy for this creature of the sea and have been very willing to accept as fact all of these stories, never stopping to consider that perhaps after all the shark might have a few points in his favor.

To begin with, the shark does not live exclusively on the flesh of man. Says Dr. Allen Rogers of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, in the current number of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry of the American Chemical society. In fact, there are only a few species who would eat human flesh, even if it were possible for them to secure it. The principal species considered a man eater is the tiger shark, probably has seldom had the pleasure of this delicacy. Sharks, like all other fish, live on the smaller fish.

Boy Scout Saves Mother and Pet Canary at Fire

New York.—Fifteen-year-old Melvin Peterkin carried his mother, hysterical from fright, out of their burning home at 69 Dennington avenue, Woodhaven, Queens, and then, dodging past flames, who would have intercepted him, rushed back into the blazing house and saved her pet canary.

SAYS WIFE MUST WORK

Forced to Support Husband If Out of Job.

Soviet Marriage Code Provides Principals Must Support Each Other.

London.—A Russian wife is required to support her husband if she is able to do so and he is unable to work and in need of her support, under the marriage laws of Soviet Russia. A copy of this code, transmitted into England, has just reached London from the Russian People's Commissariat of Justice.

It provides that married persons shall be expected to support each other. Should one refuse, and the other to work, the latter has the right to apply to the department of social security to compel the husband or wife, thus upholding the proverb that the big fish eat the little ones.

Sharks Devour Food Fish.

Sharks travel in schools or singly and are found most abundant where food fish are plentiful. They are especially fond of the mullet, menhaden, mackerel and sea trout. Thus it will be seen that they are migratory and at various seasons are found in different waters. They are naturally warm-water fish, which accounts for the large number to be found in the Gulf of Mexico, along the coast of Florida and the West Indies. Being rapid and powerful swimmers, they often follow ships for hundreds of miles, picking up food as it is thrown over the side of the vessel. Their diet at such times is not unlike that of our domestic hog and poultry. It is claimed by fisher folk that the shark will not eat unsound food, which shows him even more particular than our friend the porker. Why, then, if he is so clean in his habits of life, should we discriminate against him?

The bureau of fisheries for several years has endeavored to interest the people in this country in using shark meat as an edible product, with a certain amount of success. In fact, that species of shark known as the dog fish is being canned in large quantities and sold under the name of gray fish. Certain fisheries on the New England coast are removing the head, tail and fins and selling the product in Boston and New York as deep-sea sword fish.

Italians Eat 'Em.

In Boston, also shark meat is being sold as such to the Italian trade, who appreciate its food value and enjoy its delicate flavor. Why, then, should we not take a lesson from the Italians and acquire the shark-eating habit?

For the last five or six years the writer has been interested in developing a method for converting shark skins into a merchantable leather. As a result of this work several processes have been devised which have been assigned to a company operating fisheries in the south.

A conservative estimate indicates that for a catch of 2,000 sharks daily, at an average weight of 200 pounds, there would be 400,000 pounds of fish. As at least 50 per cent could be used for human consumption, we would have 200,000 pounds daily, or 73,000,000 pounds annually. Assuming that the market price could be set at 10 cents, we have a saving of $7,300,000.

WALNUT IS NOW CHEAP

Is Taking Place of Oak for Furniture.

Oes Moines School Board Makes Interesting Post-War Discovery.

Des Moines.—Desks and furniture in many of the Des Moines schools soon will be of American walnut, and the school board attributed the change from quarter-sawn oak to walnut to the war. The secretary of the board says he believes he was able to get walnut because it was supposed to have become so scarce that everyone had ceased to look for it.

Incidentally, the walnut to be used has a varied traveling history. It was originally cut and seasoned for the United States government for airplane propellers. It had been sold by the United States to France, and when the war ended France turned the wood back to this country. It was sold and resold several times and was loaded for shipment to Chicago when the school board started out to buy quarter-sawn oak to build desks and furniture.

The oak, heretofore the standard for school furniture, was found to be too costly by the board of school commissioners. A few dealers submitted prices around $150 a thousand board feet and did not appear overly anxious for the order even at that figure.

It was then that the secretary of the board heard of the shipment of walnut and investigated. He was immediately given a price of $320 a thousand feet and bought $10,000 worth of it. Since that time the board of commissioners has purchased a considerable quantity of unseasoned walnut to be made into school furniture at prices less than the seasoned wood cost.

The school furniture is made by trained training instructors who are employed the entire year around in the schools, and in this way the cost of manufacture is reduced to about one-half.

Since it has become known that the school board is buying walnut, the secretary of the board says, the price is going up, owing to the increased demand.

WILD FOWL FROZEN IN ICE

Trapped by Sudden Change in Temperature Hundreds Die in California.

Chico, Cal.—Frozen into the ice on Goose lake, hundreds of waterfowl died in a recent storm and dozens of birds were found on the windward side of the lake so severely caked in ice that they were helpless and could be picked up without resistance being offered.

Large numbers of waterfowl were attracted to the lake preceding the storm by a warm spell, but with the sudden drop in temperature mud hens, geese and ducks were trapped without a chance to escape, and they were soon covered with an icy spray into which they were frozen.

Flying Cost Soars Higher.

San Francisco.—The high cost of flying went up a notch here. Companies engaged in commercial aviation published a tariff increasing the price of ten-minute "light-seeing" flights 25 per cent to $12.50 and fixing the price of the same period of "stunt" flying at $20.

Since that time the board of commissioners has purchased a considerable quantity of unseasoned walnut to social circle, none but the "needful" and the state may inherit property. The estates of emigrants and of rebels are subject to confiscation by the state.

MAN FALLS, LANDS ON GIRL

Typist as a Human Cushion Saves Window Cleaner's Life on Trenton Street.

Trenton, N. J.—Acting as a human cushion, Miss Helen Kugler, a pretty, young state-house stenographer, probably saved the life of Augustus Miller, a window cleaner, when the latter, while at work on a second story window of an office building fell and landed on the young woman as she was passing. Miss Kugler, with breath almost knocked out of her, fell into the street and Miller landed on his feet.

The girl, except for being badly shaken, was unharmed and was able to go to the state house and finish her work. Miller's left foot was sprained and he went to a hospital for treatment.

GARDENS LESSEN COST OF LIVING

They Will Return Abundantly in Proportion to Time and Effort Expended.

COMMERCIAL PLANTING CUT

Big Vegetable Gardeners See No Way of Obtaining Enough Labor to Conduct Usual Operations—Make All Plans Early.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One way of reducing the cost of living is open to every man, woman and child who can get the use of an idle plot of ground. That way lies through the planting and cultivation of a home garden—a Thrift garden. War gardens played their part in the great reduction of the cost of living in wartime—Thrift gardens now have their own big job in helping households to feed themselves.

The reasons for Thrift gardens are many and various. The same reasons that existed last year and the year before still are present. Thrift gardens will produce food where nothing otherwise would be produced, they will reduce family food bills, they will return abundantly in proportion to the time and effort devoted to them. But added to these reasons is another one peculiar to this year.

Less Commercial Planting.

Reports to the United States department of agriculture indicate that the plantings by commercial vegetable gardeners will be materially reduced this year, because the commercial gardeners see no way of obtaining enough labor to conduct their usual operations. The commercial gardeners claim that they have paid high wages in endeavors to keep up production, but now have reached the point where the returns will not justify the continuance of this expense. At least, this is the opinion reaching the department of agriculture from seed merchants, whose operations at this season tion are regarded as a good indication of what conditions will be a month or two from now.

A Typical Home Garden—The Sort That Will Bring Health and Profit to the Tillers.

If the reduction of commercial gardening becomes a fact, the obvious result will be fewer vegetables and higher prices. Third, logical results flow from the home garden. This is a remedy, moreover, that will work to harm even if the commercial acreage should be up to normal, as any surplus of fresh vegetables may be saved by canning, drying, and other means of conservation and the surplus kept so that it will be useful next fall and winter.

Many More Gardens Needed.

Thousands of families learned the value of home gardens in wartime. United States department of agriculture specialists believe it essential that these families' interest be maintained and that other thousands be added to the home-food producers.

"Now is the time to begin making plans for your 1920 Thrift gardens," these specialists declare. "First, locate a place of suitable land; second, make your plan; third, get your seeds; fourth, start work at the earliest possible moment."

A request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will bring a booklet that will tell how to plan your garden, how much seed to buy, how to get the land in shape for cultivation, how to take every other step in the process of making your back yard or some other vacant lot help feed you.

WEEDS ARE VALUABLE ASSET

Noxious Plants Cut Down and Turned Under Excellent Fertilizer for Garden.

Weeds in the back yard or on that vacant lot next door are an asset to the gardener, for he knows, or should know, that these weeds, cut down and turned under in the garden plot, mean fertilizer for his soil. Turn the rank grass under with the wheel hoe and cultivate it once to destroy the growth. When mature is not procurable this green material is invaluable.

EFFICIENT PLANNING OF GARDENS FAVORED

Important to Make Cultivation Easy and Simple.

Plant in Long, Straight Rows and Cultivate at Least Once Each Week—Hardest Part of Work Performed by Horse.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Of several thousand farm women who answered a series of questions sent out by the extension service of the United States department of agriculture, 92 per cent had gardens and 56 per cent of the gardens were tended mainly by the women themselves. If this be universally true, it is important that the work of cultivating it will be simple and easy. All of the heavier work, such as plowing and fitting the land, should be done by men with the aid of a team.

The garden should be planted in long, straight rows and cultivated once a week with a horse, according to ex-challists. If this much is done by the men the work of the women will be materially reduced. The care of a home garden is not hard work if the planning of the garden and the main part of the cultivation is done with horse-drawn tools. Plan the farm garden right, work it right, and it will prove the most profitable piece of land on the farm.

The Long Rows in This Farm Garden Are Great Time and Labor Savers, Making Possible the Use of a Horse in Cultivation.

TEST SEEDS BEFORE SOWING

Essential Preparation Consists of Providing Apparatus and Knowledge of Methods.

Practically the only element in crop production that the farmer has completely under his own control is the planting of good seed.

It is important that farm seeds be tested before they are sown. Otherwise, a full crop cannot be grown even under the most favorable weather conditions.

Seed testing for practical results, says the United States department of agriculture, can be done much more easily than is generally believed. The essential preparation for making seed tests consists of providing the simple apparatus necessary and of becoming familiar with the general purposes and methods of testing and the features of importance peculiar to tests of particular kinds of seeds. Ask the county agent, or write the Department of Agriculture for a bulletin.

FEED LITTLE CALVES GRAIN

Young Animal Begins to Eat When About Two Weeks Old, Amount Gradually Increasing.

When the calf is about two weeks old it will begin to eat. If a small amount of grain is placed in a box and kept before the calf it will be only a short time before it begins to eat regularly. A quarter of a pound or less each day will be sufficient for ten days or more and this can be gradually increased, giving the calf all it will clean up.

POULTRY NOTES

Take care of your setting hens, feed and water them regularly.

Perhaps the greatest drawback to turkey farms is the lack of range.

When the chicks have learned to roost it is much easier to protect them from mites.

Although ducks and geese are water fowls, they must have a dry, well-bedded house or shed to rest in.

Mites, lice and fleas are the prolific and everlasting root of most of the troubles of the poultry raiser.

Only laying fowls are worth keeping in the spring; the first step toward bending last year's record is to cull the non-layers.

A good laying strain of hens will keep busy laying all during the breeding season if they are shut up and their broodiness broken each time.

SIX MONTHS I COULD NOT WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Me Strong and Able to Work—I Recommend It To All My Friends.

Bayonne, N. J.—"I had pains in back and legs so that I could not stand caused by female trouble.

I felt so tired all the time, had had headaches, and for six months I could not work. I was treated by a physician and took other remedies but got no relief. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me very much. I am well and strong and now able to do my work. I cannot thank you enough and I recommend your medicine to my friends who are sick."—Mrs. SUSIE SACATANSKY, 26 East 17th St., Bayonne, N. J.

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for over forty years, and today hold a record for such wonderful success as does Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. (Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.)

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than "Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Gases and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without gripping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

Why That Backache?

Why be miserable with a bad back? You can't be happy if every bad day brings lameness, sharp, shooting pains and a dull, nagging ache. Likely the cause is weak kidneys. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with a weak, tired feeling. Don't delay. Try Doan's Kidney Pills. They have done wonders in thousands of such cases. Ask your neighbor!

A Maryland Case

Mrs. Harry Cresser, Thomas St., Bel Air, Md., says: "I suffered from dull pains across my back and a dragging down feeling through my hips. When I stooped I got dizzy and frequently had severe headaches. My feet and hands swelled and my feet ached. After using Doan's Kidney Pills my back stopped aching and my kidneys became normal."

WAR NURSE FROM ARMENIA ASKS AMERICA'S AID

Soldier Husband and Battlefield Baby Touring Country With Her for Near East Relief.

A mother, father and daughter, the latter born in a tattered Red Cross tent in the icy Caucasus while guns roared all around and Turkish shells ignoring the mercy emblem, burst near by, are touring America in behalf of their native Armenia. They are General Muzrop Noyan Azapetian, his wife, Lady Anne, and French Esther Araxie Azapetian, whose baby eyes opened upon scenes of horror and later through them saw much of the sufferings of the people of Armenia.

The family are making their tour under auspices of the Near East Relief, the big organization which has saved hundreds of thousands of the people in that part of the world from death by hunger and cold and is soon to open a nation wide campaign for funds to complete the work of saving the survivors, more than a half million of whom must perish unless aid comes to them soon. Armenia is their only hope.

General Azapetian served gallantly in the Russian armies in the Caucasus against the Turks. His wife, who accompanied him to the front, did noble work for the wounded and sick, and it was while in this service that her baby was born in a hospital tent during a battle. An army blanket swung from two poles in one corner of the tent was the baby's crib during the rest of that terrible winter campaign. With the collapse of the Russian armies after the Bolshevik revolution the Azapetians returned to Armenia for a brief spell and did their best to alleviate the suffering they found on every hand. But with a Turkish price on his head the father finally made his way with his family through Russia to Finland and then to this country. What they tell of conditions and needs in Armenia is first hand evidence.

In the Caucasus, Armenia, Syria, Turkey and Persia are more than 250,000 orphans, helpless little victims of war, massacre and deportation, and for the great majority the only bar between them and absolute starvation is a bowl of hot bean soup every day. This soup is supplied by the Near East Relief now making an appeal to the American people for sufficient funds to increase this dole and to provide these suffering little ones with clothing and give them an education that will help them to become self supporting. It is estimated that more than 1,500,000 in Western Asia will die of starvation unless American aid is continued.

The American Legion

Here and There Among the World War Veterans

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS BUILDING OF AMERICAN LEGION

One of Indianapolis' Most Attractive Buildings—Why and How the Hoosier Capital Was Chosen by the American Legion.

WHY DID they locate the national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis?

This is a question that many delegates to the Minneapolis convention of the American Legion are unable to answer. They know that Indianapolis was not one of the three cities reported favorably on by the committee, that a minority report was presented on the floor of the convention, resulting in the election of Indianapolis as permanent headquarters of the organization.

Fred Bates Johnson, an Indianapolis attorney and one of the Hoosier delegates to the convention, was asked how the Indianapolis delegation managed to secure the headquarters. "It was a case of superior salesmanship, as I see it," said Mr. Johnson. "That means, as you know, faith in the superior quality of the product you're trying to sell, a thorough knowledge of the article, and hard work."

"We not only worked hard in trying to convince the members of the committee that Indianapolis was the best location—we tried to sell the city to every delegate we could talk to. The result was when we found we had lost out in committee, we felt pretty confident we could win by raising the question on the floor of the convention, and we did."

"We had a delegation thoroughly well informed on the advantages the city afforded as a headquarters center. The line of argument was, of course, shaped to fit the particular delegate with whom we were dealing, and all in line with a pre-arranged plan. It is not saying that the political bent naturally inherent in every Hoosier may not have helped us in winning out over the competing cities."

"Our first argument was that Indianapolis was the ideal convention or headquarters city because it is only sixty miles from the center of population and thus most accessible to the largest number of members. We explained that with fifteen railroads and thirteen electric interurban lines, this greatest inland railway center was easily and directly reached from all parts of the country."

"We showed them how more cities of 30,000 population and over can be reached in a night's ride from Indianapolis than from any other city in the United States, embracing a zone including Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Memphis, St. Louis, Peoria and Springfield. Over two million people live within two hours' ride of the city and over 60,000,000 can be reached over night."

"We also argued that the fact the city was an ideal headquarters location was evidenced by the number of national headquarters already located here, listing among these the United Mine Workers of America, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, International Typographical Union, International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers, International Union, Harbors International Union, and the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. This array of labor organizations assured the approval of the thousands of legion members here tending to labor."

"We said we could assure all ex-servicemen of a most cordial welcome as Indianapolis had always been most appreciative of her heroes. In proof of this, we cited the soldiers and sailors' monument which was erected thirty years ago, costing then over $200,000—a monument almost 300 feet in height—and the patriotic manner in which Indiana's sons have answered the call in all previous wars."

"All were surprised to learn that Indianapolis has the most complete electric traction terminal building in the world, where more than 20,000 passengers each day arrive and depart on about 800 high-speed electric interurban cars. The fact that we built the first union railway station in the world also appealed to many."

"We found few knew that Indianapolis was the home city of the late Vice President Charles V. Fairbanks, the home city of Vice President Marshall, the late James Whitcomb Riley and the late Benjamin Harrison; of Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson and other literary men of national note."

"We explained that in addition to our unusual location and railroad facilities, the city was well equipped with hotel accommodations, large auditoriums for conventions, and everything in the way of theaters and motion picture houses that delegates to a convention might require, a theaters and 20 motion picture houses."

"The many buildings of interest were also described—a post office occupying a city block and costing more than a half million dollars; a central library, erected at a cost of more than a half million dollars, with fourteen branches and thirty-five other distributing agencies; a state capital occupying two city blocks; a courthouse of unusual architectural beauty, and so on."

"Of course, we bored some listeners, and we had to permit the boosters of other cities to have their say, but, nevertheless, we got across the many advantages offered by this city of 208,000 population. We tried to appeal to the particular interest of the man with whom we were talking."

"Thus, we told the men from farming and rural districts that the principal industry from the value of product is slaughtering and meat packing. That last year 1,391,452 hogs, 208,128 cattle and calves, and 15,903 sheep were killed. They were interested to know that more than 3,500,000 head of live stock were received at Indianapolis stock yards the year before. "At the same time we told that 6,725,750 bushels of wheat and 21,500,000 bushels of corn were handled by local dealers, and a total of 40,000,000 bushels of grain handled in elevators having a combined capacity of 2,480,000 bushels."

"None of the college men seemed to know that Butler college at Indianapolis was the first college in the country to receive women on equal footing with men. And in the same way we had marshalled facts to interest men of every occupation and interest."

"I venture there was not a delegate at the convention so well informed on what their city had to offer. Certain men were assigned to work with the delegations from the different states. We took with us a motion picture film showing the city, but had not an opportunity to use it."

"The fact that we landed the G. H. Q. of the legion was due solely to superior salesmanship."

The Story Of A Man Who Made Himself

A Review of the Business and Political Life of Warren G. Harding

Though he always has been a resident of Ohio—that state which in modern years has well-nigh robbed Virginia of her old-time glory as the Mother of Presidents—Warren G. Harding is a stranger to the party, or to the nation at large. Since 1914 he has represented his commonwealth in the United States Senate with ability and distinction. His gift of eloquence has caused him to be much in demand on public occasions, not only in his home state, but in all sections of the country.

It was he who in 1912 was chosen to place in nomination for the Presidency William H. Taft, and again, in 1916, it was Senator Harding, who, as chairman of the nominating convention of that year, delivered the so-called keynote speech of the occasion. So it may be said that he has come finally to find himself cast for the star role in a national convention after having played many a minor part to the generous acclaim of his party comrades.

Senator Harding, when he enters the White House as President Harding, will create a precedent. By profession he is neither primarily lawyer nor soldier. He is and always has been during his adult years a pre-eminently practical newspaper man. He knows the publisher's game from the printing case and the linotype machine to the publisher's office, and with that particular breed of ability the White House has not been familiar.

Harding As An Editor.

The senator and nominee is the proprietor of the Marion Star, the principal newspaper of Marion, Ohio, a progressive city of about 33,000, and he is one of those Americans of whom it may be justly said that whatever of good fortune has come to him in life is the product of his sterling qualities.

The Ohio editor, of whom his fellows in the Buckeye state delight to say that in many ways he is like their own, was born on a farm, near the village of Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio, November 2, 1865, the eldest of eight children, a member of one of those old-fashioned families, the magnitude of which Roosevelt would be loath to admit, but which were more popular a generation ago than later. He is a product of staunch old Scotch stock, for his father, George T. Harding, was a country doctor whose forebears hailed from Scotland.

Before they plucked up their household goods and "went West," the Hardings had been residents of Pennsylvania, where some of their ancestors in Colonial and Revolutionary days had been massacred by Indians. Others of this fine old stock had fought in the war for independence.

On the mother's side of the family tree is that other strain—the Dutch—the strain of which Roosevelt was justly proud, and one which had pulsed in the veins of many of America's best progeny. Mrs. Phoebe Dickerson, Senator Harding's mother, was descended from an old-time Holland family—the Van Kirsks.

Warren Harding in his youth lived the conventional life of a farmer boy. Until he was 14 years old he attended a village school. Then he entered the Ohio Central College at Iberia, from which he was graduated.

Youth Who Made His Own Way. Although his father was a man of moderate means, the lad to a great extent paid his own way through school and college by doing farm work, teaching and doing odd jobs of house and sign painting. It was as editor of the college paper that he first displayed a taste and bent for journalism, and before he won his sheepskin he had learned how to "stick" type and had mastered the mysteries of the linotype machine.

In order to pay his way through to graduation day, he had to take an unscheduled vacation every now and then to earn money. Sometimes he cut corn. Again he worked in the village printing office, where he became a practical pressman and job printer and qualified as a "make-up" man. The Senator is so fond of the memories of the old days when the aroma of printers' ink was a part of his daily diet that even after he went to the United States Senate he carried habitually in his pocket as a lucky mascot, the old printers' rule he used when at work over the forms.

It was in 1884 that Dr. Harding moved his family to Marion, Ohio. Soon after he bought for his son, Warren, the Star, then a small and unpretentious newspaper. The young man gloried in his new opportunity. On the paper, which instantly became his pet toy, he gladly performed every function from that of "printer's devil" to the prouder sphere of managing editor. The little paper had been losing money and the boy's father bought it at a bargain at sheriff's sale. In the purchase, the doctor is said to have had the help of the proprietor of the Marion Mirror, a Democratic weekly, for which young Harding had worked at the time and had written up local happenings.

That was the year of Blaine's candidacy, and the younger Harding emphasized his Republicanism by joining a Blaine club and wearing a "Blaine hat." Since those days Marion county, Ohio, has changed from a Democratic to a Republican stronghold, and the Marion Star, which has grown in influence and prosperity commensurate with the community, carries its own leased wire news service, boasts electric presses, a battery of eight linotype machines and more than fifty employees on its pay roll.

His Beginning In Politics.

In the early '90s Warren Harding began making political campaign speeches and so speedily did he take rank as a forceful and convincing "speller" that he was on the stump thereafter in every state and national campaign. In his political life, as well as in his business associations, he has enjoyed a marked personal popularity. It is one of his losses that in all the years he has controlled his newspaper he never has been confronted by a strike or the menace of one. In his church relations he is a Baptist, and in his home town he is a trustee of the Trinity Baptist church.

In addition to his newspaper interest, he is closely identified with many large business enterprises in Marion and other parts of the State. He is a director in one of the banks and also of several large manufacturing plants.

Senator Harding twice has represented the Thirtieth senatorial district of Ohio in the State legislature, and he served one term as lieutenant governor. In the 1914 election he was elected United States Senator by a majority of more than 100,000, running 37,000 ahead of the next highest name on the same ticket—an uncommon tribute to an uncommon personal popularity.

In the United States Senate he is a member of the committee on foreign relations. His term expires on March 3, 1921, just in time for him to lay aside the senatorial toga for his inauguration as President, if he is elected.

In 1891 Warren Harding married Miss Florence, daughter of Amos H. Kling, a retired banker of means, and Mrs. Harding at once became a leader in the social life of the little Ohio city. They have no children. Their home life is a most happy one. Their house is comfortable, but not pretentious, though it abounds in evidence of taste and refined culture.

The Republican nominee for President, though a "first timer" in the Senate, has been considered as an influential member of the Republican party for the last two years. His experience in the Ohio State Senate and as lieutenant governor gave him a good foundation for his wider sphere of action in the national body and enabled him to pass beyond the "novice" class within a brief time.

Since he came to Washington in 1915, he has contented himself to follow a course of dignity and calm conservatism. He has been slow in reaching decisions and in expressing opinions, but with a commanding presence, a winning personality and an excellent voice, he has always been received with respectful attention. In party matters, he has lined up with the organization leaders.

An Advocate Of Preparedness. Senator Harding was an early advocate of preparedness, and one of his first outstanding acts was a successful fight for the enactment of legislation authorizing Col. Theodore Roosevelt to raise and head a division of volunteers for service in France. The administration declined to sanction the proposed expedition.

The presidential candidate's attitude toward the peace treaty and league of nations is of more interest now, however, with that issue certain to be one of the dominant fighting points in the campaign. Senator Harding throughout the long treaty fight stood with the Lodge group for adequate Americanizing reservations. He is a member of the foreign relations committee and was prominent in the consideration of the treaty and the league covenant. He was active also in the long series of debates on the treaty question.

The Senator is a close student of economic problems such as the tariff, standard wage paid to labor and transportation. On the outstanding questions of national importance which have arisen since he came to the Senate, the Republican nominee's record is as follows:

He has always favored laws restricting immigration so as to keep out undesirable. He has strongly supported legislation designed to curb the activities of enemies of law and order, but has been outspoken in his condemnation of the espionage law. He is a staunch advocate of the right of free speech, free press and free assemblies. He favors recognition of Armenian independence, but opposed the President's request for authority to accept a mandate for Armenia.

He favors American aid in restoring order in Mexico and believes in vigorous actions to protect American lives and property in that country. His friends say he would not hesitate at actual intervention, if conditions should warrant it.

On the prohibition question, Senator Harding voted for the amendment to the Constitution and the Volstead enforcement act. The senator is opposed to government ownership of the railroads and wire systems, the merchant marine or other public utilities. He voted for the return of the railroads and the wire lines and for the loan bill providing for the sale of the government built ships and the former German liners.

Harding and Merchant Marine. Senator Harding has declared, however, that he favors an adequate American merchant marine, and he is in hearty accord with the platform plank declaring for free use of the Panama Canal by American ships. He also voted for woman's suffrage.

Here are the personal stories of the Senator's career in the Senate by two of his colleagues, Senators Fall, of New Mexico, and Jones, of Washington.

Senator Fall declared that no more staunch upholder of genuine Americanism could have been found as Republican standard-bearer. "Senator Harding came out strongly for a policy of restricted immigration early in his career as a senator," said Senator Fall. "He favored the literacy test and other means of protecting American standards by shutting out European undesirables."

"He voted for the war with Germany and upheld the President in every one of his strictly war policies, voting for practically every measure designed to further the war. He voted for the Overman bill allocating large war powers to the President."

"On the treaty he was classed as a strong reservationist. He stood for all of the Lodge reservations. He favored a league of nations, and desired this country to assume all the burdens and discharge all the obligations that honor imposed on it. But he stood unflinchingly for proper reservations in this matter and declared that these obligations should be interpreted in an American way, and be carried out under direction of the American Congress."

"American rights at home or abroad will be safe with Warren Harding in the White House. His action on the Armenian mandate is a good indication. He was chairman of a subcommittee of foreign relations which reported the Williams resolution for recognition of Armenia. In this report he expressed opinion, and asserted that the American government would send ships to Batumi, if necessary, to protect American lives and property. He advised American recognition of Armenian independence."

"President Wilson in his demand for an American mandate over Armenia, referred to this report, declaring himself 'exceedingly gratified' with the stand Harding had taken."

Opposition To Mandate.

"On this issue, Harding at once joined his Republican colleagues in declaring against an American mandate, and declared that the United States should decline to assume responsibility for interference in the affairs of a foreign continent. He advocated the discharge of all American obligations, but declared that active military measures would be justified only in case of an invasion of American rights."

"He fully appreciates the duty of the United States to aid in restoring order in Mexico, realizing that it is in the interests of law-abiding people in Mexico. He is not the man to hesitate at actual intervention if matters should take such a course as to make this final step necessary."

"How does he stand on prohibition? Harding is unalterably against the return of saloon domination. He stands first and last for law and order, and I know will enforce the Volstead act as long as it remains the law of the land. But he is no fanatic on the subject, and will not be hostile to any reasonable readjustment of this vexed question."

"While in the Senate, Harding worked hard. His chief amusement is golf, and he is a fine player. (Continued on Page 12.)

The American Legion

ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH

WITH THE NATIONAL SERVICE MEN

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

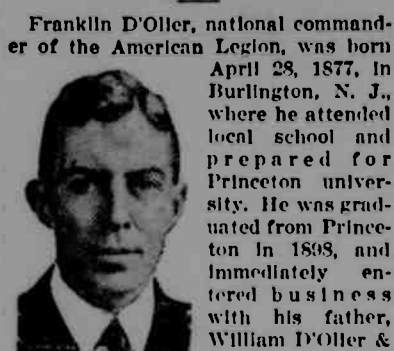

THEY ARE BACK INTO "CITS" AND THE AMERICAN LEGION

The American Legion is experiencing a rapid growth, and has just passed the 8,000 mark in the number of posts established. Recent reports showed New York in the lead with 851 posts; Pennsylvania, second, with 522 posts; Illinois third, 494 posts; Iowa, 427; Minnesota, 409; Ohio, 357; Michigan, 256; Indiana, 247; Massachusetts, 245; New Jersey, 244.

STARTED LEGION IN FRANCE

Franklin D'Olier, National Commander, One of the Twenty Men to Found Organization.

Franklin D'Olier, national commander of the American Legion, was born April 28, 1877, in Burlington, N. J., where he attended local school and prepared for Princeton university. He was graduated from Princeton in 1898, and immediately entered business with his father, William D'Olier & Co., commission merchants in cotton and yarns, in Philadelphia. Upon his father's retirement from business, the firm name was changed to Franklin D'Olier & Co.

Mr. D'Olier entered the military service of the United States in April, 1917, as a captain in the quartermaster corps. After a few weeks' service at the Philadelphia depot and several months at Boston, he was ordered to France in August, 1917. Owing to great scarcity of tonnage at that time and the necessity for salvaging material on a large scale, Mr. D'Olier was assigned to the newly organized salvage service, and in January, 1918, took command of the first salvage depot that was operated by the American army. Within six months the work had grown so rapidly that the personnel increased from 12 to 6,000, and this depot was salvaging for about 750,000 men, and was larger than any depot operated by either the British or French armies. This depot was at St. Pierre des Corps near Tours, France, the headquarters of the service of supply.

In July, 1918, Captain D'Olier was ordered to Lyons, France, to organize the second large depot which at the time of the armistice had a capacity of taking care of salvaging for upward of a million and a half men. He was promoted to the rank of major, and then lieutenant colonel, and assigned to the general staff, and after two years' service in the army, 23 months of which was in the A. E. F., was discharged from the service in April, 1919.

Mr. D'Olier was one of the original 20 men who initiated the American Legion in France, February 15, 1919, and attended the Paris caucus of the American Legion on March 15, 1919. After his discharge from the service Mr. D'Olier joined Theodore Roosevelt, who was at that time—early in 1919—perfecting the preliminary organization of the American Legion in the United States preparatory to the St. Louis caucus, May 8, 1919.

Mr. D'Olier was chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation at the St. Louis caucus and a member of the national executive committee from Pennsylvania. After the St. Louis caucus he was placed in charge of the state organization division at national headquarters, New York city, and gave his entire time without any remuneration whatsoever to American Legion work.

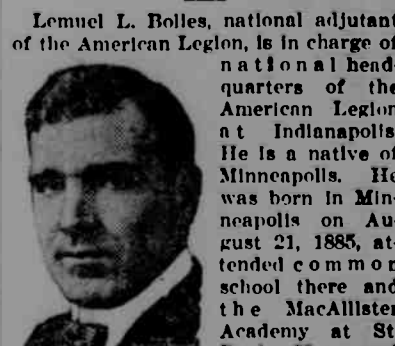

In preparation for the Minneapolis convention.

Mr. D'Olier's work for the American Legion has been to co-operate with the national executive committee in the preparations for the Minneapolis convention.

For his work in France Mr. O'Dlier received a Distinguished Service Medal from the United States government and the Legion of Honor from the French government.

IN CHARGE OF HEADQUARTERS

National Adjutant, Man From State of Washington, Has Seen Much Military Service.

Lemuel L. Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion, is in charge of the national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis. He is a native of Minneapolis. He was born in Minneapolis on August 21, 1888, and attended common school there and the MacAllister Academy at St. Paul.

Mr. Bolles served in all grades in Company E, 2nd Infantry, of the Washington National Guard from September, 1904, to 1914, and commanded that company from 1911 to 1914. He was called into federal service with the Washington National Guard in September, 1917, and joined the 41st division at Camp Greene, N. C., with which division he went overseas in December, 1917, and served as a lieutenant colonel on the general staff of the First corps from May 1, 1918, to March 3, 1919.

On his return to the United States in July, 1919, he was discharged from the service, and was requested by the national executive committee to assist in the organization of the American Legion in the preparation for the Minneapolis convention on the staff at national headquarters. Mr. Bolles was one of the original delegates to the Paris caucus of the American Legion last March.

None Down.

An elderly lady was questioning the ex-artilleryman. "And what was the most terrible sight you witnessed in the war?" she asked.

"Well, it was like this," replied the soldier. "We had just spotted a German machine gun nest with about twelve enemy gunners that were holding up our advance. We located the nest and put the first shot right in the middle of the Jerry."

"How dreadful," interrupted the old lady. "Did it kill them all?" "No," replied the soldier sadly, "it was a dud."

How Men Handle Their Money - Henry Ford

A MAN who is perhaps the best known manufacturer of Automobiles is Henry Ford. His wealth is estimated to aggregate almost one billion dollars. In the nineties he was working for $45 a month and saving money. In 1898, he organized the Ford Company and accepted a salary of $100 a month. He always saved money and the Company which he fathered is managed on a prudent basis, making improvements out of savings instead of using borrowed capital.

A BAD LOT OF PEA SEED

Sown in Garrett County And The Crop Will Be Unfit For Canning
Mr. James A. Towler, County Agent for Garrett county, has furnished The Republican with the following statement in connection with the growing of peas by the Garrett county farmers who have contracted with a canning company to take over their crops:

"The pea harvest around Mount Airy—Frederick and Carroll counties—is about over. The county agent was called down to that point last week by Mr. Fooks, manager of the Mount Airy Canning Company, and was advised that the Alaska peas were not turning out well, due to a poor lot of seed gotten from Idaho. The seed was badly mixed and did not ripen evenly. The first lot of seed shipped to Garrett county was from the same lot that came from Idaho. So Mr. Fooks feels that the same trouble will be found here and in order not to have the people disappointed in the yield he has asked me to tell those who got the Alaska (smooth peas) seed to do what they wish with them and no charges will be made for the seed. He does not feel that it will pay to can them. They may be plowed under as a green manure or cut for hay. They make a splendid hay for cows or sheep; also a good green manure crop. Mr. Fooks received a thousand bushels of the Alaska seed from Idaho and they have all proven to be poor. He says it will mean a loss of $10,000 to him besides a great disappointment in not having the peas, but he is not asking any one to share the loss with him and is simply giving the seed to those to whom they have been distributed. These who received the Horseford garden (wrinkled) peas got good seed and Mr. Fooks wants them to stand until they are ripe, when he will come to Garrett county, notify the growers when to cut and then can them. So all who got the wrinkled peas will please let them stand until they are ripe."

"J. A. TOWLER, County Agent."

SOCIALISTS NOMINATE CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Frostburg Miner to be Standard Bearer of Party in Sixth District.

The Socialists of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, in convention at Nickel's Hall, Frostburg, Saturday afternoon, nominated Noah S. Twigg, a miner of Frostburg, for Congress. Mr. Twigg is financial secretary of Local No. 2819, United Mine Workers of America, and secretary of the Allegany Trades Council. Resolutions were adopted demanding public ownership of all mines, rail and water ways, mills, factories and other public utilities; denouncing the Cummings-Esch bill as vicious and calling for its repeal, and demanding the immediate unconditional release of all political prisoners and conscientious objectors with restoration of full citizenship.

The platform adopted reaffirms allegiance to the principles of international socialism. It calls for three unqualified rights of workers to strike, boycott and picket and demands the enactment and enforcement of laws against profiteering. The platform contains in the main the planks as adopted in the national platform.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Annual County Gathering will be Held At Cove July 17th and 18th.

The annual Garrett County Sunday School convention will be held on July 17th and 18th at St. John's Lutheran church in the Cove, and plans are now being made for a strong program and a large attendance. All Sunday school people throughout the county will be welcomed and the county officers in charge of the arrangements are hoping for a record-breaking turn out of people especially at the sessions on Sunday, the 18th inst.

Sunday school superintendents are urged to take the matter up before their respective schools and arrange for regular delegates and also urge other members of their schools to attend.

Further announcement will be made within a short time and copies of the program will be sent out as soon as ready for distribution. Superintendents who have not received report blanks for their schools should communicate with the County President, Mr. E. R. Jones, Oakland.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES ARE PLACED IN NOMINATION

Ten Speeches Made In Behalf Of Aspirants Take Up Day's Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—After hearing ten candidates placed in nomination for the Presidency, the Democratic National Convention, following an eight-hour session today, recessed until 11 o'clock tomorrow.

John W. Davis, of West Virginia, Ambassador to Great Britain, was the only man on the list of those for whom nominating speeches were to be made, who was not reached on the day's program. The candidates placed in nomination were Senator Owen, of Oklahoma; Attorney General Palmer, Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska; Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the National Committee; William G. McAdoo, Governor Smith, of New Jersey; Governor Meredith; Governor Cox, of Ohio, and James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany.

The big demonstration of the day came with the presentation of Palmer, Cox and McAdoo, although there was a spontaneous outburst with the presentation of Governor Smith.

The Cox and Palmer demonstrations were fully expected and looked for, but the McAdoo nomination coming after days of uncertainty as to whether a nominating speech was to be made for him or not added an element of interest and surprise. It was easily the loudest, longest and most tumultuous one and kept the convention in an uproar for the best part of an hour.

Dr. Burris Jenkins, of Kansas City, who was ready to place the former Secretary of the Treasury in nomination, finally decided to yield to the wishes of Mr. McAdoo and not make a nominating speech for him. He simply explained the situation to the convention in one of the shortest speeches on record and merely placed Mr. McAdoo in nomination fully assured that "if drafted for the service of the nation" he would not refuse the nomination.

CAMP MEETING BEGINS SUNDAY

At the Park—Opening Sermon By Bishop Oldham Sunday Morning.

The annual camp meeting at Mountain Lake Park, which has drawn thousands to that place every year for two generations, will begin on Sunday morning next, and at the morning service Bishop W. F. Oldham, one of the brainiest men of the Methodist Episcopal church, will preach. The Bishop will arrive at the Park Saturday.

Among others who will be in attendance throughout the meeting which will continue over ten days are Rev. W. F. Dolbow and his assistants; Rev. Williams, of Kentucky, is also advertised to be present. He is known far and wide as the "Kentucky wonder," because of his ability as a man of persuasive instincts and qualities.

The singing at the meeting will be one of the most attractive features and will be in charge of one well known to Mountain Lake Park camp meeting goers.

Others who are to be at the Park during the weeks to come are Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, the man who made the Navy dry, and Mr. John R. Mott, the most famous layman in the United States; Bishop W. F. McDowell, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the National Anti-Saloon League. These men will be at the Park the week of July 19-25 and will make addresses at the Epworth League convention which will be in session at that time.

The week of July 12-18 Bishops Joseph F. Berry and B. Francis McConnell and Dr. Wm. H. McMasters, the latter being president of Mount Union College, Mount Union, Ohio, will be on the platform.

JUDGES AND CLERKS NAMED

Board of Supervisors of Elections Met Last Night and Made Appointments.

Appointments for the registration and election officials for the coming year were made at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Elections for Garrett county last night, the meeting being held at the office of Mr. D. E. Bolden, one of the Supervisors. Those present at the meeting in addition to Mr. Bolden were Mr. J. M. Stanton, president of the board, Mr. Fred P. Miller, of Accident, and Attorney A. Totten Matthews. The appointments will be announced within the next several days and will appear officially in The Republican in its next issue.

TIMELY ADVICE TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

My friends, let me continue what I was saying in my last, by reminding you that the present crisis through which we are passing is a challenge to faith and hope. In the face of the horrors of Verdun; the bleaching bones of thousands of men, women and children; of five million wounded men in hospitals in Europe—yes, after sixty generations of Christian opportunity, how shall we keep heart in view of all this?

We are told that the ideals upon which we relied to save the world have failed. Christianity is a failure. If that is so, then education is a failure; so is commerce.

We thought that they would prevent war. International law is also a failure. It guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium. It failed. What did Militarism care for Christianity or law?

But Christianity has not failed. Wars have always been with us. In three thousand years we have had about two hundred and twenty-seven years of peace. Force shall not always prevail. There are limitations to force. Guns and battleships and airplanes and submarines cannot do it all. Force has limits and is futile to attain the higher ends of life. War is a surgical operation to cut off the alien growth, but it does not cure. We need to attack the unchristian international relationships of which war is the expression.

Talk of the glory of war! At an officers' mess there was laughter at the story of a man who had used his last cartridge in his defense and said, "hand me down your spade, Mike," and as six of the enemy came round the end of a transverse he split their skulls with it. That is war. A Y. M. C. A. secretary, feeling his way in the darkness of No Man's Land, reached into the skulls of the wounded men lying about and felt their throbbing brains. War! An officer said, "A mine exploded and buried our brigade. It killed many, but some were not much hurt, so we dug them out and used them over again." That's war for you! War is dropping bombs from airplanes; shooting by phone orders at places miles away; murdering troops on ships with torpedoes; launching out clouds of poisonous gases; it is days and nights of pain and agony for the wounded in No Man's Land; jaws gone; arms missing; sight destroyed; minds blank; bodies tossed into the incinerators that follow in the wake of battles; it is poison, gas, and the lingering death. It is broken hearted mothers looking for letters from loved ones at the front, and children longing for footsteps that will never hear. "It's heroisms are glancing sunlight on a sea of blood and tears," and yet they say it is glorious! He is mad who says so. No! War is hell. "Wars are hellish business—all wars—any honest man says so—hates wars, fighting, blood-letting." Our responsibility is great. The world's great scourges of the world are famine, pestilence and war. But commerce killed famine, science killed pestilence and religion killed war.

I would have you, my friends, study the conditions in which we now are. The burden of meeting and remedying them will fall largely upon this present generation. Be ready to face duty. That duty is expressed by Paul in Rom. 13:7: "None of us liveth to himself, and no man liveth without another." We should live for others. Each one, however, is a center. The first circle that surrounds you is home; the next, your friends; the next, your country; and then the world at large. The sphere of duty is infinite in every station. Obedience to duty, at all cost, is the essence of the highest civilization. Great deeds must be hoped for, worked for, died for.

We are apt to connect the idea of duty with the soldiers, and so we love to recall the fate of one at Pompeii who would not forsake his post, and as the result was buried by the ashes from Vesuvius. Obedience is the lesson to be learned. Duty, however, is not mere fearlessness; it is self-devotion. The gladiator never forgot self or his price. Pizarro had hardihood, but he was actuated by love of gold in the midst of all his hardships. Augustine says: "Do you wish to be great, then, little by little, little by little, if you are to erect a lofty building, you must go down deep for the foundation." Humility is the foundation of all true greatness. The best duty is done out of sight. First, there is the abiding sense of duty to God; then follows duty to others, as family, etc. We can be worthy or worthless. No one can destroy your soul. It cannot perish by your own act. It will not do to neglect your soul, and then try to right the past or make up for former neglect.

An eclipse of the sun once occurred in New England. People thought the day of judgment had come. The legislature of Connecticut was in session when it was moved to adjourn, then an old Puritan member rose and said: "If the last day is come, I desire to be found at my post," and so moved that candles be bought. He was right. We owe a duty to ourselves, to our persons, that they be properly dressed and fed, and have good manners and morals. You are largely the architect of your own fortunes.

Then there is our duty to others. We must recognize their rights and not invade them. Help the needy, relieve the distressed. A delicate man did much in visiting the sick and needy. Friends expostulated with him. He would take their disease. He replied, "I attend to business for the sake of my family, but a man's duty is to help the needy." Cato advocated getting rid of their old slaves to avoid the expense of keeping them. The sick and infirm were banished to an island and died from exposure and starvation.

We must not forget our duty to property. We are so constituted that we defend this right as we do our lives. Property is in a sense, part of life. The whole force of the civic power is pledged to protect, but only the individual conviction of the inalienable right of every other one to his own honestly acquired possessions can give to property, even in the best governed communities, its security. Anarchistic socialism denies this right of property.

Nor can we be unmindful of our duty as to the reputation of others. This does not include legitimate criticism, but it does exclude slander, mongering, starting false reports and false witness. One's reputation is a precious possession. To pilfer a good name is to lend one's self to the meanest sort of stealing. We owe it to all to be honest toward them. Horace Greeley once said, "The darkest hour of many a young man's life is when he sits down to plan how to get money without earning it." Honest is the foundation of all credits and of all business. We are under obligations to be truthful. This is the reverse side of honesty. It is the basis of all right inter relations.

It is also our duty to set good examples. Of one it was said, "He was indeed the glass in which the noble guests did dress themselves." Each of us should be such a mirror. Nothing is more powerful than example. We should lift our fellows by what we are and do. Above all, forget not your duty to be benevolent. The real idea of possession is that of stewardship, rather than ownership. The real need of our fellows is a claim on us—our wise and right helping. JOANNES. (To be concluded.)

CHAPTER 633.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 37 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," as said Section was amended and re-enacted by Chapter 475 of the Acts of 1890, and said Section was repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act passed at January session, 1901, Chapter 540, and said Section was repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act passed at January session, 1906, Chapter 21, and said Section was repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act passed at January session, 1916, Chapter 11, and to re-enact the same with amendments.

Preamble. Whereas, the salary of the Clerk of the County Commissioners of Garrett County is insufficient, and whereas the Act passed at the present session which requires the County Commissioners to make a full and correct statement and have the same published, will require the said clerk to perform additional duties, therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 37 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," as amended and re-enacted by Chapter 475 of the Acts of 1890 and said Section was repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act passed at January session, 1901, Chapter 540, and said Section was repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act passed at January session, 1906, Chapter 21, be and the same hereby repealed and re-enacted so as to read as follows: That at the General Election of County officers of Garrett County to be held in said County November, 1917, and every four years thereafter a Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners shall be elected by the qualified voters of said County who shall hold office for the term of four years from the time of his election and qualification, and his successor is elected and qualified and shall be subject to removal from said office for any willful neglect of duty or misbehavior in office, and any removal, said clerk shall be paid for his services the sum of ($8) twelve hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments of ($66.67) one hundred dollars at the expiration of each and every month by the treasurer of Garrett County from the funds of said County, and the said clerk shall have full power to administer an oath or affirmation to any and all persons who are to be examined as a witness in any matter before the County Commissioners; and touching or relating to any account bill or other matter to be filed in the office of said County Commissioners, the salary of said clerk shall be full compensation for all services required of said Clerk who shall keep the office of County Commissioners open from nine o'clock in the forenoon until four o'clock in the afternoon and who shall attend therein for the transaction of business on every day of the week except Sunday and legal holidays.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect on the first day of July, 1920.

CHAPTER 105.

AN ACT to add a new section to Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland, title "Garrett County," sub-title "Wild Animals," said section to be known as Section 228 of said Article, and to repeal and re-enact with amendments Sections 229 and 230 of said Article, by providing a bounty for killing certain wild animals.

Section 1. Be it enacted, by the General Assembly of Maryland, That a new section be added to Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland, title "Garrett County," sub-title "Wild Animals," said section to be known as Section 228 of said Article, and to repeal and re-enact with amendments Sections 229 and 230 of said Article 12, to read as follows:

228. Any citizen of the State of Maryland who shall kill or destroy any wild cat or fox within the limits of Garrett county, shall be entitled to the following allowance or bounty, viz.: For each wild cat, the sum of two dollars; for each fox, the sum of one dollar.

229. To obtain such allowance it shall be necessary for the person killing such animal to produce the head, skin or scalp of the same before some justice of the peace for said county, and at the same time make oath that the animal was taken and killed within the limits of said Garrett county, within sixty days before the production of the head, skin or scalp before the justice, the said justice shall thereupon give the person producing the same a certificate that such head, skin or scalp was produced before him, wherein he shall set forth the above-mentioned oath; and it shall also be the duty of the justice to mark any such head, skin or scalp by cutting holes through the ear, to prevent any second allowance for the same.

Upon presentation of the above-mentioned certificate to the Treasurer of said county, the said Treasurer shall pay the allowance or bounty as provided in Section 228 of this Article.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1920.

Approved April 16, 1920.

CHAPTER 15.

AN ACT to compel the Board of County Commissioners and the Board of School Commissioners of Garrett County in the State of Maryland to publish an itemized statement of all receipts and expenditures of their respective Boards and Offices at the end of each fiscal year, sworn to by the President of their respective Boards and providing penalties for the violation of the same.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County and the Board of School Commissioners, respectively, of Garrett County, in said State, are hereby compelled to publish an itemized statement of all receipts from all sources and the expenditures of their respective Boards sworn to by the President of the said respective Boards at the end of each and every fiscal year; said sworn statements to be published in two newspapers published in Garrett County.

Section 2. Violation of this Act on the part of any of the aforesaid officials shall render them liable in a penalty of not less than fifty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars.

Section 3. All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Approved March 5, 1920.

CHAPTER 9.

AN ACT to establish fences in Garrett County, Maryland, and to compel land owners where two or more tracts join, to build said fences.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That where two or more persons own a tract of land in Garrett County, Maryland, adjoining each other, each land owner shall be required to build one-half of the fence between him and his neighbor who requested to do so by the person whose land he further encloses.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That any owner of improved land in Garrett County, Maryland, desirous to build line fence between him and his neighbor, he shall notify his neighbor in writing in the presence of one witness, and if the person so notified shall refuse or neglect to build one-half of such line fence within 60 days from the date of such notice, the other party may build all of the fence and charge one-half of the cost thereof to the person or persons owning the adjoining land, and the amount may be collected in the same way and manner as other debts.

Section 3. And be it further enacted, That where two or more persons own land in Garrett County, Maryland, and there is a line fence needed, if they mutually agree to build such a line fence, they may build any kind of a fence that they desire, and if one-half of such line fence is built and one-half charged to the adjoining land owner, it shall be either a standard woven-wire fence not less than four feet high, or a post and rail fence three feet high with two barbed wires above the woven wire, or a rail fence not less than four feet high.

Section 4. And be it further enacted, That nothing in this Act shall apply to unimproved or timber land.

Section 5. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect from the first day of June, 1920.

Approved March 2, 1920.

CHAPTER 102.

AN ACT to empower and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett County to borrow money on the credit of said county for the purpose of erecting suitable public school buildings in the county of Garrett and heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and to purchase or condemn real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county, and to issue bonds for the payment of said money, and to levy taxes upon the assessable property of said county to redeem such bonds and to pay the interest thereon, to refer said question to the voters of Garrett County.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of erecting public school buildings in the county of Garrett and for the purpose of heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and for the purpose of purchasing or condemning real estate for the erection of the same and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county, the County Commissioners for Garrett County, be and they are hereby authorized, empowered and directed to borrow money on the credit of said county to an amount, not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars, and to issue coupon bonds therefor, the said bonds to be in the sum of one thousand dollars each, and to be signed by the president of the Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County, and countersigned by the Clerk of said County, and the said bonds shall be dated the first day of July, 1920, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and the first day of July in each and every year until the maturity thereof, and the said bonds shall mature as follows: Ten thousand dollars thereof on July 1, 1925, and annually thereafter the sum of ten thousand dollars in every year until all of said bonds shall have matured.

Section 2. And be it enacted, That said bonds shall have written thereon them a distinct reference to the act directing the issue of the same, and that said bonds when issued shall be exempt from municipal and county taxation in Garrett County, and they shall be sold after due advertisement by the County Commissioners to the highest bidder or bidders, provided,

How Many Miles Will Your Dollar Buy

WHAT is the average life of a truck—and who guarantees it?

Facts available here in town show there are as many as thirty different makes of trucks sold in this vicinity.

Trucks whose makers, for the most part, have been in business but 2, 3 or 4 years.

Very few 5 or 6.

Packards may not be the only good trucks—but when you buy a Packard you are getting an experience—not guessing about a future.

Records of 10 years' continuous service, or mileage of 100,000—150,000 and even more, are not uncommon among Packards.

Any business man experi-

Baltimore, May 29, 1920. Packard Motor Car Co. of Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: You may be interested in knowing the conditions under which our two-ton Packard has operated since purchasing same in August, 1917.

Our truck is used in the country over bad road conditions with an average load of approximately three tons. In view of this constant overload, this truck is giving us exceptionally good service, and we are to assure you of our entire satisfaction.

To this writing we have driven it some 4000 miles, and the maintenance has been at not over 12.5 cents per mile. We consider this very low, considering the conditions mentioned above.

Yours very truly, THE WILL MAR COMPANY, MARK N. DAVIS.

encad with Packards will tell you—Truck economy is not alone a matter of the dollar and cents saving made the first

HIS biggest economy lies in the unusual length of Packard service—his truck's ability to operate for 10 years or more, or to keep out of the repair shop even after 100,000 miles of severe running.

It will more than pay to investigate Packard long life and economy of operation.

If you ask it, a specially trained transportation engineer will call and discuss truck transportation as related to your particular business. This will incur no obligation on your part.

however, that none of said bonds shall be sold at less than par value.

Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That the said County Commissioners for Garrett County shall levy annually upon the assessable property of said county a tax sufficient to pay the interest upon said bonds and in the year 1925 they shall levy the sum of ten thousand dollars to meet the first maturing bonds issued, and annually thereafter the said County Commissioners shall levy upon the assessable property of said county the sum of ten thousand dollars for the payment of such bonds as annually mature until the maturity of the last bond by this Act authorized to be issued.

Sec. 3. And be it enacted, That the clerk of the County Commissioners of Garrett County shall record the said bonds when issued, and shall deliver to whom the same were sold, what price was obtained therefor, the serial number thereof and shall keep a record upon the books of said County of the amount of money they will require for the purpose aforesaid, the said Board of County Commissioners previously in written form having agreed to the same.

Sec. 4. And be it enacted, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County shall when notified by the County Board of Education of said county that they desire to avail themselves of the provisions of this act and of the amount of money they will require for the purpose aforesaid, the said Board of County Commissioners previously in written form having agreed to the same, to purchase or condemn real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county, and to issue bonds for the payment of said money, and to levy taxes upon the assessable property of said county to redeem such bonds and to pay the interest thereon, to refer said question to the voters of Garrett County.

Out of the storm and stress at Chicago has come a play-form worthy of the traditions, the performance and the promises of the Republican party. Not without its own merits—and what platform ever was wholly free of them?—it is nevertheless a strong, able document.

The country newspaper office, with its odor of printer's ink and the constant call of cold type, where the editor is required to be reporter, editor, business manager, publisher, to look after subscriptions and see to ads and collections not to mention giving attention as a leading citizen to the affairs of his community, is one of America's greatest universities. Out of this university have come many of America's greatest men. Senator Harding has gone through the ordeal of this great school with conspicuous success.

McCOMBS STRIKES AT PRESIDENT
Hon. William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee in 1912 and until 1916, gives the Wilson organization the worst blow yet.

Here is some of his shrapnel: "They tell me that America has pledged its word to Europe and that this word must be redeemed in the process of a national campaign. In my belief America has pledged itself to nothing." Mr. McCombs hits the President a body blow and tells the truth. America has pledged itself to nothing.

"One individual, speaking as such, permitted Europe to believe that he spoke for a nation, for in the last analysis, he was nothing more than a self-appointed emissary." One individual? Who is he? President Wilson, the self-appointed emissary who undertook to commit the United States in advance to HIS policy. "Permitted Europe to believe," says Mr. McCombs. Is not that deception?

"America is asked to validate a signature affixed abroad." The signature was without authority, without the consent of two-thirds of the Senate. "In this particular instance there has been no concurrence," says Mr. McCombs.

"We do not want to commit ourselves to the League of Nations as it was brought back from Europe." In this Mr. McCombs agrees with the senators who refused to ratify under orders from the White House.

"It is an international issue, but it is a highly debatable question as to what importance it should have in a national campaign." True, yet Mr. Wilson has forced it into the campaign.

"In this moment (the outbreak of the war) the chief executive again repeated that he was the leader of his party, a conception heretofore never entertained by an American. As well might the Chief Justice of the United States, Mr. White, a Democrat, have made the same proclamation. So might the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Champ Clark. So might the Vice President, Mr. Marshall. Come to think of it, this is true. President Wilson assumes everything in and out of his party. Mr. McCombs lifts the lid—in fact rips it off.

"In such a manner for the first time in the history of this country, autocracy came into being. . . . But this unhappy hour has passed and at San Francisco we again returned to true Democracy regardless of place holders and pot-hunters. We have finished with fine phrases. This country is determined to act in accordance with its unflinching sense of justice. The indignities of autocracy will never again be accepted by this nation."

No President, no public man in any party has received such a severe indictment as this from a member of his own party associates. It is the worst yet for the Wilson organization—the Wilson regime.

ODE TO JULY.

Backward, turn backward, O time in thy flight,
Give me July again, just for tonight;
Softest the ground where the Frost King has lain,
Oh, let me hear one mosquito again!
I am so weary of snow-drifts and ice,
Weary of paying the coal trust its price;
Weary, so weary of frost-bitten pie,
Give me a slice of the Fourth of July!

Backward, swing backward, O season of snow,
Mercury fifteen or twenty below—
Turn on the heat of the tropical zone,
Send me until I am cooked to the bone.

I am so tired of freezing my nose,
Weary of chilblains and corns on my toes,
I'll end it before I'm another day old,
I'll buy a Caloric and banish the cold!

THE CHURCH BELLS.
Oh, holy Sabbath bells,
Ye have a pleasant voice!
Throughout all the land your music swells,
And men with one commandment tell
To rest and to rejoice.

As thirty travelers sing
Through desert paths that pass,
To hear the welcome waters spring
And see beyond the spray they pass
Tall trees and waving grass.

No we rejoice to know
Your melody begun.
For when our paths are parched
Ye tell us where green pastures glow
And living waters run.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

OF VALUABLE

Real Estate

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, bearing date June 21st, 1920, and passed in a cause in which Charles A. Ashby et al. are plaintiffs, and Paul Ashby et al. are defendants, the undersigned was appointed trustee to make sale of the real estate in the proceedings in said cause mentioned, and I hereby give notice that on SATURDAY, THE 24th DAY OF JULY, 1920, at 2 o'clock P. M. in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer for sale at public auction all those parcels of land lying in Garrett County aforesaid, as follows:

Part of a tract of land called "BANK TERRITORY," containing 204.85-100 Acres. This land lies on the east face of Backbone Mountain, about three miles south of Deer Park, is unimproved but is susceptible of being converted into a good farm.

The following lots of the subdivision of Bradley's Farm, in the suburbs of Oakland, Maryland, viz:

Lot 56, containing 3/4ths of an acre; Lot 57, containing 1/2 an acre; Lot 58, containing 3/4ths of an acre. All these lots are fenced and in cultivation and will make desirable building lots.

A one-half undivided interest in Military Lots 1219 and 1232, containing 1/2 Acres. These Military Lots are unimproved and are located on Snaggy Mountain.

TERMS OF SALE.—As prescribed by the decree, Cash on day of sale. Conveyancing cost of purchaser.

CHARLES A. ASHBY, Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

OF VALUABLE

Real Estate

INCLUDING LAND WITH COAL DEPOSITS AND WOODLAND IN GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of an order of the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland, dated the seventh day of May, 1919, and passed in a cause entitled William Walker et al. vs. Thomas Keating Stuart, Trustee, being case No. 204 on the Equity Docket B of said Court, the undersigned Trustee will offer at public sale to the highest bidders on SATURDAY, THE 10th DAY OF JULY, 1920, at 11:00 o'clock A. M., at the Court House of Garrett County, in the town of Oakland, Maryland, the following tracts of land and interests therein:

(1) "BANK TERRITORY," containing 1.85 ACRES of Land, more or less.

(2) MILITARY LOTS NOS. 1450, 1451 and 1452, being part of "MEDALPADIA," containing 150 ACRES of Land, more or less.

(3) One-half interest in "KNICKERBOCKER," the whole of which said tract contains 314 Acres of Land, more or less, which has been ordered sold by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in the case of Clapham, Pennington, et al., plaintiffs, vs. Thomas K. Stuart, Trustee, being No. 2001 on the Equity Docket of said Court.

The tract known as "BANK TERRITORY" is located in the Thirtieth Election District of Garrett County, near Blaine, on the Western Maryland Railroad, and has on it seams of coal known as the "Upper Freepoint" and "Lower Freepoint" seams.

For description of "Bank Territory" see deed from Richard S. McCulloch to Thomas K. Stuart, Trustee, recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County in Liber E. Z. T. No. 24, folio 448, etc. See also Liber E. Z. T. No. 24, folio 441, etc.

The MILITARY LOTS NOS. 1450, 1451 and 1452 and a part of a tract of woodland called "MEDALPADIA," are located in the Sixth District of Garrett County, about six miles south of Friendsville, near the West Virginia line.

The tract called "KNICKERBOCKER" is woodland, and is located in the Sixth District of Garrett County, about eight miles north of Swanton, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, for description of Military Lots "Knickerbucker," see deed of Trust from James W. McCulloch to Charles W. Keim, recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County in Liber W. H. T. No. 9, folio 483, etc.

TERMS OF SALE.—As prescribed by the said order, all cash except as to "Bank Territory," which shall be one-third cash, one-third in six months and one-third in twelve months, or all cash, at the option of the purchasers, the credit portions to bear interest at 6 per cent. per annum, and to be secured to the satisfaction of the Trustee.

Said three tracts as above described will be offered separately. All taxes to be adjusted to day of sale; a deposit of $250.00 on the "BANK TERRITORY" tract, $50.00 on the Military Lots tract, and $50.00 on the "KNICKERBOCKER" tract will be required of the purchasers at the time and place of sale.

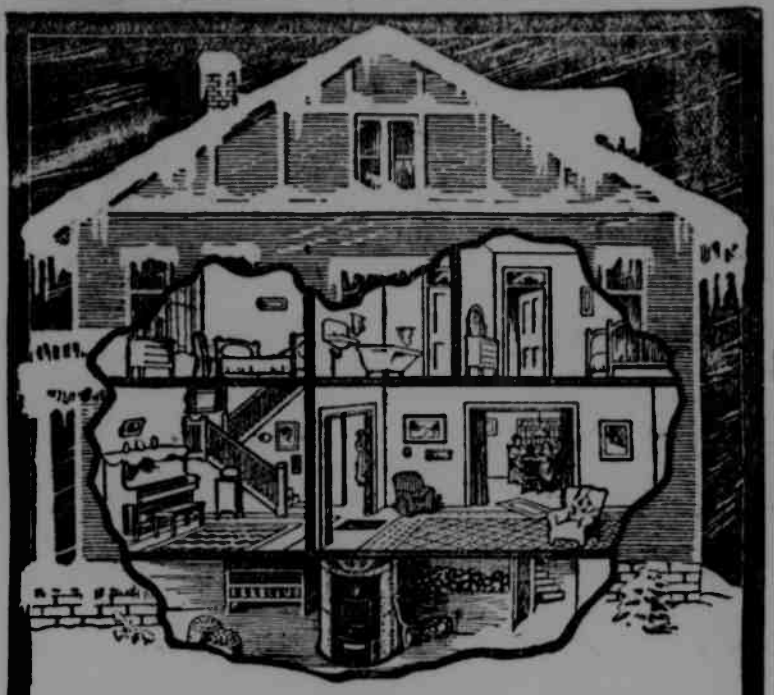

The above property is being sold to close out an estate in Court, and an opportunity is presented to persons interested.

For further information, apply to the undersigned,
WALTER H. BUCK, Trustee,
609-11 Union Trust Building,
BALTIMORE, MD.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received until Thursday, July 15th, 1920, for the construction of a thirty-two foot slab concrete bridge spanning the spill at the Mountain Lake Park dam in Garrett County. Plans and specifications of said proposed concrete bridge may be seen at the office of the Board of County Commissioners at the Court House in Oakland, Md.

By Order of the County Commissioners of Garrett County, Md.

Heat ALL Your House THROUGH ONE REGISTER

Yes, it's just as possible in your home as it has been in fifty thousand others. You, too, may have every room comfortable with balmy healthful heat, reaching every corner by Nature's method of circulation—and all through only one register! It isn't necessary to clutter up your house with pipes, overheat your cellar and incur big bills—not when you can get the

It can be set up in a day, without inconvenience to you, and will make your home so comfortable in the severest winter weather you will be well repaid.

Your house will be uniformly warm; your cellar will be just right for the storage of fruits and vegetables. Your fuel bill will be less than with stoves that heat only a part of your house.

HERE ARE THE REASONS
The Caloric is the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace—the result of the study of competent engineers to solve the heating problem in the most satisfactory way. That they have succeeded is proved by the fact that the number of Caloric furnaces sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction is three times greater than any other pipeless furnace.

The cause of this satisfaction lies in the patented and exclusive principle that distinguishes the Caloric from all others. It is not a pipe furnace provided with an extra casing, but a complete revolution in furnace building designed exclusively for pipeless heating.

Come In And See Us
We will show you what these principles are, and you will then see what Caloric quality means, why it always succeeds and why cautious capitalists accompany the same results. Then you will be in no danger of buying an inferior article, with all its disappointment in later months. Get a copy of the book "Process," which tells the facts about pipeless heating. If you can't come in, write for it.

EXAMINER'S NOTICE.
Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, appointed by the County Commissioners of Garrett County, to view the lands through which a proposed new public county road shall run, said road beginning at the town of Vinces, Garrett County, Maryland, and running thence to intersect with the road leading from Kittermill to Wilson Store near what is known as the old house of the late W. H. MILLER, and to determine whether the public convenience requires the said road and if so, to locate the same and perform their duty in the premises.

Therefore giving notice to all persons who may have any claim or interest in the said lands, to appear at the public hearing to be held on the 10th day of July, 1920, at 11:00 o'clock A. M., at the Court House of Garrett County, Maryland, to be held in the town of Oakland, Md., and to be heard by the County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.
Aden C. Wilt and Guelia Hunter.

Daniel Wilt, John Wilt, Ruth Newelrodt, Maude Newelrodt, Richard Newelrodt, Elsie C. Hunter, Ruby E. Hunter, Boyd Beverage, Carl E. Hunter, Rena Florence Lange, Alma Rubane Lange and Michael Lange, all of Garrett County, Maryland.

No. 2009 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this order is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in Garrett County, Maryland, the property of Sarah E. Wilt, late of Garrett County, deceased.

That the said Sarah E. Wilt, his wife, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, were in their lifetime and at the time of her death, jointly and severally, tenants by the entirety of a tract of land situated in Garrett County, known as a part of a tract of land called "Republie," containing the quantity of one hundred acres, more or less, and described in a deed therefor from Floyd Buckworth to the said Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, dated March 6, 1886, and duly recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 11, folio 252, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy of which deed is filed in this proceeding.

That while so seized and possessed of said real estate, the said Thornton Wilt departed this life, intestate, in the month of March, 1917, leaving the following children and heirs at law, to-wit: Aden C. Wilt, of Garrett County; Daniel Wilt, of Elkins, W. Va.; Hunter, widow of John Hunter, deceased, of Asheville, N. C.; Ruth Newelrodt, Maude Newelrodt, infant children, and Richard Newelrodt, surviving husband of the said Amanda Hunter Long, the last known residing in the State of West Virginia.

That the said property is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein, and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

That it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of the said parties and estate of said deceased, that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof, so far as the interests of said infants are concerned, be invested in some productive fund for their benefit.

It is therefore, this 26th day of June, 1920, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, to once in each of four successive weeks before the 31st day of July, 1920, give notice to all persons who may have any claim or interest in the said land, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of August, 1920, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest. Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, had one of the largest classes of initiates in the history of the lodge on last Friday night at the regular session of the lodge when twenty candidates were given the rank of Page, the degree being conferred upon the members of the class in a very able and commendable manner by the team selected to do the work. After the initiation refreshments were served. The lodge is indebted to Bro. Queer for the strawberries which entered largely into the menu of the evening. If you failed to attend last Friday evening's session of the lodge you missed a splendid treat.

On next Friday evening the rank of Esquire will be conferred upon a class of twenty pages.

At this session of the lodge Bro. H. L. Stemple will see to it that you are supplied with liquid refreshments and it is the request of your Chancellor Commander that as many as possible be present.

Two applications for membership were received at the last session of the lodge and the prospects are that several more will be filed at the session to be held Friday evening of the present week.

Don't fail to keep in mind the Labor Day picnic which will be held Monday, September 6th, by this lodge. It is for a good cause and one that is of the utmost importance to Garrett Lodge and its members. Three lands have been engaged for this day, and the program will consist of a parade at 10 a. m., and other features, including dancing, which promises to make this one of the best picnics ever held in or near Oakland. Your cooperation and assistance is necessary. Bro. J. W. Whorton, who is chairman of the committee, will be glad for the help of every member of Garrett Lodge.

The tickets for the automobile contest will be out this week. The machine is a new Overland purchased from the Martin Garage.

We need your assistance on Friday night and we want every member of the lodge to be present.

SEVERAL OF THE MANY TESTIMONIES, DIRECTED TO A. D. NAYLOR & CO., OAKLAND, MD., CONCERNING THE FAMOUS CALORIC PIPELESS FURNACE.

"Best Investment I Ever Made." Oakland, Md., Jan. 9, 1918.

We had a patent Caloric Pipeless Furnace placed in our home last fall. It certainly keeps our house nice and warm. We have a nine-room house besides a large hall. We have had very cold weather here, the thermometer being 32 degrees below zero, but the patent Caloric Pipeless Furnace keeps our whole house heated completely.

I would not be without it for any price, and consider it one of the best investments that I ever made. For drying clothes the register is fine, and there are no ashes or dust in the house.

I would not wish for anything better than the Caloric Furnace.

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I went the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. Death would have been a welcome relief. For six months I was in bed and never expected to leave it alive. Connection Is Found Between Mental Irregularities and Blood Disturbances—Rapid Strides in Study of Mental Deficiency.

New York.—The elimination of 90 per cent of the criminality in the United States by proper medical attention given to children is the prediction of Dr. Max G. Schliapp, of this city, expert and specialist in mental deficiency cases and professor of neuropathology at the Post-Graduate hospital.

In an article published in the current issue of the Medical Record, Dr. Schliapp goes into detail to show that in most cases of crime the person involved is not responsible for his acts and moreover, abhors the doing of the very things that have caused him to be sent to the state institutions of punishment and reform.

Briefly, Doctor Schliapp declares, there has been discovered a direct connection between mental irregularities and physical disturbances caused by chemical impurities in the blood, and it also has been found that these cases respond to counter-stimulations the principles of which are in certain chemicals and the extracts of animal glands.

"New tests are being tried out constantly," he told a reporter from the New York Tribune, "but it is necessary to conduct exhaustive research before each defective and criminal type can be identified and the correct treatment established."

New Field Opened.
He made it plain that he did not claim a cure-all for mental deficiency or criminality has been found, but his object was rather to state certain observations and conclusions based on the examination of 1,000 cases which open a new field of human abnormalities.

"Enough has been accomplished in the clearing house for mental deficiencies at the Post-Graduate hospital," he declared, "to warrant high hopes that the way has been pointed by which society can with assurance attack in a humane and common sense manner the greatest of its problems—criminality."

It is to the end that hospitals may be substituted for prisons and treatment for punishment in the cases of these unfortunate who are not responsible for their acts and who cannot help themselves that this work has been conducted for the last eight years by Doctor Schliapp.

In his article Doctor Schliapp says, in part:

"We still judge criminals and delinquents by their acts alone and to a large extent dispose of them legally on this basis. The general public, and even the courts, believe that a person of normal intellect can control his actions, and consequently that the actions of any person of normal intellect are premeditated, or at least controlled completely by the intellectual mental makeup, and that therefore the person is responsible."

"In the light of well established facts, known to psychiatrists for the last half century, this method of placing responsibility for criminal acts is basically erroneous and should be revised. We must learn to comprehend abnormal classes hitherto unrecognized, by society as subjects for study, control or aid."

"There is no question of altruism involved; a proper understanding and attitude toward these people who have no innate power of adjustment to their environment will make every home and family more nearly safe."

"You are acquainted—perhaps too well—with the boy who, surrounded by an affectionate family in a home of ease, runs away repeatedly, undergoes unnecessary hardships, and when brought back can never give any explanation for his acts except that he 'just wanted to get away.'"

Juvenile Delinquency.
"You doubtless also have come into contact with those other well known types of juvenile delinquency—children who lie and practice petty thievery from their earliest years, lie, forge checks and generally involve their families in serious situations and in whose genealogical history there is no discernible trace of family propensity for similar actions."

"In another class are the thousands of feeble-minded persons who are commonly called an aversion to work, who form an almost alien stratum of society, useless to themselves, and liable at any time to become a menace to the communities through which they pass."

"Still another class is composed of those unfortunate persons who, because of abnormal emotional trends or phobias are forced to commit acts over which they have no intellectual control."

How Brain Is Regulated.
"The first thing to be understood about these people is the fact that the pathological criminal or neurotic is unable to adjust himself normally to his environment for the most important reason that the motivating activities of his brain are seriously disturbed."

"To understand such disturbances it is first necessary to know that the motivating activities of the brain are regulated entirely by two antecedent processes—the intellectual and the emotional, or affective activities. If these two processes are well balanced, the motivating center will be stimulated in such a way as to make the individual adjust himself normally to his environment. Should this balance between the intellectual and the emotional processes be seriously disturbed, however, then it will be impossible for the individual to adjust himself normally and he will perpetrate acts which often are illegal and always abnormal."

ness; but at the same time it does not equally affect the nerve cells of the respiratory and circulatory centers, thus permitting those centers to respond to incoming impulses and allowing the person to live.

Blood Disturbance a Factor.
"So we see that a chemical disturbance in the blood may affect the functional activity of one or more centers of the brain, making them either more unstable, or stable. This brings us to consideration of the effect of such disturbances upon our actions."

"Perceptions and conceptions, formed in the intellectual side of the brain, send impulses to the emotional side. If these impulses pass the threshold of functional activity in the emotional centers, wave of feeling, or emotion, results. If, through a chemical disturbance of the blood, the threshold of functional activity in the emotional centers is lowered, the wave of feeling may be so strong as to wipe out entirely all restraining influences coming from the intellectual side of the brain, and make the emotional the motivating impulse in the person's mental makeup."

"In persons of normal emotional makeup, unreasonable reactions may be prevented through inhibitions coming from the intellectual side of the brain. In persons of unstable emotional makeup, intellectual inhibitions may be felt, but if the wave of feeling is strong enough the person may not even be conscious of the inhibition. The wave of feeling simply wipes out the mental attributes of judgment, of right, and of thought of consequences and precipitates the impulsively inspired action."

"It is apparent that, if through tests we can find a chemical disturbance in the blood of persons of obvious unstable emotional makeup we can lay hands on the seat of the disturbance in most cases and help them. In many of these cases examined at the Post-Graduate hospital chemical disturbance was found, and in more than half of these cases the cause was traced directly to certain of the internal secretory glands."

"This has been accomplished through only a few blood tests which have been evolved. New tests are being worked on constantly, and the hope is to narrow the field until we can lay a finger on the seat of all emotional disturbances."

"The large number of cases examined have given sufficient data to show a connection between emotional types and a disturbance of definite glands, and the attempt now is to establish a definite cause for each criminal type."

"Necessarily the treatment varies in every case. It consists in most cases in raising the threshold of functional activity by chemical substances which prevent excessive stimulation of the internal secretory glands and by neutralizing the effects of certain excessive secretions by introducing counterbalancing substances."

Key Has Been Found.
"The principles of the counterbalancing substance are found in animal glands, but these for the most part also remain to be determined with any degree of precision."

"Where the disturbance is of thyroid origin, methods have been fairly well worked out, and there has been some success with suprarenal unbalances, but the pituitary and other glands have not yet revealed their secrets."

"Based on the rapid strides made since this particular study was begun in 1912, there seems to be no limit to the possibilities which the research of the next few years may open. The key may be safely said to have been found and the lock turned; it remains to discover what lies beyond in definite methods of diagnosis and treatment."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

THE POLICE HORSES.

"It's a hard job," said the police horse, named Jack, to the police horse, named Bill, "but all the same I like it."

"To you mean our job?" asked Bill.

"That I do," said Jack.

"What do you mean by saying, 'That I do'?" asked Bill.

"I mean yes," said Jack, "but I thought I would say it in a fine way."

"Oh, I see," said Bill, "only it was such a fine way that I didn't quite understand it. Perhaps I am not so bright as I should be."

"Nonsense," said Jack. "I just talk sometimes to hear myself talk. I believe all of us do at times, even the best of us."

"Now, now," said Bill, "you are only trying to make me feel less stupid. You are very modest, really. You don't talk to hear yourself talk. If there ever was a modest horse, you're one."

"Well, I have nothing to be proud of," said Jack.

"Nonsense, you have. Think of the lives you've saved."

"Well, haven't you saved lives, too?" asked Jack.

"Well, who wouldn't save a life when he could? It's nothing so fine when I've done it, because it has just come my way. I mean the opportunity has just come my way when I save a life. I just couldn't help but do it. When you've saved lives you've gone out of your way to do so."

"So have you," said Jack, "and you are a very modest horse."

"Well," said Bill, "I think it is so foolish to be conceited. And I'll tell you something else, Jack," continued Bill.

"Tray, continue," said Jack.

"I've discovered that those creatures who were conceived had very little to be conceited about. So I don't want to be conceited for if I were conceited I would be very foolish."

"I would think how absurd I was. I would think that I had nothing to be conceited about compared to lots and lots of people who save many more lives than I do. Take the firemen, for example. They're always saving lives, but they don't go around boasting about it."

"Yes, I've not much use for a conceited person. A conceited person is like a bossy person—both of them want to be the whole show. And no one creature could be the whole show. No one creature at all, to my mind."

"If any creature were the whole show just think what a world it would be, everyone hob-nobbing and bowing to one person and not getting anything out of life at all."

"That's so," agreed Bill.

"But," he continued after a moment, "you were saying how much you liked your job."

"Oh, yes," said Jack. "It is so nice to be of help and to do one's part. Now, I am supposed to keep the crowds back at parades—those who crowd the streets and would get into a terrible crush and jam if we didn't keep or."

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Frezzone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Frezzone" costs little at any drug store, apply a few drops upon the corn or callous. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callous right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

Another Guess at Sun's Age.
A new calculation of the age of the sun was made recently by M. Perout, who read a paper on the subject before the French Academy of Sciences. There is a version in a nutshell: On the principle that the mean temperature of a star remains approximately equal to the surface temperature it had when first formed, and giving the sun an internal temperature of 12,000 degrees Centigrade, or double that of its surface, and calculating its mass to be 2 by 10,30 kilograms, the sun cannot have been formed more than between 2,000,000 and 6,000,000 years ago. A star with a surface temperature of 600,000 degrees Centigrade would have been formed from a nebula in 300 days and one with 6,000,000,000 degrees in seven hours.

WATER WITH ASPIRIN

Bayer Company, who Introduced Aspirin in 1900, give proper directions.

The Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin, tell in their careful directions in each package of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" that to get best results one or two glasses of water should be drunk after taking tablets.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Then you are getting the genuine, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetate of Salicylic Acid.

Sensitive Underworldings.

"John," said the nervous woman, "I think there is a burglar in the house."

"Well, he won't find a thing of value."

"That's what frightens me. The fact may irritate him and cause him to make himself especially disagreeable."

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder to do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists, and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

The Simplicity of a MAXWELL is Due to Special Steels

A Maxwell is a simple car. Its engine, axles, clutch, transmission and gears are the utmost in simplicity, which is the goal of scientific engineering.

Special steels have made this possible. They are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, the result of thousands of tests and years of analysis.

These steels give a Maxwell the remarkable combination of extra strength and lightness in weight.

In this way complicated construction has been avoided. Simple design has naturally followed and to this simplicity rare strength has been added by the use of these special steels.

Strains, twists, thrusts, shocks and blows are protected against in many other cars by reinforcements, extra weight in metals used, and a design that obviously is anything but simple.

In a Maxwell this simplicity has made the car easier to build, and it therefore is better built, easier to drive, and easier to care for.

That this should win friends for Maxwell is almost too obvious to call attention to.

Nearly 400,000 persons now drive a Maxwell, which is a very definite endorsement.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, JULY 4.

David in Camp and Court. 1 Sam. 17:1-18:9.

David behaved himself wisely in all his way; and Jehovah was with him. 1 Sam. 18:14.

THE FRUITFUL UNFRUITFUL YEARS.

The virtue of a vision is the value that follows it. Something happened to David that day upon which his hair glistened with the anointing of Samuel that is not in the record. Dreams began to play about the head of youth and the wonder of the call thrilled him. The events of the year are almost as empty as the tiny peach shoot during the time before bearing. But these are the most fruitful of its life for if there is failure here there is never a crop. The day of fruitage reveals the activity of the hidden days. So it was with David. Philistia took advantage of Saul's mania and their own strength to invade Judah. But the Israelite King was not sleeping and men rallied to his standard so that along the Wady west of Bethlehem two forces faced each other across the trench with its trickling stream at the bottom. Neither dared the open assault so Philistia chose to trick them into rashness by the boasting taunts of Goliath for there was no sincerity in the proposal to decide the struggle by single combat. The offer became a scrap of paper when their champion perished. Neither Saul nor Jonathan could accept for their men must have followed and that would have been to give precisely the advantage of position sought by the enemy. How they chafed under the sting of his winged words may be imagined. Yet they held Israel steady and there was no attempt to play anything but fairly stalking him from ambush as doubtless some wished to do. But it is a pitiable sight to see no man in all the ranks who would dare the game of battle. Conscientious objectors seem to have been in the majority. Yet for honest Israel to fight and lose was to cast aside under the rule of Saul and that was not lightly to be thought of as a single fighter took up the struggle so they chafed and delayed hoping for some opening in their favor. The light that beat upon them reveals David's hidden years that had so trained him, developing hand, brain, tongue and spirit, that he was able to persuade Saul to make him the holder of the nation's destiny as he undertook the wiping away the stain upon Jehovah's and the nation's honor. Unspoiled by his hopes the same humble tasks were done as cheerily as before and dreams of court or prophetic power made him more eager than ever to do his work well. So his fingers learned to throttle a lion or to coax music from a harp; his hand could caress a lamb or drive a stone in its defense; his lips could voice the Shepherd's psalm or defy the giant; his will obeyed his father's word or steadied his nerves in the face of fear; his carelessness covered every detail and his alertness saw every advantage over either bear or man.

MAKING AN OPPORTUNITY.

When David set out from that Bethlehem farm with some home "cookin'" for the boys no one dreamed it was his day of destiny. Certainly his reception was cool enough by his brothers to damp the ardor of any. But in his own fashion the will that kept his anger in check set itself to get all the facts and then the quick-thinking brain had a plan as daring as that of Joseph when he stood in the presence of Pharaoh. He forced his way into the presence of the democratic King by his insistent using of his tongue. Somebody had something to propose and Saul wanted to see such an one at once. The door tight shut that morning as he left home had been pried off its hinges before night fell and the boy who could make an opportunity out of rebuffs had set his feet upon the stair-way to the throne.

SAVING A SITUATION.

He was to be the champion that should open the battle for Israel and Jehovah. Carrying so much responsibility there should be no lack in his equipment. Saul showed his love for his land again when he deferred his own armor for this stripling who he knew there was success he would be in the thick of the later fighting himself. But success was what he cared for and there should be no failure on his part. David saved the situation by strutting for a minute with the skirts of the big coat-of-mail rapping against his legs in most uncomfortable fashion and was brave enough to be himself instead of a copy of the King. He must be honest in his service if he would serve at all. The man who will hide himself behind the mask of another's method is not worth the finding and the world laughs at his conceit while preparing the crown for the honest struggle.

THE UNDEFEATABLE SPIRIT.

David's real power lay in his spirit. Untrammelled by any royal trappings he took his own weapons and believed Jehovah would give victory to the forces fighting His battles in His world. It was morality against muscle, goodness against bigness, righteousness against weapons. The unseen against the seen. Once more has the battle been staged on Flanders' fields and faith in a cause has endured unspeakable poundings for near four years while faith in force crumbles under three months of lesser blows. Every moral battle the world has seen has repeated this one from the vale of Elah. Brag and bluster lose to reality every time. Losing head and temper Goliath rushed like a mad bull after the swift antagonist, tossed aside every advantage thru his passion at the insult of such opposition and "caught a cooper" in consequence. His fall on his face against the force of the smiting stone shows the headlong speed he was making after his antagonist.

THE CAPTURED SWORD.

David did not leave his task half done but the finish was with the enemy's own sword. Germany with united command and big guns on land and submarines under water defied the world. But it was the same weapon wrested from the stricken hand of force that destroyed the Empire. The saloon played politics with impunity and laughed at morality until the political sword was turned against its old user to its utter defeat. Evil swings a perfectly good weapon that is to be captured and used for good instead of ill. The habit that harmed may have its power turned to its own defeat. The blade of the boss, the gang, the music hall, sport, war or what-not must be taken over for the King and used for Him instead of for selfishness.

HUTTON

Attorney F. A. Thayer and son Mr. Ralph T. Thayer, the latter being the superintendent of the Freeport mines, were visitors in Hutton Saturday of last week.

Among the excursionists to Washington on Sunday from this place were Messrs. Charles Hetrick, Graham E. Johnson, Jerry J. Pendergast and Miss Anna Pendergast. The latter upon arriving at the Capital went to Baltimore by way of the electric railway where they visited relatives for a few hours before returning to Washington whence commenced the journey homeward at six o'clock.

Mr. Norman Porter, of Akron, O., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson at this place.

Mrs. Andrew Salzman and her daughter, Mrs. Coleheim, visited in Oakland a few hours on Saturday.

The tanning company at this place contemplates erecting several new up to date dwelling houses in the near future for the accommodation of the employees of the plant. A large 14-room double house is now in course of construction. Among recent improvements effected is the installation of a steam-saving device that is said to be able to eliminate one-half of the fuel expense connected with the operation of the power plant.

Mr. Martin J. Hughes, of near here, was in Baltimore on business this week, returning to his home Tuesday.

Mrs. William Baker and two little daughters, Lillian and Edna May, of Parsons, West Va., were visitors in this community recently.

ST. ELMO.

BITTINGER

While feeding their chickens last Sunday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hetrick, of this village, discovered a Courier Pigeon; evidently on a cross-country flight. The bird came into the yard to feed with the chickens, and it was noticed to have a small band around each leg, which were supposed to be containers for some message the bird was carrying.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Brenneman, accompanied by Mrs. E. S. Brenneman and little daughter, Blanche, motored to Mt. Lake Park last Sunday to spend the day with Mrs. Brenneman's mother, Mrs. David Miller.

Prof. J. C. Boehm, a former popular teacher of our school, began a protracted meeting at the Bethesda Chapel last Sunday evening and will preach from that pulpit each evening this week.

Misses Lucy Giotfelty and Leona Wiley, and Messrs. Orval Giotfelty and Thomas Wiley, of Akron, O., returned to their homes here on Sunday afternoon and will stay for some time with their parents.

Mr. Frank Green and family, of Meadow Mountain, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp last Sunday.

The new barn on the Chauncey Broadwater farm is now under roof and will soon be completed.

Rev. Clyde Broadwater, and bride, formerly Miss Effie Gnegy, of Milton, O., returned to Mr. Broadwater's home here on Wednesday afternoon of last week, and were speedily treated to a rousing serenade.

Mr. Joseph Buckle and family visited their son, Charles H. Buckle, at Jennings on Sunday.

MARRIED.

Green—Magruder—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Rev. and Mrs. John Green, Savage Mountain, near Lonaconing, Sunday morning, June 27th, when their daughter Flora was married to Mr. Thomas Magruder, of Barton, Md. Miss Elsie Green, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Mr. John Jacobs was best man. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white chiffon. Her veil of tulle fell from a coronet of Duchess lace and was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses. Rev. John Green, father of the bride, and pastor of the church of the Brethren, Mt. Union church, performed the ceremony and Mr. George F. S. Jeffery played the wedding march. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was tendered the couple at the bride's home. Among those present were: O. C. Robeson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weir, William Weir, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Jeffery and family, W. A. Jacobs and family, Walter Weir, Misses Lucille Broadwater, Elsie Cua-ter, Bessie Broadwater and John W. Jackson.

50c. Talking With 50 The Dead

A handsome booklet of 150 pages. The latest and most up-to-date work dealing with the mysterious communications from the Spirit World.

Increasing interest in this subject has been manifested for some years past, but particularly since the World War. A great desire on the part of bereaved parents and friends of the boys who died in camp and "Over There" to know something about their present state is to a large extent responsible for the universal interest in this subject today.

Talking With The Dead

touches every phase of these phenomena. It is both Scientific and Scriptural. Price post paid 50 cents.

Special offer, "Talking With the Dead" will for a limited time be given free with one year's subscription to the Golden Age. Subscription price $1.50 per year. Published every other Wednesday. Deals with all important subjects of the day and their application to the good times coming.

The AMERICAN LEGION

WITH THE POSTS OF THE NATIONAL SERVICE
MEN

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDER, AT NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS

Lemuel Bolles, National Adjutant of the American Legion, Conducting a Staff Meeting of Heads of the Different Divisions in the Office of Franklin D'Olier, National Commander, at National Headquarters, Indianapolis.

NO PATRIOTIC organization in the history of the world has had such remarkable growth as the American Legion, and it is going forward with a speed that indicates a membership of 2,000,000 before the end of the present year. The Grand Army of the Republic, founded following the Civil war, reached its peak in 1900, when the roster showed a half million members. With 4,000,000 in the year preceding the election of Gen. John A. Logan as commander in chief, General Logan succeeded in steadying the heat. The disaffection grew out of reports that men with Civil war records were receiving preferment in appointment to political offices.

To Maj. Benjamin F. Stephenson of Decatur, Ill., belongs the honor of founding the Grand Army of the Republic. In 1890, the year following the close of the Civil war, Major Stephenson called together a handful of veterans at Decatur and established the first post. Only one charter member of the Grand Army still is living, Capt. R. A. Smith of Lake City, Ia.

Major Stephenson, in council with some of his comrades, drafted a secret ritual. It was a worthy, oratorical affair and was revised in later years. The ritual was so potent that it was hard to find printers who would set the type, but Major Stephenson finally rounded up Isaac Coltrin and Joseph Prior, printers who served in the Union army and entitled to know the contents of the ritual when they joined the Grand Army.

Twelve men constituted the first post, and the hall in which they still sit is a hallowed landmark in Decatur. The Grand Army at first was a sort of vigilance committee that sought out persons given to disloyal utterances, and soon had them marked for punishment if they did not desist. The members of the Grand Army demanded a hundred per cent Americanism, just as the American Legion makes it plain that only one flag, Old Glory, will be tolerated in this land of ours. On through the years the Grand Army has stood for this same principle of patriotism, but death has been removing its comrades at a rapid rate and the ranks have diminished until now only a few more than 100,000 remain.

The American Legion was born in France, and it was fitting to have it so, for in Flanders fields repose thousands of American soldiers who died that the principles of American freedom might live. On February 15, 1919, twenty American officers, who had been assembled in Paris to discuss conditions in the American expeditionary forces, met at the Inter-Allied club and there talked of the formation of an after-war organization that would look to the well-being of the men of the service both on land and sea.

The decision was made at this conference to start an after-war organization, while the men were yet in France. Thus they would go back to America with their minds and hearts centered on protecting the principles they had fought for. And they came home to find that the great army of men in American training camps were ready, too. They had not crossed the sea, but they were willing to go and were equally willing to participate in any movement that meant a bigger, stronger America.

The twenty men who met in conference February 15, 1919, in Paris agreed at that time to call a caucus of men representing every branch of war service and the caucus assembled in Paris March 15, continuing for two days.

The men who gathered at that eventful meeting did many important things, including the selection of a home for the new patriotic organization. They called it the American Legion, and under that name it will go down in the patriotic history of the United States.

The caucus also named a committee of fifteen to work in the United States and to plan for a national meeting within a year. This committee came home and a caucus was arranged for at St. Louis, May 8.

The St. Louis meeting was a revelation. There several hundred men who had served their country at home and abroad met and, forgetting both creed and politics, worked to inject the principles of Americanism in one great movement, the American Legion. At this meeting a joint executive committee was formed by men of 34 states with units in the Legion. This committee formulated a basis for permanent organization and agreed that a constitutional convention of the Legion would be held in Minneapolis in November. An organization committee of five was appointed to complete plans for the Minneapolis meeting.

This committee was composed of Henry D. Lindley of Texas, Bennett C. Clark of Missouri, Franklin D'Olier of Pennsylvania, Dr. Richard Derby of New York, and Eric Fisher Wood of Pennsylvania. Mr. Lindley was chosen chairman of the committee and because of their service and his subsequent work as chairman of the Minneapolis convention, the title of first commander of the American Legion was conferred on him. Mr. Wood was named the secretary. One important step taken at the St. Louis meeting was that of asking the congress of the United States for a charter. This request was entrusted to Luke Lea and Thomas W. Miller. The measure was introduced in both houses June 27, last year. It passed the house of representatives August 27 and the senate September 10. President Wilson signed the charter September 16, completing the work of granting a charter, the first ever granted to an organization of the nature of the American Legion. The legislative committee of the Legion also placed before the congress many other important legislative matters, including bills covering land grants for former service men, bills dealing with the question of the deportation of alien slackers and other matters of interest to men of the Legion.

Important steps taken at the St. Louis meeting provided for the opening of national headquarters in New York and for the publication of a weekly periodical that would be of interest to former service men. Plans also were made to have three well-known men of the legion visit different parts of the country to further the interests of the new organization. The men chosen were Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., John P. J. Herbert and John W. Inzer. These made tours of the country to advance the organization of local posts. When the American Legion met in Minneapolis the membership had passed the 750,000 mark, and it was predicted that the million mark would be reached in a few months. There now are more than 8,000 American Legion posts in the United States, Alaska, Cuba and Hawaii.

Franklin D'Olier of Pennsylvania is the new commander of the American Legion. He, with other new officers of the Legion have opened headquarters offices of the Legion in Indianapolis. And Indianapolis and Indiana, feeling a joint pride in the honor paid the state by the American Legion, welcomes them. When they came they heard that Indianapolis was preparing to erect a memorial to her fighting sons that will serve not only as a home for the American Legion, but for other patriotic bodies, including the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish-American war.

CHILD DROWNED IN DEEP CREEK

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzwater Victim of Accident

Last Saturday morning an extremely sad occurrence took place about two and a half miles northwest of Deer Park when Dorothy Leonora, aged nearly six years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzwater, was drowned in Deep Creek, which stream flows through the Fitzwater farm within sight of the home.

From what can be learned from Mr. Fitzwater's neighbors there were no witnesses to the accident except the little son of the latter, who is aged about three years. The child related to his parents how the accident took place by saying that "sister first threw a stone into the water from a bridge which spans the stream and got a board and when she threw it in she fell in too." The child, as soon as he saw his sister disappear beneath the surface ran to the house and told his mother and father, who at once alarmed the neighbors and a search of the stream's bed was made. The body was recovered within half an hour at a point about a hundred feet below the bridge from which she had fallen. Pulverizer methods were immediately used in an effort to restore life, but these were unavailing and the remains were taken to the home and on Monday the funeral was conducted with interment in the Fitzwater burning ground at North Glade.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzwater have been exceedingly unfortunate within the past few months. During the winter after several of their horses had died from a cause unknown, their dwelling house was burned with all its contents. They then sold their farm and just recently purchased the Connaway place where they now reside. In making some repairs to a fence on the farm a short time ago Mr. Fitzwater had his hand and some of his fingers badly mashed. Today the index member of his hand was amputated to prevent blood poisoning as a result of the injury he sustained.

With it all behind him, Mr. Fitzwater shows a brave spirit. He and his wife as well as aged mother have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and neighbors in these their manifold trials.

COUNTY BOYS TO CAMP

Allegany and Garrett County Agricultural Clubs to Assemble.

The boys of the pig, potato and corn clubs of Allegany and Garrett counties are planning a week's camping trip at a point below Cumberland, at Gracie's Station, the camp to start August 16th and to end August 23d. The camp will be known as Camp All-Gar and will be under the supervision of Mr. Lewis, the director of the "Y" in Cumberland, assisted by a trained corps of helpers. State Boys' Club Leader Jenkins, Assistant Boys' Club Leader Chickester, County Agent Towler, of Garrett county; County Agent Moers, of Allegany county; Professor Norton, of the University of Maryland; Assistant Boys' Club Agent Downing, and others, will also be on hand to look after the boys' welfare and help with the agricultural instructions.

It is hoped to make this week a pleasant one and also interesting and instructive. Contests will be held in identifying different trees, shrubs, destructive weeds, etc. There will also probably be a corn and potato judging contest. Plans are under way for the holding of an athletic and aquatic meet between the boys of the two counties if Dr. Timanus of the Public Athletic League of Maryland can make arrangements to attend. Visits will be made to the surrounding farms and orchards where different phases of agriculture can be discussed.

While the capacity of the camp is limited to sixty boys, and probably the whole space will be needed by club members, it is also hoped to have room for some boys who did not have an opportunity to join this year. Farmers' boys under 18 years of age who are not club members and desire to make the trip should communicate with County Agent J. C. Towler, Oakland, Md., at once and ask for full information about the camp.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION CASE

Was Conducted In Oakland Last Saturday by Former Senator Eppler.

Last Saturday former State Senator Eppler, of Cumberland, now a member of the State Industrial Accident Commission, came to Oakland and conducted a hearing in the case of Charles W. Stark against the Trout Coal Company of Vinalex, this county, the hearing consuming practically the entire day.

In September, 1919, Stark was injured by an explosion in the coal mine where he was working and was severely burned about the hands and face. Since then he has been drawing compensation from the company for his injuries, but the company officials, believing that Stark had in large measure recovered and was able to go to work, asked the Commission for a re-hearing of the case to determine the question as to whether or not the payments should be continued. After examining a number of witnesses, a postponement was taken until Friday of this week at which time Mr. Eppler expects to again come to Oakland for the purpose of hearing the testimony of physicians as to Stark's physical condition. Attorney J. C. Renninger represents Mr. Stark and Attorney E. E. Jones represents the coal company in the proceedings before the Commission.

Misses Mary and Florence Flanagan, of Fairmont, spent the week-end as guests of the Misses Falkenstein in Oakland.

COX AND ROOSEVELT NAMED

As The Nominees Of The Democrats At The San Francisco Convention

At the National Democratic Convention held at San Francisco, Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio, was nominated for President, and Frederick D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was named for Vice President.

It required forty ballots to name the Presidential nominee, while Mr. Roosevelt's nomination was made by acclamation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

An Outline of the Program for Meeting to be Held July 17 and 18.

The annual Garrett County Sunday School convention to be held at St. John's Lutheran church in the Cove on Saturday and Sunday, July 17th and 18th, promises to be quite up to the standard set by previous conventions of other years, and to be well worth attending for all Sunday school workers.

The convention will open with a Saturday evening session at which Mr. Frank L. Middleton, of Washington, will likely be the principal speaker. A number of other speakers and workers have been secured for the Sunday sessions, among whom will be Dr. Abner B. Brown, the new State Secretary of the Sunday School Association, and Dr. Ross D. Murphy, president of Blue Ridge College.

Three sessions will be held on Sunday and the convention will close with the Sunday night session. All Sunday school workers in the county are entitled to three delegates in addition to the superintendent, who is also a delegate by virtue of his office. These should be elected at once by the respective schools and the names of those desiring accommodations at the place of the convention should be sent to Mr. Harry Cullick, Accident.

In addition to the regular delegates, all Sunday school workers are invited to attend the convention. It is planned to make the Sunday sessions of the convention the time for a get-together of all Sunday school workers of the county and a large attendance is expected. If the day is pleasant, a basket dinner will be in order so that all may remain about the convention church. Remember the date and the place and be there.

Married.

Miller—Stanton—Miss Ethel M. Stanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Stanton, of Grantsville, and Mr. Fay L. Miller, were married yesterday morning at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. T. R. Smouse, Cumberland, by the Rev. M. L. Enders, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. The groom, a son of Wm. H. Miller, a retired farmer of Grantsville, served two years in the late war in the 29th Division, and since his return has been located at Akron, O., where he is employed by the Goodrich Rubber Company as an inspector. After the ceremony, luncheon was served, and later Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for a visit to Western points. They will reside in Akron. The attendants were Miss Cora Bittinger and Mr. Noah Frickey, of Grantsville.

SLIGHT FIRE MONDAY MORNING

Portion of Roof of the Linville Home Was Burned.

Monday just before noon an alarm of fire was given when the roof of the residence of Mr. Charles H. Linville on Oak street, was discovered burning by a neighbor residing just opposite.

In a few minutes the hose reels and chemical apparatus was upon the scene and after chopping a hole close by the chimney where it comes thru the roof a stream of water was directed upon the blaze and it was soon under control, not, however, until after some water had seeped from the upper floors to the lower landings of the building, doing but slight damage to the furnishings.

The fire evidently was communicated to the roof timbers by reason of a defective chimney. Mr. Linville carried insurance on the property, which fully covers the damages sustained.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

At the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, held on last Friday evening the rank of Esquire was conferred on a class of nineteen candidates, and on next Friday evening the rank of Knight will be conferred on the same number of Esquires.

The committee having charge of the Labor Day picnic requests the cooperation of every member and visiting brother. See Bro. J. W. Whorton, who is chairman of the committee. He will welcome any suggestions made to him.

Come to lodge next Friday night. There will be a mass of business to transact and refreshments will be served. Visiting brethren will find a warm welcome.

Civic Club Notes.

A most delightful tea was given by the Oakland Civic Club at the home of Mrs. James Willison, Tuesday afternoon. Thirty ladies were present. The hostesses were Mrs. B. F. Selby, Mrs. S. F. Hamill, Mrs. Harry White, Mrs. Bernard Gonder, Mrs. G. A. Finley and Miss Estelle Hart.

The regular business meeting of the Club will be held Tuesday, July 27th, in the Civic Club rooms. All members are urged to be present.

Card of Thanks.

I desire to extend my thanks to the Oakland firemen who so promptly responded to the alarm on Monday when my home was burning, and through whose efforts the fire was quenched after doing but approximately $1000 damage to the property.
CHARLES H. LINVILLE.

TIMELY ADVICE TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

In my last I was speaking of our duties. Let me remind you of your duty to your government. It is yours to support it, to defend it even at the sacrifice of life. There must be no shrinking, no playing the part of Bergdoll, who is a traitor, who would enjoy all the advantages of the government, yet would let others support it. There must be obedience to the laws.

We owe a duty to our rulers. We must give them all due moral support and not forget to pray for the powers that be. This is exacted by the Lord Christ as well as by the Apostle Paul. Above all, is our duty to God, and is to fear, honor, obey and serve him. Our duty is founded on Liberty. So says Jules Simon. Men must be free to perform public duties as well as to build up character. Liberty, however, may be used to do evil rather than good. It is founded also on Conscience. Conscience is the religious instinct. When there is strife between the higher and lower nature; between good and evil, it condemns or approves. You can't kill conscience. It is an avenging angel of time. It bids us to what tends to our happiness or forbear doing what makes us unhappy. Confucius taught that conduct is three-fourths of life. Socrates, the Greek philosopher, strove to waken the moral conscience in man. He was born 468 B. C. He was a sculptor, highly educated, a brave soldier, a fearless senator, with high moral courage—a courage that braves death, as well as adverse opinions. He could defy a tyrant as well as a mob. For his courageous act of duty in defying the admirals, who did not recover the bodies of the slain after a battle, he was dismissed from the Senate. He devoted himself to teaching. He stood in the market places, in shops and schools and taught. He tried to draw men from mere speculation about nature, which led them into confusion. He answered the question, "Is life worth living," by bidding them look inward. He insisted on moral conduct as alone guiding men to happiness here and hereafter. He was condemned to death for his principles.

But we have a better guide than reason. We look not in, but out; not down, but up to the great moral Exemplar and Teacher who brought life and immortality to light in the gospel and who wills the happiest of all. The New Testament gives a glorified ideal of a possible human life. Though it may be hard to attain, we feel there is something else we would like to do better than what we ought to do. But duty must be done. "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might." Do your best and you are on the road to improvement, but you will never do your duty until you have surrendered your all to Christ and His service. Be faithful in small duties and you will be in the greater ones. We can follow conscience, and if it is educated in God's word, and walk alone in the path of duty. We can be honest, truthful and virtuous, and diligent even out of respect to ourselves. But we must be faithful to God unto the end. Thus and only thus shall we attain the crown.

A slave was asked by an intending purchaser, "Wilt thou be faithful if I buy thee?" "Yes, whether you buy me or not."

When Whitfield was last in America, Mr. Tennent visited him and dined with him in company with other ministers. Mr. Whitfield spoke of the difficulties of the ministry. All zeal availed but little. He was weary of the burdens of the day, but his consolation was that in a short time he would depart and be with Christ. General assent was given to this with the exception of Mr. Tennent. Mr. Whitfield tapped him on the knee and said, "Do you not rejoice that your time is so near at hand?" "I have no wish about it, no pleasure at all, and if you knew your duty it would be none to you. I have nothing to do with death. My business is to live as long as I can, as well as I can and serve the Master as faithfully as I can until He calls." "But in case death was left to your choice," said Mr. T.

"I have no choice about it; I am God's servant and have engaged to do His business as long as He pleases to continue me therein. Now, let me ask you a question. If I send my man to plow and if at noon I find him in the shade of a tree and complaining the sun is too hot; the plowing so hard; I am weary of the work you have appointed me to do and overcome with the heat and burden of the day, do let me go home and be discharged from this hard service, what would you say?" "Why, he is a lazy fellow; that it is his business to do the work I appointed him until I should think to call him home."

The world is dying today for lack of men and women of faith. Faith will release the manhood and womanhood and the money now being hoarded. The slack devotion of the church for the world is pitiable.

For some time during the World War, Great Britain spent on an average of five million pounds daily. To save the world for time and eternity she spends two million pounds annually. The war expenses of the United States for one month was more than the whole amount contributed by this country for Home and Foreign Missions since the nation began.

The fearful propaganda of atheism, anarchy and materialism is to be conquered not by armed men, but by spirit-filled evangelists.

Now the essential message is being set aside. The vital is rejected for the superficial; the eternal for the ephemeral; the light for darkness.

This will indicate our duty. How will you, my reader, meet your duty? Choose your life's work with care. Consult your own likes and dislikes; your fitness or unfitness for it. But when you have decided on your course, bend every energy of body and mind to secure success; do your best; stick to it.

"The man who sticks has this lesson learned: Success doesn't come by chance—it's earned."

By pounding away; for good hard knocks Make stepping stones of stumbling blocks.

He knows in his heart that he cannot fail.

That no ill-fortune can make him quail.

While his will is strong and his courage high.

For he's always good for another try.

He doesn't expect by a single stride To jump to the front; he is satisfied To do every day his level best.

And let the future take care of the rest.

He doesn't believe he's held down by the boss—nor, not favor, that gets across.

So his motive is this: What another man Has been able to handle, I surely can." For the man who sticks has the sense to see

He can make himself what he wants to be. If he'll off with his coat and pitch right in— Why, the man who sticks can't help but win." Yours, to win, JOANNES.

The Ford Sedan, with electric self-starting and lighting system and demountable rims with 3-1/2 in. tires front and rear, for every day in the year has no equal as a family car. Just as popular on the farm as it is in the city. In fact, it fits the family demands in every vocation of life. Large roomy seats, finely upholstered, plate glass windows make it an open car in pleasant weather, while in rainy and inclement weather it becomes a closed car, dust-proof and rain proof. It is not only comfortable, but really cozy, and above all, economical in operation and maintenance, and has all the Ford merits of strength and durability.

A Word of Help to Women of Middle Age From Mrs. Raney.

Morse, Okla.—"When I was 45 years old Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the change of life in safety. I am over 60 and have raised a family of eight children and am in fine health. My daughter and daughters-in-law recommend your Vegetable Compound and still take it occasionally myself. You are as young as I wish."—Mrs. ALICE RANEY, Morse, Oklahoma.

Change of life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. This good old-fashioned root and herb remedy may be relied upon to overcome the distressing symptoms which accompany it and women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Allot Land to Eskimos. It is announced from Ottawa that the Canadian government has decided to reserve for the remnant of the Eskimos a small part of the territory over which they formerly ranged at will in the varying pursuits of fishing and hunting. The reservation is to consist of Banks and Victoria islands, north of the vast region, wide as the continent, known as the Northwest territory, and far north of the arctic circle.

From this reservation, and apparently the waters immediately adjacent to it, the white hunters are to be excluded; and those who have begun operations on Banks Island must be expelled. Thus the resources needed to sustain Eskimo life will be reserved for the Eskimo.

THE PERFECT HOUSEKEEPER

By JANE OSBORN

(1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Three times within the two blocks that Doctor Andover had walked down College street from his house and he had been greeted with the smiling congratulations of some neighbor or other. If he had not already been sure of his blessing in having secured the services of Mrs. Hildgarde Taylor as housekeeper he could not but have been after these felicitations.

"She is such a perfect housekeeper," Professor Ogden's wife had cooed. "Up to the day he died old Mr. Morgan had her tea biscuits every day of his life. He couldn't get along without them—and such pies!"

"Yes, indeed," agreed Doctor Andover, somewhat embarrassed but dutifully grateful to Providence for having showered such abundant blessings on his shoulders.

"And she's so economical, too," Mrs. Partridge had said after offering the young bachelor president of the college her felicitations over the advent of Mrs. Taylor in his home. "No cause for your complaining now over the high cost of living."

"No, indeed," smiled Doctor Andover and, as he neared the corner where dwelt old Doctor Forbes, dean of his faculty, the fragrance of juicy beefsteak broiling in the Forbes kitchen came to him. He had had supper that night from ten biscuits, tea, sardines in jelly and prune whelp. That as nearly as he could remember was all there had been to it.

Helen Forbes, not extraordinarily young or extraordinarily slender, but radiant and unguessed, only daughter and housewife for Doctor Forbes, opened the door for the young professor. The rest of the college town had got used to Helen. Of course, she was quite a beauty—but, then, she was only Helen Forbes.

Nice girl, too, and a few years before freshmen every year had gone quite silly over her; but she was a little too old for students now. But Doctor Andover had not quite got used to the radiance of her, and there were times when he would have more eagerly gone to spend an evening with old Doctor Forbes in discussing college plans and policies had it not been for Helen. She was a little disturbing. She didn't quite seem to belong to the little old college town.

On this occasion, however, it was necessary that he consult with Doctor Forbes. The tempting aroma of beefsteak grown even more tempting as Helen Forbes opened the door for him. An apron protected her light summer frock, and she led Doctor Andover rather breezily into the dining room. "We are having dinner late," she said. "Dad's been working on examination books and didn't want to be disturbed until seven. Now, it's planned steak supper. Dad's so fond of it. You don't mind coming right out, do you? And perhaps we can tempt you to have some."

Doctor Forbes had appeared and Helen had disappeared, to return presently with the plank on which was laid the smoking steak with the tempting border of mashed potatoes and various vegetables.

"We must congratulate you," said Helen, as she laid the plank on the rather informally set table. "I don't suppose anyone can tempt you to meals, now that you have got the wonderful Mrs. Taylor. You certainly were lucky in these days, to get a perfect housekeeper like that. And you know she was with old Mr. Morgan twenty years—stayed till he died—and she was saying today that she expected to do the same for you."

"Why, that's very kind, I'm sure." It was then that there loomed before Doctor Andover an image of Mrs. Hildgarde Taylor, with her thin-lipped and rather acid smile, as she sat behind the coffee things at breakfast and the tea things at supper, for she was one of those housekeepers who never fail to take their places at meals with their employers.

She had sat like that before Mr. Morgan twenty years, and then he had died. How would it be to see that face for twenty years? Her coffee was clear and doubtless good, but she was sparing of the coffee, and she was sparing of the cream as an extravagance.

Doctor Andover was wondering whether he would have to drink coffee every morning for twenty years, just like that, or whether he would have courage to ask to have it stronger—and with cream.

"She really is wonderful," Helen Forbes was going on. "I only wish I could manage the way she does. I don't suppose you could be tempted to take a little of this planked steak?" She had put quite a generous piece on the warmed plate and was passing it to him.

"But, daughter," suggested Doctor Forbes, kindly. "If Doctor Andover has had dinner, it will only be doing him an unkindness in forcing more upon him."

But Doctor Andover mumbled something about "rather light supper," and for the next few minutes joined the Forbes household in the delectable task of eating a perfectly broiled planked steak.

After that, though it was sometimes a little difficult for Doctor Andover to walk right up to the front door of the Forbes house when he knew he would be met there by the disconcerting Helen Forbes, it was even more difficult to stay away. Sometimes he would deliberately decide not to call. His own evening repast was early and this seemed to add to the desirability of a short after-dinner walk down College street.

But despite his decision not to stop at the Forbes house, he would stop. Sometimes he was tempted even further by the tantalizing aroma of dinner, huckleberry pie or roasted lamb or fresh aromatic coffee. Mrs. Taylor's coffee could never be smelted that way when it cooked. Doctor Andover remembered that she had once told him that the way she made it she kept all the flavor in the coffee pot and that was what made it taste so good.

It was the test of good coffee, she said, not having the smell of it escape from the pot. But Helen Forbes' coffee always smelled all the way round to the front of the house, and to Doctor Andover it was perfection in the cup.

So it happened that quite often, without exactly intending to do so, the young college president shared some of the good things that Helen had prepared for her father's dinner and always when he did there was the evidence of the greatest pleasure on the part of the hospitable old professor, who, though he may have worn his coats until they were shabby, certainly did not curtail himself on the good things of the table.

"Of course, though," said Helen once when Doctor Andover had come out with an enthusiastic bit of praise of her cooking. "If I were a perfect housekeeper like Mrs. Taylor, I could set a better table on much less money. She must be quite remarkable. Why, just today she was telling us at the missionary society that she can make a pound of coffee go two weeks and the meat bills aren't $3 a week. Of course, she said she couldn't manage that way unless she felt a real interest in you. You really were mighty lucky to get her. Really, it was quite amusing."

"Professor Partridge's wife told Mrs. Taylor that if you never married it would be her fault, and then Mrs. Taylor said that at any rate you'd never marry for a good home and a good housekeeper. I thought that was so sweet of her."

"Yes, I am sure it was," weakly rejoined Doctor Andover. He recalled then that he had tried to coax her to supper, although he had begged the perfect housekeeper to omit cornmeal for a few weeks. He had never liked it anyway, he said, but he didn't say that he felt that he had been compelled to death since her arrival.

Of course it was because of the economy in using cornmeal that she persisted, and Doctor Andover did eat it because he had a healthy young appetite and he had to eat something.

"But, then," continued Doctor Andover, "a man doesn't marry for a home or for a good cook. If the woman he loves happens to be a good housekeeper and all that sort of thing it is just an added blessing. I suppose."

Doctor Andover was preoccupied after that. He tried to focus the new system of student grading with Dean Forbes, but his thoughts did not seem to collect. At a quarter to nine he rose to leave. Nine was the dean's habitual bedtime.

He bade the dean good night rather hurriedly, and then he tried to get to Helen he looked very intently at her. So intently that the radiant Helen dropped her eyes. "I'm coming back at half past nine. See me alone on the veranda."

It was a rather chilly spring night to be philandering on verandas, but Helen had swathed herself in a soft woolen scarf and was waiting when Doctor Andover returned.

"I want to talk to you—down here in the garden," he said, ascending only one step of the veranda, and Helen slowly went down to meet him. "It's about marrying you that I want to talk, Helen," he said when they had reached the dark shelter of an old lilac hedge. "You have always been the kind of woman I'd want—a real woman, magnificent and radiant and beautiful. It's the kind of woman I've always dreamed about. But, hang it all, I don't want you to think I'm asking you because you are such a wonderful cook and housekeeper. I'd feel such a contemptible blackguard to marry a woman for a housekeeper. You know it is you, Helen, that I want? I've forced there wasn't a chance you'd have me."

It's funny how gossip goes in a little college town like that. A week later when Helen and Doctor Andover's engagement was announced there wasn't a professor's wife in town but had known it for weeks.

Helen, they said, had always been setting her cap for the new president. For a time they said it seemed as if he might have preferred Mrs. Hildgarde Taylor, in spite of the slight difference in age. And it was such a pity he didn't, for Mrs. Taylor was such a good cook—such a perfect housekeeper.

Not His.

One day as I was out in the back yard I noticed my neighbor's washing hanging so low on the line that it was dragging on the muddy ground beneath. Just as I was debating whether I should go and tell the landlady or telephone her the wife of the house came out of the back door and hurried through the yard. As she reached the gate I called to him: "Hey, your clothes are dragging in the mud!" He started, blushed a rosy red, glanced down toward his feet, and then blurted out: "Wh—wh—what do you mean?"

HARLEQUIN CABBAGE BUG INJURES CROPS

Attacks Cauliflower and Various Other Vegetables.

First Appearing Insects Should Be Killed Before They Have Chance to Breed—Clean Up Old Stalks and Rubbish.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cabbage crop of many states suffers severe losses from the ravages of the harlequin cabbage bug. The affected plants wilt and die soon after attack as though swept by fire, hence the name "fire bug." This bug, which also is called "cabbage hawk" and "cabbage bug," also injures cauliflower, kale, turnip, radish, and other cole crops, and after destroying fields of these, attacks various other vegetables. Several generations are produced each year.

Cleaning up the cabbage stalks and other remnants as soon as the crop is off, preventing the growth of weeds and the accumulation of rubbish, using trap crops of mustard, rape, or other early crop, burning over infested patches and fields, and destroying the insects by means of a hand torch and other mechanical measures, are the best methods of control, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1061, "Harlequin Cabbage Bug and Its Control," recently issued by the United States department of agriculture.

The first appearing bugs should be killed before they have a chance to breed, or if the fields become infested late in the season so as to leave fewer to survive the winter.

Cooperation with others who grow cole crops is an absolute necessity in dealing successfully with this pest.

The new bulletin may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, on application to the department.

RIGHT TIME TO APPLY LIME

If Badly Needed It May Be Spread on Winter Wheat in Spring and Lightly Harrowed.

The best time to apply lime is when land is being prepared for wheat in fall. It should be spread on the plowed ground and harrowed in. Liming corn land that is to be followed by a grain crop with clover is also good practice. If lime is badly needed it may be spread on the winter wheat in the spring and lightly harrowed in. It will not be as effective as if it had been put on last fall but it will help some. If clover is to be seeded with a spring grain crop, lime can be applied when preparing the land for this crop.

The precise amount of lime to use in each case can be determined only by chemical means, and the various methods for determining the lime requirement of soils do not always yield uniform results, says the United States department of agriculture. For the farmer the response of the clover crop is the best test. By liming a field at two or three rates and leaving a strip unlimed the farmer can get clover to tell the story itself. As a general rule, which is useful as a starting point, two tons of ground limestone or one ton of burnt lime an acre will put most land in shape to grow clover.

DEVELOPMENT OF MARKETING

Improvement Must Continue to Come Through Better Methods and Procedure.

Marketing machinery is a product of evolution; any improvement must continue to come gradually through better methods and procedure and not through setting up instantly a perfectly efficient and automatically operated new marketing machine. Market experts in the United States department of agriculture point out that the work in the field of marketing can assist in the development of better marketing practices. Just the worker in the field of production has assisted, and is now assisting, in the improvement of general practices.

GET HONEY FROM DANDELION

Beekeepers have found that the dandelion furnished the bees some honey in 1910. But in general this would not be a strong enough argument to continue growing the plant as freely as some do grow it.

ALFALFA ENEMY IS DRIVEN BACK

Effective and Cheap Method of Stopping Injury by Pest Has Been Found.

CROP TREATED BY SPRAYING

Net Saving on Demonstration Fields of 4,263 Acres Totaled $41,371 at Cost of $1.50 Per Acre—Power Pumps Used.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The alfalfa weevil in some sections not only causes financial loss but even threatens actual ruin. Heretofore the control methods were only partially successful. Flooding the alfalfa fields, cultivating them when dry, and dragging them with a brush harrow seemed to check this pest only in a measure. Also, the growth of a second cutting was so delayed and often so short that the crop as a whole was much reduced.

Stop Destructiveness of Pest.

Work by the Salt Lake City office of the bureau of entomology showed that best results came from spraying the alfalfa fields with a solution of arsenate of lead when the larvae of the weevil were doing the greatest amount of damage on the first crop. Demonstrations were held in various sections of the Great Salt Lake valley in cooperation with the county agricultural agents. During 1919 this work was extended and the demonstrations carried forward by the county agents indicate that an effective and cheap method of stopping the destructiveness of this pest has been found.

Save by Spraying.

During the past year 4,263 acres of alfalfa were treated by spraying, and it is estimated that the net saving on these demonstration fields totals $41,371. By this method the first crop of alfalfa is saved. The cost is only about $1.50 an acre, as but two pounds of arsenate of lead are mixed with 100 gallons of water and applied at this rate to an acre of alfalfa. Power pumps which force the spray through extension nozzles make it possible to apply a fine, driving spray over a wide strip quickly and effectively.

The demonstrations proved a considerable increase in the production of hay to the acre. This sometimes amounted to from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. In Sevier county, Utah, demonstrations conducted on 1,700 acres showed an average increase of 800 pounds an acre. At the prevailing price of alfalfa hay, $20 a ton, the resulting saving should total $100,000 in that county alone. County agents and farmers in other counties in Utah also report that when normal conditions prevailed last year the spraying of alfalfa proved to be cheap, practical and effective.

Drawings Showing Complete Life History of Alfalfa Weevil and the Manner in Which It Attacks the Plants.

FARMER IS MORE EFFICIENT

Average Corn Yield in Last Half Century Is 14½ Bushels Per Farmer's Workday.

Corn production averaged little more than two bushels per farmer's workday of ten hours in the middle of the last century, when he husked and shelled by hand and turned the crank of a fodder cutter. The average rose to 14½ bushels half a century later when he used a gang plow, disk harrow, corn planter, self-binder for cutting, husker and fodder cutter, and a shelling machine, says the United States department of agriculture. Besides, there has been improvement in agriculture. If the corn was husked from standing stalks and these left in the field, and the corn was not shelled, the gain in production per day of farmer's labor was from 10 bushels in the earlier time to 20½ bushels in the later.

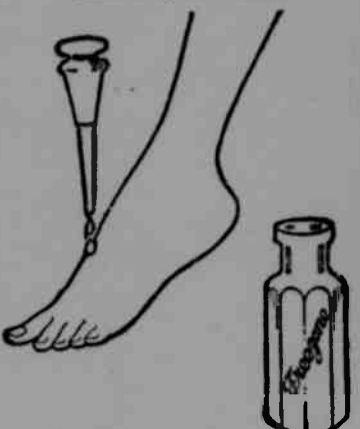

PROPER FEED AT FARROWING

Thick Slop of Ground Oats and Little Olmeal Is Preferred by Many Hog Raisers.

Many hog raisers who use corn as the main part of their feed most of the time, do not feed corn just before or just after farrowing. "The last two months before farrowing I don't feed any corn, but give a thick slop of ground oats and a little olmeal," says one man. "I cut down the feed just before farrowing and do not feed any more until the pigs are about a day old."

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Fred McCulloch's one cornfield brought in $4,928

What a well-known corn grower says about overalls

LAST year a single field on Fred McCulloch's Iowa farm yielded an 88-bushel-per-acre crop, totaling $4,928. Fred McCulloch was on the job in that field himself—in overalls every working day. And the kind he wore—and always wears—is Blue Buckle Overalls.

No matter how hard the work is on Fred McCulloch's farm, he's found that Blue Buckles stand the test. And millions of other men, running farms, railroads or machines in factories, have found that Blue Buckles give them solid service on every job they do.

Find out for yourself about Blue Buckles. Test the long-wearing denim cloth, the wide double-stitched seams. Try on a pair. Feel the comfort of the big, roomy Blue Buckle pattern. Blue Buckle Overalls and Coats never bind or rip. Solid workmanship in every detail is bound to give you your money's worth.

All sizes—Men's, Youths', Children's. Ask your dealer today for Blue Buckles.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, JULY 11.

Jonathan befriends David. 1 Samuel 19, 20.
A friend loveth at all times
And a brother is born for adversity.
Prov. 17:17.

THE LARGER LIFE.

Man has the privilege of buttoning his coat and refusing all comers an entrance to his heart. He may take the position of distrust and suspicion toward all others. Jay Gould is reported to have said, "When I'm among Democrats, I'm a Democrat and when I'm in a Republican district I'm for the Republicans but first, last and always I'm for Jay Gould." That there are such lives is one of the tragedies of humanity for selfishness is the soul of the Devil. The life whose circumference is himself is one of the smallest things there is, a disfiguring wart on the face of the race but too often we let it occupy all our attention rather than look at the rare beauty of the features, every time I include another in my life I enlarge myself. If he is good my store of goodness grows; if base, I have added so much dross but in either case I'm a larger man. It takes the same sized measure to hold rotten apples or good. Friendship is the great enricher. Only God is big enough to include all men in its offer but we share God's likeness when the relationship becomes our own. Self-worth, self-warmth, self-expression and self-surrender must be in each party to a noble friendship. Two real men, passionately devoted to some common cause, giving the fullest entrance into the secret soul of each and yielding all that strength to the service of the other become history makers and inspirers of all the race. Such were David and Jonathan. David could never have reached the place of favorite to the Hebrew if he had not enriched his heart with something of Jonathan's loyalty nor could the Prince have been so regal had he not shared the soul of the democratic shepherd. Friendship whether between equals as man and man or woman, whether between unequals as man and God, is always a sharing of lives and religion is perhaps best understood under the term of friendship where Christ placed it when He said, "Ye are my friends." And shared life is always enlarged and enriched life.

THE EMMESHED LIFE.

Jonathan and David were kindred spirits from their first meeting. The courage, daring and simplicity of the one was matched by that of the other and they must have been comrades all ways when David was about the court. And it must have been a rare joy for Jonathan to be best man at the wedding of Princess Michael where a new bond was forged between the two. David's spring into popularity gave the Prince no concern but it roused the jealousy of the King. Saul speedily recognized the peril to his son's position if David continued to thrall the hearts of courtier and peasant alike. His thronging had been elective and the Hebrew had never had an hereditary rule so that there was really an open field for the coming monarch. Saul was determined that it should stay in the family and threw his sword into the scale. David must be beaten fairly if possible but beaten he must be. Jonathan played the game in the open and hoped his friend would win. Jonathan was a sure rejoicer whichever way the tide set. Saul was a poor loser and determined on the death of David and the use of all governmental machinery to insure his great son's coming to the throne. And Jonathan became emmeshed in the chicanery of Saul. There must be for him the choice of loyalties for the King was his father and whether right or wrong he loved him and loved the land he ruled. Splendidly as the boy fought for the friend he had espoused he saw him driven into exile, put in peril of life itself and tho he saved that life more than once as the thrilling story of these chapters shows he remained at the court and shared its dimmed glory. To the end he struggled to prop his fathers power and fell in battle at his side never able to extricate himself from the family follies. He might save David but like Jesus, "Himself he could not save." Lee's personal character is beyond reproach but that fine life will always be remembered as the leader of the Lost Cause. Root's wonderful ability suffers because of the Liquor Interest which it champions. Sin's tragedy is the hampering of the good whose best intent fails to break thru the mesh woven about them. Saul's ambition tied the hands of his son.

THE SACRIFICIAL LIFE.

Jonathan's whole course was one of sacrifice. From the day he stripped himself of robe and weapons his friendship was a continuous giving to the man he loved. No more generous figure appears in the paintings of the Word. At first there was no recognition of the ultimate result of the introduction of David into the affairs of the Court. Prince and leader welcomed the comradeship of another who the peasant born was as high souled as himself. It was the very expression of the democracy of Israel that these two should be friends, wedding the court and the crowd in indissoluble bonds. But David leaped to popularity. Saul saw the outcome long before his boy dreamed it for he never cared for place but he must have cared tremendously that he must lose the affection of the father to whom he gave a love unvarying to the end. But he was forced to give up the old intimacy. He gradually grew to recognize the coming rule as that of his friend and rival and yet he gave all gladly and with never a betrayal made possible that very throne that he would have so splendidly graced. With everything to use and naught to gain save love he cheerily chose love and gave all. There can be small doubt that the Elders of Bethlehem were recalling the anointing of David nor that in these last years there came the realization of the meaning of the rite which Jonathan probably knew yet in the face of all Jonathan still loved and gave. David loved but filled perhaps the harder place of constantly receiving from the others bounty and being unopposed by it. That too is sacrificial.

THE REMEMBERED LIFE.

There are many who confuse the Saul of the Old Testament with that of the New, who never heard of the boy with the arrows, who could not place Michael, Abner and a dozen more of this period but Jonathan and David bring quick response. Damon and Pythias are known as widely as the printed page. Jesus and His friends are household words on every continent. Why do these grow more familiar with the years while others are forgotten? Friends never die. Friendship that goes to the limit is as immortal as the race. To pour one's self into another heart is to achieve a timeless memory. Because Jesus was the friend who cared up to the Cross He has become unforgettable among men. Wherever a true friend is known all life becomes finer and all thinking holier and the big mark of manhood is the making of friends. All other things may be lost from one's life but if he is rich in friendships he is still rich for friendship will supply every lack. And while other things are left at the cemetery's gate one's friends march on with him forever. And to be a friend of the King is to share an immortal mansion which he has gone to prepare.

The Official Laboratory Model has proved its Realism in 4000 Comparison Tests, made before 3,500,000 people all over the United States and Canada. For instance, in Los Angeles recently, an audience of 1,500 people was unable to tell the difference between the living voice of Miss Marie Morrissey, world-famous contralto, and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison.

There's a way for you to test the wonderful Realism claimed for the Official Laboratory Model in this sweeping challenge. We give Mr. Edison's Realism Test. Come in and let us give it to you.

The price of the new Edison has advanced less than 15% since August 1, 1914. Mr. Edison has absorbed the bulk of the increased cost of material, skilled labor, and taxes. An Invitation to Talking-Machine Manufacturers

"We are informed that the representative of any responsible talking-machine manufacturer have stated, on several occasions, that they are able to distinguish between a singer's voice, or instrumental performance, and the New Edison's RE-CREATION of such voice or performance."

"We hereby invite responsible representatives of any responsible talking-machine manufacturer to permit themselves to be blindfolded, and to listen to such a comparison, in the presence of judges of their own choosing, indicating to the judges when they think they are listening to the artist, and when to the New Edison. There is only one condition attached, and that is—that the representatives of the talking-machine company, and the judges selected by them, shall sign a written statement, setting forth, in full detail, the results of the test."

"The test will be made with an Official Laboratory Model, taken from stock, such as can be bought in any Edison dealer's store."

AMERICAN LEGION FINED

Defenders Of The Nation Assessed For Not Making Return to I. R. Office

One day the latter part of last week, Friday, to be exact, a representative of the United States Internal Revenue Office appeared in Oakland and after making some inquiries concerning certain matters in which the government, through its agents, greatly concerns itself, learned that a short time ago the local nest, American Legion, had held a benefit dance and for which an admission fee of one dollar was charged the gentlemen, ladies admitted free. Through some deductions, not yet apparent to the members of the Post, Mr. I. R. agent came to the conclusion that a hundred gentlemen were present and an equal number of ladies and demanded that the sum of $30 be paid forthwith as a war tax and an additional sum of $9 be also paid as a fine for not having reported the matter to the department and sending therewith a check for the tax.

But one thing was left for the Post to do and that was to pay, which they did, but the money was turned over to the department with a degree of reluctance, as would naturally be the case, for while the members of the Post were in foreign lands defending their flag against the onslaughts of a heastly foe, a bunch of men were at Washington making rulings to collect money which rightfully belonged to the defenders of the nation.

The dance was not held as a money making expedient of an individual of the Post, but was for the purpose of raising a fund with which to establish and maintain a Post building in Oakland and the very soldier would find a welcome upon his occasional visit to the town.

The men of the Post feel that they have been shamefully treated by the department and an effort will be made to have at least the fine remitted, if not the entire amount paid.

It would probably be interesting to know the war record of some of the employees of the Internal Revenue Department.

POWER MACHINERY ARRIVES

That For the Interwoven Mills Company Is Here And Will Be Erected.

The machinery to furnish power for the Interwoven Mills Company, the concern which has agreed to locate a mill in Oakland whose main works are located at Martinsburg, West Va., where employment is given some fifteen hundred or more girls and women, has been received in Oakland and unloaded, and is now in the garage building attached to the Manhattan Hotel, which building will likely be utilized as the factory, unless the owners of the mill decide to locate in the Knights of Pythias building on Third street.

The machinery already received in Oakland consists of a thirty-five horse power gas engine, a dynamo which is sufficiently large for power as well as lighting purposes, and other machinery necessary for the equipment of the mill insofar as the power is concerned.

The knitting machines have not yet arrived and these may not be here until the plant is about ready to start operations.

WEST VIRGINIA ELEVEN TO TRAIN AT MT. LAKE PARK

Mountaineer Warriors to Invade Maryland Soil in September for 2 Weeks

According to an announcement made Saturday by Harry A. Stansburg, athletic director, and M. "Tubby" McIntire, football coach at the West Virginia University, the football squad which will be composed of about 40 men, will train at Mountain Lake Park this season. Messrs. Stansburg and McIntire became interested in the Park as a training ground through the efforts of Mr. Jack Grimes of the W. Va. Prep at Keyser. The men were at the Park on Saturday where they practically completed the arrangements for the camp.

They stated, however, that this will be the only season they intend to train on Maryland soil, because before the 1921 season opens they will be in their new quarters on Cheat River in West Virginia.

The coming of the West Virginia warriors to Maryland will be a great boom for the gridiron sport in this vicinity. Despite the fact that the game has been on a decline for the past four years, it is not too late for it to come back as a major sport and replace soccer, which is only a secondary sport in all large colleges.

The Mountaineer authorities plan to open the camp on September 6 and daily workouts will continue for two weeks. On either September 20 or 21 the candidates will pack their moleskins and all other equipment and hike back to Morgantown, where several more light workouts will be held before the opening game with West Virginia Wesleyan at Fairmont on Saturday, September 25th.

West Virginia has Yale, Princeton, Rutgers, Pitt, W. and J., Lehigh, W. and L., and other big teams on the schedule for next year and is anxious to get in shape for the strenuous campaign.

MULEOLOGY.

Buys a Farm.

Ambrose Fazanbaker, of Westernport, recently bought at public auction the farm formerly owned by Mr. Albert Layman and located at Sutton, this county. Mr. Layman will move to Frostburg, where he has purchased a house and lot.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Sessions Will Be Held Saturday and Sunday At The Cove Church.

As already announced in The Republican the annual Garrett County Sunday School convention will be held next Saturday and Sunday, July 17th and 18th, at St. John's Lutheran church in the Cove. To this convention all county Sunday school workers are invited, and a large attendance is desired and expected.

The first session at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon will be for enrollment and business matters looking to the organization of the convention. The first regular session of the convention will convene at seven fifteen that evening and the principal speaker will be President Ross D. Murphy, of Blue Ridge College.

The first session on Sunday will convene at ten o'clock in the morning, and afternoon and evening sessions will also be held. President Murphy, Dr. Abner B. Brown, State Secretary Prof. Arthur F. Smith and Miss Catherine Orr, of Lonaconing, Revs. Young, Shultz, Ely and Wicker, and others interested in Sunday school work, will be among the speakers. During part of the afternoon hours conferences will be held by the various leaders on the different lines of work, and all should come prepared to take part in these.

The work of the Elementary and Cradle Roll Department will be under the leadership of Mrs. B. H. Sineell and Miss Katherine Orr and they are planning conferences of all workers in this department. Every Sunday School in the county should be represented in these conferences, and those having charge of this department should bring with them their reports.

Delegates who have not yet sent their names and time of arrival to Mr. Harry Collier, Accident, should do this at once. They should also see that their Sunday school report is made out and if not sent in advance take this with them to the convention. An accurate county report depends upon these.

MOUNTAIN LAKE TO BE SCENE OF A BIG TENNIS TOURNAMENT

For The Championship of Western Maryland to Be Held August 16-23

Mountain Lake Park is preparing for a tennis tournament that will put that summer resort on the map and greatly increase its prestige in the larger cities of nearby states. Plans for the tournament are nearing completion and those in charge of the affair expect a galaxy of net performers to enter the contests, which have the sanction of the National Lawn Tennis Association.

The first annual tournament for the championship of Western Maryland will be held from August 16 to 23, inclusive. Mountain Lake Park boasts of four splendid courts and additional work will be put on them to prepare them for the hard-fought games that are sure to be played.

Mr. James L. Grimes, of Pittsburgh, and Mountain Lake Park, was a visitor to Cumberland yesterday representing the Mountain Lake Park Women's Civic Club, under whose auspices the tournament is to be staged. While there Mr. Grimes interested the lovers of the sport and had the promise of a large attendance of players from that city. In addition to the Cumberland players entries are expected from Clarksburg, Fairmont, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wheeling, Grafton and other cities. An effort will also be made to bring several players of national prominence to Mountain Lake Park for the occasion.

Prizes will be given for men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. In addition to these three prizes a suitable award will be given to the runner-up in the men's singles, and also a consolation prize. The winner of the men's singles will receive a large silver loving cup, which will become his personal property if won three times, not necessarily in succession. This will be known as the Challenge Cup and will be the most coveted prize of the tournament.

Many social events have been planned for the week, including corn roasts, teas, dances and informal parties. All contestants will be met at the train and escorted to the hotel or cottages, where reservations will be made for them.

Entry blanks must be sent Mr. Grimes, chairman of the tennis committee, Mountain Lake Park, and in several days these may be secured upon application. All entries must be in before 8 p. m. on Sunday, August 15. However, it is urged that all entries be made as soon as possible in order that the housing committee may know just how many contestants to expect. Special rates may be secured at the hotels during the week.

Adolph E. Scherr Dies After Operation.

State Senator Adolph E. Scherr, of Charleston, West Va., formerly of Grant county, W. Va., and son of the late State Auditor Arnold C. Scherr, died Thursday last at a hospital in Cincinnati, following an operation for gall stones. He was 48 years old. Mr. Scherr is survived by two brothers, J. Walter Scherr, Cincinnati, and Harry Scherr, Williamsen, West Va., and by two sisters, Mrs. Babb, wife of Frank H. Babb, former mayor of Keyser, and Miss Katherine Scherr, of Cincinnati. Mr. Scherr formerly resided in Keyser and was a frequent visitor to Oakland when a resident of Keyser. He was a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Renninger, of Oakland, and was well and favorably known by many Oakland people.

PROMISES AND THEIR FULFILLMENT.

There came a time in the history of Isaac when the Lord met and revealed Himself to him and promised that He would bless and multiply his seed. Isaac's gratitude was expressed to Jehovah by building an altar, which was expressive of personal devotion. He invoked God's name—a public recital of God's goodness. So should we remember divine mercies and speak of them to others. He also pitched a tent and dug a well, which was indicative of his confidence in God. In his action we have grateful acknowledgment of past mercies, public celebration of present mercies and hopeful expectations of future mercies. Here, too, we have an intimation of three of the fundamental principles of government.

At this season, which commemorates the birth of our National independence, it may be well to refresh our minds in regard to these essential traits of good government and emphasize our duty to our country. May I mention as the first pillar of the Republic the home—our home. The home is a divine institution. There is no place like a good home to develop worthy lives. The family is the unit of social life. A pure home life is the best means of regenerating society. There is a benevolent organization in operation known as "The Church Army Home," which is in charge of a man and his wife, who are known as the father and mother of the home. Their love for the fallen; their tact, experience and knowledge of human nature, enable them to influence the boys for good—the boys who come from jails, slums and the streets, dirty and ragged and caring for no one—they are received into a homelike place and welcomed as one of the members.

The home idea has been adapted and successfully used in dealing with waifs of the street, for their redemption. The family is the first and chief fundamental agency by which Divine wisdom reforms and saves the world. Without it the church and state could not survive. The decay of family religion; the corruption of its life; the neglect of its duties and the demoralization of its power is fatal to church and state. Religion suffers; so does morality and the interests of society in proportion its home religion diminishes.

The religion of the world has come through the home. The covenant with Abraham rested upon it. Piety and patriotism were kept alive on its altars. Home piety is one of the chief factors in revivals and reformations, and conversion and sanctification go forward mainly on the lines of a good seed and family purity. The decay of family religion is one of the most alarming evils that can come upon society. Destroy both church and state, and you can reconstruct them by means of the family, as God ordained it. But destroy the family and you have nothing upon which to build and depravity will do its fearful work unchecked.

When the foundation is corrupted, the source of being contaminated, there is nothing left to conserve or purify society. The decay of public morals, the prevalence of irreligion, the increasing immorality, the rising tide of crime, the low state of godliness in the church, with increasing practical infidelity and iniquity are largely traceable to the family. When government is relaxed the home altar is cast down or neglected and the marriage tie woefully dishonored, what can you expect but the curse of Malachi: "I will turn the hearts of the fathers with the children and the hearts of children with the fathers lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." The prophet seems to be emphasizing the gospel mission by the power of family religion. If it fails to purify family religion or to draw close the bonds of domestic affection or to sanctify the present life, the nit fails in its end and the curse of God will smite the earth as a punishment for this neglect.

To turn the hearts of the fathers with the children, describes the effect of the gospel on the family. The duty of the hour is plain—it is solemn and imperative. It is to look well to the family, to rise up and rebuild and perpetuate the altar, to purify the home life and pray God to preserve the most essential and effective institution and agency for preserving and propagating the religion of Jesus in the world. What the country needs is more, yes, all of our homes to be like the one described by Burns in his "The Cottar's Saturday Night," one stanza of which is as follows: "The cheerful supper done, we serious face,

The round the ingle form a circle wide;
The sire turns o'er, with patriarchal grace,
The big ha' Bible, once his father's pride,
His bonnet reverently laid aside,
His lyart haffets wearin' thin and bare;
Those strains that once did sweet in Zion glide,
He wales a portion with judicious care;
And "Let us worship God," he says, with solemn air."

John Howard Payne has immortalized his name by his "Home, Sweet Home."
"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!
A charm from the skies seems to hallow us here,
Which, seek through the world, is ne'er met with elsewhere;
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
An exile from home, splendor dazzles in vain!
O, give me my lowly thatched cottage again!
The birds singing gaily that came at my call;
Give me them! and the peace of mind dearer than all!
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, JULY 19.
David Spares Saul's Life. 1 Samuel 26:5-12. Read chapters 21-26.
Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. Luke 6:27.

THE KING.
Organization multiplies power. Personal weakness passes unnoticed because the structure is firm. The Quebec bridge disaster came from some bolts that had such slight play as to be unnoticed by the most skillful workmen but it was finally fatal and the entire mass crashed into the stream. So did Saul's government. He must have been a wonderful organizer for in the face of Philistia's forces he was able to take the crushed mass of people little better than slaves and fuse into them spirit and order and allegiance to a new rule and in spite of failing powers the machine he had built held steady. All the struggling, seething elements in the Republican party could not break the party organization at Chicago and it will be surprising if the White House loses its grip at San Francisco. Not until organization met organization did the bogie of the Liquor Power reveal its hollowness. Saul was as potent as Pharoah. The strong tribe of Judah could be alienated, her favorite son, David, driven into exile, the religious party exposed to massacre, the greatest soldier in his ranks deposed and the organization still functioned. Saul was a perfectly wonderful giant of a politician and God's first choice was a masterpiece so far as ability went. Only there came the wrong use for personal ends of that splendid power and the whole man shrank from that day forward. Democracy was being strangled under his policy and any opposing opinion was to be crushed instead of assimilated. The popular choice never got a look-in under the rule of the Old Guard at Chicago nor was it any truer in Israel. The power of the empire was prostituted to degrading the popular will and throwing self interest. There is a bit of a parasite that attaches itself to a caterpillar and gradually absorbs its life until there is nothing but a perfect form filled with alien rootlets; such was Saul. The King was there but the soul of the King was perished. Embittered, vindictive, passionate, his word worthless, his brain the abode of insane imaginings only the robes of a king remained.

THE OUTLAW.
Who makes him? Too often it is the organization. Pleasure outlawed from the church carries the boy and girl into illicit relations. Then society sets a price upon their heads and hunts them into the wilderness. Over-ridden rights guaranteed by democracy foster radicalism and the redness of brain and flag and sword. The man hunt follows. Race prejudice refuses to stay Judge Lynch where recently the hour was advertised in a local paper and the governor refused to interfere; where the brutal burning of the victim it was discovered that he was entirely innocent and discontent begins to simmer in the mind of the outlaw made intelligent by our schools of democracy. David was an outlaw and James had a price set upon his head. There are a glorious company of outlaws who have later come to the throne; protestants, Unitarians and a host of others. Utterly loyal to the high ideals of Israel, David was still an outlaw and was hunted from hill to hollow like a beast. Caring tenderly for his parents he took them to their ancestral home where they could be secure. He became a def-nse for all the border so that the frontier was guarded better by his vigilance than by the state. He welcomed the surviving member of the priestly village and pledged his life in its defense. He shared all he had with every outcast from the tossed out bits of humanity trampled by the organization that little dreamed it was piling the fagots for its own consuming.

THE SCHOOL BOY.
David had many tutors in nobleness. Jesse must have been a fine father even though he did forget the youngster with the sheep. All the fineness of Saul in his best days was lavished upon the apt pupil of the court and the sharer of the home life of the palace as son-in-law. Jonathan with his chivalry and his friendship must have had a wonderful influence over his sensitive, poetic, reverent soul, and even in his exile he came to him and strengthened his hands in God and wiped out all the bitterness that had probably been gathering under the attacks of the King. Another figure emerges in Abigail. Patrolling the border David had protected the property of Nabal and felt a perfect right to share in his prosperity. Filling a government function he should have something of a government's support so he asked for a share in the feast only to meet a churlish refusal. But Abigail met him with a fine courtesy, appealed to his religious spirit and woke it into quickened life. It is the teacher more than the school-room or the text that make the greatest impress upon the scholar's life and in spite of the roughness of the surroundings and the crudeness of the standards David was constantly having the ministry of high souls who appealed to his best self and it is not so strange after all that in the hour of testing this cultivating should have its harvest. And the wedding bells in the forest joined the fortunes of Caleb's fighting clan and the veterans of Aes-trup struggle.

Saul paid David a high compliment in bringing out 3,000 men to capture him. He made it made to David's desire to see the wide spread camp lying secure within its encircling ramparts and to catch the flutter at the heart of the pennant upon Saul's spear. Could any man get to that heart and live? With his equally daring comrade he crept cautiously down the slope, wormed thru the baggage, stooped over hundreds of sleepers and finally stood beside the recumbent Saul. Thrilled by the achievement the fight was on, stirred into intensity by the voiceless whisper in his ear from Abigail telling him that his hands would be clean if he would only let him smite once. Broken home, exiled parents, murdered priests, hunted life, perverted government, assaulted democracy, forgotten oaths, the standard all pleaded for assent. What a fight it was in that darkened field. But the soul was light and the barriers built thru the years by teachers and by God held the flood of passion and damned its flow until victory was won and Saul REMEMBER the time the first automobile parade was organized? Even the good old torchlight procession had to give way before the advance of progress.

Tires are often sold the same way politics are.

The last people to wake up to what they are getting are the people who pay the bills.

The bills are getting too big these days in both cases. And the man who is feeling it most with respect to tires is the man who owns a moderate-price car.

The idea that the small car owner doesn't need a good tire is rapidly going the way of all mistaken ideas.

He needs it more than anyone else. It's part of our job, as we view it, to see that he gets it.

Our tire service starts with good tires—U. S. Tires. All sizes made to a single standard of quality—none graded down to the price of the car they will go on.

U. S. perfected the first straight side automobile tire—the first pneumatic truck tire.

The U. S. guarantee is for the life of the tire, and not for a limited mileage.

When we recommend and sell U. S. Tires we do so in the interest of greater tire economy. It is our experience that that is the best way to build up a sound and sizable business.

BITTINGER

Mr. Cortez H. Jennings, of Towanda, Pa., founder of the town of Jennings, which is located about five miles north of Bittinger, spent part of last week in this section looking after business interests, and while sitting on the hotel porch at Jennings last Friday morning suffered a stroke of paralysis which affected him very seriously. Drs. Bowen and Dorsey, of Grantsville, were quickly called and took charge of the case, and on Saturday evening Drs. Hawkins and Legge, of Cumberland, were called into consultation. At the last report the condition of Mr. Jennings was slightly improved. At the time of his affliction Mr. Jennings was accompanied only by his traveling companion, Rev. Percy Oden, but Mrs. Jennings and their two children, Paul and Miss Sarah Jennings, were immediately called and are now at Jennings with the father.

Dr. Henry W. McComas was called to this village last Sunday afternoon to consult with Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft in the case of little Claude, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Broadwater, who is critically ill.

Miss Cora Bittinger, of near Jennings, is visiting at the home of H. B. Wiley this week.

Miss Myrtle Glatfelter, of Grantsville, visited her sister, Mrs. Roy Hettick, in this village over Sunday.

John H. Stark left his home here on Tuesday of last week for an extended visit with his daughter at Akron, Ohio.

The missionary ladies conducted a very successful ice cream social in this village last Saturday evening.

Misses Lucy Glatfelter and Leonora Wiley, and Messrs. Thomas Wiley, Orval Glatfelter and Lawrence Gardner returned to Akron on Sunday afternoon after a two weeks' visit with their relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Engle, of Baltimore, spent last week with Mr. Engle's mother, Mrs. Mary Engle, of this community.

Oscar Wiley, of Akron, O., spent a brief vacation with his mother here last week.

Dennis Deitrick made a business trip to Oakland a few days ago.

Senator Speicher, of Accident, was in this neighborhood recently arranging to begin operations on a tract of timber recently purchased of Mr. Jas. P. Wiley.

Mrs. Arch Browning, of Turtle Creek, Pa., visited her sister, Mrs. Martha Wiley here last week.

Clarence Bittinger, an employee of the Carnegie Steel Co., of Pittsburgh, was a pleasant visitor among us a few days ago.

Mr. Clyde Broadwater is planning to have a new residence built on his farm this fall.

Mrs. George Bowser, who has been seriously ill for some time, is now rapidly recovering under the treatment and care of Dr. Bowen, of the town of Grantsville.

FLATWOODS

There being no news in your column for quite a while from the immediate section of the county, I will pen a few happenings.

The wheat will soon be ready to cut and the farmers are preparing to save the grain which promises to be a bountiful crop.

Mr. Walter Reitzel and sister Miss Emma are visiting relatives at this place.

J. Mahlon Speicher, Edison Miller and Elmer Keller are very busy painting the house and barn on the A. J. Alexander place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bowman, of Accident, spent Sunday at Mr. B. M. Keller's.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bover attended camp meeting at the Park, Sunday.

There will be special services for the children in the church here every two weeks on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to be held by Mr. Vernon Flora, a student from the Brethren College, Ashland, Ohio.

On July 25th the Brethren of this section will observe "Brethren Day."

An all-day meeting is planned at which time doctrinal sermons will be delivered and best of all the ladies of the church will prepare dinner, which is to be served at the church free to all. Everybody come and enjoy the day with the members, all of whom are urgently and especially invited and urged to be present upon this occasion.

Mrs. William Mattingly, of Uniontown, Pa., spent part of last week at F. V. McGettigan's.

Playford Savage returned to Luke Monday after having spent Sunday with home folks.

GENERAL WOOD'S MESSAGE.

Returned to Chicago after a conference at Marion with Senator Harding, Gen. Leonard Wood, in a brief, worded interview statement, declares that Harding and Coolidge stand for constructive, progressive policies and that the Republican ticket will be elected. General Wood is for a campaign that will outline a policy "clean-cut, forward-looking and constructive," and which will not seek to win favor through destructive criticism.

We must get back, he says, to government under the Constitution, to a policy that stands for economy, efficiency and a revision of war taxation; we must re-create a strong but conservative foreign policy—a policy which will protect American lives and rights abroad; we must stand for industrial justice based upon the square, human handling of issues between labor and capital, remembering that labor is neither a commodity nor a chattel. The Republican party, he suggests, entrusted with the responsibility, will meet and deal with the great issues frankly and courageously, with a view to solving them and not of avoiding them.

It is such a message as was confidently expected from Gen. Wood, says the Baltimore American. There is nothing in the tent sulker in his make-up. That he was keenly disappointed in the result of the Chicago convention needs not to be told about. But there is no such word as failure for Wood—his one dominating idea is to serve to the best that is in him in whatever capacity. The shuffle of circumstances is likely to place him before this time next year in position where his extraordinary organizing and constructive abilities will be adequately employed.

HIRAM JOHNSON'S GOOD SENSE

Admirers of Hiram Johnson and his friends and fellow workers in previous campaigns, expected nothing less from him than the declaration of loyalty to the Republican nominee and the promise of support for the Republican platform which he uttered in San Francisco the other day.

With a candidate standing four-square upon the platform, the issue leaves those who believe in safeguarding, protecting and preserving our Americanism but one choice, and that is to support the Republican party.

Here is a plain, deliberate and unequivocal definition of attitude that shows Senator Johnson in the character, not of a chagrined Achilles, sulking in his tent, but of a red-blooded American capable of rising above his personal disappointments and ranging himself on the day of battle in defense of the patriotic principles of which he stood as a conspicuous exponent in 1912, and of which he has been a consistent advocate in the Senate in 1920.

Mr. Johnson's friends—and there are many of them on both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts—will greet his pledge of support to the Republican party and its nominee as a happy augury of that unity of action by Republicans of all shades of opinion or personal preference that is essential to victory in November.

Card of Thanks.
We wish to thank our many kind friends who so helped us both in words and by deeds at the time of the death of our little daughter, Dorothy Leona, who was drowned on the morning of July 3rd. May God bless them all abundantly and may we all meet in that mansion above where parting will be no more.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Fitzwater.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Among the recent arrivals at the Park for a stay of a few days we notice the name of Mr. William C. Bond, Mrs. Bond and two of their children and four friends from the town of Davis, West Va.

The camp meeting, which closed at the old auditorium on Sunday evening, was the best attended and most interesting that has been held here in a long term of years. The meetings were all well attended by people from nearly every eastern state as well as some from the middle and far west. The sermons delivered by the preachers were strong in doctrine, deep in the word and every man who appeared on the platform brought a message of hope and cheer to all who heard them.

In addition to the large crowds who attended the meetings regularly, the attendance on Saturday night and again at the Sunday morning, afternoon and evening services, filled the tabernacle to the doors.

One of the strongest preachers in Methodism, in the person of Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, will be here on Sunday and will preach at the morning service, 10:30, and again in the afternoon at 2:30. Bishop Berry's sermons are wonderful for their diction, sound facts and doctrine. All who should hear at least one of the sermons Sunday; two of them will fill you.

During the latter days of last week the national convention of the Century Club was held at the Park, the headquarters having been established at the Tabor Inn where the meetings were held and at which the program for the engagement of this organization at this point next year, was arranged. Delegates from a large number of the states were present. Several officers of the Century Club organization were elected and the meeting adjourned on Friday night.

Beginning on Monday evening of this week the Epworth League Conference Epworth League Institute, held its first session, the meeting being a get-together affair and was held in the auditorium. Addresses were made by members of the faculty, followed by the presentation of the picture reel entitled "The World at Columbus." This picture is said to be a wonderful piece of photography, but unfortunately by the breaking down of the electric plant which furnishes power to operate the picture, it is a portion of the picture had been projected in darkness. The picture will be shown later, however, and to all who had paid their admission fee Monday evening.

The number attending the E. L. Institute is more than six hundred, the majority of whom arrived in the Park on a special train which left Pittsburgh Monday morning. Other members of the faculty, followed by the presentation of the picture reel entitled "The World at Columbus." This picture is said to be a wonderful piece of photography, but unfortunately by the breaking down of the electric plant which furnishes power to operate the picture, it is a portion of the picture had been projected in darkness. The picture will be shown later, however, and to all who had paid their admission fee Monday evening.

The material for the extension and improvement of the water system in the Park, which was purchased many months ago, has at last been received and is being placed in position, which will relieve the conditions surrounding a shortage of the water supply at many points in the Park.

Since the improvement of the Park buildings have been completed, the entire Park will be so marked that those who are accustomed to visit here will think they are in another place. So much to do.

The taxi service between the Park and Oakland has been greatly helped in recent days by the addition of a bus which leaves and arrives at the two points named upon schedule time. The men who operate the taxis have come to an understanding also with the Park authorities that hereafter the rate charged for conveying a single fare from any point in the Park will be 30 cents, while the rate from Oakland to the Park or vice versa will be one dollar either for one or four passengers, this rate being for the round trip.

The cafeteria, which has been established at the Tabor Inn and managed by Mr. Howard W. Hamilton, has met with the approval and has the patronage of hundreds of people daily. The regularly conducted service is also well patronized and on Tuesday night rooms in private homes were requisitioned by the Park management to accommodate the large crowds which came in for the Epworth League Institute.

The establishment in the center of the Park a store by Judge Cupitt has filled a long felt want for those who are residing in that section of the grounds and are in a hurry for provisions of any kind. The store is well stocked and is neat and clean in every department and as a result the proprietor is enjoying a splendid trade.

The other stores, operated in the Loch Lynn section of the Park are also well patronized and the aim of the owners is to cater to the wants of all, and they do it by having on hand everything needed for the table or other portions of the home.

Dr. Slutz, the genial manager of the Missionary Board's interests here, is making friends for himself and for the Board at every turn. He is accommodating, kind and has a good word for everything and everybody coming to or going from the Park.

Some day in the very near future we shall have with us the great and only Homer Rodeheaver and his trombone. He is scheduled to be at the 29th inst. He has his own company of artists with him and for this occasion arrangements have been completed with the management of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to operate excursion trains from as far east as Cumberland and from Clarksburg and intermediate points in the west. Mr. Rodeheaver is a product of West Virginia, having been born and reared on a farm just above Albright on the Cheat River in Preston county. There will be no preaching in the Pleasant Valley M. E. church, because of the county Sunday School convention and the fact that Bishop Berry will preach Sunday morning in the Park Amphitheatre. Pastor Bissell desires that his people shall know why this service has been withdrawn. We advise every body to hear the Bishop.

TAXES ON INCREASE IN THE COUNTIES AND BALTIMORE CITY

Kent Has the Highest Assessment and Washington the Lowest.
Increased cost of local government is shown in the county tax rates for the current tax year, a table of which was compiled recently by Charles C. Wallace, secretary of the State Tax Commission. In nearly every county of the state there has been a jump, but Baltimore city has, of course, a much higher rate than any county. The county which has fixed the highest rate is Kent, the rate for which has been set at $2.51, an increase of 19 cents over the rate of last year. The lowest rate is enjoyed by Washington county, which is paying only $1.00. The only county showing a decrease is Anne Arundel, whose rate is reduced from $1.54 to $1.52.

WILL TREE 3,000 PHEASANTS

Game Warden To Distribute Young Birds Over State

Three thousand Chinese ring-necked pheasants will be distributed throughout the State by State Game Warden Le Compte, to replenish the fast disappearing stock. The first lot to be hatched out at the State game farm at Gaysbrook, Baltimore county, have been taken away from their foster mothers, the ordinary setting hen of the barnyard variety, and distributed to Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties. Mr. Le Compte sent one hundred each of this and Allegany counties and 50 to Washington county. Each lot was placed on pastured farms where hunting is forbidden. In Garrett county the birds, which are only six weeks old, will be placed on the game farms at Mount Airy Mountain when the last shipment arrives.

BELIEVED THEMSELVES VICTIMS OF WITCHCRAFT

Fire Clay Miners Fired Silver Bullet Into Head of Dummy to Break It

The Pekin correspondent of the Cumberland Evening Times is responsible for the following piece of fiction: "It is just one of the superstitions of two well known fire clay miners, residing near Finzel, Garrett county, were taxed to their wits' end by a period of two weeks during the past winter, while at work at the Benson fire clay mine. It became known that they were working in a hard, workable piece of clay and became obsessed with the idea that some one—party unknown—was bewitching them and their place of work. They conceived the idea that the one responsible for the condition dummy with a silver bullet. They would be found out by shooting a bullet into the dummy's head, and the power over them would show injuries upon the body at the identical spot where the bullet entered the dummy. So they took a silver bullet and moulded it into the form of a bullet and shot the same into the head of a dummy that they had made from clay. A GUARANTEED INCOME!

There are investments and investments. Stocks and bonds are subject to so many and such diverse influences that it is never possible to say with certainty that they will not depreciate in value.

Certain securities are, of course, far more desirable than others, and one can reasonably count on their stability.

There is one security, however, that we can always recommend without any reservation whatever. Its market value never fluctuates. The interest is paid regularly and the principal is always repaid as promised.

We refer to our interest bearing Savings Deposit—a 100 per cent. Safe and Sound investment for either short or long periods.

This morning warrants for the arrest of two men from the county of Oakland and Mountain Lake Park were placed in the hands of Sheriff Winters. The warrants charge disorderly conduct, but a more serious offense may grow out of the matter when all the facts are brought out a hearing to be conducted by Justice James D. Hamill tomorrow afternoon.

In this issue of The Republican is published the financial statement of the condition of the Garrett County Telephone Company for the year and half ending July 1st, 1920, which date is the end of the fiscal year. The report shows the finances to be in a fairly prosperous condition. It is understood that the present management is desirous of disposing of the lines and equipment and it may soon be placed upon the market. This, however, will not be done until after another meeting of the stockholders is held, which will probably be after August 1st or immediately thereafter.

FOR SALE—A farm of 17 1/2 acres, 1 1/2 miles from Oakland, the balance woods, small timber; a ten room house plastered inside and weatherboarded and painted outside; one acre fruit trees; good spring water pumped in the house; one mile to church and school; 2 1/2 miles to Deer Park. For particulars address, M. M. SCHROCK, Mt. Lake Park, Md.—Adv. 2*

On Monday Messrs. Arthur Lawton and Ralph Smouse, of Oakland, and Robert Speicher, of Accident, left here for Toledo, Ohio from which city they will drive a fleet of Oakland automobiles through to Oakland for the Motor Garage. Since January 1st of the present year Mr. Martin has sold forty Overlands and has disposed of some of the cars now on the lot for $355 per ton. His success in selling this car is due to its general satisfaction which has been experienced by the purchasers of the cars. From the fact also that a campaign of intensive advertising in the columns of The Republican has been made by the local dealer. The Oakland representative of the Overland requests prospective buyers to call and have a demonstration of the possibilities of this low priced but highly satisfactory car.

This week The Republican prints on paper that is quoted at sixteen cents per pound, freight from the jobber added, which brings the total cost to sixteen and one-half cents, or nearly two cents a sheet for the blank paper entering into a single copy, as there are but ten sheets to the pound. This before it is put through the press or a line of type composed with which to print it. There may be profiteers in business but we assure our readers that none are engaged in the printing business when the subscription price is but one and a half per year. The Republican has been fondly hoping that the price of paper would come down, but instead it has steadily risen about $50 per ton to the present price of $355 per ton. Unless relief is obtained before our present supply is exhausted we shall be compelled to advance the subscription rate in keeping with the advanced price of raw materials.

Rev. Mr. Bayle, formerly of Queens-town, Md., where he was rector of the Protestant Episcopal church, arrived in Oakland Monday and will remain here as pastor of the local P. E. parish. On Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock he will conduct services in St. Matthew's church in Oakland and upon each Sabbath thereafter. Mr. Bayle will also preach at the Deer Park Hotel chapel, the hours of the service not yet having been definitely arranged, but will be by Sunday. Mr. Bayle called at The Republican office yesterday morning and we found him to be a congenial gentleman and he expressed himself as being well pleased with the people of his parish and the country surrounding Oakland. At one time Mr. Bayle was engaged in the newspaper business and in position therefor to appreciate the cares and perplexities confronting the average publisher in these days of shortage of paper and help.

FARM FOR SALE—Located near White Church, about six miles south of Oakland. The farm contains 86 acres more or less, all of which is practically cleared and under cultivation; the land is well watered; good farm house and barn and all necessary outbuildings; the farm is now producing an excellent crop and the owner will either sell the farm with crop standing or will harvest the same. Terms will be made known upon application to the undersigned. C. E. MARTIN, Deer Park, Md.—Advertisement 3t*

MARYLAND WORKSHOP FOR THE BLIND OF THE STATE

Illustrated Lecture To Be Given In The Interest of the Work in Oakland

A free illustrated lecture in the interest of work for the blind will be given under the auspices of the Oakland Civic Club in the Maryland Theatre on Wednesday evening, July 21, at eight o'clock. The speakers will be Lemuel Hackett, field officer of the Maryland Association of Workers for the Blind, and C. F. F. Campbell, assistant director of the Red Cross Institute for the Blind at Evergreen.

There will be an exhibition and sale of work made by the blind, including hammocks, baskets and almost every variety of crocheted, knitted and woven work.

The addresses will be bright and entertaining and the pictures will show work done by children in the School for the Blind, by adults in the Workshop for the Blind, and by the blind soldiers at Evergreen. The purpose of this entertainment is to bring to every resident of Garrett county a knowledge of what Maryland is doing for her blind and what Uncle Sam is doing for her blind soldiers.

A survey of this county is now being made by Jane N. Christopher, State Home teacher of the blind, and Minnie E. Hicks, Second Vice-President of the Maryland Association of Workers for the Blind. There are at present eight persons known to be blind, and of these one is now in training in the Maryland Workshop for the Blind and several others are among the county's most useful citizens. It is possible, however, that there may be more. The Maryland School for the Blind offers to every blind or partially blind child in the state a thorough literary education, along with music and handicraft. The workshop gives to the younger adults vocational training in some trade by which they can earn a living. The men become expert broommakers, chaircaners, and hammock and mattress makers. The women learn basketry, knitting, crocheting, sewing, weaving and other kinds of fancy work. Both men and women are taught to operate the telephone switchboard, and more than twenty are employed in and around Baltimore. Mr. Hackett, wherever possible, those who are prevented from coming to the shop by age or ill health are visited and taught by a teacher, sent to their homes every week. They often learn to read with their fingers and to do various kinds of handicraft, and are thus enabled to pass pleasantly many hours that would otherwise be idle.

The two workers who are canvassing the county are anxious to reach every locality. They will make their headquarters in Oakland until after the meeting, and anyone going by auto to distant parts of the county can help the work greatly by taking them along. Anyone willing to aid in this way will please communicate with Mrs. James Willison by Garrett County telephone.

Knights of Pythias Not a Interest.

On last Friday night at the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias witnessed one of the most interesting sessions of the local organization, at which time a class of nineteen Esquira were advanced to the rank of Knight. There were present at this meeting forty-nine visitors, and during the conferring of the degree upon this large class a number of the members of the local lodge took part in the work, all of them acquitting themselves with that degree of perfection as to call forth words of commendation from the visiting brethren. Refreshments were served with a lavish hand by the committee composed of Brothers James B. Bell, Harry L. Stemple, Playford Naylor and Walter Hardesty, which was presided over by who presided. We are indebted to the committee for the efficient manner in which they performed their duties.

At the next regular session of the lodge the recently elected officers to serve for the ensuing half year, will be installed. There will be no degree work at this session, but upon the following Friday evening we shall have a class of ten upon which the degree of Page will be conferred.

The picnic which has been scheduled to take place on next Labor Day, September 6th, will without doubt be one of the largest gatherings ever seen in Oakland. The grounds for the picnic are located in the grove at the corner of the Deer Park and Accident State road, upon the property of Mr. Harry Helbig. Here a dancing pavilion will be erected where those who like to may dance to their hearts content. For the occasion music will be furnished by an orchestra which has achieved considerable fame for its classical music which it has rendered at dances held in Oakland in months that have gone by. Other amusements will also be provided. It is absolutely necessary, however, to make the picnic the success it should be and what we hope it will be, that every individual member get back of the committee and help. See the chairman, Bro. J. W. Whorton, and say: "What can I do?" He will use you in some capacity. Don't be backward, nor don't put off your tender of assistance until the day of the picnic. Do it now!

GRANTSVILLE

A very beautiful home wedding was solemnized at "Englewood" a few miles south of Grantsville on June 30th, the contracting parties being Miss Vida M. Engle of this place, and Harry Osborne, of Hartford, Conn. The bride is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Engle, and has been a highly successful teacher for several years. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Price, of Cumberland, formerly pastor of the M. E. church at this place and an old friend of the family. The bride was exquisitely gowned in white duchesse satin and silver lace, with tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and roses. The ceremony was performed at a beautifully arranged altar of daisies and ferns at the end of the long porch. The wedding march by Mendelssohn was played by Miss Beulah Engle, sister of the bride. T. P. Hollister, of Hartford, Conn., a friend of the groom, was best man, and Miss Bess Engle, sister of the bride made a charming picture as maid of honor, in blue organdie with bouquet of roses, while little Elizabeth Engle, the youngest sister of the bride, was a radiant flower girl in white organdie with ruffles. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served the guests, about fifty in number. The wedding cake, a most delicious confection, was baked by Miss Viola Broadwater and cut by the bride and placed in small boxes, in dainty pieces and distributed among the guests. The bride's bouquet, tossed to a bevy of pretty girls, was caught by Miss Hazel Engle, sister of the bride. Jonathan Haw, of Frostburg, sang "O, Promise Me" just before the vows were made. The ring ceremony was used. The gifts to the young couple were very beautiful, being of cut glass, linen and silver. The groom's gift was an exquisite string of pearls. The happy couple left the same evening for an extended visit in the middle west, after which they will reside in Windsor, Conn.

Another wedding of interest to the Grantsville people was that of Miss Harriet Keenan, of Turtle Creek, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, and Emma Younk, also of Turtle Creek, formerly of this place, the ceremony taking place at the Fort Pitt Hotel in Pittsburgh on Saturday evening, July 3, Rev. Mr. Biddle, pastor of one of the Pittsburgh Lutheran churches, officiating. The bride is the pretty and winsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Keenan, of Turtle Creek. Mr. Younk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younk, of Grantsville. The bride was attended by Miss Lillie Ammett, of Turtle Creek, and the best man was Roy Zehner, of the same place, but formerly of Grantsville. An elaborate wedding dinner was served at the Fort Pitt Hotel after the ceremony. The bride wore a traveling gown of dark blue and carried roses. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Younk, accompanied by the bride's parents and Mrs. Keenan's mother, Mrs. C. P. Johnson, Mrs. Robert Himmler and Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Johnson, of Turtle Creek, motored to Grantsville and were guests of the groom's parents, the groom's mother serving dinner to the guests. On Monday the party left for Philadelphia and Washington for a short motor trip, after which they will be at home to their friends in Turtle Creek where the groom is employed.

The large steel bridge spanning the north fork of the Casselman River near Dux City, three miles from Grantsville, broke down one of the last week while a Ford car, driven by Ed. Platter, of Jennings, was crossing. The bridge was apparently perfectly safe for traffic, but evidently had become weakened in places by long use. None of the occupants of the car sustained injuries, although the car was precipitated to the bed of the stream. At this time the bridge is being repaired under the supervision of County Commissioner Henry P. Miller, who hopes to have it open for travel in a few days. In the meantime the river is being forded by travelers using this road, which is a very important one for those residing south of Grantsville who have business to transact in this place.

Miss Christine Winterberg entertained with a party of young girls, her guests being Misses Mary and Arline Petry and Margaret Lambert, of Elk Lick, and Misses Albert Miller and Martha Engle, of Grantsville. The five young ladies had a delightful three days' visit, returning to their respective homes on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shearer and baby, from Baltimore, are guests of J. J. Glatfelter.

Mr. and Mrs. James Shumbert and family, of Frostburg, spent several days with Mrs. Shumbert's mother and sister, Mrs. Rebecca Johnson and Mrs. J. C. Miller.

Miss Mary Eiland, of Meyersdale, has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. H. Younk.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Benson, of Somerset, Pa., spent the fourth holidays with Mrs. Benson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Durst.

Miss Clara Kinsinger is visiting her sister, Mrs. Clarence Glatfelter, of Frostburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Grady and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Poling, of Piedmont, were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bittinger.

Mrs. Christ. Orndorff, of Bittinger, spent part of last week with her sister, Mrs. Dan Orndorff, of Grantsville.

Miss Marie Connor has gone to Baltimore for treatment and probable operation for appendicitis at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Glen Broadwater and saleslady, Miss Myrtle Glatfelter, were in Pittsburgh last week buying stock and also as guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. Fred. Livengood.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stanton and family and Byron Bender spent Saturday at Accident.

Chas. Beavans is spending the summer months with his uncle, Fenton Maust, of Elk Lick.

Miss Mary Stanton has been quite ill the past week.

Mr. Anabelle Brown and son Albert, of Cumberland, spent the past week with their aunt, Miss Margaret Brown.

Miss Phyllis Morgart, of Jennings, spent Friday night with Miss Beulah Bender.

A dance was given at the pavilion on Friday night by the young people of the village, a large crowd being in attendance. A colored orchestra from Frostburg provided music for the occasion.

Miss Charlotte Stanton, of Cincinnati, O., is the guest of her aunts, Misses Mary and Ruth Stanton.

Dr. Horatio Dorsey, of Glenoe, Minn., has come to Grantsville for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yommer, of Salisbury, Pa., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younk on Sunday.

C. E. Society was held on Sunday evening by Mrs. C. S. Zeller, the topic being a patriotic one. A very beautiful solo was rendered by Miss Edith Swan and an address was made by J. H. Miller. The meetings this month are being held in the Lutheran church.

TAX SALE OF VALUABLE Real Estate!

IN GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in the Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland, by Section 52 of Chapter 566, of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the year 1890, title "Garrett County," subtitle "County Treasurer," and the several amendments thereto, the undersigned late Treasurer of said county, will, on

SATURDAY,

THE 31st DAY OF JULY, 1920, at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Md., offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder the following described pieces and parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett County aforesaid, to-wit:

No. 1. All that lot of ground situate along Bear Creek in the town of Friendsville, Garrett County, Maryland, containing the quantity of twenty-eight and ninety-two hundredths acres, and being the same lot of ground which was mentioned and described in a deed therefor from Martha J. Steel and William H. Steele, her husband, to E. E. Ferrier dated the 3rd day of June, 1905, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 50, folio 555, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground is situate in Election District No. 2 of Garrett County, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett County in the name of the said E. E. Ferrier.

No. 2. All of that lot, piece or parcel of ground situate in Election District No. 7 of Garrett County, Maryland, containing the quantity of 25 acres, being what is known as the west half of Military Lot No. 1064, and being the same lot of ground which was conveyed to George Breneman by deed from Annie E. Heck and her husband, by deed dated January 29, 1915, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 68, folio 181, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of the said George Breneman.

No. 3. All of that lot of ground situated along the west limits of the Oakland and Garrett Roads, or Third street extended, containing the quantity of one-fourth of an acre, and being the same lot of ground which was conveyed to Jeremiah M. Flanagan and Carrie M. Flanagan, as tenants in common, by deed from Theresa M. White and Charles E. White, her husband, dated September 7, 1914, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 63, folio 595, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground is situated in Election District No. 14 of Garrett County, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of the said Jeremiah M. Flanagan.

No. 4. All of that lot of ground situated in Election District No. 14 of Garrett County, Maryland, the same being known as Lot No. 75 in Wilson's Addition to the town of Oakland as recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 5, folio 513, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, said lot of ground being the same which was conveyed to Maggie Reddington by deed from Ellen Bradley dated the 1st day of September, 1903, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 46, folio 157, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of the said Maggie Reddington.

No. 8. All of the coal and other minerals underlying all of that tract of land known as "FRIEND'S MANOR" containing the quantity of 415 1/4 acres, situate, lying and being in Election District No. 2 of Garrett County, Maryland, fully described in the original certificate of survey taken and returned to the Land Office of Maryland, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1855, and being the same coal and other minerals reserved, excepted and described in a deed for the surface of said land from Joseph H. Friend and others to George D. Browning, dated March 22, 1901, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 39, folio 349, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the surface now being owned by Walter L. Friend. Said coal and minerals will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1918 and 1919 as charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Elijah Friend's Heirs.

No. 9. All of the coal underlying all of the three pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 14 of Garrett County, Maryland, as follows: First—Part of a tract of land known as "STRAWBERRY PLAINS" containing the quantity of 35 acres, beginning for the same at a planted stone standing at the end of the first line of "Strawberry Plains," which was laid off and sold by Joseph Friend of John to Julia King, wife of Isaac King, and running thence with the second line thereof, West 41 1/3 perches to the limits of the county road and with said road limits South 23 1/2 degrees West, 26 perches, South 17 degrees West, 76 perches to a planted stone, then East 72 perches to the third line of Military Lot No. 1702, and with it and part of the third line of Military Lot No. 1700, North 98 perches to the beginning, excepting the coal underlying 3 acres of the above described land from the north end or portion thereof conveyed to Julia A. King by Jos. Friend, April 13, 1882, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 6, folio 318, one of the Land Records of Garrett County. Second—A parcel of land containing 10 acres and being part of the tract known as Strawberry Plains. Third—Military Lot No. 1698, containing the quantity of 30 acres and being known as part of a tract called "Emanation." Said property is fully described in a deed therefor from George R. Krape and Elsie M. Krape, his wife, to Adam Bucher, dated October 28, 1918, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 74, folio 429, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said coal, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919, as is charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett County, Md., in the name of the said Adam Bucher.

No. 11. All of the undeveloped one-sixth interest in and to all of the coal and other minerals underlying all of that tract of land known as the "Home Farm" of the late John L. Sharpless, known as Military Lot No. 243, containing the quantity of 50 acres, and also underlying part of the tract of land known as "Patomas Manor" containing the quantity of 100 acres, this being the undivided interest in coal underlying said land mentioned, described and conveyed in a deed from Lucetta E. Masteller and Robert Masteller, her husband, to William C. Clayton, dated February 28, 1910, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 59, folio 478, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said coal rights are situated in Election District No. 1 of Garrett County, Maryland, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of W. C. Clayton's Heirs.

No. 12. All of that part of a tract of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 1 of Garrett County, Maryland, known as "SWANTON," containing the quantity of 102 1/2 acres of land, and being the same tract of land which was fully described and conveyed in a deed to Jacob C. Condon dated January 6, 1904, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 46, folio 408, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, and being the same parcel of land which was conveyed by the said Jacob C. Condon and Annie J. Condon, his wife, to Robert Felt by deed dated the 2nd day of May, 1908, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 56, folio 506, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said lot of ground, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of the said Robert Felt.

Western Maryland College.
The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Western Maryland College appearing in this issue. This institution located at Westminster, Md., begins its fifty-fourth year September 20th, 1920. It has made a record for thoroughness and efficiency not excelled by any in the State. Its beautiful location in the highland of Maryland, its excellent equipment in buildings and grounds, its well-trained faculty, its up-to-date courses of study, and its charges kept down to reasonable terms make it an attractive place to get an education.

In addition to the usual Classical, Scientific and Historical courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, there are supplementary courses in Music, Expression, Oratory, Domestic Science and Education. Completion of this last-named course secures the certificate of the State Board of Education. A regular unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps is established at the College, the government supplying the Professor of Military Science and Tactics and uniforms and equipment.

We commend this institution to any of our readers who may be considering the question where is my boy or girl to go to college.

Event at Johnson's Chapel.
Children's Day exercises were observed on Sunday afternoon at Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal church South at Johnson's Farm on the National Pike, a few miles east of Grantsville by the rendition of a program consisting of songs, recitations, etc., which was directed by a committee of ladies including Mrs. John H. Wagner, who presided at the chapel organ; Mrs. Thomas Johnson, Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. Thomas Crowe and Mrs. Daniel Baker. The church was artistically decorated with roses, ferns and daisies and the organ was behind a bower of vases of cut flowers. The occasion was inspiring to all who had the pleasure of attending the service and the committee has received many congratulations for their work, while the children who had part in the program have also been commended.

VISITING BY PHONE

Remedies Suggested For The All-Too-Frequent "Line's Busy."

How would you like to be cut off in the middle of a telephone conversation with the information from the operator that "your time is up," and that you had been using the line as long as was permissible for any one message?

You'd probably burn out the fuse, or the generator, or the lightning rod—or whatever it is that burns out—telling the operator just what you think about it.

That is the remedy, nevertheless, suggested by one of the telephone company's most prominent subscribers for the ever-recurring delay and annoyance of "line's busy." It cropped out at a meeting of the City Club in Baltimore, where the telephone service and the company's request for increased rates were being discussed.

A member of the club told of the difficulties he had been experiencing and cited one instance in which he tried for half an hour to reach his office. Each time the line was busy. He knew that the stenographer and office boy were the only ones there to use the telephone. Finally, in desperation, he asked the manager of the telephone company if there wasn't some way the operator could break in on the wire and tell his "help" that the "boss wanted a chance to say a word."

Of course, the telephone people could not do it. A telephone conversation cannot be broken off at the request of a third person.

The problem of reducing the length of unimportant calls is a serious one, and one that directly affects the service given by any telephone company. An executive of the C. & P. Company has stated that eleven per cent. of the calls placed do not reach their destination because the number called is busy. In Baltimore alone more than 40,000 busy reports are given every day.

Busy lines affect two of the three parties to every call. To the one making a call, they are a source of annoyance, meaning delay and the bother of calling a second or third time. To the operator, they mean extra work. It is claimed that it is easier for her to make a connection than to report that the line is busy.

To the person called—well, he's using his own telephone, which he has a perfect right to do—that's all there is to it. And, of course, if you are on a party line, it is manifestly unfair to pay a prolonged wire visit and thus prevent other telephone users on the line from either making calls or receiving them.

If every user of the telephone would remember, say the telephone officials, that an idle conversation can keep an important message away from two telephones; if they are on a party line, from a larger number of telephones; and if every person would hold talks down to a reasonable time limit, there would be considerably less cause for complaint and a real improvement in telephone service. Telephone visiting may be cheap, but that's the best you can say of it.

GOD'S KIND OF A MAN.

By Rev. D. A. Fried.
A consecrated man of God
Is like a garden fair,
That brings forth fruits of many kinds
And flowers of beauty rare.
His time to him is gold most pure—
Each hour's a treasure given;
He's at his best at every turn—
He lives for God and heaven.
He loves his neighbor as himself,
And feels for others' woes;
He looks the whole world in the face
As on through life he goes.
He cares not what people say,
But walks in honor bright;
He looks above all petty strifes,
For truth is his delight.
His house is known of all the world
To be a house of prayer;
He goes to church on Sabbath days
And takes his loved ones there.
He gives to God his ample tithe
Nor rob Him of one mite;
To be an upright, honest man,
Is his supreme delight.
You find him on the side of right
On every issue raised,
For he is guided by the hand
That leads in wisdom's ways.
He reads the holy book divine
As God's love letter given;
And when he's done with earth and time
His spirit soars to heaven.
And there he finds a place prepared
On Canaan's peaceful shore,
A mansion and a robe and crown,
Where storms shall beat no more.
His raptur'd soul in glory there
Shall feast on things divine,
And with the bright ones 'round the throne
He'll sing a star shall shine.
Friendsville, Md., July 4, 1920.

THE DEATH RECORD.

WILLIAM H. POOL.
William H. Pool, who served in the Confederate army, died at his home in Emmett, Garrett county, Friday, July 2, aged 78. He served in the famous McNeill's Rangers, whose operations were largely confined to the South Branch Valley of the Potomac. Mr. Pool was well and favorably known by many Garrett citizens. For many years he was engaged in the manufacture of wooden goods at Kitzmiller, retiring from active business about fifteen years ago. He is survived by two sons and three daughters. His death was due to a stroke of paralysis which he suffered several years ago, since which time he has been practically helpless.

MRS. SADIE FLANIGAN.
The village of Deer Park received quite a shock when news came on Wednesday announcing the death of Mrs. Sadie Flanigan, formerly Miss Sadie Chadderton. The funeral was held on Friday in the Methodist Episcopal church and the services were conducted by the Rev. Frank McAnally, a former pastor of the church at that place. The service was beautiful and impressive. The choir upon this occasion was composed of friends of the deceased and rendered its selections in a manner that went to the heart of all who were present. The minister, who is so well known at Deer Park, and who likewise knows everyone in the community, spoke very highly of the deceased lady and pointed her out as an example whose life and acts could be followed. Her death was sudden and a great surprise to all. She was one who lived her life in a way that made her many warm and lasting friends. She had been married only a little over half a year and lived at Akron, Ohio.
"We know that she is happy. But it makes our hearts so desolate. To think that she has gone."
Her body rests in the little cemetery just outside the village to await the voice that shall awake the dead. She was survived by devoted father, a loving husband, four sisters and two brothers and a host of friends to mourn their loss.
A FRIEND.

EDITH ANN BIGGS.
Mrs. Edith Ann Biggs was born July 8th, 1844, and died July 11th, 1920, aged 76 years and 3 days. She was united in marriage in 1865 to William H. Biggs. To this union were born 8 children, 4 boys and 4 girls. Four of the children are still living, namely: Albert L., Chas. M., Mrs. Nancy C. Johnson and Mrs. Nettie Smith. William H. Biggs, her husband, died 24 years ago. He was a Union soldier and belonged to the Knights of Pythias and was also a faithful member of the M. E. church for a number of years. Mrs. Biggs was also a member of the M. E. church for 30 years or more. She was a devoted Christian wife and a kind loving mother. She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, one brother, four children, eleven grandchildren, and two great grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. M. Shultz Tuesday afternoon in the U. B. Church, Loch Lynn.

MRS. JONAS JOHNSON.
Mrs. Anna Johnson, 50 years old, wife of Jonas Johnson, of Vinex, this county, died shortly after midnight Monday morning at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, after an illness of typhoid fever. Besides her husband, she is survived by seven children. The remains of the deceased were sent to her late home at Vinex for burial.

Card of Thanks.
We desire to thank our many friends of Deer Park and other places who were so kind to us when we lost our daughter, Sadie Chadderton Flanigan.
W. H. Chadderton and Family.

Festival at Grantsville.
The Boys' Agricultural Club of Grantsville will hold a festival on the school house lawn at Grantsville this coming Saturday evening, July 17th. There will be a plentiful supply of ice cream, cake, cold drinks, etc., on hand. The proceeds of the festival are expected to defray a part of the expenses of a camping trip the boys hope to take in August.

BLOOMINGTON

Mr. Martin Swiers, of Beryl, returned home a few days ago from a very enjoyable visit to relatives in Pennsylvania.
Mrs. Thomas Swan, of this place, spent the weekend visiting her mother's family at Frostburg.
Mrs. Paul Naylor and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, of Oakland, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Kenn during the week.
Mr. Harry Knight, of Larnum, returned home on last Sunday evening, ending a very successful trip to Washington, D. C., where he had gone the day previous to return with his automobile which had been undergoing thorough repairs at his brother's garage in that city. He was accompanied by John Garrish, clerk in the Barnum store, who purchased an Essex car while in that city.
Mr. Nelson Knight, of Washington, motored from that city and spent the Fourth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Knight, of Cross.
Mr. Paul Kenn, a student in the Cincinnati University, is home for his summer vacation. He was accompanied by his niece, Miss Bernadine Bonner, of that city.
Mr. Amos Davis, of this place, is nursing numerous bruises about the body and limbs caused by going in on a delayed explosion of a shot placed in the breast of coal while working in the mines of the Bloomington Coal Co.
Mr. Jacob Stump, after spending the Fourth with his family, returned to the supervision of his farm near the village of Bructon, West Va.

HUTTON

Mr. Charles Hecker, spent a few days recently at Johnson's Farm, in which city his parents reside.
Mr. Patrick Feeney, of Cumberland, is a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Feeney, at their home at Huttonwood.
Mr. Jerry J. Pendegast, and sister, Miss Anna, were Terra Alta visitors on Wednesday.
Mrs. Stephen Faherty was visiting friends and shopping in Oakland on Monday.
Mr. Harry Edwards, of Coshier, was a Hutton visitor on Saturday afternoon.
Mr. John Hughes, of this place, was visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hughes, at Terra Alta, one day last week.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker, of Oakland, were guests of Mr. Patrick Carrigan at Terra Alta on Saturday.
Mr. Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, was a business visitor to Hutton on Friday afternoon.
Mr. J. J. Nordeck was a Terra Alta visitor on Saturday last.
Little Miss Evelyn Morris, of near Dodge, was visiting her father, Mr. George Morris, who is the B. & O. agent at this place, for several days, going from here to Corinth, W. Va., where she spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. William Delaney.
Mr. William Lawson, was an Oakland visitor recently. ST. ELMO.

Widow Rewarded; Gets Annuity.
Benjamin Sisker, whose home was at Corinth, six miles west of Oakland, was killed early in the war in a battle in France. Upon application for information to the War Risk Bureau, his widow was informed that her husband had taken out no insurance. Neither she nor Congressman George M. Bowers was satisfied that this was true and for months Mr. Bowers has patiently but zealously conducted an investigation of this matter. The result is that it has been discovered in the records that the soldier had insured his life for the benefit of his widow for the maximum amount, $10,000. The government has now begun to settle this policy at the rate of $7.50 per month. Mrs. Bessie Sisker, the soldier's widow, has remarried. She is now Mrs. Lewis.

GARRETT COUNTY'S OLDEST LIVING MAN, WILLIAM SINES

Celebrated His One Hundredth Anniversary On Tuesday.

The one hundredth anniversary of William Sines was celebrated at the home of his eldest son, Mr. John Sines at Sines, a few miles west of Oakland, on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Sines was unusually bright upon this occasion and extremely active for one of his advanced years. He spent a joyous day, eating a hearty meal and participating in the events of the day with the host of friends and relatives, estimated at two hundred, who honored him with their presence.

"Uncle Billy" was born at Craneyville, Va., (now West Va.) on July 20, 1820, being the son of Major and Mrs. Susan Sines, the latter being a cousin of the great hunter, Wolf who was the close companion of Lewis Wetzel, an Indian fighter of renown in his day, and who at last fell a victim to the Indians by being shot in a battle with them at a point on Cheat River near Kingwood. Mr. Sines was married in 1840 to Eliza Johnson, and to this union fourteen children were born, the eldest now being seventy-six years old. He moved to Maryland immediately following his marriage where he engaged in farming for over sixty years. He has traveled on foot over practically every inch of Garrett county during his hunting trips in all parts of the county. He spent most of his leisure time hunting deer and bear and other large game that was at one day to be found in every section of the county.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Sines, along with his two sons, Messrs. John and Henry enlisted in the Union Army and served throughout the war. The elder Sines, owing to his advanced years, is now the recipient every quarter of a handsome sum of money as a pension from the Government.

Of the fourteen children born to Mr. Sines, twelve were sons and two were daughters, six sons and one of the daughters yet survive, along with fifty-nine grandchildren, one hundred and fifty-three great-grandchildren and twenty-one great-great-grandchildren—representing five generations, some of each generation being present upon the anniversary occasion Tuesday.

MINER DEAD FROM FRACTURED SPINE.

Mr. Clarence Savage, aged 24 years, who had his back broken on June 5th while at work in a mine at Schell, W. Va., died at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Allegheny Hospital, Cumberland, Md. The body was removed to the Stein mortuary. Mr. Savage was never told his back was broken and up to almost the last he believed he was getting well. He is survived by a wife and three small children.

HARDING SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE A NEW KEYNOTE

Republican Nominee at Notification Ceremonies Discusses Problems Confronting Nation.

Marion, O., July 22.—Warren G. Harding was officially notified here today of his nomination as the Republican candidate for the Presidency. His speech of acceptance was, in part, as follows:

Chairman Lodge, members of Notification Committee, ladies and gentlemen: The message which you have formally conveyed brings to me a realization of responsibility which is not underestimated. It is a supreme task to interpret the covenant of a great political party, the activities of which are so woven into the history of this republic, and a very sacred and solemn undertaking to utter the faith and aspirations of the many millions who adhere to that party. The party platform has charted the way, yet, somehow, we have come to expect that interpretation which voices the faith of millions who must assume specific tasks.

Let me be understood clearly from the very beginning. I believe in party sponsorship in government. I believe In party government as distinguished from personal government, individual, dictatorial, autocratic or what not. No man is big enough to run this great republic. There never has been one. Such domination was never intended. Tranquillity, stability, dependability—all are assured in party sponsorship, and we mean to renew the assurance which were rendered in the cataclysmal war.

Our first commitment is the restoration of representative popular government, under the constitution, through the agency of the Republican party. Our vision includes more than a chief executive, we believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the vice president, second official of the republic, shall be asked to participate. The same vision includes a cordial understanding and co-ordinated activities with a house of Congress, fresh from the people, voicing the convictions which members bring from direct contact with the electorate, and cordial co-operation along with the restored functions of the senate, fit to be the greatest deliberative body of the world.

International Relationship.

It is not difficult, Chairman Lodge, to make ourselves clear on the question of international relationship. We Republicans of the senate, conscious of our solemn oaths and mindful of our constitutional obligations, when we saw the structure of a world super-government taking visionary form, joined in a becoming warning of our devotion to this republic. If the torch of constitutionalism had not been dimmed, the delayed peace of the world and the tragedy of disappointment and Europe's misunderstanding of America easily might have been avoided. The Republicans of the senate halted the barter of independent American eminence and influence, which it was proposed to exchange for an obscure and unequal place in the merged government of the world. Our party means to hold the heritage of American nationality unimpaired and unsundered.

The world will not misconstrue. We do not mean to hold aloof. We do not mean to shun a single responsibility of this republic to world civilization. There is no hate in the American heart. We have no envy, no suspicion, no aversion for any people in the world. We hold to our rights, and mean to defend, aye, we mean to sustain the rights of this nation and our citizens alike, everywhere under the shining sun. Yea there is the concord (Concluded on Page Eight)

WILLIAM G. HINEBAUGH DEAD

Well Known Oakland Man Killed In Automobile Smash Tuesday.

Mr. William G. Hinebaugh, son of the late William Hinebaugh and Mrs. Elizabeth Hinebaugh, Oakland, was instantly killed at a point on the National Road midway between Keyser's Ridge and Grantsville Tuesday afternoon when his automobile turned over several times, catching him beneath it and crushing out his life.

From what can be learned of the accident, Mr. Hinebaugh, in company with Russell E. Meyers, of Frederick, an employee of the State Roads Commission, were returning from Cumberland. The two men stopped at Grantsville, where they had dinner at the National Hotel. Upon leaving that town Mr. Meyers was driving. Three miles west of Grantsville is the approach down a long, winding hill to the stone arch bridge spanning Pursley Run, and on the west side of the stream the road again rises sharply, curving the traveler to the top of the mountain just at Keyser's Ridge. Approaching this bridge from the east and just at its entrance is a sharp and exceedingly dangerous turn to the left. It was at a point not more than a hundred feet east of the bridge that the marks left in the roadway by the Hinebaugh car and which were examined a few minutes after the accident took place by several who arrived at the scene, showed conclusively that the car had gotten beyond control of the driver and the emergency brake had been applied, which caused the car to skid, then turn over and roll down the roadway toward the bridge. It did not leave the road at any point and stopped just at the east portal of the bridge. Here a stranger on his way to Oakland found the car with Mr. Meyers so injured that at the time he was unable to give an account of himself, and Mr. Hinebaugh's lifeless body beneath the car. Finding an envelope with Mr. Hinebaugh's name and address upon it, he hurried on to Oakland and gave the facts and related the circumstances of the occurrence substantially as set out in this article.

In the meantime, however, the news concerning the accident reached Grantsville and a telephone message was sent to the Miners' Hospital at Frostburg for medical assistance and an ambulance in which to convey Mr. Meyers to that institution. Shortly after the message was sent the ambulance arrived and the injured man as well as the body of Mr. Hinebaugh was taken to that place. Bolden's ambulance from Oakland was then on the way to bring back the body of Mr. Hinebaugh but did not reach Pursley Run in time and was therefore compelled to go on into Frostburg, from which point with the body the ambulance reached Oakland about half past eight o'clock, where it was taken to the undertaking establishment of Mr. Bolden and prepared for burial. The funeral will take place from the home of the deceased at 2:30 this afternoon and will be in charge of the local lodge Knights of Pythias of which he was a member for many years.

Mr. Hinebaugh is survived by his aged mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinebaugh, of Oakland, and the following named children: Guy, Joseph, Arthur, Elwood, William, Mary and Martha. His wife died about three years ago, being a victim of the influenza, which was raging at that time. He is also survived by the following named brothers and sisters: Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, James O., Thaddeus C., Wade H., and Arthur; Mrs. Samuel E. Boyer, of Fairmont, West Va., and Mrs. John G. Robinson, of Gettysburg, Pa.

Mr. Meyers, after having his injuries treated at the Miners' Hospital at Frostburg and remaining there until yesterday afternoon returned to Oakland. His injuries are confined largely to bruises and abrasions about his face and a slight injury to his right leg.

MOUNTAIN LAKE DIRECTORS

Were Elected Recently With Mr. F. A. Thayer, President

Upon the occasion of the visit of Dr. George M. Fowles, treasurer of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, of New York, to the Park on last Tuesday he announced a meeting of the stockholders of the Mountain Lake Park Association, Dr. Fowles representing the sole owner of the stock (the Mission Board). The meeting was for the purpose of electing a board of directors to comply with the laws of the State of Maryland, and also for the purpose of considering other matters vitally concerning the future welfare and government of the Park.

The election of officers and directors resulted as follows: President, Mr. Fred A. Thayer, of Oakland; vice-pres., Elmer B. Jeffreys, Balto.; Dr. G. M. Fowles, of New York, general manager; Dr. Worthington B. Stutz, of Mountain Lake Park, secretary and treasurer; Dr. John F. Goucher, of Baltimore and Mr. John R. Edwards.

On Wednesday last the annual meeting of the Community of Mountain Lake Park was held which was attended by a large number of the property owners and resulted in the election of the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill; secretary, Mr. L. A. Rudisill; treasurer, Mr. M. M. Schrock; commissioner of streets and walks, Mr. H. V. Leighton; members of the annual committee, Messrs. E. E. Friend, W. G. Meyers, H. V. Leighton and Dr. Logan Carr.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our thanks to our many friends who came to our assistance during the last illness of our deceased husband and father.

Big workers from everywhere and the same work clothes every time

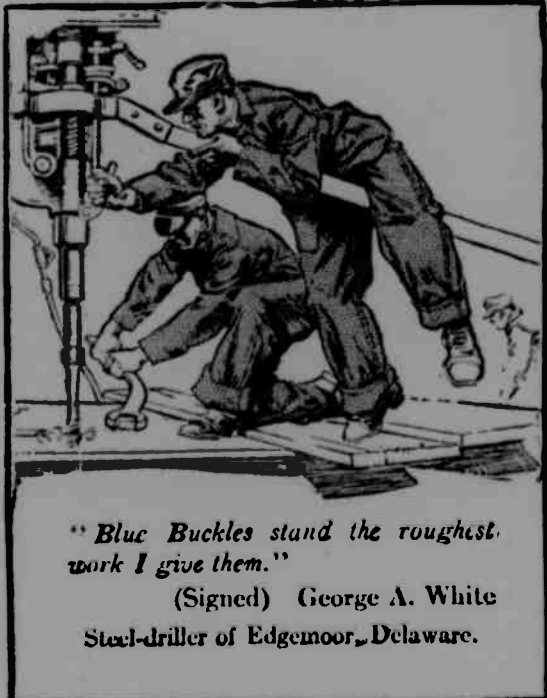

"Plowing—reaping—no matter what the farm work—Blue Buckles are the overalls to wear."
(Signed) Fred McCulloch
Leading corn grower of Hardwick, Ia., who raised an 88-bushel-per-acre crop.

"Tough as rawhide, big, roomy and comfortable—that's what I know about Blue Buckles."
(Signed) Fred Signer
Engineer of the Twentieth Century Limited.

"Every pair of Blue Buckles is always big, strong and comfortable."
(Signed) H. H. Moeller
Noted truck farmer of St. Ansgar, Ia., who makes his land net $250 to the acre.

"Blue Buckles stand the roughest work I give them."
(Signed) George A. White
Steel-driller of Edgemoor, Delaware.

PUTTING a hundred acres into garden truck—working on a thirty-story skyscraper—dashing along the rails in the cab of the Twentieth Century—every one of these workers is doing a different kind of job.

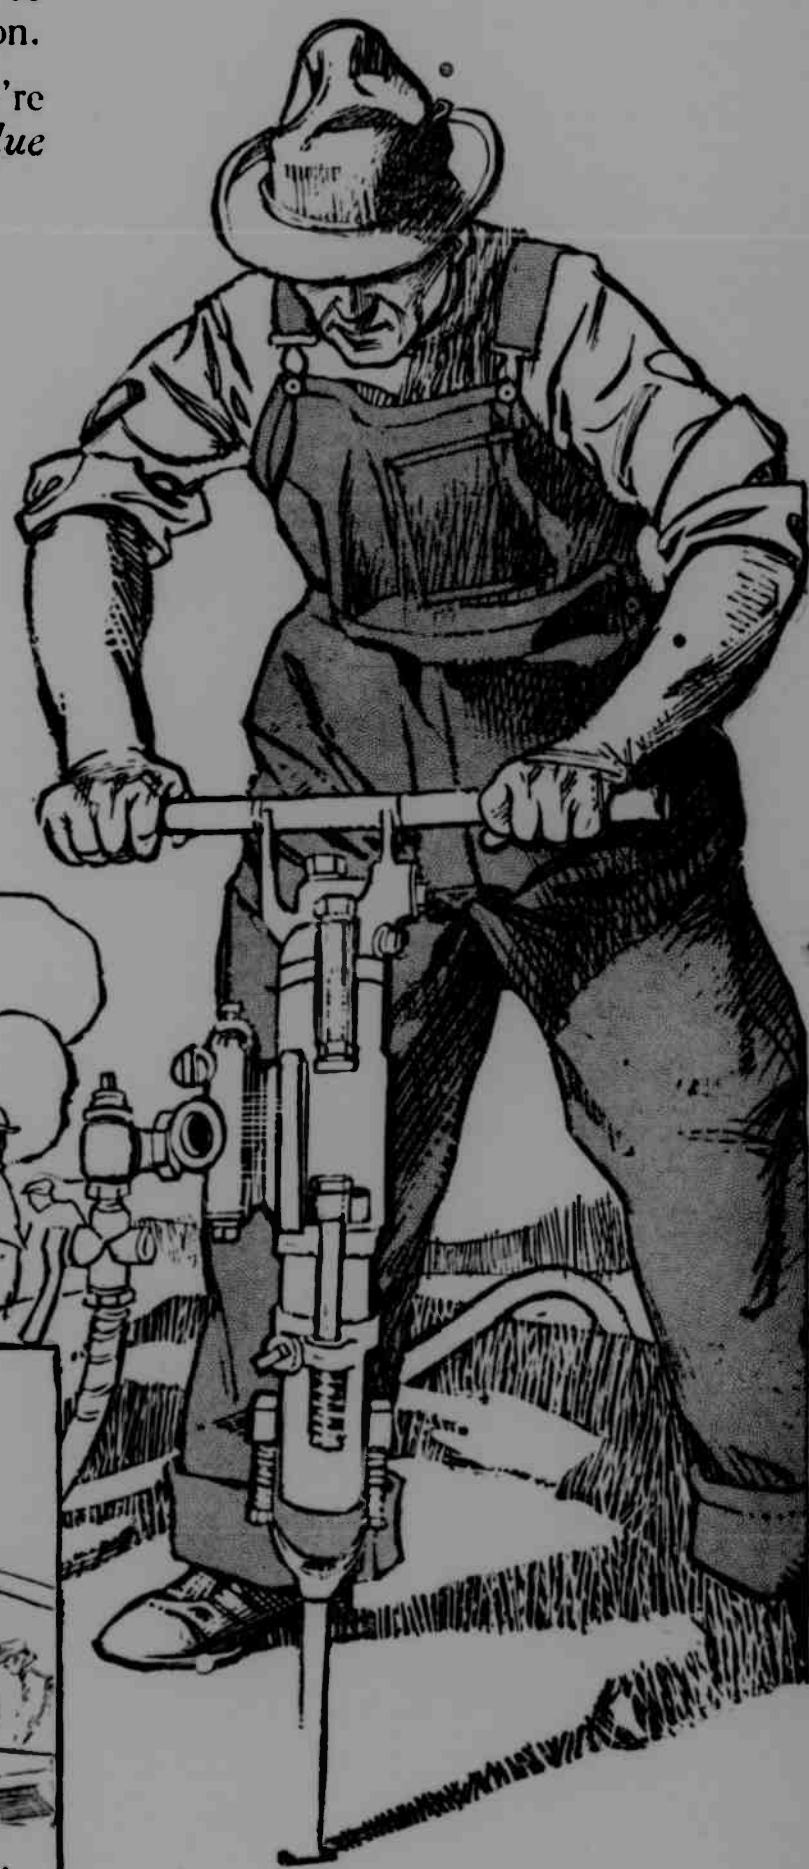

But when it comes to the best clothes for a man to wear on the job—that is one thing they all agree on.

They've all tried a lot of overalls, but today they're all strong for just one brand. They all wear Blue Buckles.

Like millions of other men on big jobs everywhere, they know that Blue Buckle Overalls meet every test of every kind of work. That is the reason Blue Buckles are the biggest selling overalls in the world.

Long wear is woven into the tough, thick denim cloth. Every pair is always big and roomy—always comfortable. The wide, double-stitched seams never rip. The heavy brass buttons and buckles don't rust or break. Every detail has the same sturdy, first-class workmanship—the same careful attention. Big, convenient pockets—extra wide suspenders, a solid backband, and free swing raglan sleeves on all the coats.

Wear, comfort, looks, you'll find them all in Blue Buckles. Ask your dealer for a pair today—Men's, Youths' and Children's sizes.

To DEALERS: If you want to know where to get Blue Buckles, write to Blue Buckle Overalls, Lynchburg, Va., and we will give you the name of your nearest jobber.

TAX SALE OF VALUABLE Real Estate IN GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in the Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland, by Section 52 of Chapter 566, of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the year 1890, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," and the several amendments thereto, the undersigned late Treasurer of said Garrett county, will, on SATURDAY, THE 7th DAY OF AUGUST, 1920,

at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Md., offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder the following described pieces and parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett County aforesaid, to-wit:

No. 1. Lot No. 4 in the town of Deer Park, as shown on the plan filed in the case of Henry G. Davis et al., vs. Charles Perry et al., the same being No. 2010 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany county, and which was conveyed to Roger Perry by deed recorded in Allegany county, Maryland, and described in said equity proceeding. Said lot is located in Election District No. 10 of said Garrett county and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the assessment books of said Garrett county in the name of Roger Perry's Heirs.

No. 2. All the coal underlying portions of the tracts of land called "MILL SEAT" and "ADDITION TO MILL SEAT," which is fully described in a deed for the same from Rebecca Brown to James M. Friend dated the 13th day of January, 1906, which is recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 50, folio 538, excepting the quantity of five acres conveyed to George H. Long by deed dated Nov. 8, 1906, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 54, folio 133, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, and also the quantity of 17 acres conveyed to D. A. Turney by deed dated December 24th, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 54, folio 207, one of the Land Records of Garrett county. Said land is located in Election District No. 2 of Garrett county and the quantity hereby intended to be sold consists of 19 acres. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the year 1918 as is charged upon the assessment books of said Garrett county in the name of James Friend.

No. 3. All that lot, piece or parcel of land known as "OPHELIA," containing the quantity of fifty acres, and being the same tract that was conveyed by deed from Peter Opel to Frank W. Hicks and Stanton D. Sipe bearing date the 19th day of March, 1913, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 64, folio 497, one of the Land Records of said Garrett county, Maryland. Said tract of land is located in Election District No. 6 of said Garrett county, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the assessment books of said Garrett county in the name of the said Frank W. Hicks and Stanton Sipe.

No. 4. All those lots, pieces and parcels of land located in Election District No. 12 of Garrett county, Maryland, and known and designated as "Military Lots Nos. 2394 and 2395," containing the quantity of fifty acres each and being the same lots which were conveyed by John Speicher and wife to Sampson Butler by deed dated the 20th day of January, 1885, which was duly recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 10, folio 317, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1918 and 1919 as is charged upon the assessment books of said Garrett county in the name of the said Sampson Butler.

No. 5. All that lot, piece or parcel of land located in the village of Crollin, Garrett county Maryland, containing the quantity of one-half acre, and being the same lot of ground conveyed to John Bowe by John J. Hoover et al., by deed dated the 20th day of March, 1900, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 38, folio 267, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, said land being contained within the following courses and distances, to-wit: Beginning for the same at the railroad limits of the Preston Lumber Company and running thence North 25 degrees East, 8 feet to the northwest corner of Henry Brown's lot, and along the north side of an alley, and running thence South 86 1/4 degrees East, 155 feet, North 1 1/2 degrees East, 71 feet, thence North 89 degrees West, 124 feet to the railroad limits, and with it, 71 feet to the beginning, containing 1/4 of an acre. Said land is located in Election District No. 14 of Garrett county and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the assessment books of said Garrett county in the name of John Bowe.

No. 6. Four and one-third acres of land, being a part of the tract known as "BARNES' ENTERPRISE," located in Election District No. 11 of Garrett county, Maryland, and being the same lot or parcel of land which was conveyed and described in a deed for the same from John Barnes and wife to William J. Ross, bearing date the 18th day of April, 1888, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 13, folio 551, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the year 1919 as is charged upon the assessment books of Garrett County in the name of the said William J. Ross.

No. 7. MILITARY LOTS NUMBERS 2092 and 2093, containing the quantity of fifty acres each and being the same lots which are described in a deed for the same from Ross Compton, late Treasurer of Garrett county, Maryland, to George W. Enzie, bearing date the 13th day of October, 1891, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 19, folio 196, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland. Said lots are situate and lie in Election District No. 12 of Garrett County, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1918 and 1919 as is charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett county in the name of the said George W. Enzie.

No. 8. HUNDRED ACRES COAL LAND, located in Election District No. 12 of Garrett county, Maryland, and described as follows: Beginning for the same at a point where the 3rd line of Military Lot No. 2325 intersects the north side of a county road, it being on or near a bridge spanning Glade Run and running with said county road South 78 degrees West, 30 perches, South 82 degrees West, 40 perches, North 82 1/2 degrees West, 20 perches, North 32 1/2 degrees East 162 perches, North 11 1/2 degrees West, 27 perches, North 33 degrees West, 24 perches, North 33 1/2 degrees West 18 perches, North 2 1/2 degrees East, 12 perches, North 32 1/2 degrees West, 20 perches, then leaving the said county road, North 14 1/2 degrees East 162 perches and by a straight line to the beginning, and being the same land which was conveyed by John Speicher and wife to J. F. Brown, by deed dated Nov. 8, 1906, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 54, folio 133, one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1918 and 1919 as is charged upon the Assessment Books of said Garrett county in the name of the said J. GRANTSVILLE

Miss Ethel Stanton and Mr. Fay Miller, of this place, were married in Cumberland on Wednesday of last week, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. R. T. Smouse, the Rev. M. L. Enders officiating. The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stanton, of "The Maples," and the groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller, of Little Crossings and was one of the first volunteers from this place for his country's service. It is not known where the happy couple will make their home, but it is quite likely they will, after a brief honeymoon tour, remain beneath the bride's parental roof for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Folk had a housewarming party at their country home last Friday, the object being to move a summer house across the lot, placing it upon a new concrete foundation which will provide room for a commodious cellar and springhouse underneath. Seven men were engaged in the work of moving, which was done with the aid of a traction engine and completed by night. Mrs. Folk, with the competent assistance of a number of relatives, prepared a most bountiful meal for the men and a number of others, the following being partakers of her hospitality: Messrs. Emanuel Hershberger, A. G. Weimer, Joel Miller and Fred Folk; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Folk and children, Mrs. Simon Linggood, Mr. and Mrs. John Folk and children, Mrs. S. R. Getty, Miss Margaret A. Getty and Mrs. N. Miller and children.

Mr. L. H. Diefenbach has bought the small farm of the Kurtz brothers, Dennis and Leonard, south of Grantsville, possession to be given in the fall. Frank S. Durst, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, has bought Mr. Diefenbach's home at the east end of town. It is not known what plans the Kurtz brothers have made as yet for their future home.

A successful lawn fete was held on the Methodist church lawn under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society on Saturday. The weather was very favorable and everything was sold at an early hour the proceeds being intended for church improvement.

The Lutheran Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. John Zehner on Tuesday afternoon, the program being on Deaconess' Work. The annual election of officers resulted in the reelection of all the incumbents for another year. Two new honorary members were added to the society.

Little Jane Bowen had a birthday party on June 9th in honor of her 9th anniversary, her mother having invited a number of friends to celebrate the event. A birthday cake and other good things were in evidence and were greatly enjoyed by the small guests. Little Jane received a number of pretty gifts.

The National Hotel, which has been undergoing extensive repairs for the past month, is now open to the public and is greatly improved by the addition of six new bedrooms on the third floor and many other improvements.

Delegates elected to the County Sunday School Convention at the Cove which met on Saturday and Sunday were Mrs. Eva Bevans and Mrs. Jos. Beachy from the Reformed church; Miss Ethel Brouwer and Edith Swan, Methodist, and Misses Irma Swauger, Margaret Getty and Esther Zehner, from the Lutheran church. These delegates, in addition to a large number of other residents of the town, were present at the sessions of the convention, especially those of Sunday which were interesting, helpful and greatly improved by the addition of a new spool of white machine thread to the next service, which is on July 25th. This contribution is to be sent to India to aid in the lace making industry, which is part of the means of livelihood to the women of that country. A consignment of lace was made up by the missionary society here has been received and is very beautiful, much of it being already sold.

Mrs. W. D. Swan is visiting relatives at Point Pleasant, West Va. Don't forget the big community picnic at W. O. W. Park on July 31. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boniga and family, of Cumberland, are guests this week of their relatives, Mrs. John Zehner and Mrs. C. H. Hill.

Mrs. Jennie Bevans, of Connellsville, was the guest of relatives in Grantsville last week. Harry Bittinger, the 15-year-old son of Silas Bittinger, of New Germany, has been undergoing treatment for dropsy at the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland and is slightly improved.

C. J. Lichty was a Meyersdale visitor during the week. Mrs. Laraway and daughter Edna from Rockwood, have been guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. H. Miller.

Miss Grace Yutzy, who spent the past few weeks with her sisters, Mrs. Ida Hershberger and Mrs. C. A. Bender, left this week to spend several months in Jacksonville, Fla.

Dr. G. C. Keller has had his home greatly improved by the addition of a new front porch and fresh coat of paint.

Mrs. Catherine Schlossnagle, of the Cove, was the guest of Miss Gertie Hone on Sunday.

Miss Althea Engle, of Englewood, spent the week-end with Miss Margaret and A. Getty.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Ambell from Pittsburgh, are guests of their uncles, Messrs. Dennis and Leonard Kurtz.

Mrs. Jonas Folk is visiting her daughter at Bruceton, West Va. Misses Helen and Evelyn Beachy, graduates from the Dixmont school for nurses, spent last week with their father, Mr. Marshall Beachy.

Miss Anna Callaghan, of Washington, D. C., was the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. C. Bowen, on Saturday and Sunday.

A party of Frostburgers were at the Victoria Hotel for supper Sunday evening.

Mrs. V. L. Blocher has returned to her home from the Allegheny Hospital where she was undergoing treatment for the past several weeks, and is much improved.

Miss Myrtle Gletofsky spent a few days the past week at her home in Bittinger.

No. 2311 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain property in Garrett county in this state, which was mortgaged by the defendant to the plaintiff.

The bill states that on or about the 22nd day of January, 1918, the said defendant conveyed certain real estate, which is particularly described in the exhibit filed with said bill, unto the plaintiff, by way of mortgage, to secure the payment of the sum of $15,000.00, which was then due and owing by the said defendant to the plaintiff, and for which the said defendant gave his bond or writing obligating the same date, payable three years after date with interest thereon, interest payable semi-annually.

That said mortgage contained a condition that in default of payment of the principal or any part thereof, the mortgagee should foreclose, by a certain deed executed by the said H. R. Daugherty on the 27th day of September, 1919.

That to this day the principal of said indebtedness has been paid and no interest paid thereon, and that since the 22nd day of July, 1919, and that taxes levied and assessed on the property in Garrett county has been advanced by the defendant to become in arrears and that said property has been sold at tax sale, and afterwards redeemed by the plaintiff.

The bill then states and charges that default has been made in the covenants and conditions of said mortgage, and that the whole indebtedness with the accrued interest is now due and payable.

And further charges that the said J. K. Sloan and H. R. Daugherty are non-residents of the State of Maryland and do not reside therein.

It is thereupon, this 7th day of July, 1920, ordered, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of the order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks, before the 7th day of August, 1920, give notice to the said H. R. Daugherty, to appear on or before the 23rd day of August, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be made as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

TRUSTEE'S SALE
OF VALUABLE
Real Estate

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, bearing date June 24th, 1920, and passed in a cause in which Charles A. Ashby et al. are plaintiffs, and Paul Ashby et al. are defendants, the undersigned was appointed trustee to make sale of the real estate in the proceedings in said cause mentioned, and I hereby give notice that on SATURDAY, THE 21st DAY OF JULY, 1920,

at 2 o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer for sale at public auction all those parcels of land lying in Garrett county aforesaid, as follows:

Part of a tract of land called "BANK TERRITORY," containing 201 85-100 Acres. This land lies on the east face of Backbone Mountain, and contains 150 of the acres of said tract, and is situated in the town of Grantsville, and is unimproved but is susceptible of being converted into a good farm.

The following lots of the sub-division of the said Farm, in the suburbs of Oakland, Maryland, viz:

Lot 55, containing 5/8ths of an acre;
Lot 56, containing 1/2 an acre;
Lot 57, containing 1/2 an acre;
Lot 58, containing 3/4ths of an acre.
All these lots are fenced and in cultivation and will make desirable building lots.

A one-half undivided interest in Military Lots 1219 and 1223, containing 100 Acres. These Military Lots are unimproved and are located on Snaggy Mountain.

TERMS OF SALE.—As prescribed by the decree, Cash on day of sale. Conveyancing at cost of purchaser.

CHARLES A. ASHBY, Trustee.

Ban Removed The Finished Mystery

In magazine form June 1st. Every Christian and order loving person should read it. Explains the cause of the distress of nations, and foretells the blessings of the people in the near future. For the publication of this book during the war, many Christians suffered great persecution, being beaten, tarred and feathered, imprisoned and killed. Mark 13:9. The following is from the Golden Age, June 9th, 1920.

Accused Bible Students Exonerated.

"The officers of the International Bible Students Association, formerly known as Russellites, were indicted in May, 1918, tried before a court and jury and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for the alleged violation of the Espionage law. They applied for bail on appeal, but bail was denied and they were incarcerated in the penitentiary. At the end of nine months they were released on bail and two months later the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the judgment because 'they did not have a fair trial.' They were the only men in the country arrested under this act who were denied bail. The reversal of this judgment was equivalent to saying that these men were illegally and unjustly convicted and sentenced and illegally imprisoned. (On May 5th 1920, on motion of the United States District Attorney, the cases were dismissed, thus completely removing the charge and vindicating each one of them.)"

The Finished Mystery explains fully the prophecies of Revelations and Ezekiel, also "The Bridal Anthem," Solomon's Songs.

This book is no longer under the ban and all may now have it. Price in magazine form, 20 c. per copy, post paid.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Most people think of the United States as a big institution, with many diverse interests, but the principal business of which is to aid its people in lines of business, health, agriculture, and general welfare.

If called upon to cite the activities of the federal government that make for general welfare, the average citizen will cite the Department of Agriculture, the Public Health Service, the Bureau of Mines, the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Education, the Children's Bureau, the Women's Bureau, and so on.

It will be surprising to that citizen to learn that all the scientific, educational, developmental work of his government
—the activities that mean better health —more intelligent citizenship, better crops, better herds, better people—the activities of the Agricultural Department, the life-saving work of the Bureau of Mines, the Bureau of Education, the land-grant colleges, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Women's Bureau, and the scientific work of the Geological Survey, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Bureau of Standards and the Smithsonian Institution—for all this work that goes to produce happiness, the U. S. A. is spending only one cent out of every dollar appropriated for 1920.

What happens to the other 99 cents?
Six cents of it goes for the primary functions of the government—the legislative, executive and judicial machinery and the State Department.

And the other 93 cents?
Every cent of it goes to pay for war
—war, past and future.

One cent for happiness; ninety-three cents for misery. That is Uncle Sam's record. Can nothing be done to change the ratio in the future?

COX AND BOX HARMONY.

Like most like, according to White House accounts, when Governor Cox was received by President Wilson. The mingling of minds and hearts which this interview produced had a pertur-bing effect on the only third party present, Franklin D. Roosevelt. But Roosevelt is not usually ecstatic. But this scene of Sunday morning moved him to say: "I wish that every American present could have been a silent witness to the meeting between these two great men."

Let us hope that at least Colonel House and Ex-Secretary Lansing were "silent witnesses" in the spirit.
On what did the "two great men" agree? Mr. Wilson reports: "I found that he and I were absolutely at one with regard to the great issue of the League of Nations and that he is ready to be the champion in every respect of the honor of the nation and the secure peace of the world."

Governor Cox echoes: "We are agreed as to the meaning and sufficiency of the Democratic platform and the duty of the party in the face of threatened bad faith to the world in the name of America. . . . 'What he promised I shall, if elected, endeavor with all my strength to give.'"

These statements may be subject, like the covenant itself, to future interpretations and reservations. Governor Cox brought two League reservations to Washington. He may construct later some Columbus, Ohio, reservations to the program of "what he promised I shall endeavor with all my strength to give." But seemingly, as far as the President can control the situation, the Democratic nominee is now pledged to continue Mr. Wilson's fight for a ratification of the treaty on the latter's own terms—that is, with no reservations or with reservations which will be merely "supererogatory."

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Great Gathering of Workers At Cove
Saturday and Sunday Last.

The annual Garrett County Sunday School convention held at St. John's Lutheran church in the Cove, one of the beauty spots of this section, on last Saturday night and all day on Sunday, proved to be one of the greatest gatherings of Sunday school workers and attendants that the county has had in several years. Sunday schools from practically all over the county were represented, and deep interest was manifested in the work being done. So great was the attendance on Sunday that during the morning service the church could not accommodate more than about one-third of those who came and it was necessary to hold the afternoon services in a grove nearby.

At the opening session on Saturday evening the County President, Mr. E.
R. Jones, presided, and addresses were made by Rev. L. K. Young, of Accident; State Secretary, Almer B. Brown, and President Rosa D. Murphy of Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Md. All spoke along the lines of a Sunday school work and the interest to which great interest by an audience which filled the church.

Sunday morning addresses were delivered by President Murphy on "Missions in the Sunday School," Prof.
Arthur F. Smith, of Lonaconing, on "Training for Leadership," and Miss Katherine Orr, of Lonaconing, on "Elementary Work." All the speakers were given close attention and the addresses were of great interest.

Following the morning session, dinner was served by the people of the Cove in the grove on Mrs. Brown's farm near the church and an abundant of good things had been provided for those in attendance at the convention. In addition to this, a large number of those present brought dinner baskets, the contents of which were enjoyed heartily by the many present.

From one thirty until three in the afternoon group meetings were held in the grove. Superintendents met with the State Secretary and Mr. C.
B. Calla, County First Vice President; adult workers, with President Murphy; young people's workers with Prof. A. F. Smith and Rev. L. K.
Young, and workers in the children's department with Mrs. Benj. H. Sin-cell and Miss Katherine Orr. Some very interesting conferences were held during this hour. Following these, State Secretary Brown spoke to the assembled crowd on the topic, "Garrett County for 1920," laying stress upon the need for adequate and trained leadership. As this address contained many interesting facts relative to the work of the county, it will appear practically in full in the next issue of The Republican. During the afternoon song service, Mrs. S. E. Wicker rendered a beautiful solo.

At the evening session, following the devotional service, matters of business were taken up and the following officers were elected for the coming year:
President, Mr. E. R. Jones, Oakland; first, second and third vice presidents, respectively, Mr. M. H. Lohr, Grantville; Mr. J. Englehart, Accident; Mr. C. J. Otto, New Germany; county treasurer, Mr. John W. Ream,
Mt. Lake Park; recording secretary,
Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, Oakland; superintendent of children's work, Mrs. B.
H. Sincell, Oakland; superintendent of young people's work, Rev. Frank Mc-Camie, Grantville; superintendent of the women's work, Mrs. J. E. Johnson, Mt. Lake Park. The other places in the cabinet including the district secretaries, were left to be filled by the county executive committee and will be announced later.

The committee on resolutions presented the following, which was unanimously adopted by the convention:
Resolved, that we, the Garrett County
Sunday School Association, in convention assembled, do hereby resolve that we do hereby extend to St.
John's Lutheran church of Cove, Md., our hearty thanks and sincere appreciation for their generosity and hospitality accorded the visitors to this convention.

Second, We do hereby extend our thanks and appreciation to Dr. Murphy, of Blue Ridge College, for his presence and most excellent discourses.
Third, We do hereby extend our thanks and appreciation to Prof. A.
F. Smith and Miss Katherine Orr, of Lonaconing, for their presence and assistance rendered in the convention.
Fourth, Be it further resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that we do hereby condemn race track gambling and Sunday amusements, including moving pictures, and favor the passage of a bill in Maryland Legislature prohibiting the same within the State.

Fifth, Be it further resolved, That we in convention assembled do hereby request and most earnestly urge our State and Federal officials for a strict enforcement of the Volstead act and protest against any repeal or liberalization of said Act.

Sixth, Resolved, that the thanks of this convention are hereby given to our efficient County Chairman Mr. E.
R. Jones, for his able management and the interest he has taken in making the Garrett County Sunday School Association a success.

NELSON BRENNEMAN,
Mrs. J. A. BEACHY,
MABEL L. FALKENSTEIN,
HENRY M. SPEICHER

The question of the meeting place of the next convention was then taken up and Accident being in central location and accessible to all parts of the county was selected. The date to be determined later.

Following the business session, Rev.
S. E. Wicker delivered an excellent address on "Ambition in Leadership," State Secretary Brown spoke on the program for the coming year, outlining the goals to be worked for which includes a ten per cent. increase all along the line, and the closing address of the convention was then given by President Murphy of Blue Ridge college who in the several addresses which he gave during the convention delighted and greatly interested those who heard him. Special music was rendered by the choir and by Mrs. S.
E. Wicker, of Oakland.

A number of reports from Sunday Schools were late in coming in and a complete list of the Schools entitled to places on the Honor Roll could not be compiled in time for this week's issue of The Republican but these will appear next week together with other interesting news relative to the convention and plans for the coming year.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. John B. Crane, of Fairmont, is at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Crane in Loch Lynn for a visit.

More than a thousand persons attended last Wednesday night's session of the great Pittsburgh Conference
Epworth League Institute in the Auditorium here. Lynn Rohrbach made his inaugural address. He is the now-elected Pittsburgh area Epworth League secretary, whose territory extends from Lake Erie to and including Mountain Lake Park. The Pittsburgh area includes Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mr.
Rohrbach made a most favorable impression upon the vast audience of young people who had come to this place on the Saturday preceding in a special train to hold their annual convention or institute.

The local Methodist Episcopal church present from New York, Washington and Pittsburgh declared this to be the greatest gathering of young people ever held in this section of the country, far surpassing institutes of other years.

At various services the latter part of last week that great and brainy man, Bishop Berry, the father of the Epworth League movement in the United States, delivered sermons to the assembled Leaguers. The service on Saturday night was most remarkable for those in attendance. The institute consecrated themselves to some branch of service within the church, either as ministers, home or foreign missionaries or as workers in other lines of Christian citizenship.

Sunday evening the final meeting of the institute was held at which Bishop Berry again preached with fervor and understanding. The service was attended by hundreds from all parts of the country.

Monday morning the Pittsburgh contingent left the Park in their own special train, but before going it was unanimously decided that the next annual institute shall be held at the Park when a crowd in excess of a thousand Leaguers will be present.

The death on Friday evening of Miss Mary Clauson, of McKees Rocks, Pa., following an attack of pneumonia which was brought about after Miss Clauson had been rescued from the lake in which she was one of a large number of bathers, cast a gloom upon the assembly. She was one of the delegates to the institute.
Her age was 21 years and a few months. On Saturday morning her body was sent to her late home, being accompanied thence by about fifty of her fellow delegates. At a meeting of the institute following a memorial fund was started which will be perpetually maintained in her memory.

Monday the Epworth League of the Baltimore-Washington Conference, embracing largely the churches of Baltimore and Washington, began a week's institute. The delegates, five hundred in number, arrived on a special train at four o'clock in the afternoon and the arrangements at the Park being so perfected that all the new arrivals had been housed and a wonderfully interesting and interesting meeting was held the same evening in the Amphitheatre.

The speakers for this week include
Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington; Dr. Clarence True Wilson and Dr. John R. Mott, of New York, and others.

The program for the week beginning tomorrow night is as follows:
Bishop William F. McDowell, of Washington, who is well known to many readers of The Republican, will lecture Friday evening.

Sunday morning at 10:30 Chaplain
McCoy, will have charge of the service and deliver the sermon.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 a platform meeting, in which a number of well known people will take part, will be held in the Auditorium.

On Sunday evening, Dr. Clarence
True Wilson, of Washington, D. C., secretary of temperance and public morals, will preach upon a popular subject.

Monday, July 26, 8 o'clock, Dr. Anthony H. Krug, in "Sidney Lanier."
This will be followed by Prizma pictures.

On Tuesday Dr. James M. Taylor will appear twice. At 2:30 he will lecture on "Mexico in Transition," and at 8:00 o'clock in the evening he will again lecture, his subject being "Kidnapped by the Mexicans," to be followed by Prizma pictures.

Mrs. Marian Fell Hart will read at 2:30 in the afternoon of Wednesday
"The Melting Pot," and on Wednesday evening a great motion picture
"Freddie" will be presented.

On Thursday Homer Rolchewer, the musical director of Billy Sunday's evangelistic meetings, will appear in two entertainments with his own company of artists.

The attendance at the Pittsburgh Institute of the Epworth League numbered 666 with an enrollment of 710.

MCHENRY

J. L. Knox and family spent Sunday at the home of Garfield Glatfelter.

Mrs. Bud Lenhart and family, of Uniontown, Pa., spent Sunday at the home of George Glatfelter. Mrs. Glat-felter and daughter Annabelle accompanied them home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Parker, of Pittsburgh, are spending some time with relatives and friends here.

Mrs. Cyrus Stark and her son and daughter returned to their home at Salisbury, Pa., Friday after having spent some time here with Mrs. Stark's daughter, Mrs. Walter Glatfelter, who gave a birthday surprise party for her mother, at which a large number of invited guests were present. Mrs.
Stark was the recipient of many valuable presents. Dainty refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Deal and three small children spent Saturday evening and Sunday at the home of their uncle

T. A. Miller at Somerfield.

Mr. Sidney Harvey and family, Mr.
Elsey Taylor and others of this community spent Sunday at Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Esther Glatfelter, who fell and injured herself very severely some time ago, is, I am glad to state, very much improved at this time.

The Melleny Club girls will hold a lawn fête in the Brennenas grove
Saturday night, July 31. Good eats, and all are most cordially invited to attend.

Rev. Ireland preached a very interesting sermon for us on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke McLean and two daughters, Pearl and Beulah, and Miss Nellie Huff attended the Sunday School convention at the Cove on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. George Glatfelter is improving his house by having it painted.

Mr. Mahlon Bailey's sister and family are visiting here at this time.
Miss Elsie Skiles is visiting her sisters, Mrs. John Long and Mrs. Clarence Fraker.

Mr. and Mrs. John Long spent Sunday with Mrs. Long's sister at Mountain Lake Park.

Mr. Charles R. Hecker, of Johnstown, Pa., visited "Elmhurst" on Tuesday last where he was the guest of Jerry J. Pendergast.

Dr. N. L. Broadwater, of Oakland, was a personal visitor to Hutton on Saturday.

Mr. Graham E. Johnson was a business visitor to Terra Alta one evening last week.

Mr. Shriver, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. Ostermeier, of New York City, arrived in Hutton on Friday morning, where they expect to remain for somewhat longer than a week.

Miss Margaret Connell, a recent graduate nurse of the Jefferson Hospital, of Philadelphia, Pa., came to Hutton on Thursday where she will spend the summer vacation with her parents, Merchant and Mrs. John A.
Connell.

Mr. Frank Grainger, of Piedmont, W.
Va., passed through Hutton on Sunday morning en route to Terra Alta, where he visited friends.

Master Howard Welch, the son of conductor Chas. Welch, of the B. & O.
R. R., returned to his home in Cumersland on Wednesday evening after spending a most delightful visit of three weeks with friends in the mountain village.

Mr. Earl Delaney and family, of Parsons, W. Va., came to Hutton on Saturday where the former has acquired employment with the tanning company.

Freeland, of New York, was here a few days last week visiting friends.
Mrs. Sylvester Markley, went to Scully Falls on the Sabbath where she visited her former home and attended the celebration in honor of her grandfather, Mr. William Sines, whose natal day occurred on Tuesday, this being his one hundredth anniversary.
We learn that he is enjoying perfect health, and is quite hale and hearty at this period of advanced age, being very active in his custom to take long walks each morning on the farm where he resides when weather conditions are such as to enable to be out and around. The writer trusts that he may be spared to his people for many days yet to come.

Mrs. Ross Wolfe, of Fairmont, W.
Va., was visiting friends in Hutton on Tuesday.

A number of Hutton people visited Oakland on Saturday.

THE GARRETT COUNTY FAIR

Now Is The Time To Begin The Preparation Of Your Exhibits.

Now is the time to begin preparing exhibits for the County Fair. Don't wait until the last minute and then grab up something half selected and half prepared and bring to the Fair and think you have done your duty in making an exhibit. Every farmer in the county has something that is worthy to be exhibited if he would only select and prepare it in time.

Select now a sheaf of wheat before the grain is cut, or a head of corn before it is put in the shock. You can make a better selection while the grain is standing than at any other time. Prepare a sheaf of wheat, or a head of corn, bind loosely and let cure in the shade, then fix it as attractively as possible for the exhibit. A sheaf of oats, rye, barley and buckwheat, when ripe, should be selected and prepared in the same way; and a sample of the threshed grain of each should also be selected, cleaned and exhibited with each sheaf. However, this is not compulsory, as some may not have threshed at the time of holding the Fair. It has been demonstrated that the best grain in the State is produced in Garrett county, in quality as well as yield and the grain exhibit at the Fair in Oakland should be further proof of this fact.

Now is the time to select samples of grasses, too. Premiums are offered for the best samples of alfalfa, timothy, mixed hay, clover, sweet clover, soy beans, peas, etc. Prepare a bundle about the size of a sheaf of wheat, bind it attractively and exhibit it. Let this exhibit be an index of the splendid quality of hay produced in Garrett county.

The premium list in all departments is about the same as last year. The premiums offered have been increased materially in many cases.

The catalogue is now in the hands of the printers and will be issued in a short time.

The management solicits the co-operation of every person in Garrett county, and especially the co-operation of the farmers in making the Fair a success. The management will do its part if you will do yours. So let's make this a real agricultural Fair—one that you will be proud to have your friends from the adjoining counties and states to attend.

Let The Wild Cats Alone!

Every now and then somebody calls to ask for our opinion of some get-rich-quick scheme in which he or she has been asked to invest. For several years past the country has been flooded with bonanzas (?), and many people, to their sorrow, have put money into them.

Occasionally some good but misguided man, who has already bought a "wild cat" stock, calls on us seeking information. We like always to be encouraging, but on such occasions we feel very much as we imagine the doctor does who has to tell his patient the worst.

It is for the reason that there are very bad as well as very good securities that we advise prospective investors in any issue to investigate it thoroughly.

THE DEATH RECORD.

HENRY MANN.
At his home in Mountain Lake Park on Wednesday of last week, after an illness of only a few days, Henry Mann, at an advanced age. His remains were interred in the Oakland cemetery on Saturday. The deceased is survived by his wife and three children: Mrs. Sawyer, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Carrie and Milburn W. Mann, of Mountain Lake Park.

MISS MARY STANTON.
Miss Mary Stanton, of Little Crossings, near Grantsville, died at her home last Thursday, was buried from St. Ambrose church, Grantsville, on Friday at ten o'clock. There was a solemn high mass with Rev. Father Aloysius as celebrant and assistants from Sts. Peter and Paul, Cumberland. Rev. J. J. Brady, of Meyersdale, and Rev. Father McCarthy, of Salisbury, were also in the sanctuary. Miss Stanton recently underwent a surgical operation to relieve her of gall stones and it was thought until a few days prior to her demise that she was well on the way toward recovery and complete restoration to health, but complications arose and her death ensued much to the regret of a large circle of friends and her immediate family. The choir at the funeral was composed of voices from Sts. Peter and Paul's of Cumberland and of Salisbury. Miss Stanton is survived by one brother, Mr. Uriah M. Stanton, and two sisters, Miss Ruth Stanton and Mrs. Allen Blocher, all of Grantsville.

Margaret Ellen Whetsell Baldwin. Entered into rest, June 13, 1920, Margaret Ellen Whetsell Baldwin, of Mountain Lake Park, Maryland, aged 73 years, 10 months and 11 days. A noble, Christian woman, a devoted mother, a friend loved and beloved by all who knew her. She lived these years and nearly fourteen years a life filled with countless loving deeds of thoughtfulness for others, and, finally, after long years of service in God's vineyard, she passed on. She died as she lived, peacefully and prepared.

The funeral was held from her late home in Mountain Lake Park, where impressive services were conducted by the Rev. Paul Flanigan, an old friend of hers, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Bissell, pastor of the Mountain Lake Park M. E. church, of which Mrs. Baldwin was a devout member. Interment was made in the Deer Park cemetery. A FRIEND.

Mrs. Lawrence Toats, of Terra Alta, was in Oakland shopping on Tuesday. Mr. Charles E. Linger, of Terra Alta, spent yesterday in Oakland on business. Miss Helena Marquess, of Cumberland, was a guest of Miss Lucy Trickett and other friends.

GARRETT BEST WHEAT COUNTY

In Maryland As She Produced Greater Yield Per Acre and Took First Prize

Garrett County is at the top of the world, so one would think viewing the peaceful valleys and sloping hills from an eminence located anywhere within the confines of our great county, but in reality Garrett county is not so high after all, geographically speaking, but from an agricultural standpoint she tops everything in Maryland in wheat production.

For the purpose of stimulating the production of this most important cereal, three state-wide contests were organized by the Food Administration during the war which covered the 1919 crop, with prizes offered totaling $4500. Contest A's conditions were as follows: Best yield per acre of wheat harvested in 1919, minimum entry of 25 acres, $1000, $500, $250. Messrs. H. Weber and Sons Co., of Oakland, was the only contestant in Garrett county in this class and on last Thursday afternoon the head of the firm, Mr. William Weber, received from the authorities of the Maryland University a check for $1,000, the firm having been awarded the prize over a multitude of contestants from nearly every county in the state.

Garrett county can do things that are noteworthy and this is one of them. When it is taken into consideration that other counties of the State, notably Frederick, Washington, Carroll and Howard, have been looked up to by not only Marylanders but by people from all the eastern states as having the best and most productive farmland on the Atlantic seaboard, the fact that our own county stands out as the prize winner in this contest makes it a source of self-congratulation.

The method of determining the yield was as follows: From the 223 of a contest, by means of a check, the number of measures exactly 15000 acre, the wheat of ten plots was taken, these plots being so distributed over the fields as to represent a fair average for the whole. The samples taken were carefully sacked and sent to the Maryland State College of Agriculture, where they were carefully threshed and the yields computed.

In his report of the contest the College head, Dr. Symons, says in a circular issued on last Thursday and which accompanied the check sent to County Agent Towler for delivery to the Weber firm:

"It soon became evident that according to the samples sent to the College, the result was going to be very close. On account of this and in view of the fact that this is the first time that the plot method has been used to determine yield in a contest and also because the samples were taken by a different man in each county, it was thought wise to call for the threshing records from some counties were very low coming in, and not till recently have we been able to secure enough records from all the counties to make this comparison."

Results of Contest A—Greatest yield per acre from 25 acres or more: First prize, the H. Weber & Sons Co., Garrett county, yield per acre 35.03; second prize, J. R. Selby, Howard county, yield per acre, 33.28; third prize, E. W. Jackson, Cecil county, yield per acre, 34.5.

Misses Julia Liston, of Selbyspoor, and Marie and Helen Custer, of Friendsville, returned to The Republican office Tuesday upon the occasion of their visit to the county seat when they brought to Oakland Mr. and Mrs. Harry Custer, of Grafton, who took the train from this point for their home in the above city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll A. Elliott and their guests Mr. and Mrs. John Fischer, of Pittsburg, who left Oakland last Tuesday for a ten days' camping trip along the South Branch of the Potomac, returned to Oakland Tuesday afternoon, their return being hastened on account of the muddy condition of the water of the river which precluded fishing.

Former County Treasurer C. A. Beachy, of Grantsville, Mr. H. H. Wiley, of Bittering, Messrs. C. W. and David Friend, of Friendsville, and one or two others from that section of the county spent yesterday in Oakland as witnesses in a case which was heard and determined by Judge A. Hunter Boyd, the matter involving title to some land sold at tax sale several months ago by Mr. Beachy.

Prof. C. Edward Bender, of Bluffton, Ohio, where he has just been engaged at a very nice salary as superintendent of the city schools of that place, spent yesterday in Oakland packing some of his furniture for shipment to his new home. Mr. Bender motored to Oakland from Grantsville, where he has been visiting his brothers, Messrs. J. J. and Charles A. Bender, for a few days. Mrs. Bender and their two children are on a visit to relatives at her former home, Williamsport, Pa.

Mr. Leo J. Rasche, formerly of Oakland, who became acquainted with the mechanical end of the newspaper business in The Republican office when he was still a young lad, arrived in his old home town Tuesday afternoon from New York where he has been engaged for some months past as news editor of the Hearst publications of that city and will spend two weeks here with his mother and sisters. At the outbreak of the World War Mr. Rasche was doing newspaper work in a Southern city. He at once enlisted in the service and was sent overseas where he remained for several months after the armistice was signed and came home with his outfit about a year ago. His many friends in Oakland will be pleased to learn of his present position, which is one of great responsibility and trust.

Estray Notice.

There came to my farm, located 2 miles south of Swanton and 5 miles north of Kitzmiller on or about July 1st, a stray cow with bell on, dun in color, one horn drooping and the other standing straight out. Owner will please call, pay all costs and damages and take the animal away. F. M. BRAY.

GOODYEAR

AVILTON
The farmers of this section are preparing to harvest their crops of grass and wheat. Quite a crowd of young people from this section attended the dance at St. Anne's hall Saturday evening and report having had a splendid evening's entertainment. Mr. Guy McKenzie has purchased a new Chevrolet car. Mr. O. S. Fike and his brother Marshall and two sons, Ross and Charles, of Markleysburg, Pa., are visiting in some of the western states. George Grove has the management and work of the farm in Mr. Fike's absence. Miss Rose Skidmore, of Frostburg, spent last Saturday evening and Sunday here with Miss Blanche Layman. Jesse Merrill and family spent last Sunday in Meyersdale with relatives. Miss Laura Fike, who is attending school in Frostburg, spent Saturday night and Sunday with home folks. Messrs. Samuel Otto and Arnold Jenkins were engaged in grading the roads in this section last week. Harvey Custer, of Jennings, is putting up the foundation for Mr. Enoch Robeson's new dwelling house. George Grove and Guy McKenzie made a business trip to Grantsville one day last week. Quite a number of our young people attended the party given by Miss Blanche Layman at her home Saturday night and all report a good time. Messrs. Thomas Hetz and Gary McKenzie were visitors at the home of O. S. Fike Sunday. Rev. Swan, of Grantsville, preached a very interesting sermon at the Avilton school house Sunday afternoon. Rev. David M. Merrill, who has been unable to be about for the past three months or more, does not seem to be much improved. We all hope for his speedy recovery for Mr. Merrill is greatly missed in Sunday school and also in the pulpit. John Weitzell made a business trip to Lonaconing last Friday. Masters Ellis and Forest Robeson went to Oakland last Monday where they stood examinations as to their qualifications as operators of automobiles. Perry Broadwater has gone to the Cove to assist in harvesting the crops in that section. Squire Brown is busy working the roads at present.

BITTINGER

We are getting showers daily. And it makes the farmers fret; But cheer up, Brother Bailey. We will get the sunshine yet. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Osborne and little daughter, of Baltimore, are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. James Speicher and family in this village. The Brethren of the Mennonite church held special services in their Glades Chapel on last Sunday. A number of the folks from this community attended the afternoon sessions of the County Sunday School convention in the Cove on last Sunday. Messrs. Peter and William Kahl, of Accident, are doing some painting for their patrons here. Sheriff Roy O. Winters, of Oakland, came to this village one day last week in quest of a violator of the law but did not succeed in making a capture. Mr. B. H. Wiley, recently of the Kendall Supply Company, of Crellin, is now at home near here and will remain indefinitely. Mrs. Amos Recknor, North Glade, visited relatives here on Sunday. On account of the shortage of the car supply, a temporary cessation of operations at the mines of the Phillips Coal Mining Company located near here, has resulted. Mr. W. A. Smith, of Hloyes, with some of the linemen of the Garrett County Telephone Company did some much needed repair work on the telephone line between here and Accident last week. Mr. Daniel W. Warn, of Avilton, was a pleasant business visitor among us a few days ago.

Make More Money with a Case Baler

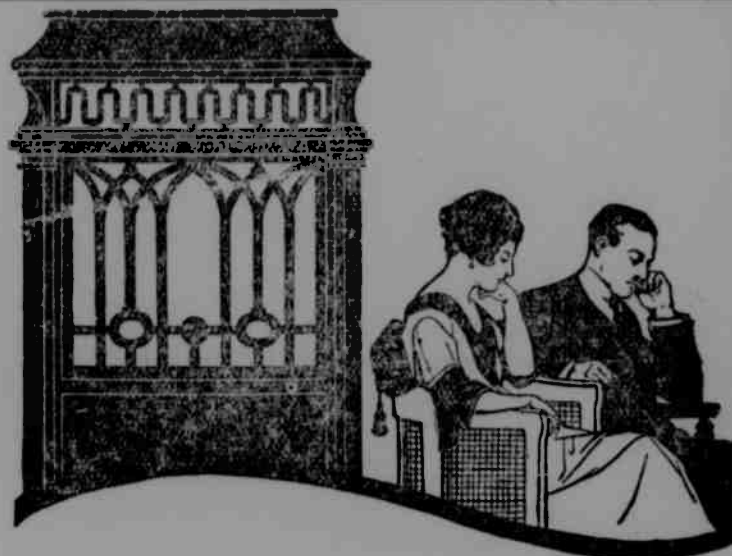

INCREASE your farm equipment by getting a Case Baler. Work your tractor the year round. There is big money in baling hay. Hay must be baled to be shipped. Case balers are built to make clean, square bales of the usual desired weights and to do the work quickly. They are constructed simply. They are built with a sturdiness that spells durability. These balers are made in two sizes, the 16x18 with a capacity of 3 to 4 tons per hour, and the 17x22, with an output of 3 1/2 to 5 tons per hour. Both of these are belt power machines. We also build a sweep power baler for the man who has no engine. These are built entirely of steel, save tongue, feed table and division blocks. You should know more about these balers. Come in and see us. We have something that will interest you.

David succeeds Saul. II Sam. 2:1-7.

5:1-5. Read chapters 1-5.

T ut in Jehovah with all thy heart, An lean not upon thy own understanding. Proverbs 3:5.

WH N THE BOTTOM FELL OUT OF THE WORLD.

Blanched faces among the aged villagers, wails of distress from the women spread in ever widening circles of dismay southward from Mt. Gilboa upon which lay the finest of the Hebrew soldiery. "All is lost! Saul and his sons are dead!" was the cry of the fugitives from the sodden field. The bottom had fallen out of their world. All the toil of the year was gone and once more they were to feel the roughness of the Philistine yoke. They had hoped for such a different result from their sacrifices made willingly and eagerly for their land of promise. Thru all the bitter years of Saul's rule they had seen the constantly increasing strength of the organization built under his leadership until the trade routes thro Edsraelion were threatened and Philistia made her supreme effort to clear them from the menace threatening her life. And in spite of Saul's growing despondency, the loss of David's magnetic leadership, Judah's defection for all her chiefs were home when David's gift was sent and this was not after the return from Gilboa, Jonathan's gallantry and the proved quality of their fighters were counted upon to bring again the victory. There had been but little prayer for the religious element had been crushed or had fled to escape the wrath of the King's that the whole movement was robbed of its finest quality for the Hebrew must have the stimulus of religion to conquer on any field. But the overwhelming disaster made Israel a veritable Germany in her despair though not in her attitude. There is not a record white. There was the same feeling when Rome was overthrown and again when the foundations of the old order have been swept from beneath us we are still wondering what the outcome will be and if it is possible to establish a just and ordered world. Behind the banner of the Jordan valley Saul's son was seated on an unsteady throne. Even here he was forced to accept the position of vassal to the triumphant conqueror and probably paid tribute. A mere puppet king under Abner's direction there was little constructive work attempted even if it had been permitted. But a shadowy government existed and there was splendid loyalty to the memory of that first monarch. So far had he justified the undertaking that there was no whisper anywhere of a change in the form of government the kingdom idea was established never to be removed. But the fabric grew more and more frayed toward west and south where touched Philistia and Judah. For in Judah David was enthroned. The acknowledged and faithful vassal of Achish of Gath was doubtless encouraged by his overlord to assume control in Judah. There must have been some nerve-racking moments for David as he led his men toward Gilboa for it is morally certain that he would never have contributed to Saul's defeat. Delivered from the dilemma he used the time to save the homes of his men, to make a famous ruling about the division of booty and to conciliate the Judahite chieftains by regal gifts. Then he took his men back home, sat on his house-keeping in Hebron and received the homage of the leaders of that south-land. They anointed him King and two little principles began to function and to strive for the mastery in the land. The he knew now the meaning of Samuel's visit to the Bethlehem boy that early call must wait the confirmation of the people's will for David was essentially democratic. And God's will must always wait upon the acceptance of the people before it becomes a fact in the world of life. God certainly did not wish slavery but not until the world was ready could it be abolished. God certainly abhorred war as the means of settlement of national affairs but His will must tarry until man is ready to adopt it. This is the urgency of Christian missions that the world may be made ready to adopt the plan of God for its life.

THE MARCH TO THE THRONE. "Make every knock a boost," is the advice of one of the successful. David managed to accomplish this seemingly impossible thing as Joseph had done before. Knocked by his brothers he found himself boosted into the court circle where he became the familiar figure among all the leaders of Israel. Knocked by Saul he found the immortal friendship with the princely Jonathan. Knocked by all the forces of government he took refuge with the common people who loved him and the assurance added to his strong democratic tendencies while it gave him an understanding of their problems and discovered their possibility for furnishing fighting leaders. Knocked by the Philistines he found himself relieved from his perplexing position, keeping the friendship of the Philistines and able to rescue his own family. Knocked by Nabal he opened the door to love and the support of Caleb's fighting clan. A favorite of Jehovah's seemed but there is never favoritism in the level scales of God. David was alert to seize opportunity and turn it to the advantage of the cause for which he strove. Sensitive to God he accepted His guidance first of all and built his entire life upon a religious basis. "Shall I go up?" was a first question asked and while today the sacred lot would be a discredited means of learning the will of the Infinite yet it served in its day to put God in the center. When the Elders anointed him it was before the altar in Hebron and in every action David sought to carry out what he believed was the will of God. F. R. Haverzal explained her life by saying, "I never said 'No' to God." David might have used the same expression. Fine courtesy and power of action in his treatment of the men of Jabesh-Gilead who dared the wrath of the victors in burying the bodies of Saul and his sons in the day of their despising fresh from the flock. Grip the boy and you hold the man. Diplomacy may after all be the sympathetic understanding of the other fellow's position and acting accordingly. Certainly the dirge, the message, the grief over Abner, the punishment meted out to the slayers of Saul's house were not the policy that did it but David's own big-heartedness. Policy may have directed some of his love affairs which which powerful factions to his interests but womanhood had not been touched by the scarred hands of the Christ.

And always there was the superb self-control that enabled him to bring every atom of his energy into submission to his will. He conquered himself and in consequence mastered Saul, on position and circumstances and after years of patient waiting stooped to the position of Israel's greatest King.

of amity and sympathy and fraternity in every resolution. There is a genuine aspiration in every American breast for a tranquil friendship with all the world.

One may readily sense the conscience of our America. I am sure I understand the purpose of the dominant group of the senate. We were not seeking to defeat a world aspiration, we were resolved to safeguard America. We were resolved then, even as we are today, and will be tomorrow, to preserve this free and independent republic.

In the call of the conscience of America is peace, peace that closes the gaping wound of world war, and silences the impassioned voices of international envy and distrust. Heeding this call and knowing as I do the disposition of the Congress, I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign.

It is better to be the free and disinterested agent of international justice and advancing civilization, with the covenant of conscience, than be shackled by a written compact which surrenders our freedom of action and gives to a military alliance the right to proclaim America's duty to the world. No surrender of rights to a world council or its military alliance, no assumed mandatory however appealing, ever shall summon the sons of this republic to war. Their supreme sacrifice shall only be asked for America and its call of honor. There is a sanctity in that right we will not delegate.

Leaving America Independent.

Disposal as we are, the way is very simple. Let the failure attending assumption, obstinacy, impracticability and delay be recognized, and let us find the big, practical, unselfish way to do our part, neither covetous because of ambition nor hesitant through fear, but ready to serve ourselves, humanity and God. With a senate advising as the constitution contemplates, I would joyfully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship, to commit the moral forces of the world, America included, to peace and international justice, still leaving America free, independent and self-reliant, but offering friendship to all the world.

It is folly to close our eyes to outstanding facts. Humanity is restless, much of the world is in revolution, the agents of discord and destruction have wrought their tragedy in pathetic Russia, have lighted their torches among other peoples, and hope to see America as a part of the great red confederation. Ours is the temple of liberty under the law, and it is ours to call the Sons of Opportunity to its defense. America must not only save herself, but ours must be the appealing voice to solve the world.

It must be understood that toll alone makes for accomplishment and advancement, and righteous possession is the reward of toil, and its incentive. There is no progress except in the stimulus of competition.

The chief trouble today is that the world war wrought the destruction of healthful competition, left our storehouses empty, and there is a minimum production when our need is maximum. Maximum, not minimum, is the call of America. It isn't a new story, because war never fails to leave depleted storehouses and always impairs the efficiency of production. War also establishes its higher standards for wages, and they abide. I wish the higher wage to abide, on one explicit condition—that the wage-earner will give full return for the wage received.

Production, More Production.

I want, somehow, to appeal to the sons and daughters of the republic, to every producer, to join hand and brain in production, more production, honest production, patriotic production, because patriotic production is no less a defense of our best civilization than that of armed force. Profiteering is a crime of commission, under-production is a crime of omission. We must work our most and best, else the destructive reaction will come.

The menacing tendency of the present day is not chargeable wholly to the unsettled and fevered conditions caused by the war. The manifest weakness in popular government lies in the temptation to appeal to grouped citizenship for political advantage. It would be the blindness of folly to ignore the activities in our own country which are aimed to destroy our economic system, and to commit us to the colossal tragedy which has destroyed all freedom and made Russia impotent. This movement is not to be halted in throttled liberties. We must not abridge the freedom of speech, the freedom of press, or the freedom of assembly, because there is no real peace in repression. These liberties are as sacred as the freedom of religious belief, as inviolable as the rights of life and the pursuit of happiness. We do hold to the right to crush sedition, to stifle a menacing contempt for law, to stamp out a peril to the safety of the republic or its people.

Emergency calls, because security and the majesty of the law are the first essentials of liberty. He who threatens destruction of the government by force or flaunts his contempt for lawful authority, ceases to be a loyal citizen and forfeits his rights to the freedom of the republic.

No party is indifferent to the welfare of the wage-earner. To us his good fortune is of deepest concern, and we seek to make that good fortune permanent. We do not oppose but support collective bargaining, because that is an outstanding right, but we are unalterably insistent that its exercise must not destroy the equally sacred right of the individual, in his necessary pursuit of livelihood. Any American has the right to quit his employment, so has every American the right to seek employment. The group must not endanger the individual, and we must discourage groups preying upon one another, and none shall be allowed to forget that the government's obligations are alike to all the people.

No Strike Against Government.

We are so confident that much of the present-day insufficiency and inefficiency of transportation are due to the withering hand of government operation that we emphasize anew our opposition to government ownership, we want to expedite the reparation and make sure the mistake is not repeated.

A state of inadequate transportation facilities, mainly chargeable to the failure of governmental experiment, is losing millions to agriculture. It is hindering industry, it is menacing the American people with a fuel shortage little less than a peril. It emphasizes the present-day problem and suggests that spirit of encouragement and assistance which commits all America to relieve such an emergency.

Gross expansion of currency and credit have depreciated the dollar just as expansion and inflation have discredited the coins of the world. We inflated in haste, we must deflate in deliberation. We debased the dollar in reckless finance, we must restore in honesty.

In all sincerity we promise the prevention of unreasonable profits, we challenge profiteering with all the moral force and the legal powers of government and people, but it is fair, ay, it is timely, to give reminder that law is not the sole corrective of our economic ills.

Drive Against Extravagance.

Let us call to all the people for thrift and economy, for denial and sacrifice if need be, for a nation-wide drive against extravagance and luxury, to a recommitment to simplicity of living, to that prudent and normal plan of life which is the health of the republic.

New conditions, which attend amazing growth and extraordinary industrial development, call for a new and forward-looking program. The American farmer had a hundred and twenty millions to feed in the home market, heard the cry of the world for food and answered it, though he faced an appalling task amid handicaps never encountered before.

Contemplating the defenselessness of the individual farmer to meet the organized buyers of his products and the distributors of the things the farmer buys, I hold that farmers should not only be permitted but encouraged to join in co-operative association to reap the just measure of reward merited by their arduous toil.

Our platform is an earnest pledge of renewed concern for this most essential and elemental industry and in both appreciation and interest we pledge effective expression in law and practice. We will call that co-operation which again will make profitable and desirable the ownership and operation of comparatively small farms intensively cultivated, and which will facilitate the caring for the producers of farm and orchard without the lumbering waste under present conditions.

America would look with anxiety on the discouragement of farming activity either through the government's neglect or its paralysis by socialist practices. A Republican administration will be committed to renewed regard for agriculture, and seek the participation of farmers in curing the ills justly complained of, and aim to place the American farmer where it ought to be—highly ranked in American activities and fully sharing the highest good fortunes of American life.

Becomingly associated with this subject are the policies of irrigation and reclamation, so essential to agricultural expansion, and the continued development of the great and wonderful West. It is our purpose to continue and enlarge federal aid, not in sectional partiality, but for the good of all America.

I believe the budget system will effect a necessary, helpful reformation and reveal business methods to government business.

I believe federal departments should be made more business-like and send back to productive effort thousands of federal employees, who are either duplicating work or not essential at all.

I believe in the protective tariff policy and know we will be calling for its saving Americanism again.

I believe in a great merchant marine. I would have this republic the leading maritime nation of the world.

I believe in a navy ample to protect it, and able to assure us dependable defense.

I believe in a small army, but the best in the world, with a minuteness for preparedness which will avoid the unutterable cost of our previous neglect.

I believe in our eminence in trade abroad, which the government should aid in expanding, both in revealing markets and spreading cargoes.

I believe in establishing standards for immigration, which are concerned with the future citizenship of the republic, not with mere man-power in industry.

I believe that every man who dons the garb of American citizenship and walks in the light of American opportunity, must become American in heart and soul.

I believe in holding fast to every forward step in unshackling child labor

SALIENT POINTS OF SENATOR HARDING'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

"I pledge fidelity to our country and to God, and accept the nomination of the Republican party for the presidency of the United States."

"The human element comes first, and I want the employers in industry to understand the aspirations, the convictions, the yearnings of millions of American wage earners."

"The Constitution contemplates no class and recognizes no sect or conspiracy, we halt the people, with specific recognition for none."

"We approve collective bargaining, and credit has depreciated the dollar. We will attempt intelligent and courageous deflation."

"When competition—natural, fair impelling competition—is suppressed, whether by law, common or conspiracy, we halt the march of progress, silence the voice of aspiration and paralyze the will for achievement."

"I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

"I can hear the call of conscience an insistent voice for largely reduced armaments throughout the world."

"Our vision includes more than a chief executive. We believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates."

"In whose councils the vice-president, second official of the Republic, shall be asked to participate."

har and elevating conditions of woman's employment.

I believe the federal government should stamp out lynching and remove that stain from the fair name of America.

I believe the federal government should give its effective aid in solving the problem of ample and becoming housing of its citizenship.

I believe this government should make its Liberty and Victory bonds worth all that its patriotic citizens paid in purchasing them.

Taxes Must Be Reduced.

I believe the tax burdens imposed for the war emergency must be revised to the needs of peace, and in the interest of equity in distribution of the burden.

I believe the negro citizens of America should be guaranteed the enjoyment of all their rights, that they have earned the full measure of citizenship bestowed, that their sacrifices in blood on the battlefields of the republic have entitled them to all of freedom and opportunity, all of sympathy and aid that the American spirit of fairness and justice demands.

I believe there is an easy and open path to righteous relationship with Mexico. It has seemed to me that our undeveloped, uncertain and infirm policy has made us a culpable party to the governmental misfortunes in that land. Our relations ought to be both friendly and sympathetic; we would like to acclaim a stable government there, and offer a neighborly hand in pointing the way to greater progress.

I believe in law enforcement. I elected I mean to be a constitutional president, and it is impossible to ignore the constitution, unthinkable to evade the law, when our every commitment is to orderly government.

The four million defenders on land and sea were worthy of the best traditions of a people never warlike in peace and never pacifist in war. They commanded our pride, they have our gratitude, which must have genuine expression. It is not only a duty, it is a privilege to see that the sacrifices made shall be requited, and that those still suffering from casualties and disabilities shall be abundantly aided and restored to the highest capabilities of citizenship and its enjoyment.

Advocates Woman Suffrage.

The womanhood of America, always its glory, its inspiration and the potent, uplifting force in its social and spiritual development, is about to be enfranchised. In so far as congress can, the fact is already accomplished. By party edict, by my recorded vote, by personal conviction I am committed to this measure of justice. It is my earnest hope, my sincere desire that the one needed state vote be quickly recorded in the affirmation of the right of equal suffrage and that the vote of every citizen shall be cast and counted in the approaching election.

And to the great number of noble women who have opposed in conviction this tremendous change in the ancient relation of the sexes as applied to government, I venture to plead that they will accept the full responsibility of enlarged citizenship and give to the heat in the republic their suffrage and support.

Ours is not only a fortunate people but a very common-sensical people, with vision high but their feet on the earth, with belief in themselves and faith in God. Whether enemies threaten from without or menaces arise from within, there is some indefinable ray saying, "Have confidence in the republic! America will go on!"

BLOOMINGTON

Messrs. Ross Raley, Scott Elliott, Frank Jones and John Elliott, all second-class certificate foremen employed at the Masteller Coal Company's mine at Hampshire, were in Elkins the first of the week attending the examination and appearing as candidates for first-class certificates before the State Board. Mr. Ammon Flick, of Barnum, was also present for a second-class certificate.

The children of Mrs. Madden, the latter having died at the Hoffman Hospital Sunday night, were taken from the home of Mrs. Rebecca Paugh, in whose care they had been left when the mother was removed to the hospital, and taken to Piedmont on Tuesday evening to accompany the remains to Petroleum, W. Va., where interment took place Wednesday.

The family lived in Tunnel Cut and consisted of the father and three children and the baby about six weeks old, from whose birth the mother never fully recovered.

Sherman Warnick, an employee of the Kallbaugh Coal Company, operating near Barnum, met with a very painful accident early Monday morning. While cranking a gasoline engine, preparatory to starting to work, the crank slipped from his grasp, flew back and struck him in the face. He was rendered unconscious for a time from the force of the blow. His face was badly contused and abraded and in a short time both eyes were swollen shut. He was taken to Barnum where he received medical treatment and then sent to his home near Chestnut Grove.

No. 236 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, the property of Sarah E. Wilt, late of Garrett County, deceased.

The bill states: That Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, his wife, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, were in their lifetime and at the time of their deaths seized and possessed as tenants by the entirety of a tract of land situate in Garrett County, known as a part of a tract of land called "Republic," containing the quantity of one hundred acres, more or less, and described in a deed therefor from Floyd Duckworth to the said Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, dated March 6, 1886, and duly recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 11, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy of which deed is filed in this proceeding.

That while so seized and possessed of said real estate, the said Thornton Wilt departed this life, intestate, in the year 1907, and title to said land then vested in the said Sarah E. Wilt, the survivor, and the said Sarah E. Wilt was seized and possessed of said real estate during the remainder of her life and at the time of her death.

That addition to the foregoing tract of land, the said Sarah E. Wilt during her lifetime and at the time of her death, was seized and possessed of a tract of land in Garrett County adjacent to the foregoing tract of land, containing the quantity of fifty acres, more or less, and described in a deed therefor from Charles M. Miller and Lizzie E. Miller, his wife, to the said Sarah E. Wilt, dated the first day of March, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 111, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy of which said deed is filed in this proceeding.

That while so seized and possessed of said real estate, the said Sarah E. Wilt departed this life, intestate, in the month of March, 1917, leaving the following children and heirs at law, to-wit: Aden C. Wilt, of Garrett County; Daniel Wilt, of Elkins, W. Va.; John Wilt, present residence unknown; Gueda Hunter, widow of John Hunter, deceased, of Asheville, N. C.; Ruth Nesselrodt, Made Nesselrodt, infant children, and Richard Nesselrodt, surviving husband of Alice Nesselrodt, deceased, of Washington, D. C.; and the following children of Amanda Hunter Long, deceased daughter of the said Sarah E. Wilt, to-wit: Elsie C. Hunter, Baby E. Hunter, Rena Florence and Boyd Beveridge, all of whom were in the state of West Virginia.

That the said property is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein, and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary thereof be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

It is therefore, the 26th day of July, 1920, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the bill, by having a copy of this order inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, on or before the 30th day of July, 1920, give notice to the said above defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of August, 1920, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

That the said bill then prays for a decree for the sale of said real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among those entitled and for general relief and for an order of publication.

GARRETT COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Schools On the Honor Roll—Address of State Secretary.

Since the issue of The Republican of last week a list of the Sunday schools of the county which to date have complied with the requirements necessary in order to win a place on the Honor Roll has been compiled as follows:

Steiding Union Sunday School, of near Swanton; St. John's Lutheran, of the Cove; Church of the Brethren, Accident; Pleasant Valley Wesley M. E., of near Mt. Lake Park; Loch Lynn United Brethren; Red House Lutheran; Cherry Glade Amish, of near Bittinger; Deer Park Union and Deer Park Methodist; Friendsville Union; Schbysport M. E.; M. E., Lutheran and St. John's Reformed, of Grantsville; New Germany M. E.; Trinity Reformed, of New Germany; Maple Grove Brethren, of near Grantsville; Mill Run; Crellin Union, and Oakland Presbyterian. Other schools have nearly reached the mark and as soon as complete reports have been filed these will be given the proper credit. It has been suggested that the superintendents of any schools not appearing in the above list who desire to have their schools on the Honor Roll for the county for 1920 should write the county president, Mr. E. R. Jones, of Oakland, for information as to the requirements not as yet met.

The goals set for the coming year in Sunday school work were as follows: Teacher Training classes to be increased from one to six; members of Adult Bible classes to be increased from 302 to at least 400; Sunday school members joining church to be increased from 108 to at least 150; Record of Missionary giving to be kept by each school in the county; Total enrollment in Sunday schools of the County to be increased from 2894 to at least 3200; At least six Sunday school workers to receive Teacher Training certificates at the next convention. The meeting of these goals means work on the part of the Sunday school workers of the county but they can be met if each school will do its part.

For lack of space last week, the address of the new State secretary, Mr. Abner B. Brown, of Baltimore, on the need for increased supervision in Western Maryland was carried over and now follows:

There are two facts that especially denote the coming of a new day, first, the destruction of the Liquor Traffic, which cost this country in blood as much as America lost in the World War and one-half as much money as America lost in the World War; second, the church drives are raising money to carry the gospel to every creature in this generation—not to convert the world, but to bring to pass the long looked for day of more complete presentation.

In America the Sunday Schools in recent years have lost 3,600,000 and Maryland doubtless has shared in this loss. According to the United States census reports of religious bodies for the ten years ending 1916 it took 44 Presbyterians a year of time to make a net gain of one, 60 Methodist Episcopalians a year to make a net gain of one and on an average of 82 protestants to make this gain.

As a member of the Sunday school a man stands four times the chances of becoming a Christian as he otherwise would have stood. It is, then, very important to build up our Sunday school enrollment in a conservative way, not merely making good the loss, but also in a systematic way to make goals to double Sunday school enrollment on a ten per cent. basis each year which will take 10 years to effect this great advance.

There is only one Sunday school specialist on full time for the whole state of Maryland and this person can visit a county only about twice a year which is not enough supervision. The Educational department of the State of Maryland has shown in a study which it has put forth the need of supervision. The great department has one supervisor to every 25 or 30 store of Stewart & Co., of Baltimore. The John Hopkins Hospital has one supervisor to every 4 or 5 nurses, and so on in every department of activity; and the schools now provide a second supervisor in counties where there are more than 100 teachers. It is estimated that in the States east of the Mississippi, 25 per cent. of the Sunday schools have been lost thru the lack of supervision.

The five counties of Montgomery, Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett form the Western Division of Maryland and have a total of 470 Sunday schools, 5800 officers and teachers and a total Sunday school population of 50,000. The property valuation of this Western Division is now 537 millions of which 301 millions have been added since 1901, a very decided gain in wealth.

The total population for the territory insured is 217,000. Approximately $275,000 is spent each year in this division on day or public schools and we might ask to whether or not it would be wise to spend as much as five per cent. of this amount for the Bible schools of the division? It needs no argument that this division and its 5800 teachers need supervision and these five western counties should have a Sunday school superintendent who would give his whole time to attending the district meetings, speaking in the pulpits, becoming acquainted with the pastors and superintendents and aiding in the problems of the Sunday schools, all of which would be a tremendous task of itself.

The funds for this purpose are insignificant as compared with those of any one church drive of the last two years, owing to the fact that we have churches, workers and equipment ready and just need the touch of leadership in order to double the schools and in so doing insure the doubling of Protestantism. The Methodist Episcopal church, out of 800,000 quota in Evangelism, has allotted 650,000 to the Sunday schools to obtain.

The Board of Trustees of the Maryland Association has approved this plan and it is being presented to the counties of the Western Division for careful and prayerful consideration.

PEAS BEING CANNED

First Acre Threshed Yielded Grower
More Than $70.00.

The Mount Airy Canning Company, which concern has established a cannery for the purpose of putting up peas grown in Garrett county, commenced canning the product yesterday. The plant which is located in the De-man Mill at Loch Lynn Heights, will continue operations until next Wednesday night, August 5th.

Growers who have the sweet, or late peas, have been notified by the officials of the canning company when to cut and deliver their crops. Any others who have peas and want them placed in containers must have them at the cannery not later than Tuesday of next week; Friday or Saturday of this week would suit the convenience of the managers better.

Special guards for the mowers may be had by calling at the cannery. The peas are cut out well and are a successful crop notwithstanding what has appeared to be unfavorable weather conditions. The first acre cut and threshed yielded 2065 pounds, bringing at the cannery a little more than $70 in cash to the grower.

Not Satisfied With Wage Award.

This morning the several chairmen of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers embracing the Baltimore and Ohio System are in session at the O. R. T. offices in the First National Bank building in Oakland, where they met for a conference respecting the award made by the National Railway Board in Chicago recently giving telegraphers a raise of about ten cents an hour in their wages. With this award many of the men in all sections of the country are dissatisfied, hence a meeting of the executives is being held to determine what action is to be taken the result of which will be that ballots will be sent the members of the O. R. T. and the men themselves will determine whether or not to accept the Wage Board's award. Should the majority be against the action of the board then a strike will be called.

Estray Notice.

There came to my farm, located 2 miles south of Swanton and 5 miles north of Kitzmiller on or about July 1st, a stray cow with bell on, dun in color, one horn drooping and the other standing straight out. Owner will please call, pay all costs and damages and take the animal away.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Serious Charge Laid Against Two Oakland Chiropractors.

Monday Dr. A. F. Kimmell and Dr. Freeland, practicing chiropractors of Oakland, were placed under arrest by Sheriff Roy O. Winters upon warrants charging them with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Ophelia Blanche Kitzmiller and her unborn child, the woman having died on Friday at the home of a Mrs. White, a relative, under suspicious circumstances.

Mrs. Kitzmiller, who was a widow, the mother of four children, and the daughter of Mr. N. B. Harvey, one of the county's best citizens, had been residing for some time in or near the town of Westernport, until about five weeks ago, when she came to Mountain Lake Park and there assumed the duties of housekeeper for one of the residents of that place. On Friday she went to the home of Mrs. White and upon arrival there complained of feeling very sick and expired in about twenty minutes and before a physician could be summoned.

In the natural course of events an undertaker, Mr. D. E. Bolden, of Oakland, was called upon to render his services and while thus engaged he discovered that the woman prior to her death was in a delicate condition and so reported to the local health official, Dr. Henry W. McCouder, who in turn took the matter up with the representatives of the State and a coroner's jury with Mr. John W. Hart, of Oakland, as its foreman, was summoned to meet Sunday morning and inquire into the cause of the woman's death. In the meantime Dr. Brantley, State Pathologist, was communicated with and he arrived at the Park Sunday morning and conducted the inquest, being assisted by Drs. McCouder and Broadwater, of Oakland.

The jury had before it and examined a number of witnesses, with the result that sufficient evidence, in the opinion of the State, was brought to the surface to warrant the arrest of the two men above named, both of whom have been released upon bond in the sum of $3,000 each for their appearance before the Court at such time as may be required.

The coroner's jury has not yet completed its investigation of the case and will be again called upon in a few days.

The funeral of Mrs. Kitzmiller was held at the White church on Monday and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Her husband was killed several years in an accident.

In the absence of State's Attorney Offutt, the investigation as to the cause of Mrs. Kitzmiller's death is being conducted by Mr. Julius C. Renninger.

CUMBERLAND'S NEW BANK.

Financial Institution With Large Capital Will Soon be in New Home.

The latest in everything that goes to equip a very modern bank and trust company will be used in the remodeling of the Third National Bank building for the purposes of The Liberty Trust Company, the recently organized one and a-half million dollar banking institution of Cumberland. Work is now well under way and the estimated date for completion is November 1.

When the changes have been completed, the entire first floor of the commodious six story building will be used by the trust company. In all the changes particular attention is being given to the convenience of customers. The public space in the new interior will be ample and on three sides will be surrounded by the banking activities. Private rooms for both men and women in the transaction of their banking business are provided, and there will be consultation, committee and officers' rooms. The elevator will be removed to the rear and there will be a rear entrance. An entirely new front will be built of stone, marble and brick.

While the changes are in progress the business of the Liberty Trust will be carried on in the rooms of the former Third National Bank and in the banking houses of the Citizens' National and Citizens' Savings bank. The Dime Savings Bank has already been absorbed into the trust company, and the First National, the oldest in Western Maryland, is affiliated.

The banking rooms of the Liberty Trust Company will be excelled by few, even in the larger cities. Being the largest bank of its kind in this section and because of the diversity of its powers, it will prove a long-wanted convenience to the public in general and to those who transact business in particular.

Hugh A. McMullen, former comptroller of the state, is president. C. G. Holzshu is treasurer and Thomas B. Finan is secretary.

K. of P. NOTES OF INTEREST

The rank of Page was conferred upon six candidates last Friday night.

One application was received for membership. Make it a point to have your new application in by next Friday. We would like to have a class of at least fifteen candidates for the rank of Knight.

Another member has secured five new members and is entitled to an award. On next Friday evening the rank of Esquire will be conferred on a class of six Pages.

The committee of the Labor Day picnic reports progress and are pleased to say that much interest is being shown by all. Find out what you can do to assist the committee. Grand Chancellor J. C. Renninger, and several others of Garrett lodge visited Lonaconing Lodge Tuesday evening.

HOYES

Another harvest has come and we again see the busy farmer making hay, reaping wheat, etc. Seemingly to us but a few months since last harvest, very reluctantly the summer is passing from us.

We are glad to be again on the list with a store as a convenience. Our new merchant and wife are very congenial and accommodating to all and we wish them abundant success in their new undertaking.

Mrs. Lou Keller returned to her home in Romney, West Va., after spending two weeks with friends in Hoyes and Oakland.

Miss Lula Callis, who has been living in Dunbar, Pa., for the past two years is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Callis, at this place.

We experienced the heaviest rainfall and electrical storm last Saturday. A large locust tree standing beside the M. E. Church was struck by the lightning and considerably splintered, damaging one of the church windows.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman DeWitt have been delighted to have several of their family home again with them. In the past two weeks, Milton and wife, of Connellsville, made them a visit of a couple days. Clara, now Mrs. DeWitt, and children, of Akron, O., spent the past ten days with them, and their eldest son, Adrian, his wife and three daughters, of Dayton, O., are spending their two weeks vacation with them after an absence of eleven years.

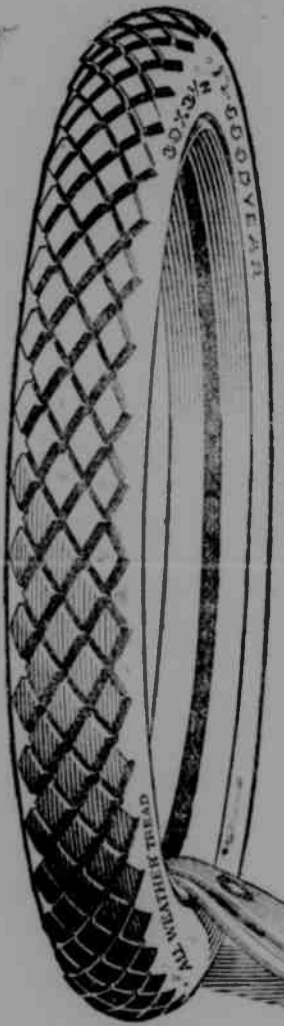

Mr. and Mrs. Webb DeWitt were much pleased to entertain some of their relatives and friends last Sunday afternoon, among them were Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Bishoff and baby, Mrs. J. A. Speicher and daughters, Mary and Nellie, and Dwight and Lloyd Speicher.

Quite a number of our people attended the Sunday school convention at Cove on the 18th inst. and all enjoyed the services very much. And now we wish to say a word in behalf of our Sunday school of Hoyes: We are having a very good attendance and with more interest than usual. Our Superintendent, F. D. DeWitt is ever faithful to his duties and encourages all to do likewise. Last Sunday morning we had an unusual treat from little Martha DeWitt, of Dayton, O., who rendered a solo, the title of which was "Alone, Alone." Her expression and melody surpassed any we have ever heard from a child.

Miss Irene Mattingly, of Uniontown, Pa., formerly of this place, and Mr. Hubert Johnson, of Akron, Ohio, were married at Uniontown last Wednesday morning, immediately leaving there for the home of Mrs. Johnson's grandmother, Mrs. M. Mattingly, at this place. They were accompanied by Miss Leah Maffett, of Oakland, and Mr. Owen Mattingly. Upon their arrival a most sumptuous dinner was served the party; also to the Rev. James E. Connell, and Mr. John Martin, of Oakland, by Mrs. Mattingly and her daughter. The bride received many beautiful and useful presents. They were also treated to an old-time serenade. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will shortly leave for Akron, Ohio, where they will establish a home and reside in the future.

Wayne Smith and several boys from Accident left on last Monday for the town of Luke, where they will be employed for the next few weeks. They are anxious to help care for some of the idle greenbacks.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 1.

David Brings the Ark into Jerusalem. II Sam. 6. Read chapter 5; I Chron. 13-16.

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving. And into His courts with praise. Psalm 100:4.

WINNING THEIR INDEPENDENCE. For seven years the two little principalities had paid their tribute and been under the dominion of Philistia. Their constant struggle against each other was probably fostered by their overlords much as we played Carranza against Huerta in the Mexican disorders. To keep Israel weak was good policy. Suddenly Ishbosheth was snuffed out, Abner dead and the northern group collapsed in the arms of the Son of Destiny, David. The united kingdom was a declaration of war so Philistia lost no time in writing notes but shoved her forces into the hills and the new king made a swift get-a-way to his familiar refuge. His own city of Bethlehem was taken and it was in these days that the famous "three" brought water from his father's spring. How long the war lasted is uncertain but two great victories are recorded and peace settled over the riotous world. David had proven his right to the kingdom; independence was won and the people could turn to the hard task of reconstruction. Immediately there was inaugurated a thing which Saul had never attempted, the establishment of a settled capital. Like the war consul who was asked, "Where is the United States Consulate?" and answered, "In my coat pocket," so Saul might have spoken of the seat of government. With statesmanlike ability David chose a spot removed from all the old jealousies that separated Judah from the other tribes. Uniting a central location with almost impregnable position, a spot never controlled by Israel offered the thing he sought. That it was in the possession of another made little difference in that day as it made small difference to Germany in our own—it was needed for the nation so the nation took it. All the forces were united in the conquest so felt an equal interest in the common achievement and felt taller by the choice of the place they had fought and won. So the political heart of Israel began to function and the new King had a definite name and place. Imagine what the United States would do without Washington and see the effect that must have followed this act of David.

THE CAPITAL OF THE SPIRIT. Every advance made by the Hebrew was a religious one. A revival of Jehovah worship marked the succession of the Judges and the accession of Saul. Their wars were crusades for the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and it was in this spiritual spring that they renewed their nationality. David the devout determined that these spiritual aspiration should have a centre about which to gather and the new capital must become the heart of its religion as well as of its politics. Now Hebrew worship hung about a symbol that had carried the sense of Presence all along the devotion of the people and its historic link if nothing else would make it an object of reverence. Captured by the Philistines and held under their jurisdiction since the days of Eli its use had been practically abandoned but its possible restoration must have stirred the spirit of all the people. David determined that Jerusalem should be its place of refuge whence no power should remove it and where its presence would centralize the religious elements and stabilize the government that also was housed there. Politically it was one of the best moves possible but it was his own heart hunger for the presence that caused David's determination to become fixed that the Ark should be housed in the Capital.

THE INTERRUPTED JOURNEY. God is ever on the march and the Ark was designed for travel. A stationary deity is the bane of paganism and a progressive God the heart of Christian civilization. David gathered a great throng and went down to the house of Abinadab to bring up to the place prepared in Jerusalem that wonderful Ark between the wings of whose Cherubim Jehovah manifested Himself. Placing it upon a new cart the procession started on its joyous journey only to have it interrupted in most disastrous fashion. It was halted by the specter of a great fear. Suppose God should fall? Uzzah reached out his hand to steady the swaying burden and swift death came shocking every man in the shouting line and blanching other cheeks for who knew what this deity might do! David feared also and turning aside the Ark was carried into a nearby house where it remained for three blessed months and the soul of a foreigner sang as never before and rejoiced over the manifest Presence in his home. That new altar sanctified all the life of the home and brought unexampled prosperity to all beneath its roof. That is always the characteristic of the Godly home. Do we fear lest the Bible be discredited and in sudden terror reach out a steady hand? Does the church tremble in these days and fear clutches to stay its tottering? Certainly then the procession will be halted for no institution or revelation of God can be overthrown but fear for its disaster and despair of its fate will bring heart-failure and spiritual death always in its train as surely as it did in this far distant day.

THE JOURNEY OF JOY. Faith restored by the effect upon the home of Obed-Edom started again the marching feet. Sanctified hands lifted the hallowed burden and bore it toward its new home. Sacrifices marked every stage of the journey and music swept the marchers into ecstasy as they sang the suorous lines of that great ode which David probably wrote and found in the Chronicler's account of the event. The King wore no royal purple that day but in clean, pure linen danced in exuberant joy along the ascent to the city and along its streets sharing all the religious enthusiasm of his people in the restoration of the sense of the presence among them. Tears of gladness, shouts of joy, resonant Amens, exultant Halleluiah, rhythmic music and antiphonal chanting make that march one of the world's great joy journeys.

ENTHUSIASM CROWNED. David never thought or cared what impression he might make on others as he danced dervish-like thru the streets of the Capital. His feeling of delight demanded expression and he gave all vent to it but as the procession passed their home Michal, Saul's daughter, sneered at the whole proceeding as vulgar and unkingly. The common herd might make a spectacle but such a display of emotion was utterly out of place for him. It is no sign of great intellect that one has no feeling. Smothered fire dies. Ice has its place; but not with the kindlings and the kindlers are those who from David to Christ have blazed or cheered upon occasion. Imagine the bleachers filled with Michals! She had greatly changed from the night she lowered her husband from the window stemming Saul's fury with her love. Perhaps she was not to blame for she had been tossed about as a pawn and must suppress all heart until it had been buried beneath her mask of haughtiness. But the condemnation visited upon her instead of upon him is witness to the place enthusiasm holds in the religious life. God and man crown the loser of himself in a cause that thrills and thralls him.

Government Loses But One Out of 50 Cases Prosecuted in Federal Courts.

ADULTERATION IS CHARGED

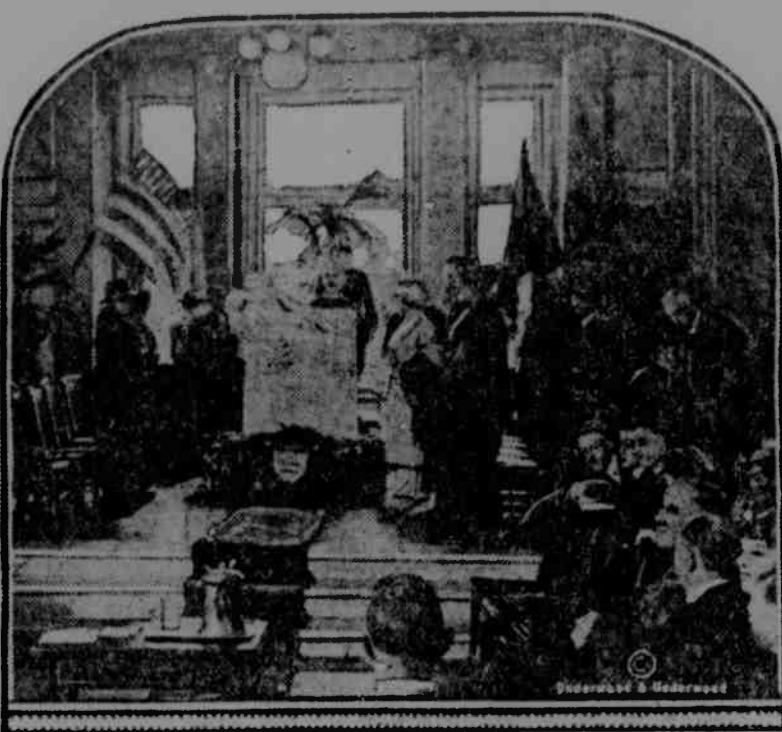

Use of Spoiled Tomatoes in Canning Is Basis of Ten Cases—Misbranding of Vinegar Results in Fine of $100.

Washington—Fifty food and drug cases are reported as having been terminated in the federal courts in a recent service and regulatory announcement supplement of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture. The charges of the government were upheld in 49 of the cases, but in one seizure action the decision of the court was in favor of the claimant of the goods.

Ten actions were based on the adulteration of tomato products, such as catsup, puree, pulp, paste, and the like. The most frequent charge was that of decomposition resulting from the use of moldy or rotten tomatoes in preparing the products. The specialists of the bureau of chemistry have given a great deal of attention to the improvement of tomato products. Not only have a large number of prosecutions and seizures been made, but experimental work and educational campaigns have been conducted to aid the packers in developing methods to eliminate all spoiled tomatoes. There has been a marked improvement in the quality of such products, but some packers, either as the result of carelessness or from a deliberate disregard to the requirements of the law, still occasionally use tomatoes unfit for food.

Eleven actions on stock feed. Stock feed made from cottonseed meal or cake was the basis of eleven actions, the most frequent charge being that of misbranding, because of statements on the labels claiming a higher percentage of protein than was actually present in the feed. Since the percentage of protein present in a stock feed is one of the factors in fixing the price, this form of misbranding results in the feed being sold for a higher price than its feeding value warrants. It is also misleading to the stock raiser in determining a proper feeding ration.

Canned salmon was the basis of four seizures. Spoilage of the salmon was the charge in each seizure. In three of the cases the court ordered the salmon destroyed, while in one case the salmon was released for use in the manufacture of fertilizer. Investigations have shown that some canners of salmon do not always take proper sanitary methods in putting up their product. Studies by the specialists of the bureau of chemistry to improve the methods of packing salmon in order to prevent contamination are under way.

Fined for Misbranded Vinegar.

Other prosecutions and seizures covered by the notices of judgment include a shipment of sardines which were destroyed, because they consisted in part of filthy, decomposed, and putrid animal matter, and three shipments of olive oil adulterated with cottonseed oil. An artificial vinegar labeled as cider vinegar resulted in the party responsible for the violation being fined $100. One shipper who failed to appear to defend himself was held as guilty. Beans were seized as was a shipment of gelatin consisting partly of glue and containing copper and zinc.

Seven actions under the food and drugs act were based on the charge of adulteration and misbranding of proprietary medicines. In one case, a fine of $10 to $100 were imposed in these cases, the charge being in the main that there were false and fraudulent claims as to the curative powers of the preparations. Three prosecutions were based on the misbranding or adulteration of mineral waters which were recommended by the proprietors for the treatment of various diseases. In one of these cases in which the defendant entered a plea of guilty, a nominal fine of only 1 cent and costs was imposed by the court.

Charges of short weight were sustained against shipments of macaroni and spaghetti. Short weight was also established in one shipment of olive oil.

Living Girl in "Dead" Basket.

Denver, Colo.—When an undertaker went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Rogers to get the body of Gerald Rogers, he mistook the boy's sister, who was unconscious from illness, for the dead. The undertaker placed Elmer Rogers in his mortuary basket and started to carry her out of the house. Mrs. Rogers discovered the ghastly error and called the undertaker back before the girl had been placed in the "dead" wagon.

Tom Cat as Security.

St. Joseph, Mo.—A mortgage filed with the register of deeds at Stockton, Mo., to secure a debt of $16 in-cludes as security one black tom cat, with white feet, named Tom. As no descriptions were listed with the other articles pledged, it is evident the cat was considered the most valuable part of the security by the mortgagee.

Bee Is Blamed for Automobile Tragedy

Salinas, Cal.—Clarence Curtis, Headburg, was killed in an automobile accident on a steep grade near here because of a hubbub, according to the same accident. Mrs. Curtis said she was driving her car when her attention was distracted by a bee lighting on her husband's knee. The next thing she knew the automobile was overturned at the foot of an embankment, her husband was dead underneath and she was being picked up by passing motorists.

Then and Now

ON Decoration day, it was then called, he always climbed the hill out to the graveyard with his little hand in that of his grandmother. It was a day that he looked forward to for he was to carry some of the flowers from his own garden to place upon the grave of his grandfather, a Northern captain who had lost his life in the charge at Chattanooga. On all other days the sword hung over the mantel-piece at home. On this one day the boy was allowed to take the precious relic from its resting place and examine it to his heart's content.

The years passed. No longer a youth, now a man, with a son of his own, he heard the call of country and answered. The blood of the best American patriot ran in his veins. Among the first troops he crossed the sea to fight for country and for justice. Stricken on the Argonne, he too poured out his blood on the fields of France. Today he lies among the noble, forgotten dead. As in former times he learned of the spirit of sacrifice, his boy today is learning of the same spirit of sacrifice which exalts human life and makes it divine.

So a great tradition binds the generations to each other, enriched by the thousands of unselfish, noble men and women who live and die to make men free.—Indianapolis Star.

COMMANDERS OLD AND YOUNG

Interesting Comparison of Great Leaders of the World Conflict and Our Civil War.

The French correspondent of the Army and Navy Journal, J. B. Gautreau, comments on the maturity, not to say advanced age, of the general victors in war. Of the three marshals, 118 generals of divisions and 251 generals of brigades in the French active service, the youngest of the brigade generals is forty-four; the youngest general of division is fifty; all the army group commanders are beyond sixty. It is a contrast, Mr. Gautreau says, with the wars of the French Revolution, which brought to prominence generals who were scarcely more than twenty-five, such as Bonaparte, Hoche, Pichegru, and other great soldiers.

It is not necessary to go back so far as that to find groups of military commanders comparatively young. Our own Civil war supplies enough. To mention the oldest of the prominent generals on the Union side, Hooker was forty-nine when Lee beat him at Chancellorsville; Meade, forty-seven at Gettysburg. Sherman was forty-four when he started from Atlanta to the sea; Grant was only forty-three at Appomattox; McClellan thirty-six at Antietam; Sheridan thirty-three when he galloped to Winchester.

Of the Confederate leaders, Albert Sidney Johnston was fifty-eight and Lee and Joe Johnston were fifty-four when the war began; Longstreet was forty. Stonewall Jackson, whose beard and piety are to the schoolboy evidences of extreme age, was only thirty-nine when he was killed at Chancellorsville. Hood was but thirty-three when he took command against Sherman.

MEMORIAL FLAGS.

On this Memorial day when o'er the soldier's graves we strew The flag and the building rose, And daisy gemmed with dew, Our thoughts revert with grief and pride To those beyond the sea Who lost the young, heroic lives In defending Liberty. We cannot deck with garlands sweet The places where they rest, Nor moisten with our tears the earth Upon each gallant breast; But let us to the gentle winds Our service flags unfold, And hang a taleless laurel wreath O'er every star of gold.—MINNA IRVING.

Day of Sacred Memorial.

So the day is a twin festival, dedicated to brave men and true patriots, who in great crises did their duty with a courage and devotion that will ever be a reproach to civilian slackness, and should be an inspiration to more faithful and unselfish service. Only so can the American people make good their resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain. It ought not to be difficult to serve and be loyal to a country for which gallant men were content—and proud—to lay down their lives, whether in the Virginia or the Argonne wilderness. So we come to another Memorial day.

Day Belongs to All Heroes.

This day of American reconsecration is for the heroes of all of America's wars, the living and the dead, those who laid down their lives and those who offered the supreme sacrifice but were spared to a later generation.

THE UNFORGOTTEN.

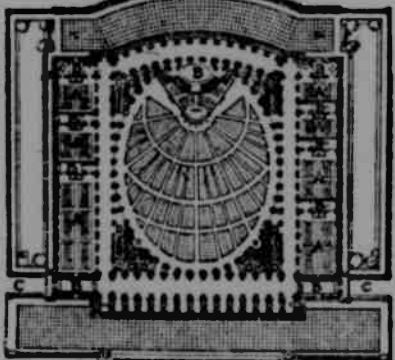

Myriads of dead in earth's warm bosom slumber, Tenderly blanketed by verdant sod, A myriad more, beneath old ocean's thunder, Silent await the final act of God. For God remembers—he who notes the sparrow—The pitiful pale ones who pass away, On earth forgotten, as all joy and sorrow And love forgotten are in life's brief day. But they who die upon the field of glory, Whether on ocean's plain or Marathon, They are the unforgotten; and their story Rings down the ages until time is done.

HALL OF HEROES

Worthy Memorial Projected for National Capital.

To Be Dedicated to Soldiers of the Republic Who Have Given to It "Their Last Full Measure of Devotion."

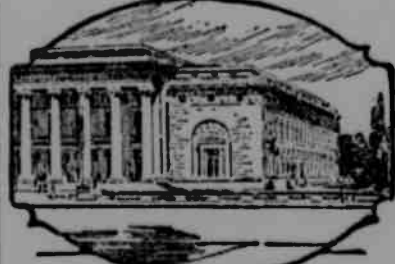

It now seems probable that one of the tangible fruits of the world war, in the form of memorials, will be an immense convention hall to be located in the national capital, which strangely enough has no really suitable meeting place for large audiences. If the building, for which plans have been accepted and a splendid site secured through the co-operation of congress, is erected, it will be designated as a memorial both to the soldiers of '17 (and '18) and of '70. The reason for thus linking the heroes of the present with those of colonial days is that George Washington himself is responsible for the idea of a memorial, having included in his will a bequest of $25,000 for the purpose. This was in the form of stock certificates, and was one of two gifts which congress gave him in view of the fact that he would accept no compensation of the usual sort for his services. In setting aside this gift in his will, Washington designated that it be used for the diffusion of knowledge.

While the original stock certificates have long since become a little value, the idea has never been lost sight of, and an organization was formed to raise money for the memorial. Our sharing in the great war interrupted the work of this society, but on the other hand the coming of peace has given it a new incentive, and so it is proposed to complete the fund (already $350,000 in cash, with many contingent promises in addition) and erect a great convention hall in honor of our boys in khaki and the Revolutionary heroes. A splendid site has been granted by congress for the building—that now occupied by the old Pennsylvania railway station. It provides for a main auditorium with a floor space of 38,500 square feet, with a gallery of 10,000 square feet, the two having a seating capacity of 7,000, and so suitable for inaugural balls, public receptions, etc., as well as conventions. Grouped about the main auditorium are smaller halls. The second floor is to have a banquet hall with a capacity of 600 persons and rooms designed to serve as permanent offices for patriotic societies.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Day of Solemn Observance.

Those who cannot bring themselves to a cessation of their normal pursuits long enough to join in the memorial services, to bow their heads in a momentary tribute to American valor, at least can refrain from making the very occasion of a holiday. They owe this much to the dead and to the families whose hearts are saddened by American sentiment can be shown in no better way than by observing May 30 as a real Memorial day.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th Street, Phila., Pa.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that it is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Prayed for Cure Finds it After 10 Years

Food Would Sour and Boil—Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gossner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.

I had stomach trouble over ten years; kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever. Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk. I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one and it began to feel relief; when it was three-fourths gone, I felt fine and when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the box and I have no more stomach trouble. Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man. I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all.

Easily Passed Examination Although Previously Told Condition Was Hopeless

"I was so bad off with kidney trouble I had to give up my work as engineer," says J. B. Eagles, 214 E. 9th St., Chicago, Ill. "My back gave out completely. It was as weak as if it were broken. When I tossed and turned the whole night long, I became dizzy and would have to grab the nearest object to keep from falling. At times the kidney secretions hardly passed at all, while again they would be profuse and oblige me to arise time and time again. The urine burned cruelly. I lost twenty-five pounds in weight; and I had taken so many things without relief I became discouraged. In fact, I was told there was no help for me. "At last I began with Doan's Kidney Pills, and they made a new man of me. It wasn't any time before I was back to normal weight and had passed a life insurance examination without any trouble. Over twelve years have since gone by and my cure is still permanent. I never to be forgotten."

Ban Removed The Finished Mystery

In magazine form June 1st. Every Christian and order loving person should read it. Explains the cause of the distress of nations, and foretells the blessings of the people in the near future. For the publication of this book during the war, many Christians suffered great persecution, being beaten, tarred and feathered, imprisoned and killed. Mark 13:9. The following is from the Golden Age, June 9th, 1920.

Accused Bible Students Exonerated.

"The officers of the International Bible Students Association, formerly known as Russellites, were indicted in May, 1918, tried before a court and jury and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for the alleged violation of the Espionage law. They applied for bail on appeal, but bail was denied and they were incarcerated in the penitentiary. At the end of nine months they were released on bail and two months later the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the judgment because they did not have a fair trial." They were the only men in the country arrested under this act who were denied bail. The reversal of this judgment was equivalent to saying that these men were illegally and unjustly convicted and sentenced and illegally imprisoned. On May 5th 1920, on motion of the United States District Attorney, the cases were dismissed, thus completely removing the charge and vindicating each one of them.

The Finished Mystery explains fully the prophecies of Revelations and Ezekiel, also "The Bridal Anthem," Solomon's Songs.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Ethel L. Gaut, Elmer R. Gaut and J. C. Gaut

No. 211 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to prevent a deed for the sale of certain real property situate in this State, which was made out by the defendant to the plaintiff.

The bill states that on or about the 22nd day of January, 1918, the said defendant conveyed certain real estate, which he now claims to be his, to the plaintiff, by way of mortgage, to secure the payment of the sum of $1,000.00, which was then due and owing by the said defendant to the plaintiff, and for which the said defendant gave his bond or writing obligatory of the same date, payable three years after date, with interest thereon, interest payable semi-annually.

That said mortgage contained a condition that in default of payment of the principal or of any interest thereon, or of the taxes, and being liable against the property in said mortgage mentioned, at the time the said mortgage was made, the whole mortgage debt should become due and payable and the plaintiffs were authorized and empowered to proceed to enforce the payment of said debt and accrued interest by a sale of the property.

That one H. R. Daugherty became the owner of one-half undivided interest in said property, subject however, to the mortgage aforesaid, by a certain deed executed by the said J. K. Sloan to the said H. R. Daugherty on the 27th day of September, 1918.

That no part of the principal of said indebtedness has been paid and no interest paid thereon that accrued since the 22nd day of July, 1918, and that taxes levied and assessed on the property in Garrett county has been allowed by the defendants to become in arrears and that said property has been sold at tax sale and afterwards redeemed by the plaintiff.

The bill then states and charges that default has been made in the covenants and conditions of said mortgage, and that the whole indebtedness, with the accrued interest is now due and payable.

And further charges that the said J. K. Sloan and H. R. Daugherty are non-residents of the State of Maryland and do not reside therein.

It is thereupon, this 7th day of July, 1920, ordered, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of August, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of August, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

WEISENGOFF GETS 14 MONTHS

With Fine of $2000 Imposed for Death of Sheriff Davis of Keyser.

Peter Weisengoff, former saloon-keeper of Westernport, Md., indicted for the murder of Sheriff Donald P. Davis, of Keyser, West Va., was convicted of involuntary manslaughter at his second trial at Petersburg, West Va., which was concluded on Saturday last. The case was removed from Mineral county following a writ of error granted by the Supreme Court of Appeals.

Weisengoff was sentenced by Judge Francis M. Reynolds to 14 months in jail at Keyser and to pay a fine of $2000. Upon his previous conviction for second degree murder he had been given ten years in the penitentiary. His appeal was granted on the ground that he had been refused a change of venue, declaring that the feeling against him excluded a fair trial at Keyser. Weisengoff has entered upon his sentence at Keyser.

He is a native of Russia who landed in Philadelphia in 1905. After spending seven months there he went to Luke, Md., where he was employed by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company until 1913, when he started in the saloon business and made a fortune, due largely to West Virginia, which is just across the river, being "dry." It was for an infraction of the prohibition laws of the state that Sheriff Davis sought to arrest Weisengoff two years ago as he was driving in his automobile with his children through Piedmont. Sheriff Davis jumped on the running board and in the struggle for the wheel the machine was wrecked and Davis was killed. The State charged that Weisengoff deliberately wrecked the machine, based on threats alleged to have been made by Weisengoff.

The case has cost Weisengoff, it is estimated, at least $10,000. Mrs. Davis, widow of the Sheriff, recovered $10,000 damages from him in the U. S. Court in Baltimore. Weisengoff is an extensive property owner.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Aden C. Wilt and Gauda Hunter,

Daniel Wilt, John Wilt, Ruth Newelrodt, Maude Newelrodt, Richard Newelrodt, C. Hunter, Ruby E. Hunter, Beveridge, Boyd Hunter, E. H. Hunter, Henry E. Hunter, Long, Alma Ruhame Long and Michael Long.

No. 2309 Equity.—In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, the property of Sarah E. Wilt, late of Garrett County, deceased.

The bill states:

That Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, his wife, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, were in their lifetime and at the time of their death, the said Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, his wife, were tenants by the entirety of a tract of land situate in Garrett County, known as a part of a tract of land called "Republic," containing the quantity of one hundred acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Floyd Buckhannon to the said Thornton Wilt and Sarah E. Wilt, dated March 1st, 1900, and duly recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 11, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy of which deed is filed in this proceeding.

That when said Thornton Wilt died, said real estate, the said Thornton Wilt departed this life, intestate, in the year 1901, and the said land then vested in the said Sarah E. Wilt, the survivor, and the said Sarah E. Wilt was seized and possessed of said real estate during the remainder of her life and at the time of her death.

That in addition to the aforesaid tract of land, the said Sarah E. Wilt, deceased, was seized and possessed of a tract of land in Garrett County, adjacent to the aforesaid tract of land, containing the quantity of fifty acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Charles M. Miller and Lizzie L. Miller, to the said Sarah E. Wilt, dated March 1st, 1900, and duly recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 11, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy of which deed is filed in this proceeding.

That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said Sarah E. Wilt, deceased, this life, intestate, in the month of March, 1901, leaving no issue, she devised and bequeathed by last will and testament, as follows: Aden C. Wilt, of Garrett County; Daniel Wilt, of Elkina, W. Va.; J. A. Wille, N. C.; Ruth Newelrodt, Maude Newelrodt, infant children, and Richard Newelrodt, deceased daughter of the said Sarah E. Wilt, deceased; and the following children of Amanda Hunter Long, deceased daughter of the said Sarah E. Wilt, deceased: Ruby E. Hunter, Ruby E. Hunter, Beveridge, Boyd Hunter, E. H. Hunter, Henry E. Hunter, Long and Alma Ruhame Long, infants; and Michael Long, deceased husband of the said Amanda Hunter Long, the last known residence of all of whom was in the state of Virginia.

That the said property is not susceptible of partition without material injury to the parties entitled to interests therein, and in order to make a division of said property it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to the will of the said Sarah E. Wilt, deceased.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of said real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among those entitled and for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is therefore, this 26th day of June, 1920, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of July, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 18th day of August, 1920, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Blue Ridge Reunion.

The annual Blue Ridge College reunion will be held in Speicher's grove at Accident on Sunday, August 8th. There will be preaching services in the Brethren church in the morning, followed by a basket dinner in the grove. In the afternoon an interesting program will be rendered, consisting of songs, readings and talks by some of the faculty and students of the college. All friends of the school as well as those interested in education, are invited to attend this reunion.

ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL
Directed To A. D. Naylor & Co., of Oakland, Md., of Parties Who Have Purchased Their Second Caloric Oakland, Md., August 4, 1920.

A. D. Naylor & Co., Oakland, Md.
Gentlemen:—
I purchased a Caloric Heater three years ago from you and had it installed in my residence on my farm near Oakland. It has heated my house thoroughly and I was so well pleased with it that after selling my farm and building another residence, I bought the second for it, though I could have bought other furnaces for less money. I can recommend the Caloric to anyone wanting a good furnace.
Very truly yours,
—Advertisement 24 It.

NEWS IN SCHOOL CIRCLES

Opening Date Determined And Several Teachers Appointed.

The Board of Education of this county, at its regular monthly meeting last Friday transacted considerable business of importance to the general public. The board is exerting every effort to meet the needs of the best interests of the schools and are providing many ways through which our schools may advance.

There is still a great scarcity of teachers and the board and County Superintendent have written letters to all trustees urging them to exert every effort to secure teachers so that every school in Garrett county may be open during 1920-1921. If any one knows of any available teachers, the County Superintendent would be gratified to have his or her name and address. The county school authorities believe that teachers will be fewer for the coming school year than they have been during the past two years. So trustees are urged to exert every effort to see the necessary teachers for their schools before it is too late.

The opening date for schools next fall have been fixed as Monday, September 13, but there will be a county-wide teachers' meeting in Oakland, on Thursday and Friday preceding, or on September 9th and 10th.

The next State Uniform Teachers' Examination will be held in the high school building, Oakland, on August 16th and 17th, beginning at 8:30 a. m. sharp. The examination will be limited to the subjects required of applicants who write for their first certificates. The examination for raising the grade of certificate will not be given again until next June. These examinations are for those who may have made, in the June examinations, grades below the required grades in any subjects as well as for those who have never taken an examination.

The trustees of all schools have been written to by the County Superintendent, upon instruction of the County Board of Education, that the fuel needs of all schools—coal and kindling wood—be "let out" to dealers, etc., only after competitive bids therefor have been received and purchases to be made of the lowest responsible bidders.

Upon written recommendations of trustees, the following teachers have been appointed for 1920-1921: Garrett County High School, Chas. H. Kolb, principal; Wiley W. Jenkins, Frances Decker, H. A. Loriditch, Icie Gliee Friend, Margaret S. Ulrich, Hartman, John Gies. New Germany, Delphi E. Miller. Weir, Elsie Custer; Bear Creek, Nelle Kaese, Sand Spring, John J. Knapp, Avilton, Laura E. Fike. Lynndale, Truman C. Bittinger. Friendsville Grammar, Ida A. Liston and Izzetta Fox. Friendsville High, Lome M. Saville, Bettyman, Foster Speicher. Kitzmiller Grammar, Nana T. Loar, Iva Bishop, Gertrude G. Cook, Emma F. Hamill, Belle H. Nine and Nellie Crooken. Crellin, Margaret J. Gloffely. Loch Lynn, Mary O'Donnell and Agatha Martini. McHenry, Edna Ault. Brant, Lucille Mitchell. Beall, C. Arthur Murphy. Wilson, Katherine Porter. Mill Run, Viola Ashby. Vindex, Katherine O'Donnell. Winding Ridge, Virginia Holliday. Negro Mountain, Hester L. Beachy. Thayersville, Bess Speicher. Chadderton, Mary Holtschneider. Bernard, Lillie Friend. Paradise, Mary Edna Custer. Bittinger, Loula Hetrick. Stoyer, Myrtle S. Wilson. Short Run, Hazel Weicht. Kempton, B. E. Thom.

Steps were taken by the board for securing necessary school building for the Promised Land section near Huton.

A delegation appeared before the board in reference to repairs to the Flatwoods school building, near Accident, in order to make that building suitable for school purposes during the coming school year, which are being worked out by the Board of Education.

WEST VIRGINIA WOMAN TELLS THE KIND OF SUFFRAGISTS SHE IS Democratic Committee Woman Cannot Be Classed With Alice Paul.

Mrs. Rose McGraw de Berriz, of Grafton, West Va., sister of the late Col. John T. McGraw, recently appointed Democratic National Committee Woman for West Virginia, who is at her summer home at Deer Park, denies that she is a "rank anti-suffragist." Her brother, Colonel McGraw, was the Democratic National Committeeman when he died a few months ago. Mrs. de Berriz made this statement:

"I am amazed at the unwarranted statement of the Fairmont West Virginian, which says I am a rank anti-suffragist. While I was at the Parkersburg committee meeting I was not asked for my views on the question and gave none. I assume that my selection to represent the women was a sufficient confirmation of my being ardently in favor of any move for the progress and advancement of American womanhood. I am in favor of woman suffrage—not the kind that aims to change men's ideas, but the kind that helps them attain the highest ideals; not the kind that would invade man's province and usurp his rightful principles, but the kind that will take active, vibrant interest in our own country and march abreast with progress and democracy, while at the same time keep the hearthstones 'swept and garnished' and the 'home fires brightly burning.'"

Mrs. de Berriz was married about a year ago to M. de Berriz, who is a native of Spain, and was associated in business with her brother, Colonel McGraw.

Miss Ruth McRobie, of Washington, is home for a brief vacation.

ACCUSED CHIROPRACTORS HAVE WAIVED A HEARING

Case of Drs. Kimmell and Freeland Will Be Heard at December Term.

This morning Drs. A. F. Kimmell and G. A. Freeland, chiropractors, who are under bond in the sum of $3,000 each pending the coroner's investigation into the death of Mrs. Ophelia Blanche Kitzmiller, a widow with four children, who died very suddenly at Mountain Lake Park nearly two weeks ago, waived a preliminary hearing this morning following a consultation with their counsel, Messrs. Fred. A. Thayer, of Oakland, and Saul Praeger, of Cumberland. It is assumed that State's Attorney William R. Offutt, who has just returned home from a Cumberland hospital, will consent to a continuance of the bail until the December Term of the Circuit Court.

A new angle in the case became known yesterday. It appears that when Dr. Henry W. McComas, county health officer, was called to view the body of Mrs. Kitzmiller right after her death he gave instructions that the body be not touched by an undertaker pending word from him. In the meantime, Mr. D. E. Bolden, who had been summoned by the friends of the dead woman, arrived, and not having been apprised of the orders of Dr. McComas, proceeded to embalm the body and had partially succeeded when Dr. McComas appeared and had him cease further work. What effect the injection of the fluid may have on the pathological finding is a matter of conjecture. The organs of the woman are now being examined in Baltimore and the coroner's jury is awaiting a report of the finding before announcing its verdict.

GAME LAWS OF MARYLAND

Hunting Season Dates Changed and New Bounty Law In Effect for 1920

The Republican has received the following communication from Mr. Jas. H. Hamill, secretary of the Garrett County Fish and Game Protective Association, with the request that the same be given publicity through the columns of this paper:

State Game Warden LeCompte has issued the revised and re-enacted game laws of the State in brief form for the guidance of hunters, the provisions of which are as follows: The newly enacted bounty laws for Garrett county provide for the following bounties to be paid for the killing of game and domestic fowl destroyers: Wild cat, $4; fox, $2; mink, weasel, hawk or owl, the sum of 50 cents.

The provision in a former local law prohibiting hunting while snow covered the ground has been repealed. The open season on pheasants, partridges, woodcock, rabbit, wild turkey and squirrel, is November 10 to January 1.

Muskrat and otter, open season January 1 to March 15. It is unlawful for any person to shoot muskrat in any manner at any time, and same can only be killed by trapping or gigning. Penalty, $100.

It is unlawful to export any game except wild fowl out of the State. However, non-residents holding a hunter's license may carry out one day's bag limit.

It is unlawful to shoot or chase wild fowl from a sail boat or a power boat. Unlawful to hunt game on Sunday with dog or gun.

Unlawful to sell, offer for sale, purchase or offer to purchase bob-white quail (or partridge), Chinese ring-necked pheasant, killed grouse or wild turkey.

Unlawful to kill Chinese ring-necked pheasant hens (female) at any time. This is done to establish this species of game in this State.

Unlawful for any person to hunt game in this State without a hunter's license and an arm tag which is to be worn on the left arm, and number of tag to correspond with the number of hunter's license. Guests of landlords must have a license.

Unlawful to trespass on any property used by the State Game Department for propagation of game or fish. Penalty $100. Unlawful to trespass on any property posted against trespassers without permission. Penalty $15.

KILLED IN PULP MILL

Young Garrett Countian Met Death At Luke Friday Last.

Claggett Warnick, aged 23 years, was killed while at work in the plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke, Friday afternoon of last week, when he was struck by a large driving belt which broke while he was standing nearby. The young man boarded on Westernport Hill with his uncle, John Walter Warnick. The body of the deceased was taken to his late home in New Germany, this county, from Westernport Saturday morning following his death, and on Sunday the funeral service was held which was very largely attended.

Civic Club Notes.

The monthly tea of the Civic Club was held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Sincell, Tuesday afternoon. The committee in charge besides the hostess was composed of Mrs. J. C. Polk, Mrs. C. H. All the goods they advertised.

While attempting to crank the family car, preparatory to starting to church service on Sunday morning, Master Elsie Beachy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Beachy, had his right arm broken above the wrist by the "back firing" of the motor. Dr. Bowen, of Grantsville, set the broken member and the boy is now resting comfortably.

A number of employees of State Senator Harvey J. Speicher, of Accident, passed through this village with a saw mill and its equipment a few days ago. The mill was being moved from Eglen, West Va., and will be used in manufacturing lumber from timber on the James P. Wiley farm, the timber having been recently purchased by Senator Speicher and associates.

Mr. Michael Logeer, a former esteemed citizen of this section of Garrett county, together with a party of relatives from Frostburg, spent last Sunday as guests in the John Beit-zell home.

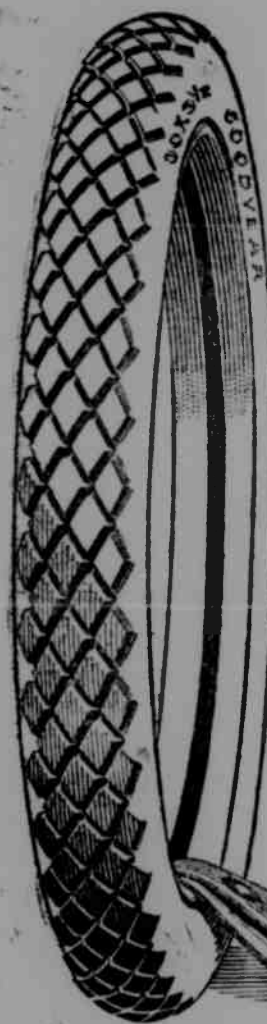

On last Friday afternoon the house in which Mrs. Adam Snyder resides with her family caught fire from a kitchen fire. Fortunately, some nearby neighbors were summoned and the flames were extinguished before any considerable damage was done.

William Winterburg, of Grantsville, spent a couple of hours calling on his many friends here last Sunday afternoon.

Paul Davis and family, of Tissue, Pa., spent Sunday at C. E. Ellithorpe's in this village.

Mrs. Jane Boucher, of Rockwood, Pa., is visiting friends here this week.

Get Goodyear Value In Tires for Small Cars

Don't be misled by very cheaply priced tires, for tire economy is not a matter of what tires cost originally but of what tire service costs in the end.

True Goodyear mileage and economy are built into Goodyear Tires, of the 30 x 3-, 30 x 3½- and 31 x 4-inch sizes, in the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking one of these sizes, you can equip it with Goodyear Tires at your nearest Service Station.

Go there for the exceptional value in these tires made possible by Goodyear's resources, experience and demonstrated expertness in tire manufacture.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 8.

The kindness of David. II Samuel 8: 15:21-13. Read 16:1-4; 19:24-30.

David executed justice and righteousness unto all his people. II Sam. 8:15.

THE FINDING.

The kingdom-builder had little leisure. Philistia had to be subdued; a capital selected and established, adorned with buildings and suitably fortified; the religious interests conserved by the bringing of the Ark and the planning for a more permanent place for its keeping; the army had to be brought into efficiency and munitions provided; organization of governmental departments had to keep pace with the growing power of the new state. David had full scope for his genius and full opportunity for his time those early years of empire. And with each new solution a multitude of other issues crowded forward for settlement so that there was little time for aught save the things of state which were considered by day and dreamed of by night. Yet into these filled hours would creep the cry of the heart for Jonathan. How persistently that splendid friendship lived in the life of the survivor that recurrent thought declares. So far as David knew there remained not one soul of all the family of Saul. Hotted out by war and murder there was a hopeless blank and only his desires were living. The great man is never content with a generalization. Suppositions do not satisfy the heart. It is this attention to the last minute particular that divides genius from mediocrity. In spite of the supposition David set in motion all the machinery of government to discover if any of the line of Saul still lived. They reported an old servant and he was speedily called into the presence of the King. Difference of station played no part when information was being sought. It was the word of a farmer lad that had much to do with the placing of the battle of Gettysburg for thru the war Governor of Pa., it passed to Washington and turned the feet of thousands of blue coated soldiers toward that little town. Ziba had grown prosperous during the day of Saul's successor and had apparently utilized some of his late master's skill if not his property in increasing his own store but there had been no thought of taking out of exile and dependence upon outside kindness the known-to-be-crippled son of Jonathan. Ziba "beat it" to freedom and self-seeking at the first opportunity being far too busy to care what happened to any left behind. It took the King to search and discover the outcast and both ran true to form thruout the story. David would make a model Scout seeking his one good turn every day and the king's heart was softened too.

THE FEAR.

Across the Jordan in a borrowed home the crippled son of the great Prince lived making the best of his circumstances and even finding a splendid woman who forgot his feet in looking in his face she became his wife. In to that quiet corner of contented penury came the sudden message from Jerusalem: "Come immediately to the Capital." It was signed by the King and sealed with the royal seal. Then was consternation and dismay. There could be but one meaning to such a summons for the custom of oriental monarchs was too well known to need explanation; any possible rival was put to death without ceremony. But a broken body is no index of a broken spirit. Feary sought and found the old head-quarters of the Greely expedition, stumbling thru the door with both feet frozen so badly that toe after toe sloughed off and he had to be sledged back two hundred miles to his ship for an operation that left him crippled. Certainly he might have been excused from further attempts toward the Pole but thirty-seven days later he was faring northward on crutches. Small wonder that he set "Old Glory" on the top of the world. Mephibosheth might be lame in his feet but the spirit of that dauntless Father still lived in the crippled form. Was he summoned to die? Then he would set forth upon the grim journey without whine or tears. Orders were to be executed not criticized and the cavalier followed the road down the Jordan, crossed near Jericho, climbed the rugged path to the still crude Capital and presently he was stumbling into the presence of the merciless monarch who would not overlook even a cripple in his clearing of the field of elements possibly unfriendly to his power.

THE FAVOR.

Upon his face before the throne his eyes saw nothing of the working face of him who sat upon it. Then a voice said softly, "Mephibosheth?" "Behold thy servant" came the muffled response. "Fear not," continued that gentle toned tongue that was melting under Jonathan's memory: "I will surely show the kindness for Jonathan's sake and will restore all that was your inheritance from Saul's estate and you shall be my guest for life and sit at the table as one of my own sons." Fear was gone, penury was banished, deformity covered by the King's favor. In addition Ziba the tricky was made to pay rental from the tilled lands and furnish a support for the rightful heir. So the year passed until Abshalom drove David into exile and Ziba deserted the lame man and stole his estate only to find that murder will not lie covered and the disheveled, unwashed lover of the returning ruler once more sat at the royal table and was admitted to the friendship of its head. It would have been easy to side with the son in the palace but all thru the days of its occupancy by the usurper Mephibosheth was irreconcilable and refused to bow the knee. The uncowed spirit kept its flag aloft and its loyalty unshaken thru all the desperate days.

THE POLLY.

"What a fool David is to waste his time upon a cripple," was probably heard a number of times from Ziba and his ilk. It is a companion piece to the Bethany scene where the cry of "Waste! Waste!" greeted the glorious devotion of Mary to the Christ. Yet the world can never forget the glory of the selfless giving that reveals the quality of the heart behind the gift. That spirit that offers its best with no thought of return links the giver with the Greatest of all Givers, Jesus Christ, who counted life of small value if it might be placed at the disposal of the weakest and most crippled soul in all the world. David was never greater than when he stopped the affairs of state that a kindness carried thru with the munificence of a king might be done to one of the most inconspicuous of his subjects. It was Queen Victoria who furnished a cart and donkey for a poor char-woman, it was Gladstone praying by the bed of a cross-riding sweeper, it was Lincoln lifting the fallen bird back into its nest that became the beloved of the world. It is God who calls the outcasts to court and lowers him with all that Heaven holds who ultimately rewards every life that is generous in spirit like himself.

Willing Clerk.

He was strictly opposed to doctors and medicine, proclaiming the doctrine that fresh air, pure water and plenty of exercise could cure all ills, even to smallpox. He walked breezily into a downtown drug store and asked his hand at one of the shelves. "There," he said in a tone loud enough for all the real and prospective customers to hear him, "there is enough poison to kill all the people in Indianapolis."

ASKING A LITTLE TOO MUCH

Under the Circumstances, Actor Was Justified in Refusing Parts Manager Allotted Him.

Owing to the limitations of his purse the manager of a theatrical show on the road traveled with a short company.

One afternoon he called one of his players to him and remarked: "Look here, Wellington, you'll have to play three parts tomorrow night in 'The Silent Foe'—Henderson, Uncle Bill, and the Spider."

"Can't do it," retorted Wellington briefly, but firmly. "Can't do it? Won't do it, you mean?" snorted the manager. "Why won't you do it?"

"Because it can't be done. No human being could play those three parts at the one time. In the third act Henderson and the Spider have a fight and old Uncle Bill rushes in to separate them."

CHINESE HOLD HILL SACRED

Huang Shan Created a Shrine More Than Three Hundred Years Ago, Is Tradition.

More than 300 years ago in the Ming dynasty, a Buddhist priest named P'u Men visited the Huang Shan in the South Anhui hills. He was charmed with the place and became infatuated with the idea of making it a sacred mountain. A journey to Peking and an audience with the royal household resulted in an appropriation of large sums of money for developing this fairland of the gods. A brass pagoda was prepared for the first temple. It was decorated with 1,000 little Buddhas and was called Thousand God pagoda. The temple whose halls it decked was christened the Purple Sand temple and is now restored and called Merciful Light hall.

At that time, says the North China Herald, hundreds of priests came to the mountains, and there was a period of Buddhist prosperity. Roads were built to the tops of all the important peaks, and at least one temple was erected far above the line of perennial springs.

ASPIRIN INTRODUCED BY "BAYER" IN 1900

Look for name "Bayer" on the tablets, then you need never worry.

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The "Bayer Cross" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations. In each package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are safe and proper directions for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacturing of Monacopoland, Germany of Salicylic acid.—Adv.

When Barker Barked.

Sergeant Barker was in a temper, and the recruits under instruction were having a hard time of it.

The squad had to "bunt turn" so many times in a few seconds that it was no wonder the poor fellows got dizzy, and Smudger Smith finished up by turning about the wrong way.

Sergeant Barker got in a towering rage and striding up to Smudger roared: "Where the dickens do you think you are? On parade, or what?"

"Well, sergeant," replied Smudger, meekly, "I began to think I was at a fancy-dress ball dressed up as a bloomin' leg o' mutton, and twisting round and round on a meat-jack."

The Milkman's Error.

Guy Oyster, the brilliant secretary of Samuel Gompers, said in a recent interview:

"I personally, in this time of underproduction, am against strikes. Strikes are a good thing, but you can have too much of a good thing, as the milkman remarked when he found that he'd spoiled his milk by putting too much milk-preservative in it."

Measuring Time.

Ernest was learning to tell time. He had just mustered the numbers on the face of the clock, but had not learned the meaning of the minute hand.

"What time is it?" I asked him, when the minute hand pointed to five minutes of 12.

He looked a long time, and then said: "Why, it is just an inch to 12."

ERADICATION OF WILD CUCUMBER

Plant Is Serious Menace to Pickle Growing in Various Sections of Country.

ELIMINATE MOSAIC DISEASE

White Pickle Disease Is Generally More General in Towns Than in Open Country—Beetles Carry Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Wild cucumbers are a serious menace to pickle growing. That the eradication of this plant would reduce, if not entirely eliminate, the mosaic disease of cucumber which in some sections has practically driven the pickling business out of existence, is shown by studies made in Wisconsin by United States department of agriculture scientists. Their investigations prove that the white pickle disease, or mosaic disease of cucumbers, also attacks the wild or white pickle cucumber, a vine which occurs along streams and is used for ornamental purposes in many parts of the middle West. Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, where this wild vine thrives, are the center of the pickle-growing industry in this country. The wild plant is a serious menace to the cultivated cucumber in these states, because it is the principal, if not the only, means by which this disease is carried over from season to season.

All persons in town and country in cucumber regions are urged by the United States department of agriculture to stop planting the wild cucumber and to pull up and destroy all wild cucumber plants found in their vicinity.

Disease Near Towns.

Coincident with the great abundance of wild cucumbers near towns it has been observed that the white pickle disease of the cultivated cucumber is generally more abundant and severe near towns than in the open country. This is of importance not only to nearby farmers who grow pickles as a business, but to town gardeners as well who wish to grow a few cucumbers, muskmelons or other vine crops for home use. The disease may attack any of these vines so severely as to kill the plant or prevent the production of any but stunted and worthless fruits.

The striped cucumber beetle, which is usually present on cucumbers, is one of the most effective agents in spreading the disease from plant to plant and from field to field. Department of agriculture scientists have shown that the disease is carried from one cucumber crop to the next as follows: Seed produced on a mosaic wild cucumber plant falls to the ground in the autumn.

Beetles Carry Disease.

When the garden and field cucumbers appear the beetles fly to feed on them, carrying the disease with them. It is quite certain, therefore, that the disease generally starts each season from the wild cucumber, and it appears probable that the elimination of this plant as an ornamental would go far toward reducing the amount of mosaic disease on cultivated cucumbers. Among the climbing annuals which have been recommended to take the place of wild cucumbers as an ornamental are the morning glory, the scarlet runner bean, and the cypress vine. All are quick growers and provide shade and an abundance of showy flowers. Of the many perennial vines available for use as ornamentals, the Virginia creeper, the wild grape, white flowered clematis, and the false bittersweet are mentioned as especially adapted for the middle West. Those interested in looking into the matter further should secure Farmers' Bulletin 105 from the United States department of agriculture.

CLOSELY-WOVEN WIRE FENCE IS INSURANCE

Keeps Neighbor's Chickens on His Own Side.

Dogs Destroy Garden by Running Over It and Making Beds Underneath Larger Foliage—Cats Also Are Troublesome.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More neighborhood trouble has originated from neighbor's chickens destroying garden crops than from any other one source. It has been asserted. A good, closely-woven wire fence is the best insurance that can be taken out against such troubles.

A garden was being destroyed by a neighbor's chickens, and the owner bored small holes in grains of corn and tied a thread about a foot in length to each kernel of corn. On the other end of the thread he tied small tags on which was printed, "I have been scratching in my neighbor's garden."

When the fowls went home with one or two of these tags hanging from their beaks, there was no further trouble.

A good fence not only keeps out neighbor's chickens but dogs and cats as well. While the chickens scratch up the ground, the dogs destroy it by running over it and making beds underneath the foliage of the larger crops. Cats are particularly troublesome when the garden is first planted, and it takes a pretty good fence to keep them out.

Reports to the United States department of agriculture show that very little trouble has been experienced by city gardeners from human depredations. Most of the trouble has come from chickens and stray animals, and the right kind of fence will prevent most of the losses.

A Good Fence Is Garden Insurance and Also Can Be Used to Support Vines.

MACHINES RENDER MUCH AID

Farmer Enabled to Produce 57 Bushels of Potatoes With One Average Hour's Labor.

By means of a potato cutter, a potato planter, and a potato digger, along with other machines and a more intelligent agriculture, a farmer has been able to produce 57 bushels of potatoes with one average hour's labor. A half century ago the product was only one-third as much, says the United States department of agriculture.

SETTING HENS IN ONE ROOM

Good Results Obtained Where Each Fowl Is Provided With Feed, Water and Dust Bath.

Usually several hens can be set with good results in one large room or loft, providing each with feed, water, and dust bath, so that they may leave the nests and return at will. The nests should be placed several feet apart to avoid interference with one another. Straw or hay, not chaff, makes the best nesting material.—United States Department of Agriculture.

SILAGE FROM SUDAN GRASS

Feeding Value Ranges Below Corn, Much Depending on Maturity When Put in Silo.

Sudan grass is preserved readily in the silo with no special attention necessary to the amount of dry matter. Its feeding value will range from two-thirds to three-fourths that of good corn silage, depending upon the maturity of the crop when put into the silo.

FACTORY-BUTTER VARIATIONS

Have Been Due in Late Years to Use of Milk in Manufacture of Other Products.

The variations in factory-butter production in late years have been due largely to the use of milk in the manufacture of other products to meet war needs. The output of factory butter has increased approximately 200,000, 000 pounds each ten years since 1880.—United States Department of Agriculture.

BABOON PUT TO USEFUL TASK

As Shepherds, the Animals Are Said to Develop Traits That Are Almost Human.

I have often wondered, remarks Mr. W. C. Scully in the Atlantic Monthly, why more baboons are not trained as shepherds. The creatures invariably develop an absorbing affection for any young animals, human or other, that are placed in their charge, and there is a well-authenticated instance of a baboon taking charge of a motherless Kafir infant, and guarding it night and day for more than two years.

The similar foster parent performed every necessary function except feeding the child.

Several baboons have been trained as shepherds. In a case that Mr. Scully himself observed the baboon had charge of several hundred sheep. He became passionately attached to the members of the flock, and remained with them all day long at pasture and brought them back to the corral in the evening. His only fault as shepherd was the outcome of extreme solicitude; if he heard the voices of wild baboons in the distance at any time of the day, he would at once collect the sheep, and with every appearance of the liveliest terror hurry them home.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

GAVE AMATEUR "SOFT" PART

Pomposus Individual Duly Awarded His "Place in the Sun," as He Had Requested.

The Swampton Dramatic society wanted their annual performance to be a success, so they engaged a professional from London to arrange it all.

As soon as this gentleman appeared, one of the amateurs tackled him.

"I must have a role to suit me," he began pompously. "I always play one of the principal parts in our shows, and so far I've been most successful."

"Excuse me," interposed the professional, "but you must allow me to be the judge of the most suitable part."

The first rehearsal occurred a few days later. When the cast was read out the pompous amateur found he had been left out altogether.

"Why have I not got a part?" he demanded angrily.

"You have a part, all right," replied the producer. "You are to be the first banana in the fruit-market scene!"—London Answers.

Let The Wild Cats Alone!

Every now and then somebody calls to ask for our opinion of some get-rich-quick scheme in which he or she has been asked to invest. For several years past the country has been flooded with bonanzas (?), and many people, to their sorrow, have put money into them.

Occasionally some good but misguided man, who has already bought a "wild cat" stock, calls on us seeking information. We like always to be encouraging, but on such occasions we feel very much as we imagine the doctor does who has to tell his patient the worst.

It is for the reason that there are very bad as well as very good securities that we advise prospective investors in any issue to investigate it thoroughly.

ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL

Directed To A. D. Naylor & Co., of Oakland, Md., of Parties Who Have Purchased Their Second Caloric Oakland, Md., August 4, 1920. A. D. Naylor & Co., Oakland, Md., Gentlemen:

I purchased a Caloric Heater three years ago from you and had it installed in my residence on a farm near Oakland. It has heated my house thoroughly and I was so well pleased with it that after selling my farm and building another residence, I bought the second for it, though I could have bought other furnaces for less money. I can recommend the Caloric to anyone wanting a good furnace.

Very truly yours,
W. M. FRAZEE.

In this issue of The Republican will be found the text of the two proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State, one providing for a salary of $300 per annum for members of the General Assembly and an additional salary of $5 per day while that body is in session. Should this amendment be adopted by the voters of the state it would result in giving each member of the House a salary of $1015 for the term of his office of two years and mileage amounting, in the case of members from Garrett county, of more than one hundred dollars additional. The present salary is $5 per day while the House is in session, or a maximum salary of $450 and mileage for the two years' term. The salary of the members of the House will thus be more than doubled, while the salary of the Senator will be increased in like ratio. The other proposed amendment deals with the salaries of Clerks of the Courts in Baltimore City.

--- Cemetery Note. ---

We are hearing many complaints about the neglected condition of our cemetery. We kindly suggest that the lot owners and those interested in a well kept cemetery would greatly assist the committee in their work of improvement by giving their lots a thorough cleaning and mowing at this time.

The Ford Touring Car is literally the pioneer it has brought about the solution of the Good Roads problem, because three million or more in operation brought up to the millions of America the necessity of good roads if quick transportation at low expense was to be enjoyed. The simplicity of the Ford car, its stability in construction, the famous heat-treated Vanadium steel with its marvelous strength and flexibility, the low cost of operation and maintenance, its ease in operation, all have made the Ford car the great favorite in every land in the world. It's the one car that always satisfies and serves. A utility beyond question that all can afford. Don't delay, because the demand is heavy all the time. You can make this surprising experiment in our store — The Test of the Two Violins Violins differ subtly in tone! Test the New Edison Realism by that fact.

We have an "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Albert Spalding with his Guarnerius. This famous violin has a brilliant, singing tone. We have a second "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Carl Fleisch with his genuine Stradivarius. This violin has a rich, mellow tone.

Come in and compare these two RE-CREATIONS—tone for tone. If the New Edison makes clear the distinction between the singing Guarnerius and the mellow Stradivarius, you know it has perfect realism for you.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

Albert Spalding himself recently took part in a test of the New Edison's Realism, at New York City. He played in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of his performance by the New Edison. Mr. Henry Hadley, one of the jury of the three distinguished musicians who listened from behind a screen, said: "The RE-CREATION matched Mr. Spalding's performance tone for tone." The New Edison is the only phonograph which has given this conclusive proof of its perfect realism. It has triumphed in 4,000 such comparison-tests.

PRICES! HALT!

Since 1914, the total price-increase in the New Edison has been less than 15%. Mr. Edison has personally absorbed more than one-half of the increased cost of manufacture. He may not be able to do this much longer. Buy now—if you want to-day's price. Our latest plan will help you. It distributes the payment over the months to come.

Ban Removed The Finished Mystery

In magazine form June 1st. Every Christian and order loving person should read it. Explains the cause of the distress of nations, and foretells the blessings of the people in the near future. For the publication of this book during the war, many Christians suffered great persecution, being beaten, tarred and feathered, imprisoned and killed. Mark 13:9. The following is from the Golden Age, June 9th, 1920.

Accused Bible Students Exonerated.

"The officers of the International Bible Students Association, formerly known as Russellites, were indicted in May, 1918, tried before a court and jury and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for the alleged violation of the Espionage law. They applied for bail on appeal, but bail was denied and they were incarcerated in the penitentiary. At the end of nine months they were released on bail and two months later the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the judgment because 'they did not have a fair trial.' They were the only men in the country arrested under this act who were denied bail. The reversal of this judgment was equivalent to saying that these men were illegally and unjustly convicted and sentenced and illegally imprisoned. On May 5th 1920, on motion of the United States District Attorney, the cases were dismissed, thus completely removing the charge and vindicating each one of them."

The Finished Mystery explains fully the prophecies of Revelations and Ezekiel, also "The Bridal Anthem," Solomon's Songs.

This book is no longer under the ban and all may now have it. Price in magazine form, 20 c. per copy, post paid.

sacred capital and consecrated labor are not antagonistic. Everyone needs to learn that life is a divine trust. Jesus came to minister and to give His life a ransom for many. "The strong should bear the infirmities of the weak and so fulfill the law of Christ."

No one has the right to live for himself. Others have claims upon him, yet every man must bear his own burden, yet, at the same time, each one, according to the measure of his ability and in his own way, must live for others. The great should be the benefactors of the race. We are stewards. Labor resents the idea of charity. They want justice. No church has any right to be so exclusive that the poorest cannot worship there and at the same time maintain his self-respect.

Mr. Alexander Rouke, assistant District Attorney for New York county, in an address before a club, called attention to the danger the United States is facing. He said: "Wherever capital has gone to develop and exploit the mines, the fields and the ships in foreign or domestic lands, there revolutionary socialism has followed with a new doctrine: 'To hell with your nations; to hell with your constitutions; to hell with your churches; your synagogues; your country; your capitalists; your wage system; your short hours; your big wages and your better living conditions. To hell with your whole social system. It is wrong, and we comrades of the Revolutionary Brotherhood will overthrow it, because you are robbers, exploiters of the poor, supporters of the Bourgeois (or citizens) political system, and hate and oppress the Proletariat, and we are the Proletariat (the needy class) who are the unskilled workers massed in the basic industries of the world.'"

"As far as we workers are concerned, the National Security League of Capitalism, their church, press and government, together with their holy constitution, can go straight to hell. Down with all constitutions, governments, capitalism, churches and synagogues! Long live freedom, equality, brotherhood and happiness! Long live Anarchism!"

He concluded by saying: "There is one class of labor that is thoroughly patriotic. They love the United States. The Revolutionary Socialistic labor says: 'We must overthrow the churches for it, because the churches have respect for private ownership of property and obedience to law and order. If we can once kill the religious idea that men must obey the rules of an unseen God, we will begin to make greater headway with our movement.'"

In view of these awful facts, should not honest and patriotic citizens awake to the danger that threatens us and take immediate steps to remedy the evil before it is too late?

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Ethel L. Gaut, Elmer R. Gaut and J. C. Gaut vs. J. K. Sloan and H. R. Daugherty. No. 2311 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain property in Garrett county, in this State, which was mortgaged by the defendant to the plaintiff.

The bill states that on or about the 22nd day of January, 1914, the said defendant conveyed certain real estate, which is particularly described in the exhibit filed with said bill, unto the plaintiff, by way of mortgage, to secure the payment of the sum of $15,000.00, which was then due and owing by the said defendant to the plaintiff, and for which the said defendant gave his bond or writing obliging him of the same date, payable three years after date, with interest thereon, interest payable semi-annually.

That said mortgage contained a condition that in default of payment of the principal or of any interest thereon, or of the taxes assessed and levied against the property in said mortgage mentioned, at the time the said mortgage debt, interest or taxes became due and payable, then the whole mortgage debt should become due and payable and the plaintiff were authorized and empowered to proceed to enforce the payment of said debt and accrued interest by a sale of the property.

That one H. R. Daugherty became the owner of one-half undivided interest in said property, subject however, to the mortgage aforesaid, by a certain deed executed by the said J. K. Sloan to the said H. R. Daugherty on the 25th day of September, 1914.

That no part of the principal of said indebtedness has been paid and no interest paid thereon that accrued since the 22nd day of January, 1914, and that taxes levied and assessed on the property in Garrett county has been allowed by the defendants to become in arrears and that said property has been sold at tax sale and afterwards redeemed by the plaintiff.

The bill then states and charges that default has been made in the covenants and conditions of said mortgage, and that the whole indebtedness with the accrued interest is now due and payable.

And further charges that the said J. K. Sloan and H. R. Daugherty are non-residents of the State of Maryland and do not reside therein.

It is thereupon, this 7th day of July, 1920, ordered, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this decree to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of August, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of August, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

At the last regular meeting of Garrett Lodge, held on Friday night of last week, the rank of Page was conferred on one candidate and the rank of Esquire was conferred on a class of six candidates for that degree.

We had several out-of-town visitors with us last Friday evening; also about thirty members of the local lodge were in attendance.

A meeting of the D. O. K. K. committee was held in the banquet room where it was decided that all members of this branch be constituted a committee on arrangements for the coming ceremonial to be held on Labor Day, September 6th. Take notice, Dokes, and govern yourselves accordingly. You will proceed to get busy on applications and report to Dr. W. Ravenscroft what you are able to do. Mr. Ernest Townsend and Mr. Henry Lauer will act with the Pythian Sisters in making preparations for the coming banquet upon the evening of September 6th. H. P. Stuck will be chairman of the committee and all Dokes will be members of the separate or subsidiary committees.

The piano has been placed in the lodge room and the Pythian Sisters are well pleased with it. It was purchased from Brother Carroll A. Elliott.

On next Friday evening the rank of Knight will be conferred on a class of six or seven candidates for that degree.

Great preparations are being made for our coming picnic on Labor Day and promises to be one of the best ever held in Garrett county. Knights and their families will be present from all parts of Western Maryland and our neighboring states of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Don't forget the date, Labor Day, September 6th.

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, dated the 31st day of July, 1920, and passed in a cause standing as No. 250 Equity on the docket thereof, wherein William Arnold and others are plaintiffs and John H. Arnold and others are defendants, the undersigned was appointed Trustee to make sale of the real estate mentioned in said proceedings, and I therefore hereby give notice that on Friday, the 6 Day of Aug., 1920, at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the dwelling on the premises located about one-half mile from Avilton, Maryland, I will offer for sale all of that certain parcel of land of which Eliza Arnold died seized and containing the quantity of 23 acres, more or less, and being fully described in a deed therefor from Christopher C. Garrett and wife to the said Eliza Arnold dated September 15, 1888 and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 54, folio 542, one of the Land Records of Allegany County, Md. The above land, known as the "Arnold Farm," is located on the County Road leading to Avilton from the National Pike at Turner, and about one-half mile from Avilton, is all cleared with the exception of about one acre, and is improved with a dwelling house, barn and other buildings, has two good orchards, it is watered by a well which pumps a most excellent farm home.

TERMS OF SALE.—As prescribed by the decree, one half cash on the day of sale and the balance in six months, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. Chances made at the cost of the purchaser.

ERNEST RAY JONES, Trustee.

MY MOTTO: QUALITY FIRST

A Correspondent Makes a Timely Suggestion Regarding Lighting and Electric Power.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Why not have a new electric lighting system in Oakland? We have been in the dark several nights this week as a sample of what we may expect this winter and many more summers and winters yet to come, unless the business men of the town awaken to the fact that no lights mean no business. Can we as residents and business men of the community afford to have this state of affairs continue?

Would it not be well to go to work now and create a company or corporation made up of individuals, buy a site and erect a plant and not wait until winter comes when if conditions continue as they have for some weeks past, we will be so in the dark that we will not even be able to reason our way out.

Every town should be well lighted. Wickedness in every form thrives in the dark, while prosperity, health and happiness lives and grows only in the light. We can afford a good electric lighting system. Every small village is now equipped with electric lights with day and night current. Why can't we? All the housewives want the current so that work will be made easier in this day of no help.

Many more people will come to Oakland to live if we can assure them these conveniences. They go where they can get them. I would suggest that a company be made up of the business men. Let each one be interested to the extent of at least one share of stock. This is a most worthy enterprise and on it depends at least the business life of the community after night.

Call a meeting of the people of the whole town at some convenient place—the town hall—have the band in attendance and settle this light business now and for all time.

We should have sufficient civic pride in this beautiful town of ours to own our own electric light plant and all other things that go to make up a desirable place in which to live.

Who is the man (or woman) to start this movement? TAXPAYER.

Yough Manor Coal Sold.

On Monday of this week, Mr. Edward H. Sincell and Mr. Charles Milton Sincell, his son, who held an option on the coal underlying the tract of land called Yough Manor, containing about 9,000 acres, located on both sides of the Youghiogheny River between Sang Run and Friendsville, in this county, closed a sale of the coal to Mr. Warner G. Earnshaw, of Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Earnshaw intends to start the development of the property at once and hopes to begin shipping coal within a few weeks.

The plant will be located at or near Kendall, the southern terminus of the Confluence & Oakland Railroad, and as rapidly as place can be made for them, a large number of miners will be given employment. This means much for Friendsville and the surrounding section of the county, and the good effects to result from this purchase and the development of the property on a large scale will be general throughout the county.

WILLIAM SINES, 100 YEARS OLD, HAS NO LONGEVITY THEORY

Garrett's Father William Never Drank But He Chews the Strongest Hecy

On July 20th last, William Sines, of Sines Postoffice, Garrett county, realized the ambition of his life by rounding out his one hundredth year and joining the select ranks of the "chosen few" who are centenarians. For a long time Mr. Sines has been saying that he wanted to live to be one hundred years old, and a happy combination of favorable circumstances, good health and unflinching determination has fulfilled the desire of his heart.

He was born at Cranesville, Va., now West Virginia, in 1820. When about 20 or 21 he married Miss Eliza Johnson, of Pennsylvania, who died in 1907 at the age of 84. He has lived in West Virginia and Maryland all his life, having finally returned to Garrett county at the time of his wife's death to make his home with John Sines, his oldest son, who is now 76. Besides this son, Mr. Sines has six other children living and seven are dead. One is safe in saying that his family is all grown up, since the baby, Ulysses Grant Sines, is now 52 years of age. His other living descendants number 54 grandchildren, 148 great-grandchildren and 21 great-great-grandchildren. Five generations were represented at his home on his centennial.

Mr. Sines comes of fighting stock. Martin and Lewis Wetzel, renowned Indian fighters were his great-uncles on the maternal side. His father, Henry Sines, was engaged against the British at New Orleans in the war of 1812, and he and his sons John and Henry fought together through the Civil War. He believes that this is a unique record for a father and two sons to have engaged in the War of the Rebellion and to be living at the present time, 75 years after the close of the struggle.

Mr. Sines, or "Father William," as he is affectionately termed, is still in good health; his hearing is perfect and his eyesight is fairly good. He was, until very recently, accustomed to spend much of his time walking about from one neighbor's house to another, very often coming to Oakland unaccompanied. Recently, however, he has been rather weak, and seldom goes away from the house. As recently as early in the spring he walked to Oakland without showing fatigue, transacted some business here and was ready to return to his home by noon of the same day. Once during the summer of 1919 he was dissuaded from walking to Cumberland, a distance of more than sixty miles. During 1918 he had a set of artificial teeth made, but owing to some trouble about his gums not apparent at the time, he was unable to use them, saying that they were worse than the tongue. Late in the summer of 1919 he was prevented from eating heartily and chewing the strongest tobacco. He takes no stimulants but strong coffee, never having drunk intoxicating liquors to any extent. He has been a member of the Church of the Brethren for 51 years, is an original member of the Republican party, having been more than 30 years old when it was founded, and he never missed an election until last year. For a long time prior to 1919 he had the distinction of being the first man to vote in District No. 6 each year.

Mr. Sines is a plain man and makes no capital of his years by posing as a sage or philosopher. He has no theory and no prescription for a long life, being shrewd enough to know that he has survived merely because he has not died. Although he is a picturesque and unique figure, moving slowly about on his old cane, and although he very evidently belongs to a past generation, he claims no special distinction on this account, but bears the honorable burden of his years with quiet dignity. He received the congratulations of 200 or 300 friends and relatives from all the surrounding country on his birthday with pleasure and was in no wise harmed by a full day of handshaking. "Father William" has lived to see the fulfillment of the Scriptural prophecy, "With long life will I satisfy him," although one must doubt whether he is really satisfied, for he plans to go right on living. And all hope that he may.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest. At the regular weekly meeting of Garrett Lodge of Oakland the rank of Knight was conferred on a class of four Esquires.

The new player piano installed in the lodge room is proving to be a drawing card and the music it furnishes is enjoyed by all the members who attend the sessions of the lodge. On next Friday evening the ranks of Page and Esquire will be conferred upon applicants for both these degrees of Knighthood.

Prospect day for a large crowd at our Labor Day picnic to be held on September 6th. We have received the word that it will be highly necessary that there be plenty of eats, and that is a splendid indication of a large crowd.

The D. O. K. K. celebration to be put on the night of September 6th will be a success from all reports thus far received, but it will be absolutely necessary that all Dokes get busy and bring in the necessary applications for membership.

Finally, come to lodge on Friday evening of this week and on Friday evening of all the weeks following. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Mr. Daniel Annan and Mr. Tasker G. Lowndes, of Cumberland, were in Oakland on business Tuesday afternoon and evening, the trip from the Queen City to Oakland and return being made by automobile.

First Gun Of National Campaign In Western Maryland Will Be Fired There Saturday Afternoon

At Mountain Lake Park on next Saturday afternoon the first gun in National Republican campaign in this section of the country will be fired when Dr. John Wesley Hill, Chancellor of Lincoln Memorial University, Cumberland Gap, Tenn., will be the orator of the day, the meeting being held under the auspices of the Republican State Central Committee of the county of which Mr. Charles A. Ashby, of Deer Park, is the chairman.

To this meeting everyone, irrespective of party affiliation is urged to be present and hear this most wonderful and convincing speaker, who is a national figure in both the educational and ministerial world.

FELL DOWN MINE AIR SHAFT

Joseph E. Foley, of Near Oakland, Is In Critical Condition As Result.

Joseph E. Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Foley, residing on a farm five or six miles south of Oakland, is in a critical condition at the Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, as a result of injuries received early Monday morning when he fell down the air shaft of what is known as the Kelson mine, over on the mountain from Oakland, and which was recently purchased from Mr. J. W. Kimmell by Dr. Melody.

Foley is suffering from a fractured skull and lacerations of his limbs and body. He had gone to the mine which had not been in operation for some time and in attempting to gain entrance to the workings he was directed to descend by means of a ladder leading down through the air shaft, the mouth of the mine having been closed by a slip of earth. When about half way down the ladder it either gave way beneath his weight or had deteriorated to such an extent that it had fallen apart and the young man stepped off into space, falling a distance of about forty feet to the pavement of the mine.

At the time of the occurrence Dr. Melody, young Foley's brother and other employees were present and sensing that something had befallen Foley a search was made and he was found and brought to the surface, and after receiving first aid at the Oakland Sanatorium he was taken to the Cumberland Hospital in the Golden ambulance where it was stated this morning, the patient has a chance for recovery provided no complications arise.

CANNERY CLOSED FOR YEAR

Management Extremely Well Pleased With This Season's Business

The Mount Airy Canning Company closed its plant at Luch Lynn last Friday, having finished the season for peas, this year. The growers were highly pleased with the yield, and the canning company was more than pleased with the quality of the peas.

Thirty acres of peas were delivered, representing twenty-one growers, with a net average yield of 1,900 pounds per acre. The highest net yield per acre was 3,400 pounds. These were Horsford Garden peas and were grown by Mr. S. W. Slabaugh, of Gortner.

The average yield per acre net, in dollars and cents was $10.00 on all peas delivered. The highest yield, net, was $10.84 per acre.

The average yield, as noted, was good in spite of the fact that the majority of the peas sown this year were a mixed variety and did not yield as they should have. With good seed and a properly prepared and properly fertilized seed bed there is no reason why the growers should not get at least 3,000 pounds of peas per acre.

Mr. Fooks, the president of the canning company, is well pleased with the prospects here and is willing to put up a permanent plant if the people want it.

Mr. Fooks will be in the office of the County Agent, Saturday, August 14th, from 10:00 to 12:00 o'clock, to meet with those who grew peas this year and any others who may be interested in the proposition and want to make the canning a permanent thing. Come to the meeting Saturday and give him an idea about how many peas you are willing to put out next year. The interest shown Saturday will determine whether you will have a canner on not. Remember the hour—10:00 o'clock. J. A. TOWLER, County Agent.

WAR RECORDS COMMISSION

Meeting With Secretary Called For Saturday Evening at Court House

In order to complete the War Records for the State and especially of Garrett county, the secretary of the War Records Commission of Maryland, Mr. Karl Singewald, of Baltimore, has communicated with the historical committee of this county asking for a public meeting with those who are interested in compiling and making permanent a record of the veterans of the late World War, as well as those who were engaged in any manner in war activities. To this meeting, which has been arranged for Saturday evening at eight o'clock at the Court House in Oakland, the presence of those whose assistance would be of value to the historical work is especially desired. Representatives of the American Legion, county and city officials, school superintendents and all others who in any manner could be of assistance in this important work, are urged to be present.

COULDN'T LEAVE DEAR DADDY

Sweet Girl's Affection Must Have Been Very Comforting to the Old Gentleman, Yes!

The blushing girl leaned over her father's chair and put her arm around his neck.

"You dear old papa!" she cooed. "You've been very good to your little girl since her engagement."

"I'm always glad to make my sun-beam happy," murmured father fondly. "I want you to think sometimes of your foolish old father and remember that he did everything he could to make home pleasant for you before you left him in his lonely old age."

"Oh, you dear, sweet man! What would you say if I didn't leave you, after all?"

"Ah!" exclaimed the startled old man.

"How can I be so selfish after you have been so good to me, and done everything for me?" said the girl tenderly. "I don't care so very very much for George. I'm going to tell him it was all a mistake, and that he can find somebody else, for I'm always going to stay at home with you. . . . And then you can always give me nice things!"

Naturally.

"The color rose in her face."

"Of course, it did. Its price went up with everything else and there was the war tax added."

"There's a Reason"

HIS DESTINATION NO OBJECT

As Example of Perfect Freedom From Care, Colored Boy Would Be Hard to Beat.

Sitting in the rear end of a day coach on a jerkwater road in Texas, my end of the car being a smoker for white passengers and the front end being reserved for the accommodation of colored persons, I—looking through the open door of the divilling partition—saw the conductor stop in the aisle alongside a half-grown negro boy who had boarded the coach at a flag station.

"I ain't got no ticket, cap'n," I heard the darky say. So saying, he handed a handful of silver dollars, out of a pocket and extended the hand, its palm covered with coins.

"Well, then, where do you want to go?" asked the conductor.

"Cap'n, it don't make no difference," quoth the boy. "Jee, you tells me please, sah, when dis yere money is done ridden up an' den I'll git off, an' I lak de looks of de place, an' when I don't lak it I'll give you some more money an' keep on a-ridin'."—Irvin S. Cobb in the Saturday Evening Post.

Too Good to Work.

A tall ancestral clock stood upon the mantelpiece in a Southern home, faithful to its duty. It had run untroubled for years. On a holiday occasion the maid, an old-time negro, decorating the house with holly and mistletoe, furnished the clock with a particularly brilliant wreath, and as she said, dressed it up for the occasion.

The next morning when she came to work, the faithful old clock had stopped.

She stood before it, arms akimbo and apostrophized it: "I knowed you was going to stop, clock! You is just like a nigger—no sooner 'n you gets all dressed up, you think you is for good to work."

A Helping Hand.

A very shy young farmer was courting a serious-minded young woman who was not adverse to him or to marriage, but she found herself after a long period of silent courtship no nearer the goal than ever; the young man could not summon up courage to speak.

One night, as they sat together—in head silence, of course—in her father's parlor, she decided that the hour and the man had come.

"George," she said in her most serious tones, "if you love me and don't like to say so, you may squeeze my hand."

PRODUCTION OF SORGHUM URGED

Keen Demand for Sugar Substitutes Favors Growth of Crop in Every State.

YIELD STEADILY INCREASING

Inquiries Still Greater Than Supply Despite High Prices Which Range From 90 Cents to $1.50 Per Gallon—Two Varieties.

A marked increase in the production of sorghum sirup is indicated by reports received by the United States department of agriculture, which has been engaged in a special campaign to induce greater production of this crop because of the keen demand for sugar substitutes.

Yield Has Increased.

At the beginning of the world war the annual yield of sorghum sirup in the United States was approximately 13,000,000 gallons. This has increased steadily until for the past year it was approximately 30,000,000 gallons. The average yield of sirup per acre has been about 100 gallons, but the fact that this figure can be increased is indicated by the department's experiments, in which more than 400 gallons per acre have been produced in some localities.

In urging increased plantings to sorghum the department's experts point out that despite the increasing yields the demand is still greater than the supply, as shown by the price for sirup.

Patch of Sweet Sorghum Stripped and Topped, Ready to Be Cut for Sirup Making.

which has ranged from 90 cents to $1.50 per gallon, and in a few cases even higher.

Grown in Every State.

There are abundant opportunities for increasing the sorghum production, the experts say, since this crop can be grown in every state in the Union with the possible exception of Maine. In the northern states it is necessary to plant early-maturing varieties of sorghum, "Early Amber" and "Polger" are among the varieties recommended by the department, which is prepared to supply inquiries with full information regarding the cultivation of this profitable plant.

ROTTED MANURE PREFERABLE

Its Mechanical Condition Is Improved by Organic Matter Being Broken Down.

Manure loses much of its plant food in the process of rotting. Its mechanical condition, however, is much improved, because there is a great deal of the coarse organic matter broken down. Much of this will be lost through decay, and the percentage of mineral plant food remaining may be greater per ton of manure in the rotted than in the fresh condition. These facts make rotted manure preferable for truck crops where quick results are desired and where a large amount of manure is used, says E. L. Duley of the University of Missouri college of agriculture.

Too heavy applications of fresh manure may often burn plants, especially during dry seasons. The coarse organic material keeps the soil open and reduces its capacity to retain moisture. However, there is too much loss of plant food in rotting and it is advisable to apply manure as soon as possible.

Obtaining Profits in Pigs

More Money Made in Maturing Animal Early Than Otherwise—Skimpy Feed Is Wasteful.

Profit comes not in how little we can keep the pig on, but in how much we can get him to eat of a balanced ration. The younger the animal the more thoroughly it digests its food. Therefore, mature pigs early. The six months' 200-pound pig costs one-half the 200-pound eighteen months' pig.

LOOK FOR INJURY TO TREES

Painting Wounds Caused by Mice and Rabbits Will Help to Heal—Bridge Grafting Is Good.

Go over the orchard and look for rabbit and mouse injuries to trees. Sometimes painting the wounds with white lead or grafting wax will help the trees to heal quickly. Bridge grafting over the wounds will also often bring the trees through.

On Account of Its High Protein Value Iowa Expert Recommends It for Feeding Pork.

According to John M. Ewald of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa agricultural experiment station, rape is one of the best emergency forage crops for hogs, because it is of high protein value and will carry more hogs per acre than any other crop of its kind. A good stand of rape will carry 12 to 15 hogs per acre.

SOME PIGEON POINTERS

It is never too late to clean out and whitewash the lofts. Better put up a few new nest boxes. Now.

Careful attention to all details will assist you in bringing about the best results obtainable. A good pigeon lice destroyer can be made from a tea of quassia bark which is placed in several pans about the lofts.

Pigeons will not do well if you neglect your part of the duty, such as proper feeding and watering. Don't handle your birds while nesting unless you want them to throw away their eggs.

Peasants make a first-class summer food for pigeons. A small quantity of vaseline put down the throat of pigeons that are affected with canker will cure them.

Give plenty of fresh water at this season of the year and note the results.

CULLING POOR HENS RESULTS IN SAVING

Many Fowls Eliminated From Missouri Flocks in 1919.

Forty Per Cent of Birds in Average Farm Flock Are Nonproductive and Should Be Fattened and Sold or Eaten.

In Missouri last year, 73,767 birds were eliminated from 1,743 flocks which were culled under the supervision of the home demonstration agents sent out by the United States department of agriculture and the State Agricultural college. This resulted in a saving of approximately $50,000 to the owners.

In another state, 450 local leaders were trained, with the result that 717,478 birds were culled. Of this number 274,360 were found to be nonproductive.

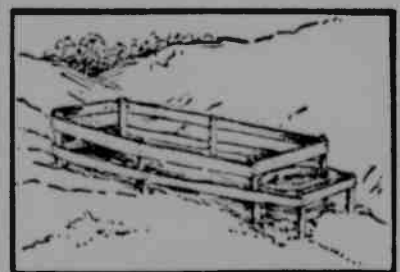

About 51 per cent of all the poultry in the country is cared for by women. For that reason special attention is given to poultry by the home clubs supervised by the department of agriculture and the state colleges, and farm women are taught best methods of poultry selection, breeding, raising, feeding, housing, culling, culling surplus birds for home use, preservation of eggs, and co-operative selling of poultry products.

Lack of proper culling thus far has proved to be, in the majority of cases, the principal reason why a flock is not profitable. Forty per cent of the hens in the average farm flock today are nonproductive, and should be sold or eaten. It costs about $2 a year to feed a hen. If she does not produce more than that amount in eggs she is unprofitable.

WATER SUPPLY FOR PASTURE

Half-Hogshead Will Answer Purpose Fairly Well, but Cement Trough Is Much Better.

Pasture springs are often made exceedingly foul, because the stock defecates the spring with droppings and makes a mudhole of the place by tramping it with their feet. The cut shows a way to keep the water pure. Put a fence about the spring and carry the inhouse downhill far enough to include a watering trough within its protection. A half-hogshead will answer, but a cement trough would be a permanent improvement.

Protection for Spring.

SWEET CLOVER GAINS FAVOR

Enables Farmer to Grow Regular Crop and Then Secure Manure Crop to Plow Under.

The problem of the farmer has been to find a crop that was a legitimate to take the place of clover when it fails. With sweet clover it will be possible to grow a regular crop on the soil and then secure a heavy green manure crop the same year to plow under. Much of the future policy of farming depends upon a cheap supply of nitrogen to build up that lost from the soil by cropping, and no other crop has given so much promise as the new annual sweet clover.

EMERGENCY CROP FOR SWINE

On Account of Its High Protein Value Iowa Expert Recommends It for Feeding Pork.

According to John M. Ewald of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa agricultural experiment station, rape is one of the best emergency forage crops for hogs, because it is of high protein value and will carry more hogs per acre than any other crop of its kind. A good stand of rape will carry 12 to 15 hogs per acre.

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact!

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my household work. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—and it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own housework, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. F. H. Koenig, 617 Ellis Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

SMALL COMFORT FOR TITUS

Mr. Titmouse Might Have Felt Better Had He Not Called on Newspaper Editor.

Titus Titmouse was infuriated, but the editor of the Western Wind shut him up in two seconds.

"Is this the newspaper office?" inquired Mr. Titmouse.

"It is," responded the man at the desk.

"Didn't this paper say I was a liar?"

"It did not,"

"It did not," said I was a scoundrel!"

"It did not,"

"Well, some paper said it."

"Possibly it was our contemporary down the street," suggested the editor, as he picked up a newspaper.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proved to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because it does not irritate the system, as realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

He Knew.

A western youngster who attends an eastern college came home recently for a few days. His mother, of course, cooked up all his special dishes and the youngster rejoiced as he sat down to the well-filled table. "I'll tell you, John," began his father, booming at the boy, "the happiest time in most people's lives is right when they are eating. Isn't it?"

John looked at mother, who had acted as cook, and then at the rest of his family. "Yes, it is," he agreed, "provided that they are eating with some people for whom they actually care."

Harvest 20 to 45 Bushel to Acre Wheat in Western Canada

Think what that means to you in good hard dollars with the great demand for wheat at high prices. Many farmers in Western Canada have paid for their land from a single crop. The same success may still be yours if you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 an Acre located in thriving towns, good markets, railways—land of a kind which grows 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre, good grazing lands at low prices convenient to your grain farm, enable you to reap the profits from stock raising and dairying.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE AN EX-CLUSIVE POLICY

The attempt to identify the Monroe Doctrine with Article X. of the League of Nations covenant involves an error in reasoning which, we think, must be plain to all thinking minds. The Monroe Doctrine is exclusive, strictly and deliberately exclusive. Article X. aims to be inclusive. If it is not universally inclusive, it is unmeaning. Of the Monroe Doctrine the whole essence is contained in the following declaration:
"We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those Powers [of the Old World] to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere, as dangerous to our peace and safety."
This is a warning of exclusion to the Old World Powers. They are asked to keep away from all attempts to interfere with the system of the Americans. Article X. seeks to include the Americans in the sphere of interest and regulation of the Old World Powers and also the territories of the Old World in the American sphere of interest and regulation.

They are as mutually opposed, it would seem, as any two propositions in politics can possibly be. It is impossible to make the exclusive inclusive. To talk of extending the Monroe Doctrine to the whole world is simply to rob words of their meaning.

If, as Mr. Cox avers, Article X. is the very essence of the Monroe Doctrine, or vice versa, then we violated the Monroe Doctrine when we took first Texas and then California from Mexico and when we connived at Panama from Colombia. We have not held ourselves entirely guiltless in our behavior toward Mexico and Colombia; but certainly, none ever dreamed of irking the indictment on the ground that the Monroe Doctrine constituted or contained a guarantee of integrity and existing political independence of every country in this hemisphere, regardless of our own national interests.

Testimonials From Additional Par-land, A. D. Naylor & Co., of Oakland.

Egton, W. Va., Dec. 17, 1917.
We are using a Pipeless Caloric Furnace now for a year and like it very much. It is very easy to operate since we got used to it. At first we would have it too warm until we learned how. We have kept fire in it for four days without stringing it up, we never have the fire to go out. It is much less work than a stove.

JESSE FIFE.
Egton, W. Va., Aug. 2, 1920.
The first Caloric heater I bought of you was in 1917. I was so well satisfied with that after I sold my farm and purchased another place I felt that we could not spend a winter without a Caloric so we purchased the second one from you and we are certainly pleased with it. I could have gotten a furnace for less money but I wanted the best. I can recommend the Caloric heater to anyone wanting a first class heater.

JESSE FIFE.
Egton, W. Va., July 22, 1920.
I have used one of your Caloric heaters in my residence near Egton for several years and I was so pleased with it that after selling my place and buying another I gave you an order for the second Caloric, as I felt we could not get along without it after using one. They are fuel savers and easy to operate. I can not say too much for the Caloric.

WALTER FEATHER.
March 14, 1920.
I have had my small size Caloric two winters. It has heated my eight room house to my satisfaction day and night with about 5/8 of a bushel of coal. I think the Caloric is the best furnace I have ever seen. I have sold my home where I have my Caloric, and now must buy another.

(Since this time Mr. Fife has purchased the second furnace as is very much pleased with same.)

Save 35% of Your Fuel

There are three reasons for this big saving. 1st, the warm air reaches your rooms by nature's direct method of circulation and there are no pipes to absorb or resist the heat. 2nd, our double ribbed fire-pot and specially patented combustion chamber produce perfect combustion thus insuring thorough burning of the fuel and a much greater heating surface. 3rd, our specially patented triple casing, insulated with air spaces, prevents any heat from radiating into the basement. This is the only successful patented one-register furnace and no other furnace can claim these big features.

The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

Burns coal, coke or wood, and you save money whatever you use. It costs less than any other furnace because you do not have to pay for a lot of pipes.
Install in any house new or old. Well adapted to old houses because you don't have to cut a lot of holes for pipes and flues. Just one hole for the register. It always gives full satisfaction.

Lost 65 Pounds in Weight and Had to Give Up Work. Has Been Well Since Using Doan's

"Being exposed to extreme heat when working as an engineer, and then going outdoors to cool off, caused my kidneys trouble," says Karl Goering, 3312 N. Orkney St., Philadelphia, Pa. "In cold weather and when it was damp, my joints and muscles would swell and ache, and often my limbs were badly affected. It was only with great difficulty I was able to get around. For a week I was laid up in bed, unable to move hand or foot."

"Kidney trouble was a regular and scanty stream of the kidney secretions. I was dull and weak and had to give up my work. Headaches and dizzy spells nearly blinded me and I went from 255 to 200 in weight. Nothing helped me and I felt I was doomed to die."

"At last I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and began taking them. I soon got back my strength and weight and all the rheumatic pains and other kidney troubles left. I have remained cured."

EATONIC Users—Do This—Get the Greatest Benefits

Chicago, Ill.—Thousands of reports from people all over the U. S. who have used Eatonic, show the greatest benefits are obtained by using it for a few weeks, taking one or two tablets after each meal.

Eatonic users know that it stops itching, blotting, heartburn, and stomach miseries quickly, but the really lasting benefits are obtained by using Eatonic long enough to take the harmful excess acids and mucus entirely out of the system. This requires a little time, for Eatonic takes up the excess acidity and poisons and carries them out of the body and of course, when it is all removed, the sufferer gets well, feels fine—full of life and pep.

If you have been taking an Eatonic now and then, be sure and take it regularly for a time and obtain all of these wonderful benefits. Please speak to your druggist about this, so that he can tell others that need this help. Adv.

Charge British With Atrocity

Indian Statesmen Disclose Attack by General Dyer on 20,000 Unarmed Natives.

TWO ARRESTS START TROUBLE

Natives Seek to Present Petition for Release of Leaders and Are Attacked by Soldiers—1,000 Are Massacred.

New York.—An attack by British soldiers upon a crowd of unarmed natives of India, as they were seeking to present to a British deputy commissioner a petition for the release of two of their leaders, led a few days later to the massacre of 1,000 Indians in a great square at Amritsar, in the Punjab district of India in the spring of 1919, says a report prepared by the Punjab subcommittee of the Indian national congress.

Dissatisfaction among the natives first became apparent with the passage of the Rowlatt bills, designed to punish sedition.

All over the country resolutions were passed by huge mass meetings protesting against the law and demanding its repeal.

The trouble, the report states, began in earnest when two influential natives, Doctors Kitchlew and Satyapal, were arrested and their friends heard they were to be deported.

Many Natives Killed.

The report continues with a description of the fight between natives and soldiers, during which many of the former were killed and the survivors inflamed to such a pitch of fury that they returned into the city and applied the torch to several principal buildings.

The occurrence which directly led to the subsequent wholesale massacres in the Jallianwala Park, the report asserts, was a proclamation issued about this time by Gen. Dyer forbidding the natives to assemble publicly.

"The public meeting in the Jallianwala Park," the report states, "was called before the proclamation had reached more than half the population. Shortly before the arrival of Gen. Dyer on the scene with ninety soldiers and two armored cars, Hans Raj had taken charge of the meeting, the audience numbering about 20,000.

What happened afterward is given by the Indian investigators in Gen. Dyer's own words recorded during his testimony at the subsequent inquiry: "When you got to the high wall did you do it?" Gen. Dyer was asked.

Opened Fire in 30 Seconds.

"I opened fire. Immediately I had thought about the matter and don't imagine it took me more than thirty seconds to make up my mind as to what my duty was," he replied.

"In firing, was it your object to disperse?"

"No, sir. I was going to fire until they dispersed."

"Did you continue firing after they had dispersed?"

"Yes."

"After the crowd indicated that it was going to disperse, why did you not stop?"

"I thought it was my duty to go on until they had dispersed. If I fired a little, I should be wrong in firing at all."

Continuing their report, the investigators added:

"The Gen. Dyer, said he continued firing for about ten minutes, until he had expended 1,650 rounds of ammunition. He said he had made no provision for aiding or removing the wounded. That was a medical question, he declared.

"One eye witness said: 'I saw hundreds of persons killed on the spot. The worst part of the whole thing was that firing was directed toward the gates through which the people were trying to run out. Many got trampled under the feet of the rushing crowds and thus lost their lives. There were heaps of bodies at different places. I think there must have been over 1,000.'"

CHANCE PALACE AS HOSPITAL

Notorious Chinese Gambling Hell to Be Confiscated by Government.

Shanghai.—The great gambling establishment in this city notorious for years under the name of "The Wheel," which originally cost more than $500,000, is to be converted into a charity hospital.

The Chinese authorities have announced that they intend to confiscate the huge building, which now stands dark and empty. Its owners, however, threaten to fight this program.

Up to about three years ago, when the place was closed by Chinese authorities, "The Wheel" in Shanghai was one of the biggest gambling establishments in the far East. It was located in Chinese territory on North Homan road, a fifteen-minute automobile ride from the heart of the city.

In the days when the establishment flourished three roulette wheels, with six layouts, besides faro and other games, were operated.

POLYGAMY IS DROPPED

Girls in the Philippines Are Abandoning Old Ideas.

Uplift Through Education and Association With Christians Affecting Even Sultan of Sulu's Domains.

Manila, P. I.—Practice of polygamy in the Philippine islands is being repudiated through education of girls of the leading families of the outlying provinces, according to Frank W. Carpenter, retiring governor of the department of Mindanao and Sulu.

Mr. Carpenter is here to turn over administration of his office to the secretary of the interior, who will act through the bureau of non-Christian tribes. In accordance with a new territorial law.

This law leaves in effect a treaty under which the sultan of Sulu renounced all pretensions to temporal sovereignty, but gained recognition as ecclesiastical head of the Mohammedan church in the Sulu archipelago.

The treaty guarantees to the sultan and his people "the same religious freedom had by all adherents of all other religious creeds, the practice of which is not in violation of the basic principles of the laws of the United States."

"It is important to note," said Carpenter in one of his messages written as governor, "that this includes a limitation as to religious practice which necessarily includes the abandonment of polygamy."

"An effort to impose upon the people of the sultan at this time the invalidation of polygamous marriages

WAR ON CATS IN NEW YORK

But Rate Need Not Rejoice for They Are Also Due for extermination.

New York.—Plans to rid this city of thousands of cats, forced into vagabondage by the summer absence of their owners, were announced by the department of health, which will be aided in the anti-cat crusade by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The department, it was announced, will conduct a campaign to exterminate cats, particularly from housing ships, as a preventive against bubonic plague. The holds of all incoming ships will be fumigated with cyanide gas. It was said.

ARE OF SAME STOCK

Hawaiian and Maori Races Are Shown to Be Identical.

New Zealand Natives Are Descendants of People From Pacific Isles, Investigation Proves.

Honolulu.—The Maoris of New Zealand and the Hawaiians are from the same stock, it has just been announced by officials of the Church of Latter Day Saints here. They have made public evidence tending to prove that, in 500 A. D., 80 canoes left the Hawaiian Islands filled with men, women and children, and that five centuries later, the remnants of this migration reached New Zealand in 40 canoes.

Wiaremu, or William, Duncan, a Maori dairy farmer of Dunedin, New Zealand, who traces his ancestry back 110 generations, or to about 700 years before Christ, as Polynesian generations run, came here recently with 19 of his countrymen and countrywomen in a search for the link which would bind the Maori and Hawaiian races.

According to the statement of James N. Lambert, presiding elder of the New Zealand mission of the Mormon church, and President E. Wesley Smith of the Honolulu branch of the faith, under whose auspices the Maori came to Honolulu, the two races were found to merge at the sixty-fifth generation of Duncan's family tree.

When Duncan, who learned his genealogy, as Maoris and Hawaiians do, from the lips of his father, compared his family tree with that of Emma K. Lewis, a woman born on the island of Hawaii, he found that they had an identical forefather in the person of one Hema, sixty-fifth of his line in Duncan's genealogy.

From Hema back through the ages it was discovered that the two family trees ran as one, name after name being the same, except for slight differences in spelling and pronunciation, which are generally recognized.

Those who have been investigating the origin of the two races assert that the discoveries just made were taken in association with the Hawaiian tradition that Hema went from Hawaii to Tahiti, and the Maori tradition that Hema's descendants went to New Zealand from Tahiti, lend to the inevitable conclusion that the Maoris and the Hawaiians are of the same stock.

Danger of Dodging a Dream Train, Louisville, Ky.—He was in the center of a high bridge, below was a vast space and a train was speeding down upon him when Frank Soffield, Jr., took the lone chance and swung beneath the bridge with his fingers cramping the rail. Just as the wheels neared his fingers he dropped. But instead of dropping from a bridge Soffield really fell twenty-four feet from a second story window. An ambulance was called and his dream ended simultaneously.

TOMMY'S COAT

By JACK LAWTON

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Marilyn sat in the lilac arbor and sang as she sewed her seam. Marilyn was like an embodiment of spring herself, with sky blue eyes and apple blossom cheeks and the sweet smiling sunniness of her. Nearby stood a quaint little figure like a pixie stepped from a book or a hobgoblin come to life. Though the figure was, after all, merely that of a small red-haired Irish boy clad in an old coat far too big with coat tails which touched his heels.

"And so your name is Tommy Ryan," the girl was saying, "and your mother washes for the people in the big house next door. But why did you come to see me Tommy?"

"It's the coat," the boy replied shamefacedly, "the boys at school do be laughing at me because mother makes me wear it. I want to try some day to earn another. So I thought if you might be after havin' errands to do."

"You see," Marilyn said gently, "there are not many errands, Tommy, when I have only to shop for myself and old Tilly who helps for her board. But ——" she paused thoughtfully.

"Why," asked the boy, "did you be after comin' out here to live by yourself in this bit of a house? Haven't you got any folks, or a husband maybe?"

The girl laughed, then answered seriously.

"I'm quite alone in the world Tommy Ryan," she said, "and when I drove through this country and saw the bit of a house, one day it occurred to me that I might be able to live more cheaply and perhaps more profitably here than in the great city. I could read my illustrations from here to the unkind publishers just as well. So —"

"So here you are," finished Tommy. "Well, it's a nice doll's house of a place, an' me mother says that once it was the 'lodge' of the great house next door an' the folks that lived here then was great folks. It's their son has come back to live in the house now when he's in New York or Boston or Europe; he has auto cars and horses and everything. An'," added Tommy hotly, "he give this old coat o' mine to mother. Things he casts off an' she makes me wear 'em."

"It's a shame," Marilyn declared, gazing thoughtfully Tommy's loyal friend-

"But you won't always have to wear old coats," she comforted. "You'll go out and earn new ones for yourself."

Marilyn considered.

"I have wanted a garden for some time," she said, "a flower and a vegetable garden."

Marilyn did some figuring upon her fingers.

"Seeds are cheap," she added regretfully. "But we will manage some way Tommy and you are engaged at a very low figure to be my gardener. Still when he begins, and maybe some day if you work well we will raise crops and you shall drive into town to sell them."

Tommy's face glowed beneath the freckles.

"You mean it?" he asked. "Honest?"

"Honest," agreed Marilyn. And just then over the high dividing wall appeared the head of a man whose body evidently was poised upon a garden ladder.

"Beg pardon," said the man pleasantly, "but as I happened to be training a vine up my side of the wall I could not help overhearing some of your conversation. And if you are thinking of buying garden seed —" he bowed in Marilyn's direction, "why my head gardeners has quantities which we will be glad to give you. We make no use of them. And why purchase, he went on hastily as Marilyn's lips were forming a polite refusal, "when seeds are going to waste?"

The girl smiled.

"Why that is so," she replied, "and thank you."

"The poor little devil," he said laughing, "to think that Nora makes him wear my old coats. He must have had a time at school."

The garden surrounding the "bit of a house" flourished and showed great promise under Tommy's tireless care, while the young illustrator laid her sketching aside and came out to healthfully help him.

The son of the great house joined in the enthusiasm and postponed for the second time his New York trip as he, too, labored at Marilyn's direction.

It was when the golden days of a golden August were drawing to a close that the girl came stepping lightly across the grasses to Tommy Ryan's side. She held a new coat in her hands, not the khaki kind which Tommy had lately been wearing, but a grand coat of soft light tweed. "Tommy dear," she said, "this is for you to wear tomorrow, a brand new suit. For there's to be a wedding in the garden, and the wedding, Tommy, is to be mine."

Tommy nodded, shrewdly pointing a finger to the other side of the wall.

"And his," he said.

"Afterward, if you will, you shall come to us at the great house. Tommy, and coax the flowers to grow for me there."

"I'll come," the Irish boy answered happily. "But I'm thinking that the flowers will need no coaxin' where ye are. Miss, they'll bloom wherever ye tread."

Record Harvest Predicted for Canada.

After having made a careful survey of the wheat producing area of the United States, experts whose business it is to keep the people informed on the acreage sown to foodstuffs state that this year there will be a falling off in the wheat production in the States, due to a considerably less area cultivated. The opinion of these experts is that the decrease will be several hundred million bushels of wheat less than in previous years, which according to past experience will be scarcely sufficient to meet the requirements of the demands of the people of this country.

In Canada, however, the situation is different. Reliable reports on the crop situation throughout Western Canada are such as to create the most substantial optimism. Never before were the prospects so encouraging for a bumper harvest. It is predicted that the yield this year will be even greater than in 1915, the year of the record harvest in Canada, when the total production was 393,542,000 bushels. Not only is the wheat looking excellent, but the same is true of oats, barley and flax, of which a greatly increased acreage has been sown in the great grain producing provinces of Canada.

The rains that have fallen recently have come at the right time to stimulate growth and there is now considerable moisture in the ground. With the world generally facing a shortage of wheat and a continuing heavy demand for it, the price is likely to be maintained at the present high figure.

In many districts corn has been more extensively planted than in previous years and it is looking remarkably well. Many settlers from the United States who came to Western Canada and bought improved farms in the early spring have every prospect of a crop yield that will give them a return sufficiently large, after paying all current expenses, to pay off a large part of their capital investment.

Livestock is in excellent condition everywhere, the rains having induced a good growth of grass.—Advertiser.

What's done as much as anything else to fill up the movie houses

LOOK at the crowds that step out of their cars in front of the movies every summer evening.

The movie managers would be renting half of their theatres for store space, if it weren't for the automobile.

II

It is typical of Americans that they took to the automobile as a matter of course — just as they have to the movies and to every other great invention of the last half century.

And the same thing has happened everytime. Taking things as they come is a fine way to foster waste and extravagance.

As regards tires, the comeback is about due. People are pretty near through paying for something that isn't, there when they look for it.

III

What a man pays for in a tire is quality—not a limited number of miles or the privilege of getting a rebate in case the miles don't come up to the limit.

U. S. Tires are guaranteed as to quality—with no limitation of mileage.

And that holds just as good for the small car tire as for the biggest U. S. Tire we've got. There's only one standard of quality with U. S.—and the size of the car has nothing whatever to do with it.

IV

We represent U. S. Tires in this town. You'll find it worth while to talk to us before you buy any more tires.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results everywhere—U. S. Royal Cord.

Ban Removed The Finished Mystery

In magazine form June 1st. Every Christian and order loving person should read it. Explains the cause of the distress of nations, and foretells the blessings of the people in the near future. For the publication of this book during the war, many Christians suffered great persecution, being beaten, tarred and feathered, imprisoned and killed. Mark 13:9. The following is from the Golden Age, June 9th, 1920.

Accused Bible Students Exonerated.

"The officers of the International Bible Students Association, formerly known as Russellites, were indicted in May, 1918, tried before a court jury and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for the alleged violation of the Espionage law. They applied for bail on appeal, but bail was denied and they were incarcerated in the penitentiary. At the end of nine months they were released on bail and two months later the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the judgment because they did not have a fair trial. They were the only men in the country arrested under this act who were denied bail. The reversal of this judgment was equivalent to saying that these men were illegally and unjustly convicted and sentenced and illegally imprisoned. On May 5th 1920, on motion of the United States District Attorney, the cases were dismissed, thus completely removing the charge and vindicating each one of them."

The Finished Mystery explains fully the prophecies of Revelations and Ezekiel, also "The Bridal Anthem," Solomon's Songs.

This book is no longer under the ban and all may now have it. Price in magazine form, 20 c. per copy, post paid.

DODSON

Some years ago there lived near here an old man known to everyone as Old Be-ad. He lived all alone in an old tumble-down, unpainted house that was so small that it could have hardly contained more than one room, and a very little one at that. Its two windows were crammed with old rags to take the place of the broken glass. Its leaky roof was patched with slabs, and instead of a chimney, a little piece of stove-pipe just sticking out of the top served to carry away the smoke. No one ever saw the inside of the house. Old Be-ad's occupation was that of gathering rags, and it was said that his house was filled with them, which seemed not unlikely, from the appearance of things. Whenever Old Be-ad appeared at any house, in the neighborhood, the children ran and hid. Anyone who mustered up courage to peek from his hiding place would see an old ragged man, rather short and stout, with a red face and frowzy black beard. His voice, which was harsh and cracked, was the main cause of our terror. Many inconsiderate mothers in the neighborhood used old Be-ad's name as the means of frightening their children. If they threatened to have Old Be-ad after them they hastened to behave well. One day while playing with other boys in a lonely spot by the riverside, we were startled to hear Old Be-ad's harsh voice say, "That's the way ye dew it, hey?" and looking up we saw his dirty red face grinning at us and shining like the face of an ogre. The poor old man was trying to make friends with us, but as soon as we caught sight of him we ran away. Everybody regarded Old Be-ad as an eccentric person, a little crazy, perhaps, but harmless. Passing his hut one day, I saw that it had been torn down. Old Be-ad had disappeared, and I never knew whether he had died or taken his departure for some other neighborhood.

Mr. A. J. Garrett spent one day last week in Oakland on business.

Mrs. Night and children, of Davis, West Va., who spent several days in Dodson with her sister, Mrs. T. B. Crittendon, returned home Monday morning.

Messrs. Mike Sunday and Nick Taso were slightly injured one day last week while working in the mines at this place.

Mr. Lee Schlegel and sister, Miss Martha, who have been the guests of their sister, Mrs. W. H. Thomas, for the past several days, returned to their home at Ashland, Pa., Sunday.

The festival held here last Saturday evening by the M. E. Sunday school, was quite a success. It was very largely attended and everyone had a general good time.

There is quite an inducement for men at Dodson. Plenty of work, good comfortable houses, natural gas, electric lights, a nice clean town with a first-class amusement hall.

An Expression of Appreciation

To My Friends and Customers:

As I stand on the threshold of a new business year and look over the past twelve years, I feel a pardonable pride in the growth of the business. Twelve years ago, in a small, unpretentious way, I entered Cumberland's mercantile field and founded my business on the principles of greater value-giving, quick sales and small profits, a store of real service and helpfulness, a policy that has gained the public's confidence. I am ever mindful of my customers' co-operation and trust, which have been so vital factors in the phenomenal growth of my business and I pledge myself to a continuance of those methods that have made Kline's Underselling Store a by-word in thousands of homes. For this I am thankful and I am going to express my appreciation, not only in words, but in acts. I want you to share in my success, and therefore invite you to our Anniversary Feast of Bargains.

Advance Showing of Fall Fashions

An advantageous purchase permits us to offer in our 12th Anniversary Sale at substantial saving, a superb showing of the correct styles for Fall Wear in

Suits--Coats--Dresses

The fall styles express individuality and where is the woman who does not crave the unusual in dress? A smart looking woman, distinguished and well groomed, knows that the success of her costume lies in the fact that it is her's individually. The suits are specially attractive and you will find one for every occasion in this showing. For walking there is always the rather tailored tricotine, serge or poret twill, which is so becoming to the majority of figures. The semi-English lines are suitable for sport wear, with unbelted, unbroken waist lines composed of gored form fitted waistlines or the boyish belted type with patch pockets. The suit for the more formal occasion is made of duvety, velonede, marvella or peachbloom material, which serve for garments of softer line and are usually trimmed with fur. Our Anniversary display embraces every style pronounced by Dame Fashion the correct for fall. We urge every woman to view this captivating assortment

STATE TO CONSTRUCT EIGHTY-FIVE MILES OF HIGHWAYS

Bids Will Be Asked Immediately For Lateral Improvements in Counties. The State Roads Commission's 1920-1921 lateral road building program including the construction of about 85 miles of highways in stretches ranging from 3 to 5 miles, will connect up some of the "missing links" in the highway system of the State.

There are some of the counties that will not be included in the program given out at this time. However, the roads that are included in the program, and will be advertised for bids yet this week, represent some badly needed work, some of which has been promised to the counties for two or three years. The commission will proceed with the work of letting out the contracts with the understanding that the funds are to be provided by the Board of Public Works in the absorption of the general road bonds by the sinking fund. This was arranged last week following the failure of the board to secure bids on the $1,500,000 proposed general road bond issue that were close enough to par.

Most of the road stretches in the outlined program are connecting links that have been badly needed. The roads to be built under the lateral road plan, as outlined by the commission, include, for Garrett county: Friendsville to Kaese's Mill, 2 miles; Oakland to Hutton's 2 miles.

Ashby Family Reunion. The reunion of the Ashby family was held on Saturday, the event being an annual one for the past several years. There were about 250 persons in attendance, including members of the family from Connecticut, Missouri, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and District of Columbia. The Ashbys were among the first settlers in this section, having come from Virginia to a point near Oakland where a blockhouse was erected prior to the Revolutionary War.

DR. JOHN WESLEY HILL OPENS WESTERN MD. CAMPAIGN

Makes Strong Presentation of Republican Side at Mountain Lake Park

At the Amphitheatre at Mountain Lake Park on last Saturday afternoon before a considerable number of auditors, Dr. John Wesley Hill, chancellor of Lincoln Memorial University, located at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., opened the Republican campaign in Western Maryland when he was introduced to the audience by State Senator Harvey J. Speicher.

The crowd was much less than was expected owing to the fact that up to Saturday evening the day of the week had been wet and on that day the sun shown out so that it gave the farmers of the community the first real good day for harvesting their grass crop in a fortnight and they took advantage of it.

Chancellor Hill, in his remarks, said in part:

"President Wilson entered the White House on a minority vote. The people did not want him. They wanted a Republican, but they were so cocksure that they split in the middle and through that divide the Democratic catastrophe, under which the country is now suffering, was made possible. Four years ago, the breach in the Republican ranks was still open and the Democratic party was continued in power. Today the Republican party presents a solid front without friction and without factionalism, under the leadership of Warren G. Harding.

Divided on Paramount Issue. "The Democratic party is divided on its paramount issue. Governor Cox, having made his pilgrimage to the White House, where he surrendered unconditionally to Wilsonian dictation, declares that the issue is the League of Nations. Chairman White of the Democratic National Committee, proclaims it as 'progressiveness.' The Republican party is ready to join issue with either slogan, knowing that they are attempts to beguile the people from the incomparable record of Democratic blunders and incapacity. Governor Cox insists that the League of Nations shall be adopted without reservations, at the same time insisting upon certain interpretations. The Supreme Court of the United States ruled in a decision rendered in relation to the treaty following the Spanish-American war that a treaty can be neither changed nor modified by interpretations. Notwithstanding this final word upon interpretations, Governor Cox insists upon them. He has not, however, in mind, nor to what particular article or provision of the treaty they are to be applied.

For Specific Reservations. "The Republican party attempts no escape through such a trap-door as that. The Republican Senators, reinforced by the elected Democratic Senators, voted for the ratification of the treaty with certain specific reservations. Governor Cox insists upon the ratification without the dotting of an i or the crossing of a t; without a reservation that would free us from obligations to police the world and to engage in all manner of foreign wars at the behest of an alien council; without a reservation that would give us the right to regulate the size of our own Army and Navy according to the needs of our own defense; without a reservation that would give us an equal voting power in the League of Nations; without a reservation that would give us the unquestioned right to determine for ourselves our own domestic affairs; without a reservation that would protect the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine; without a reservation that would give us freedom to withdraw from the League at our own will. The only reservation Governor Cox and his party would permit, with certain interpretations which would make more clear, explicit and binding the bonds which would strangle our National independence. The Republican party insists upon the right to administer our own affairs on this side of the globe, to maintain the Monroe Doctrine, which originated as a defense against Europe's encroachments, to protect our American boys from conscription and insists that Congress alone has the right to declare war.

"The Democratic party seems just as much in a sort of a missionary dream. It is a fact, however, that the home missionary activities of the Administration have fallen into bankruptcy. For eight years our borders have been menaced by Mexican bandits. American citizens have been abducted and murdered by the hundreds in the face of a continued outpouring of protest from our State Department. This has surely been a noteworthy Administration! Why talk of policing the world and protecting the territorial rights of small nations beyond the seas when we have utterly failed to protect our own rights in Mexico?

No "International Bellboy." "The Republican party is not ready to enter into a compact that will lower the Stars and Stripes beneath the 'red flag' of internationalism and transform Uncle Sam from the lantern bearer of the world's progress into an international bellboy. Under Republican Administration it has not been necessary to prod Uncle Sam to his duty to humanity. He has wrought for 'world betterment' without being enmeshed in the complication of a world league. Under Lincoln's Administration emancipation occurred; under McKinley, the liberation of Cuba and democratization of the Philippines; under Roosevelt, the Kaiser was driven out of Venezuela and Americans were protected all around the world; under Taft, the partition of China was prevented and the open door for American trade was maintained; under Woodrow Wilson,

STATE'S WOMEN GET VOTE FOR FALL ELECTION THIS YEAR

May Cast Ballots For President, Senator and Congressmen.

Women will vote in Maryland this fall for the first time in the history of the State.

The election will be for President, United States Senator and Congressmen; they may also vote upon the two proposed Constitutional Amendments and the bond question in this county authorizing the Board of Education or County Commissioners to issue bonds for the improvement of the public school system of Garrett county, the Act authorizing the submission of this question to the voters of the county having been passed the recent Legislature.

Tennessee's ratification of the suffrage amendment yesterday assures to the women the right to vote. The only detail now to be carried out is a proclamation by Secretary of State Coby in Washington that the Nineteenth Amendment has been ratified by the necessary number of States.

Before women can vote, however, they must register. The Supervisors of Elections throughout the State will at once proceed to make the necessary arrangements to register the women. Women in Garrett county will have their first opportunity to register on September 21st next. This will be the first registration day for the Presidential election. The books of registration, it is thought by the officials, are already large enough to accommodate the additional number of voters who may apply to have their names entered therein.

MOTORISTS ARE QUIZZED

Signs Posted Along The National Pike Startle Speedsters on The Highway

Motorists traveling eastward on the National Pike Monday were startled when confronted by a bold white sign with large black letters informing them to "Prepare to Meet Your God." The sign was only one of many that have been prominently and very recently placed between Addison, Pa., and Grantsville by an evangelistic sect.

Most of the signs have been posted near the scenes of recent accidents on the pike, and all of them are Biblical quotations. Some of the signs, such as "How Will You Spend Eternity?" "Repent From Your Sins," caused more than one motorist to slow down from 50 to 70 or less miles per hour for almost a minute after getting a glimpse of one of the signs.

Some of the motorists are wondering if some evangelist has a sense of humor or means it seriously.

The signs have not added any to the joys of motoring, especially for those friends who have been invited to go along with some fool driver and are mentally wondering if the undertaker will fix them up in good shape before they are viewed by their relatives and friends.

Twenty Garrett County Club Boys Go A-Camping.

The following Garrett county boys, members of the various boys' agricultural clubs, left on Monday morning for a week's camping trip near Springfield, West Va.: Harvey Stanton, Melvin Durst, Paul Stanton, Edgar Stanton, Otto Bender, Raymond Bender, Samuel Winterberg, Paul Custer, Roy Beachy, Vernon Beachy, all of Grantsville; Paul Welch, Seymour Offutt, Robert Hoffman, Bailey Rider, William Lauer, of Oakland; Carl Harvey, Swanton; David Bowman, Crelin; Ervin Beachy, Carl Bittinger, Vernon Wiley, Bittinger.

We have the dream of a League of Nations which is already in process of dissolution. France, we are told, has decided to have nothing to do with it as a super-power in national affairs. It sent its representative to the Hague, where the genius of Elihu Root was invoked, to assist in the organization of a world court which was conceived in the Hague Conference years ago. What has this League accomplished, anyhow? Poland and Czechoslovakia were asked by the Council of the League to submit their differences to the Council for settlement, but there was no difference between them in their refusal to respond to the call. Persia, hard-pressed by Soviet Russia, who is waging a war of conquest upon her, appealed to the League for aid, but it was denied her, while the League continued a policy of 'watchful waiting' to see just what the Bolsheviks will do. Poland, a member of the League, in the midst of a life-and-death struggle against Russia, appealed in vain to the League for protection from the blood-thirsty Bolsheviks who are now hammering at the gate of Warsaw. But nothing is done; on the contrary, England, the foremost power of the League, having six votes to each of the other Powers, instead of instigating League action, entirely ignores it and gives countenance and material aid to Russia by proposing to open to Russia full trade relations.

Harding Faces The Future.

"Now, as to progressiveness: The Republican party has nominated as its standard-bearer a simon-pure, flat-footed, square-toed, progressive, Warren G. Harding, faces the future. He stands midway between reaction and revolution. He is not a stand-patter, but a sure stepper. He knows the difference between Democratic motion and Republican progress. He stands for the Constitution without mutilation, the court house without desecration, the school house as the fortress of liberty, the sanctuary as the safeguard of society, the home as the corner-stone of democracy and orderly government as the security of them all."

HUTTON

Hutton and vicinity was visited on a recent Friday by one of the most terrific electrical storms that has ever occurred in this section. The heavy rainfall of a fortnight previous proved quite disastrous in many places, causing much damage to property in all parts of the village. In one instance the writer observed where the earth had been washed to a depth of ten or more feet along the embankment of the Baltimore and Ohio at a distance of a few hundred feet from the station at this place. The gullies above noted were occasioned by the heavy down-pour of rain which continued unabated throughout the night and until noon of the following day, when finally the storm ceased, and the glorious sun shone forth again with magnificent splendor over hill and dale.

Messrs. Graham E. Johnson and Jerry J. Pendergast, of Hutton, were Terra Alta visitors for a few hours on last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Charles R. Hecker visited Oakland for a few hours on Saturday.

Dr. N. L. Broadwater, of Oakland, was called to this village recently to attend an emergency case when an infant child of one of our citizens happened to fall into a vessel of boiling water. The little one escaped being seriously injured as the mother rescued it almost immediately after the unfortunate accident occurred.

Miss Frances Dolores Pendergast, of near here, was visiting friends in the county seat one day recently.

Dr. Henry W. McComas was a professional visitor to Hutton Saturday evening.

Mrs. Kimmell, who resides in Texas, is here on a visit to her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Felton, of near Hutton.

Mr. Ridenour, of Mountain Lake Park, was a business visitor to Hutton on Friday.

Mr. Thomas Faherty, of Cumberland, was the guest of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Faherty, on Tuesday of last week, he having but recently returned to the Queen City from Baltimore where for several weeks he was a patient in the Mercy Hospital.

Rev. James R. Connell, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, was visiting his parishioners here and at Edgewood on Thursday last.

Mr. C. E. Johnson spent Thursday evening the guest of friends at "Elmhurst."

Mr. and Mrs. John Hodley, of Keyser, West Va., are here on a visit to relatives and friends.

Mrs. Martin J. Hughes was a visitor to Oakland recently.

Mr. James Kirby, of New York City, spent a few days of last week with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Connell, at their home in Hutton.

Miss Anna Carney of Clarksburg, and brother, Mr. John Carney, of Cleveland, O., spent a few days recently here as the guests of home folks.

Mr. Henry C. Grusenford, proprietor of the Keyser Pharmacy, spent Sunday last with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Grusenford, at Edgewood.

Miss Margaret Burns, of the Terra Alta Pharmacy, was visiting friends in Hutton on Friday of last week.

Baltimore and Ohio Agent Morris, of this place, spent Sunday with his family at Dodge, where they reside on a large farm.

"Spread a ray of golden sunshine,
Where'er you go,
In the spring or summer time,
Or when falls the snow.
Sing the sweets of grand old age,
Sing the hopes of youth,
Sing the joy of faithfulness—
Sing the joys of truth!"

"Sing the joy of living right,
Sing the joy of health;
Sing the joy that labor brings;
Joy that beggars wealth!
Go a-singing all the way
Be days foul or fine,
Singing cheer and happiness,
Spreading glad sunshine!"
ST. ELMO.

BITTINGER

It is reported that during several nights last week the terrifying and hair-raising screams of a panther were heard in the vicinity of the ancient Cunningham plantation, which is situated a few miles south of this village. So unusual and terrifying were the cries of the beast that stalwart farmers sought refuge behind locked doors, their wives trembling with fear hid themselves and the bravest dogs went whining to their kennels, while lovers, strolling leisurely homeward quickened their pace and have since confined their love-making to the safer hours of daylight.

James Paul, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hetrick, of Lumberton, West Va., died there recently and the body was brought to this village on Wednesday of last week, the funeral taking place the following day.

Mrs. Oliver Beachy and children visited relatives at Mountain Lake Park last Sunday.

Mrs. J. B. Emory and daughter Ruth spent a few hours last Sunday as guests of Mrs. Emory's brother, Mr. Silas O. Wiley, and wife, in Oakland.

Lloyd Brenneman and family, accompanied by Mrs. Myrtle Walburn, motored to Cumberland on Sunday.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society held a lawn fete on the church lawn last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Weyrick returned to their home at Wheeling, W. Va., last Sunday morning after spending a few weeks with Mrs. Weyrick's parents here.

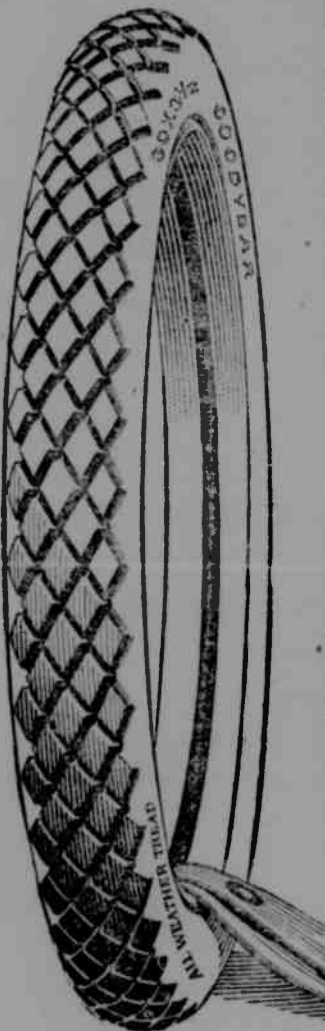

Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Bitner, of Oakland, were Sunday visitors to this village.

Messrs. Irvin Beachy, Carl Bittinger and Vernon Wiley, members of the Boys' Club of this community, are spending this week camping with other lads of this and Allegheny county down on the South Branch of the Potomac River.

GORTNER

Mr. Guy Williams and Miss Mildred Cramer, both of Richmond, W. Va., who were married at the Methodist parsonage in Oakland Thursday last, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Welch afterward, were given a rousing send-off on Thursday evening. The couple left Friday for Clarksburg for a visit to Mr. Wil-

Small Cars—and the Declining Cost of Tire Mileage

30 x 3 1/4 Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50
30 x 3 1/4 Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost no more than the price you are asked to pay for tubes of less merit—why risk costly casings when such sure protection is available? $4.50

GOOD YEAR

You are aware, of course, that during the last ten years, Goodyear has been able steadily to increase the amount of mileage built into its tires.

Do you realize, also, that this increase has been accomplished without extra cost to the user—that Goodyear Tires are priced no higher today than in 1910?

In no tire in the Goodyear line is the declining cost of mileage more evident than in the present 30 x 3, 30 x 3 1/2 and 31 x 4-inch size Goodyear Tires made especially for small cars.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires—get the exceptional worth and endurance that Goodyear builds into them.

Remarkable Cross - Continent Record—27.2 Miles Per Gallon

Think of it! An Overland stock car, taking on gas at 32 different public stations, driven by 25 different drivers who never saw the car before, smashed all trans-continent records in a day and night run from New York to San Francisco. 3,442 miles of incessant driving in 179 hours; the car punished by unfamiliar driving—reckless or conservative, according to the driver—yet the car's inherent economy is so certain that the Overland averaged 27.2 miles to the gallon. How was this remarkable cross-continent record made?

Over Continent, Car is Relayed from Driver to Driver

A FEW weeks ago an Overland dealer down in Arizona suggested an entirely new kind of trip for a motor car. He said, "Let's have the distributors and dealers clear across the continent relay a stock Overland automobile from driver to driver on a continuous trip, and see what the car will do."

At first the idea was scoffed at, as every man who knows automobiles knows that under such handling no car can be reasonably expected to perform even up to its normal requirements. But on second thought, it was decided that a trip like this would be the best kind of test that could possibly be given, as it would show not the best that a car could perform, but the best that could be expected under the most adverse conditions.

Running at Times 40 Miles An Hour

SO an Overland stock car started from New York at midnight on July 18th. The roads were rough. Not a single driver had ever sat in the car before. In many cases the road was missed, and the distance had to be covered back until the right road or the detour was found.

"Let's try to average 20 miles an hour clear across," was the suggestion of the Overland dealers. "But that means driving 35 to 40 miles an hour part of the time," was the objection, "and you can't get gasoline economy at that speed." But 20 miles an hour was decided upon.

25 Different Men Sit at The Wheel

A MOTOR car trip across the United States in a week's time, in a car weighing less than 2000 pounds. That was the plan.

Mile after mile was clipped off on schedule time. Distributors met the car at appointed locations. Change of the 25 drivers was made sometimes in less than two or three minutes. Once a windshield was broken which had to be fixed. Here and there a nut had to be tightened. But the car pounded on through the rain and dust and heat, over mountains and plains.

At Kearney, Nebraska, the half-way mark, the average stood 25 miles per gallon over a distance of 1600 miles. And the car was running so perfectly that every driver expressed the utmost enthusiasm over its performance.

As Standard as the Car You Buy

ONE of the remarkable things about the trip was the low oil consumption. And the car went across, not on cord tires such as are normally used for this kind of trip, but on standard Fisk fabric tires.

The standard Tilghman carburetor and the standard Auto-Life generator system and the U. S. L. batteries were used. The car was a standard car with absolutely no reinforcements throughout.

Mayor Hylan of New York Indorses Economy

Advantages FINALLY after covering the almost impassable roads across the Nevada desert, the wonderful little Overland, protected throughout by Triplex Springs, rolled gaily down the paved highways of California into San Francisco, delivering to Mayor Hylan a letter from Mayor Hylan of New York, which read:

This wonderful trip of the Overland again emphasizes in a truly dramatic and remarkable way the wonderful stamina and riding qualities, and the extraordinary economy of this great car.

If you don't know this car and its remarkable achievements come in and look it over. It will pay you to find out what a great automobile you can buy for a small sum of money.

Touring, $985; Roadster, $985; Coupe, $1525; Sedan, $1575. Prices f. o. b. Toledo, subject to change without notice.
